Spring Woollen Goods.

The new wool stuffs for spring dresses revive the styles of our grandmothers both in their soft faded hues and in the quaint designs wrought upon them, or rather woven there, in old-fashioned sampler stitches. The cross stitches of tapestries and the beaded work done a century ago by painstaking needlewomen are now admirably copied by machinery in both silks and crewels on the rough-finished bison-cloths, the smooth albatross wools, and on many canvas-like fabrics. Small detached figures are most used for the sunken cross stitches, while the raised boucle figures are larger arabesques, birds and branches of flowers. The backgrounds for these designs, which are done in gay colors, are soft shades of gray, brown, blue or old red, with the greater number in the new ecru shades, which are now called Suede, like the colors so popular for gloves. Panama like the tints of straw braids, and champignons—the pinkish-browns of mushrooms. Only a part of the dress is made of these figured stuffs, and the preference is for confining the figures to the lower skirt, which is severely plain, and to the vest, which is the only trimming for the basque; however, there are many variations to this rule, and the use of remnants and short lengths for combination dresses may still be resorted to. Other fabrics for what the French manufacturers label grand'mere dresses copy to perfection in their weaving the stitches of quilting in the quilted skirts that formed the lower skirts of dresses in olden times. A small flower or leaf, dots or stars, may then be printed all through the quilted design, and this antiquated-looking fabric will form the full round skirt of a costume that has a basque and most oddly bunched up draperies of a plain color.

For those who do not like figured goods there are ottoman albatross wools of the lightest quality, not heavier than veiling or bunting, yet woven with threads across that give repped effects; just the reverse of these is the fil-a-fil wools with alternating threads of two colors or of different thicknesses lengthwise in the fabric. Both these materials, as well as the summer bison-cloths, are of light weight, and almost as transparent as muslin. A great many striped goods are shown both in wide stripes of solid hue and in others that have the fil-a-fil stripes in quaintly contrasted colors, or in two tones of a single shade. The blue-grays seem to prevail in these striped stuffs, and also in the checks, blocks and plaids that are shown in fine wools; otherwise the preference is for the new ecru tints that always find favor in the spring. Cheviots come in all the striped and checked designs, and in the illuminated and Venetian mixtures of color that have no set pattern. What is called Jersey albatross is a sheer wool bunting woven in elastic webbing like Jersey cloths. New plaids for children's dresses have their bars crossing in squares that are woven in Greek key patterns, and these show odd contrasts of color, such as Suede with shrimp pink, or gray with reseda, gray with Suede, or porcelain blue with buff.

Cashmeres are more largely imported than at any previous season, and in exquisitely fine, soft and light qualities. Three colors most seen in these are Suede, sky blue, and cream white, and the novel way of using them is to put them under transparent embroideries on white net, representing lace, in the way silks and satins have hitherto been used. All garish luster is thus done away in these refined toilettes, which have the entire skirt covered with ecru embroidered net, which is itself made into a skirt of what is called piece lace, or else the front and side-breadths only are covered with this net woven to represent many rows of lace. The designs are similar to those of Oriental laces, and much of the pattern is done in darker ecru threads than the groundwork of the net. The tapestry figures and raised velvet blocks noted on silks and on bison cloths are among the new fancies for cashmeres; these, like the lace-covered cashmeres, serve for skirts, while the waist and draperies are of plain cashmere.

Irish poplins, that have found favor again with English women, are imported in qualities of medium weight suitable for demi-season dresses. They will be used here by those who prefer corded ottoman effects, and are to serve for the entire dress, with trimmings of velvet. The sober shades of gray and ecru that prevail at present are very handsome in those corded fabrics or mixed silk and wool; there are also smoother poplins, resembling pongees, of substantial thickness that show no cords.—Harper's Bazar.

One of Webster's Stories.

Daniel Webster was fond of a good story, and told a few illustrating his early life in New Hampshire. One evening at a convivial party, where he and several distinguished lawyers were present, the conversation happened to turn on the legal profession. "When I was a young practitioner," said Mr. Webster, "there was but one man at the New Hampshire bar of whom I was afraid, and that was old Barnaby. There were but few men who dared to enter the list with him. On one occasion Barnaby was employed to defend a suit for a piece of land, brought by a little, crabbed, cunning lawyer called Bruce. Bruce's case was looked upon as good as lost when it was ascertained that Barnaby was retained against him. The suit came on for trial, and Barnaby found that Bruce had worked hard, and left no stone unturned to gain the victory. The testimony for the plaintiff was very strong, and unless it could be impeached, the case of the defendant was lost. The principal witness introduced by the plaintiff wore a red coat. In summing up for the defense, old Barnaby commenced a furious attack on this witness, pulling his testimony all to pieces, and appealing to the jury if a man who wore a red coat was under any circumstances, to be believed. 'And who is this red-coated witness?' exclaimed Barnaby, 'but a descendant of our common enemy, who has striven to take from us our liberty, and would not hesitate now to deprive my poor client of his land, by making any sort of red-coated statement!' During this speech Bruce was walking up and down the bar, greatly excited, and convinced that his case was gone, knowing, as he did, the prejudice of the jury against the British. Whilst, however, Barnaby was gesticulating and leaning forward to the jury in his eloquent appeal, his shirt-bosom opened slightly, and Bruce accidentally discovered that Barnaby wore a red undershirt. Bruce's countenance brightened up. Putting both hands in his coat pockets, he walked to the bar with great confidence, to the astonishment of his client and all lookers-on. Just as Barnaby concluded Bruce whispered in the ear of his client: 'I've got him—your case is safe,' and, approaching the jury, he commenced his reply to the slaughtering argument of his adversary. Bruce gave a regular history of the ancestry of his red-coated witness, proving his patriotism and devotion to the country, and his character for truth and veracity. 'But what, gentlemen of the jury,' broke forth Bruce, in a loud strain of eloquence, while his eyes flashed fire, 'what are you to expect of a man who stands here to defend a cause based on no foundation of right or justice whatever; of a man who undertakes to destroy our testimony on the ground that my witness wears a red coat, when, gentlemen of the jury—when, when, when, gentlemen of the jury?' (here Bruce made a spring, and, catching Barnaby by the bosom of the shirt, tore it open, displaying his red flannel), 'when Mr. Barnaby himself wears a red flannel coat concealed under a blue one?' The effect was electrical; Barnaby was beaten at his own game, and Bruce gained the cause."—Exchange.

A Thousand Wives.

Do what they may, no Mormon leader will ever equal the Sultan of Morocco, Sidi Muley Hassan, who has just added the one thousandth wife to his harem, and has celebrated this unique millenary by a brilliant feast given to the other 999, or rather to the other 600, for 400 are either dead or pensioned off. Like the Mormons, the Sultan does not keep all his better-halves at one place, but distributes them among his winter and summer residences at Fez, Morocco, Tafilet, and so forth. Even then, unless he has more palaces than fall to the lot of most Emperors, there must be enough in each house to seriously interfere with harmony now and then. We wonder if he felt as much pride and satisfaction when he added the thousanth to the number as Baron Tauchnitz did when he published the thousandth volume of his convenient "Collection of British Authors?" For we imagine that after a man has married his three or four hundredth consort—though on this point we must speak with the doubt arising from a total lack of experience—he cares very little for a new wife, as a wife, and regards each further addition much as a collector looks upon a new Elzevir, or a new specimen of Japanese pottery, or another pipe, when he does not care to smoke, another violin, which will hang upon his wall untouched. It is the pleasure of the miser who heaps up stores: a pleasure, which, in this line of hoarding, only one man in the modern world, fortunately, is allowed to have. It is curious, however, to observe that, while what might be called the physical wonders of the "Arabian Nights Entertainments"—the carpet or the horse that traveled a month's journey in a day, the talisman that conveyed one's words at once to the distant lover—that, while these and the like are coming true by the power of modern science, the social wonders, as they seem to us Occidentals, are beginning to fade away. A son of this very Sultan, the Prince Muley Edris, not long ago married an Italian governess, who did not give up her religion, and who stipulated that she should be the only wife; and a brother of the Sultan, the Sherif of Wezdan, has an English wife, who no doubt was equally determined to have her husband all to herself.—Boston Advertiser.

Rosewood for Pianos.

The defects of rosewood are undoubtedly making themselves felt at this season of the year more than any other, and therefore a discussion of the matter is now timely, and if a general course as regards this material could be decided upon by the manufacturers and dealers it would not be impossible that a checking piano might be a thing of the past. In this connection I might say that it is not merely rosewood as a material that should be eliminated from the manufacturing of pianos, but the veneering process with any material. It is this process of veneering, or the covering of one wood with another by glueing, that is the real cause of the trouble, and we fear there is only one safe and sure way out of the difficulty, viz.: to use only solid woods. The use of solid woods immediately suggests the idea of carving which of course gives opportunity for considerable proper and artistic decoration which would lead to improved outlines and styles of cases. The uniformity of styles amongst the various makers to-day is a bountiful source of evil and furnishes a good chance for much of the misrepresentation and consequent dissatisfaction on the part of customers. If some of the well-known and respectable makers would inaugurate the plan of a more general custom of requiring time to produce a piano after the order was given, or in other words develop their "custom-made department," it would be a step in the right direction. The trouble, however, is that leading makers are unwilling to yield up the prestige of reputation which causes the ignorant buyers to hope that this particular brand may not have the ordinary rosewood, and so they go on, only afterwards to make explanations. There is one fact, however, that there is a difference in rosewood, and a mighty difference in the manner of veneering, and if the trade will not unite in dispensing altogether with it, let them join in requiring the best quality of thick veneer, for there is much that can be prevented of the present mismanagement with even rosewood.—Boston Musical Observer.

—Canada's Upper House of legislation, or Senate, has little attention or thought bestowed upon it by the people. It is seldom in session, and has but seventy members, who are appointed for life, two-thirds of whom owe their position to Sir John Macdonald, either directly or indirectly. The Senate's whole duty seem to be to pass whatever laws the Lower House originates.—N. Y. Times.

Rheumatic Syrup Co:

Gentlemen—I feel it my duty to recommend your wonderful medicine—"Rheumatic Syrup"—to all who are suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia or kidney difficulty.

I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism, caused by kidney difficulty, and have been treated by our best physicians, but they failed to reach my case or benefit me in the least.

I saw in the Auburn papers the names of a number who had been permanently cured by the use of Rheumatic Syrup, and, being acquainted with many of them, I was induced to try it, and to my surprise I found that all pain had left me before I had finished the first bottle. I continued its use for a time, and to-day I am well as ever and feel no more pain or trouble with my kidneys. It has been several months since I discontinued its use, so I know it is a permanent cure in my case.

I can testify that Rheumatic Syrup will do all—yes, more than you claim for it. I am yours truly,

Mrs. Hattie Paddock.

Bulwer Lytton's Bridge.

Where it Touches the Shores and Crosses Optimism in Midstream.

"What a beautiful bridge between old age and childhood is religion. How intuitively the child begins with prayer and worship on entering life, and how intuitively, on quitting life, the old man turns back to prayer and worship, putting himself again side by side with the infant," remarks Sir E. Bulwer Lytton, in his "Strange Story."

Yes, but between its distant abutments the bridge of life has many high and awful arches, through which the wild waters dash and roar in wrath and desolation. Prayer and worship do not sustain these. Nature's solid rocks must be quaken beneath and human art and skill must rear and solidify the structure overhead. God's will is best exemplified in the laws He has made for the creatures whom he has placed under their control. Neither the child's trustful "Our Father," nor the old man's "Forget me not" in the midst of mine infirmities," will alter this by the weight of a single grain.

Science and art are first, then faith and prayer—is the order of Heaven itself. Divinity heals through its agents, and these agents are the discoveries of man; not the vague announcements of prophets or seers. Is life a burden to you? Does time drag? Is your power to cope with life's problem and duties weakened? You are not well. Your blood is sluggish and tainted, perhaps; or some important organ is torpid or overworked. The fact may have taken the form of dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, malaria, pains in the stomach, chronic headache, or any of a dozen other ills. PARKER'S Tonic will invigorate those who have been shut up in damp, fetid cells. It is powerful, pure, delicious, scientific, safe—the keystone of the central arch of the bridge of life.

ESTATE OF JOSEPH TAYLOR.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 28th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Joseph Taylor, late of Ravensmoor, Chester County, England, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Homer L. Stewart, alleging among other things that the property of said deceased, is in part at least, a mortgage upon real estate owned by petitioner in Lenawee county, which he has assumed to pay, and which is past due, and praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Edwin B. Wood, or some other suitable person. And it appearing to the court that some of the heirs-at-law of said deceased are residents of England in Great Britain, a foreign country, having no consul residing in this state, whereby it becomes the duty of this court to notify the consul of such foreign nation in the City of New York, at least sixty days before the day assigned for the hearing of said petition, and of the pendency thereof and the day appointed for hearing the same.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday the 5th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks immediately previous to said day of hearing.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT TECUMSEH, MICHIGAN, AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

TECUMSEH, MICH., MAR. 20, 1884.

At the recent village election in Deerfield, O. E. Hawkins and Willis Hood were the candidates for village clerk; at least Hawkins was a candidate. The last named gentleman is a printer, and printed his tickets "For recorder". The law does not provide for a recorder in village elections, and although Hawkins received 88 votes, and Hood three, the latter was declared elected.

Monroe Democrat: Some cranky old individual who has been disappointed in his anticipations of leap year berates the Dundee girls at a fearful rate in a letter to the Reporter. He has watched them upon the street at all hours of the day, has timed their movements and charges them with being desperate flirts. He says they pay particular attention to strangers, and traveling men say they are more easily mashed than any other girls in Michigan. The writer very wisely hides behind the signature of "subscriber."

Michigan Crop Reports.

In the March crop report, the secretary of state says apples are all right.

The reports received from many specialists regarding fruit indicate that peach buds are badly damaged at Laketown, Allegan county; destroyed on the hills of Antrim county; for the most part all right at Flushing, Genesee county; but little damaged at Old Mission, Grand Traverse county; mostly killed about Lansing; seriously injured in Ionia county; largely destroyed in Kent county; all killed at Lenawee junction, Lenawee county; considerably injured in Manistee county; about all destroyed at Monroe; but little hurt about Muskegan; not enough hurt to effect the crop at Grand Haven; most all killed on low ground about Holland; not materially hurt at South Haven. Pears are considerably damaged at Ann Arbor, but are all right elsewhere, so far as reported. Cherries are reported slightly damaged in Ionia and Grand Traverse counties, and badly damaged in Allegan county.

EXTRAORDINARY TITHES.

We have received from Albert Bath of Sevenoaks, Kent, England, a notice of a sale at auction to enforce the collection of extraordinary tithes from which it appears that farmers produce is still sold in England to support a State church.

EXTRAORDINARY TITHES.—A sale by auction under distraint, by the direction of the Rev. W. B. Pusey, Rector of Langley, will be held at Mr. S. Skinner's Farm, Langley, near Maidstone, on Monday, Feb. 25th, 1884, at 1 o'clock. Farm produce, the property of the tenant, will be sold to recover Extraordinary Tithes. Immediately after the sale an Indignation Meeting will be held, to protest against the continuance of this Tithe, which is not only an unjust and vexatious burden, acting as an impediment to enterprise and capital, but wounds the very spirit of Christianity, and its exaction is degrading to our State Church.

ALBERT BATH,
Sec'y Anti-Extraordinary Tithe Association.

The state census will be taken next June and we are in receipt of a paper from Mr. Harry A. Conant, secretary of state, describing the manner in which it will be taken, who shall take it, what the enumerators shall receive for their services, etc. Briefly it is as follows: The enumerators will be appointed in cities by the common council, and in townships, by township boards, and must be appointed after the first Monday in May. The enumeration is to commence June 1st and must be completed during that month. After it is completed, the population schedule will be made public, but no unauthorized person will be allowed to examine, or in any way ascertain the facts connected with any of the other schedules, and any enumerator who shall tell any person not authorized to receive the same, any statistics of property or business, included in his return, shall be subject to a fine of one hundred dollars or imprisonment in the county jail, or both. This clause was made to protect individual interests. Enumerators will receive $2.50 per day and ten cents per mile for going to the office of the county clerk to procure the necessary blanks, and the same for carrying the returns to the office of the clerk, and they will draw their pay through the clerk, who, after satisfying himself that the returns are properly made, will give the enumerator a certificate on the county treasurer, who will cash it. The laws are very stringent, requiring the census sheet to be perfect in every respect.

ALLEGED EXTORTION.

Oppressed Settlers.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Circulars from the Northwest have recently been distributed among Congressmen, in which the charge is made that the Northern Pacific Railway Company is extorting from settlers on its lands a higher price per acre than offered them by a resolution of the company's Board of Directors. Northern Pacific officials now in this city deny positively that the company has broken faith with settlers on railroad lands. They say that the resolution of the Northern Pacific board referred to was adopted in November, 1879, when the road had not been constructed between the Missouri River in Dakota and Columbia River in Washington Territory, a distance of about 1,200 miles. For a greater part of this distance the Government land surveys had not been made and settlers were deterred from going into the country in advance of the building of the road by the fear that when the surveys should be made they might find their improvements to be on railroad land and be forced to pay a high price for the land.

To quiet this apprehension and encourage settlement the company gave assurance to the settlers that, in case their quarter section claims should prove to be railway land, they would only be required to pay the same price per acre demanded by the Government for the pre-emption of claims, namely $2.50, with the addition of ten cents per acre to cover the cost of surveys and conveyance. The resolution giving this assurance applied only to agricultural lands and expressly excepted coal, iron and timber lands and lands required for town sites and for the use of the company in connection with the operation of the road. Subsequently, as the construction of the road progressed and agricultural sections near its line were surveyed so that settlers could select Government or railroad land at their option, the policy of the company was changed and the system adopted of examining lands and grading them in price on the basis of their value. Of this change the company gave extensive public notice, but the resolution of 1879 is in force so far as settlers are concerned, who have the right to claim its benefits. The Northern Pacific officials say that if there has been instances where such settlers have been refused the privileges of purchase under the terms of the resolution, such instances cannot be numerous and the company is at all times ready to remedy any injustice that may have been done if proper proof is presented. The privilege to purchase at the minimum price they say was never intended to apply to more than 160 acres for each actual settler, the policy of the company being to discourage speculation and reserve its agricultural lands for small farmers who cultivate their own holdings and make homes upon them for their families.

In all cases where settlers have gone upon town site lands, or upon other lands exempted from the company's offer, it has been the company's intention and policy to treat them fairly and with liberality. The railroad officials further say that the charges of injustice toward settlers seem designed to create a prejudice in Congress against the recognition of the company's plain, legal and equitable right to retain its land grant rather than to remedy any real abuse. They also state that much the larger proportion of all land sales heretofore made in the district named have been made at minimum prices authorized by the board. They assert that a mistaken impression prevails as to the character and value of lands embraced within the Northern Pacific grant, especially in Montana and Idaho. They estimate that the available land suitable for farming purposes in those Territories to inure to the company is less than 2,000,000 acres, the remaining 20,000,000 acres being mountain ranges and arid and broken uplands, valuable, if at all, only for grazing purposes.

Burial of a Giantess.

NEW YORK, March 18.—The burial of Mrs. Arthur Reid, who was known professionally as Jennie Waldron, the giantess, took place Saturday. Her remains were removed at an early hour from an undertaker's shop on the Bowery to the new Union Baptist Church in Green Point. The coffin containing the body was placed in front of the pulpit and was surrounded by a large number of floral offerings. The coffin was three and a half feet wide, three feet deep and six feet long. A crowd of curiosity seekers surrounded the edifice. A large assembly was present at the services, which were conducted by the pastor, the Rev. D. C. Hughes. The husband, father, uncles, cousins and other relatives of the unfortunate girl, many of whom had the appearance of well-to-do people, were present. A long procession accompanied the remains to the cemetery of the Evergreens.

The Mississippi Deluge.

VICKSBURGH, Miss., March 17.—From Sharkey to Greenwood, a hundred miles below, the water is over all places except a few mounds sufficient for stock to stand on. The town of Greenwood is under water except the warehouse and Court House. Shell Mounds and Sidon are both overflowed. No loss of life or stock is reported. The planters are in good spirits. They believe the worst is over. There is no demoralization of labor. It is believed the water will recede in time to make good crops.

A Bayou Sara special says: The river has fallen eight inches since the Morganzea break. The crevasse is now 870 yards wide.

Fatal Bridge Accident.

PITTSBURGH, March 18.—Yesterday morning at nine o'clock, while John Bright, Daniel Mullen, Martin Shady and William Dudy were engaged in the demolition of a small bridge spanning the Pan-Handle Railroad tracks on Washington Street, one of the stringers suddenly broke and the four men were precipitated to the track twenty-five feet below. Miller's wrist and one arm was broken and his back seriously injured. He will probably die. Shady was also badly hurt about the back and one leg was fractured. The other two received painful but not serious injuries.

Apprehensive of Dynamite Outrages.

OTTAWA, March 17.—It is rumored at the Parliament buildings last night that the Government has got the intimation to use every precaution, as dynamiters were supposed to be meditating an attack on the buildings. The guard was increased and the Speakers of the Commons and Senate, who have apartments in the building, retired from their quarters Saturday evening. It is said, however, that Speaker Kirkpatrick left owing to his wife being ill.

Death of Charles Mooney.

NEW YORK, March 17.—Charles Mooney, aged fifty-five a grandson of William Mooney, one of the founders of the Tammany Society, died yesterday in a cheap lodging house where he has been living in a state of abject poverty.

THE BROKEN LEVEE.

Situation Along the Mississippi Below

NEW ORLEANS, March 17.—The water has fallen all the way from three to eight inches between this city and Bayou Sara on account of the break through the huge mud bank at Morganseo, although rising steadily at Natchez and points above. This fact has greatly relieved the apprehensions of the people of Lower Louisiana, who consider that the crevasse has saved them from a general inundation. The break at Morganseo, which occurred at five o'clock Friday night, was 600 feet wide at eleven o'clock that night, 900 feet at eleven o'clock Saturday morning, and 2,000 feet at noon yesterday. State Engineer Brown has gone up from Baton Rouge with laborers and appliances hoping to save the broken ends of the levee by building facings around them and thus preserving about 1,300 feet of bank on each side. Previous to this year this levee had been down for a decade and it was an open question whether it should be rebuilt or not. The United States engineers concluded to the contrary, it being considered wisest to keep it open as an outlet for surplus waters, or in other words, to let nature have her own way about it, as she had always succeeded in doing anyhow, regardless of the theories of the two extreme classes of Eads or Cowdon. Governor McEnery, however, having some money on hand which could be devoted to the purpose, and ambitious of the title of "Levee Governor," ordered the work to be rebuilt, which was done at a cost of some $80,000. Unfortunately, a portion of the bank was a quicksand, which prevented the work being of a sound character, and when the water reached a certain height the levee gave way at precisely the same point where it had given way before when it got in the way of the surging waters. The crevasse water will probably inundate more or less of thirteen parishes, but they can better bear it than that portion of the State which was constantly menaced while it stood. Since the fall of the river of eight inches there, occasioned by the break at Morganseo, the Medora levee in Iberville is considered safe. The force yesterday morning was increased to nearly two hundred and fifty men. The dry weather enables the men to work more securely. A break occurred Saturday in the levee in front of the Barbin tract, two miles below St. Gabriel, occasioned by a defective rice flume. The break was closed by the planters in the neighborhood in a few hours. Below the city there have been two breaks in the levees, one at Buros and the other about thirty feet below Socolos Canal. There was also a small break near Oakville. They were all inconsiderable and were being worked on yesterday by the planters in their neighborhood and every confidence was felt that they would soon be closed. Below, Kennerville, in Jefferson parish, considerable work has been done by the Planters' Association. In this way the Souve is being raised and revetted with a facing of plank. The Souve is a very important work to New Orleans, as a break there would inundate the city, as it did in 1849. The water would go over the so-called protection levee above Carrolton. The break at the lower end of the Souve, which was fortunately taken in time, was closed, and is now being made secure under the direction of State Engineer Lewis. There are many sections of broken revetments on the levees above Carrolton, caused by the late storm. These are also being repaired and dangerous places strengthened, by the city and parish authorities. These levees are quite as much a protection to the city as the levees at Carrollton, as a break in any of them, from Camp Parapet to Carrollton, would pour a flood over the cross levee at the upper line of the city. The Tallahatchie is over its banks in the neighborhood of Greenwood and below, and that city is all under water. The water in the Yazoo is rising rapidly.

THE ENTOMBED MINERS.

Latest Particulars From the Disaster—Relief for the Sufferers.

LYNCHBURG, Va., March 17.—There is little of additional interest from the Pocahontas mines. Another explosion is feared, and as a precaution against further loss of human life, a guard has been set at the enterances of the mines. Superintendent Lathrop has notified several mining experts, whose services were engaged, that they are no longer needed. They will be recalled when the mines are reopened. The Superintendent states that the east mine, which was not materially affected by the explosion, will be worked again in a few days, as soon as arrangements can be perfected, and the miners employed. The resumption of work in the west mine, where the explosion occurred, will not take place for two months or more. Governor Cameron telegraphed Colonel Frank Huger, Superintendent of the Norfolk & Western Railroad here, for information as to the requirements for the relief of the dependants of the entombed miners, and the answer was returned that about $2,500 would meet the pressing necessities of the sufferers. The soliciting committees raised over $500 in a short while here, and there has been a call for a meeting of the Lynchburg Tobacco Association for the purpose of increasing the subscription. Fifty barrels of flour and 2,500 pounds of bacon were shipped hence to the sufferers.

Terrible Death.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 17.—Charles Christie, aged twenty-five years, employed in the paper mill of William H. Hoffman & Sons, near Cockeysville, Md., met with an awful death Saturday. Christie was engaged in arranging some of the shafting in the mill, when his foot slipped and he fell on the belting below. The belt was revolving at its greatest speed, and before the unfortunate man could do anything to save himself, his entire body was forced between two rollers and cast on the floor beyond, a horrible mangled mass of humanity. The space through which Christie's body had been dragged was only six inches wide. The deceased was married, and leaves a wife and two little children. It was arranged to have had a social gathering at the house of the deceased in the evening, to celebrate his birthday.

Suicide With a Skate-Strap.

BALTIMORE, Md., March 17.—Franz Steward, aged twenty-four years, was found dead in bed at his boarding-house yesterday with a skate-strap tied tightly around his neck, with which he had choked himself to death. He had been suffering with malarial fever, and his ill health, doubtless, prompted suicide. He was an Austrian, and unmarried.

Honoring a Patriot.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The Grand Commandery of Knights Templar will, on Decoration Day, adorn the statue of Lafayette in Union Square in honor of that patriot's visit sixty years ago and his being made a Knight Templar.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

GRAND HOTEL DE MADRID.)
SEVILLE, SPAIN.
Sunday, Feb. 10, 1884.

You are doubtless getting ready to go to four o'clock service; we are about ready to go to bed. You know that we are about eight hours ahead of you. We have had a very pleasant day, but not much of a day like Sunday. We have been to the market, to the cathedral, to a bull ring, to a church, to the carnival. Rather a mixed day, don't you think. At the cathedral we heard the grand organ playing, and this afternoon we went again and heard some little boys sing and play with castanets and they kept good time with their feet. It is a custom prohibited by the Pope in all other countries, and protested against here, but allowed to be used once a year,—the Sunday before Lent. There were ten boys, each dressed in crimson, gold and white, with slippers. I don't know the object of this exhibition, but strange as it seemed in a cathedral I enjoyed it.

We leave this place tomorrow morning, at ten o'clock, for Cordova. We will probably stay there two days, and then go to Grenada. Let me see. We have been inside of three palaces,—the "Alcazar," home of ex-queen Isabel; the "San Selmo," palace of the Duke Montpensie, son of Louis Phillip, of France; the palace of the Pilate, a vacant building built by a nobleman in imitation of the palace of Pontius Pilate. There is a room where Judas sold his Lord, and the table from which he received his thirty pieces of silver. There is a place where the cock crowed and where Peter stood. There is the room where Christ was scourged and the marble post to which he was bound. 'Twas sad to think of all these things, but it gave me a clearer idea of the Bible than I ever had before. The San Selmo was elegantly furnished,—the grounds covered ten or twelve acres.

It is now late, eleven o'clock, and our courier wants to take us to the theatre to see the masquers dance before we go to bed. Then I will have to pack, so I probably will not get to bed before morning.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Spring, gentle spring.

The mail service over the M. & O. commences to-day.

The ground hog must have come out of his hole at last.

J. Kieller and wife, of Detroit, are visiting at Wm. Smallidge's.

Jim Cole had lettuce and radishes for his customers last week.

Geo. S. Brown, of Elgin, Ill., offers to light Adrian by electricity.

Maple sugar and hot pan cakes at the Baptist church this evening.

Blissfield requires all its village officers except the lamplighter, to give bonds.

The new council will organize and commence business on the first Monday in April.

There are now thirteen newspapers in Michigan which stand by the new Union party.

Rev. Mr. Bray, the methodist preacher at Blissfield, recently received a donation of $62.

W. B. Mumford has a willow nursery of three acres near the Red mill property in Adrian.

Seven loaded cars left this station on the M. & O. last Tuesday, with contents bound for Liverpool.

Ell Hand, of Deerfield, was kept busy Saturday afternoon and Sunday shaking hands with Tecumseh friends.

Geo. Reese, the convict who escaped from the Adrian jail a few days ago, while awaiting sentence, has been recaptured.

Harry Lee was at home over Sunday. His Cleveland business is prospering and he likes his location there. He returned to-day.

A. H. Lane, Hudson, whose livery was burned lately, decided to go out of the business, and sold his stock at public auction Saturday.

Dundee Reporter: Dr. Haynes, the new M. D., had his first patient Tuesday. Result: a pair of twins. He expects to permanently remain in Dundee.

Harry Stevens delivers 240 copies of the Evening News in Tecumseh every day. Is there another town in Michigan of its size in which the Evening News has a better list?

Rev. Mr. Stephenson, of Franklin, preaches at the Free Methodist Church, Pontiac, every Sunday, and for his benefit there was a donation at the residence of J. H. Millis, last evening.

Sumner Collins, formerly of Macon, was home last week and paid the HERALD his respects on Monday. Mr. Collins has been admitted to the bar, and intends to practice his profession in Detroit.

The Evening Record appeared last Saturday in a new dress, which fits its stature completely. The Record already has a large circulation which ought to be considerably increased since its improved appearance.

Mrs. John I. Rector who has been seriously ill with brain complaint for several days, is gradually failing and her friends fear for her recovery. She is having the best of care and nursing and she may get over the attack safely.

The first number of the Union Light has appeared. It is a seven column folio ably edited, and as neat as a new pin typographically. The new Union party will have a first class organ in this paper. It deserves and will undoubtedly receive a liberal patronage.

Blissfield Advance: The lecture of Aunt Laura Haviland at the Presbyterian church Sunday evening, was largely attended, the house being crowded to its utmost capacity. The lady was attentively listened to thro' out, her remarks on temperance being especially fitted to the occasion.

An exchange says: "All grocers should instruct their customers who use canned goods to pour the contents of the can when it is cut; it will not do to wait ten or fifteen minutes; the cans should be emptied at once. A few minutes exposure to the air will give it a metallic taste that is not at all agreeable."

Messrs. Hiram Sibley & Co., of Rochester, N. Y., and Chicago, Ill., will send, free of charge on application, to any of our readers, a book in which is described all the tested new and standard varieties of vegetable, flower and field seeds, which is well worth sending for and reading carefully.

During a brief visit to Adrian last week we made a tour of inspection of the new Press building. It is a model of convenience and neatness, and is one of the best equipped newspaper offices in Southern Michigan. It affords commodious quarters for the Press, the Evening Record and the Union Light.

Eggs have been very scarce and high this winter, but are now dropping so that a man of moderate means can afford to look at a dozen through a window, and it is just possible he may be able to buy a small egg by Easter. It is worthy of note that as they increase in price they grow smaller in stature. Hens these tears.

M. & O.—Going west A. M. closes at 11:05 o'clock, standard; east P. M. 12:50.

Jehiel Davidson has received a communication from the Ex. Com. of the County Agricultural Society, asking what offer Tecumseh had to make for the County fair this year. He replied that we were ready to listen to and generously consider any fair proposition they might make us. The Ex. Com. will meet Saturday, the 22d, to consider the matter further.

It takes manufactories to make a town boom, and, gentlemen, if you have any interest in the growth and prosperity of your town, you should at least make an effort to get them, if not, do just as you are doing and you will have a real nice, quiet town in which you can hear the buzz of the festive blue tailed fly from one end of the village to the other—yea, even the howl of the lonesome canine will be unto you as the roar of many waters.

Hudson Gazette: Some years since the road authorities of Pittsford demolished an advertising board erected by certain Hudson business houses, on the plea that the structure was liable to frighten teams, or had done so. The firm interested sued for damages in a Pittsford justice court, and were beaten. The case was then taken to the Lenewee circuit. Judge Howell recently rendered a decision, affirming the verdict below. The costs of the litigation amounts, all told, to something over three hundred dollars

Hudson Post: In a short interview with Geo. H. Moore a few days since, we learned that the people of his vicinity are expecting to avail themselves of hired help direct from foreign lands this year, and reported thirty arrived and enroute for that locality. Mr. Moore has one but two and a half months from Germany, and who bids fair to become an efficient hand. Each of the Lawrence brothers are to have one on their farms. Mike Dillon is to have the same kind of imported labor indoors and out, having engaged a man and his sister. Morse & Co. have two families engaged, while Frank Childs is booked for one hand also. A Mr. Graves, of Lenawee Junction, is the agent through whom these parties negotiate, and has been some time thus employed.

A probably fatal row occured at Dundee, between "Paddy" O'Neal and Alonzo Curtis, a bar tender in R. Cheever's saloon, Monday evening of last week. O'Neal, who boarded with Curtis, entered the saloon and was ready to pick a fuss with some one.—Curtis, who is said to be jealous of O'Neal's attentions to his wife, after ordering him to leave, threw him out. O'Neal abused him until Curtis was angry and ran after him. When Curtis reached his own house, O'Neal made a rush for his back room, and Mrs. Curtis put her arms around her husbands neck to keep him from getting at the object of his fury. O'Neal then struck Curtis with a flatiron, felling him to the floor, where for a time he was insensible. O'Neal hid the iron at the end of the stoop and buried it with snow. Passers by saw him hide it and entered the house to discover the cause of the uproar. The doctors worked all night and up to 2 a. m. before they could restore sensibility. Mrs. Curtis helped O'Neal pack his trunk and he has skipped. Mr. Curtis has a family of four girls the oldest of whom is but 12.

The Evening Record of Monday has this item: The funeral services of Miss Mamie Dodge were held at the Presbyterian church yesterday afternoon, and was attended by a large number of her friends and schoolmates, Rev. J. B. Little officiating. Prof. Curtis, of the High school, made some well chosen remarks on the many virtues of the deceased, and the procession was then formed and her remains were borne away to their last resting place in Oakwood.

Mamie Dodge was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Dodge, both of whom were formerly residents of Tecumseh. Mamie resided for a time in Tecumseh, with her grand father, Mr. P. C. Mills, and endeared herself to all by her lady-like qualities and kind disposition. Her death will be learned with sincere regret.

Adrian Record: The man Sanford, of Woodstock, who while drunk had his legs so frozen that amputation became necessary, is likely to live. Up to the time of the amputation, when he thought he might die, Sanford stubbornly refused to tell who sold him the liquor which boozed him into getting frozen. He claimed that he gave the money to a stranger who went off and brought back the 'budge.' With death staring him in the face, as he supposed, he weakened, and under oath gave the name of the fire water vender. He was given a little liquor after the amputation, and evinced a great desire to know how often he could have the dose repeated. A prosecution of the saloon keeper is talked of, but we have not learned that any proceedings have been taken.

ANNUAL EXAMINATIONS.

It has been the custom in our schools for several years past to hold public examinations in all the departments at the close of the winter term and to appoint committees composed of patrons and friends of the school to visit the respective departments for the purpose of examining into the work that was being done.

In accordance with this custom, the public examinations for the current year will be held March 27th and 28th. Thursday the 27th at the Central Building and Friday the 28th at the Branch Buildings. All are cordially invited to attend these examinations; no one need stay away because his name does not appear upon the list of committees. LAND OF SUNSHINE AND FLOWERS.

SORRENTO, Fla. March 8, 1884.

DEAR HERALD:—Since writing you last we have had some glorious showers, in fact the rain commenced the second day after writing. In two showers 2¼ inches of rain fell, and since then seasonable showers have kept our orange trees looking fresh and green, so that it has been unnecessary for us to water them. The orange blossom now begins to send forth its delightful fragrance, filling the air with sweet perfume. Judging from the present appearance of the buds and blossoms we may expect a full crop of the golden fruit next season. The freeze did but little damage to bearing trees. We had no frost here in February, 43° was the coldest point reached, and that was on the last day of the month, and had the month been as brief as usual it would not have been as cold in February. Since the ushering of March by a strong east wind the weather has gone up, on at least the thermometer: yesterday the 7th, it was 92° at 2 P. M. in the shade, and at 4 P. M. a nice shower of one inch of rain fell cooling down the atmosphere to a good healthy condition of 76°, so that sleep was sweet and refreshing to us laborers in the orange groves.

I expect e'er this you have seen the cluster of oranges that I sent D. P. Anthony, 14 oranges on one little limb but three-eighths of an inch. This limb or stem started from the tree one year ago last month, a fact that few persons know, and in fact, it is a fact that I did not know until coming to Floriday, that the twig that bears the orange comes from the butt the same season that the fruit matures.

I will see if I can bottle up a few acres of this delightful perfume from the "orange blossoms" to bring home with me. It surpasses any peach or apple orchard that I ever experienced in Michigan. I would like it if every one in Tecumseh could pass by one of these orange groves and see and smell of blossoms, and hear the birds sing to the mocking bird." I am more and more delighted with this climate, and feel that J. A. Macdonald was right when he told a customer to whom he was selling land, as the customer complained of the high price of the land, why? says he, with this land at $15,00 an acre you are buying one hundred dollars worth of climate with every acre you buy. So it is, this climate especially in winter, in my judgment cannot be surpassed in this country, or any other. I see nor hear of any throat or lung trouble, seldom see one with a cold, and if a person does by exposure to the damp nights or otherwise contract a cold, it will not last long, a day or so: and this genial climate of this land of sunshine will restore to health and vigor. The air seems to be filled with so much life giving properties caused by this daily sun shine and the ocean breezes, giving vitality and strength to all that breathes, both animal and plant matter.

Chickens do well now when the little bug and the athletic grasshopper cometh forth challenging the White Leghorns for a chase. Raising chickens in Florida seems to be more renumerative than growing pine apples, when eggs are worth 45c. to 50c a doz. as they were Dec. and Jan. now 35c. chickens 25c to 50c each. It has also been ascertained by actual experiment that the benefit to a grove by way of fertilizing is worth the cost of feed for one hundred fowls during the nine summer months that Florida has. For the three winter months Dec. Jan. and Feb., the eggs will more than pay or corn that is used as feed for fowls. But few chicken destroying agencies exist here, viz: the fox, coon, skunk, opossom, owl, hawk and snake. It is an easy matter to avoid an attack upon your chickens by any of these, by having properly constructed a house for them and see that it is locked every night. Speaking of night reminds me of the time that is now heard the alligator, in the lakes and marshes, the sound of which resembles a cross between a bull-frog, the grunt of a hog and a genuine durham, these, together with whooping cranes, owls, night-hawks, frogs, foxes and a few other night songsters, make music enough, so that no bands need apply. Now I will close and take a walk down the Ave. By the way allow me to mention that we have more new neighbors; Frank Bumann has purchased the ten acre lot east of us and D. P. Anthony another west of his. There are now six Michigan men, formerly of Tecumseh, owning land on this street, and it has been named on the village plat as Michigan Avenue. Very proper. Yours,

E. HAUSE.

F. W. Gamble, one of the class leaders in the Methodist society, met with a streak of good fortune on Friday evening, March 14th. He was invited down to Mr. King's to tea. His class soon began to assemble, and before they let him go they presented him with a valuable easy chair. He was taken by surprise. The enterprise was managed by Messrs. Snell and King. Mr. Gamble has been a class leader for 25 years.

DIED.

Died the 8th inst., at her home near Britton, in Lenawee Co., Mich., Mrs. Charlotte Lester. Aged 55 years, 11 months and 10 days.

Mrs. Lester was to all appearance in her usual good health when she retired to her couch of slumber that evening, but she had been in bed but a short time, when putting both hands against her temples, and pressing her head, she said to her husband, "Oh dear, how my head aches, I believe it will burst." These, were the last words she spoke and before midnight she deceased. Her funeral obseqimes were held next day (Sunday;) at 2:30 P. M., in the M. E. church, at Ridgeway village, of which this sister was a member at the time of her departure to the spirit land, and had been for about thirty-five years. The esteem in which she was held, was manifest in the very large concourse of people who attended her funeral. The sermon was preached by Rev. B. F. Rapp, pastor of the Church of Christ in East Ridgeway.

RIDLEY—In this village, Sunday March 9th, of consumption, Lizzie M. Ridley, wife of Charles Ridley. Aged 26 years.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Lost & Found

A happy surprise it was to Mr. A. R. Norton, of Bristol, Conn., when ATHLOPHOROS put him on his feet, and sent him cheerfully about his business. Let him tell his own story:

"About three weeks ago I was taken with a severe crick in the back. For four days I was unable to turn in bed without help, and when lifted up could not stand on my feet. I was induced to try ATHLOPHOROS, after all the usual remedies failed. In 30 minutes after taking the first dose I could bear my weight upon my feet. In two days I was able to get about, and attend to business. In two other cases, which have come to my knowledge its use has been attended with the same results."

A poor man in Philadelphia had to borrow a dollar to buy a bottle of ATHLOPHOROS, on account of his poverty his name shall remain a secret. He had suffered terribly from Rheumatism. He gratefully writes:

"I took my first dose Tuesday afternoon, and on Wednesday, after but seven doses, I had not a sharp or severe ache left. Then I reduced the dose one-half and took the remainder of the bottle. I was able to be steady at work till Saturday, when I took a severe cold and was unable to use my left hand. I purchased another bottle and by bed-time I found relief. The medicine is all you claim for it."

Investigate ATHLOPHOROS all you please! Find all the fault you choose with it! and yet the fact remains, that it is doing what no other medicine ever could do for Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

WOMEN.

MISHAWAKA, Ind., Dec. 1, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY.

Dear Sir:—Your work has done for me what it does for many. Desiring to aid in relieving women, I add my testimony to the virtues of Zoa-Phora. For five years I suffered greatly with Prolapsus, being obliged to use a supporter during all those painful, weary years; but, thanks to your medicine, I wear it no more. I laid it off after using one and a half bottles. I am not well, but I work all the time, and am better than I ever expected to be. You may use my letter, and if any one wishes to write me for more information, give them my full address. MRS. C. G.

JERSEYVILLE, Ill., April 25, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY.

Dear Sir:—I am more than pleased with the effect of your Zoa-Phora in our daughter's case. I am surprised to see how she has improved. She is gaining in weight and color, and I think feels better than she ever did; her nerves are steady, and the distress in her chest is entirely gone. I firmly believe that Zoa-Phora is all that has saved her life. I am willing you should use my letter, for I am not afraid to tell what a wonderful cure your medicine is. Yours respectfully, MRS. SARAH RANDOLPH.

N. B.—This was a case of suppression.

From Mrs. John Spitler,

No. 28 Witt St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

I have suffered for sixteen years with spasmodic pain in my head and general nervous debility. Recently I had a severe attack of pain in my head, caused by weakness and nervous exhaustion. I thought I should die. My husband said we would test Zoa-Phora thoroughly. He gave it to me according to directions for severe cases, and in less than two hours I had complete relief. I advise all ladies who suffer from nervous or sick headache, or any form of female weakness, to use Zoa-Phora. There is no medicine to compare with it. May 15, 1882.

Advice to a Young Man.

A young man writes to the Sun as follows:

"I am a book-keeper in a wholesale house, on a salary of $1,200 a year, and I have $500 laid up. I want to make some money, and I have thought some of speculating a little in wheat or pork. I know several young men in my position who have made quite a little money speculating, and I have been tempted to invest several times, but have not yet been able to get up courage to take my $500 out of the bank and put it in the hands of a commission house. What would you advise me to do? I have guessed on the market several times, and have guessed right, and if I had put my money on my guesses, I would have made considerable. Now, tell me honestly, because I know you have speculated, and know all about it."

Young man, go and look at your $500, and see if it is there yet. Ah, it is all safe, is it? Looked sort of good, didn't it? Made you feel proud when you saw it, proud that you had earned it by hard work. Well, if you had twice the amount, won at gambling, or in wheat speculations, you would not think half as much of it as you did of this first $500. You don't ever think now of spending this money foolishly. It represents to you hard work coined into dollars. If you had accumulated it without work in speculation, and it came easy, you would be looking for a horse that could beat the crowd on the avenue, in less than a week. You would be spoiled if you accumulated money easy, and ruined if you lost your five hundred. You keep right on keeping books, and keeping them well, and forget that five hundred, except to draw the interest regular, or unless you see a piece of first-class, solid property that is offered cheap. But don't you ever put a dollar on wheat or pork, expecting to win, for you will lay down your bundle sooner or later, and wake up with a headache. This is not the advice of one who ever speculated a dollar, or who ever will, but one who has been watching those who do speculate for fifteen years. Not one in a hundred of them but have lost. Those who have won are no better off, because they have worn themselves out watching the market and cursing their luck. It is a business that should only be done by rich men for amusement. The rich can lose and not feel it, though some of them kick pretty hard when they lose. But the poor, those who are [illegible] or brain, should never indulge in an amusement that makes the rich wish they were dead. You can take a hundred dollars and go to a faro bank, and guess right on the deal, in your mind, with your hand on your money in your pocket, and you will guess right very often, but if you put your money down, the majority of the guesses will be against you, and the commission the bank takes will soon eat up your hundred dollars. If you bet a dollar on each card, and won half your bets, and lost the other half, it would only be a matter of time when the bank would have all your money, and you would have the experience. Without arguing that speculation in options is anything like a faro bank, though many speculators will tell you it is, the result will be the same, only the commission has to be paid on every deal, whether you win or lose. If you make a deal and win, you pay the gentlemanly commission man his commission. If you lose on the deal, he is not going to work for nothing, is he? Of course not. The faro bank only takes a commission when you win, which shows that the faro banker is not as good a business man as he ought to be. If the Sun is mistaken about commission being charged on losing deals, it is willing to be corrected. Any way, young man, what you want to do is to forget that there is any chance for you to engage in speculation, for if you go into it, you will curse the day that you did. Now, don't ask any more questions, but go on posting up those books.—Peck's Sun.

The Use and Abuse of the Rubber Coat.

The season has set in for wearing mackintoshes, says the Lancet. A caution may be therefore not unnecessary, and let us hope, not unheeded, as to the use and abuse of this serviceable, but, when improperly employed, dangerous, article of clothing. When once a mackintosh is put on to defend the body from wet, it should on no account be taken off until the wearer has not only taken shelter, but is in a position to change his clothes. What a covering of oiled skin does for a wet rag in the surgery—viz.: convert it into a poultice—the mackintosh does for the clothes of its wearer. The insensible perspiration which finds a way of escape through ordinary clothing is kept in by the waterproof, and the clothes are saturated with moisture. A very few minutes will suffice to render the under-clothing damp under a mackintosh, particularly if either the wearer perspires freely, or the weather be what is called "muggy" as well as wet. When, therefore, the wearer of a mackintosh takes off that article of clothing because it has ceased to rain, he is in the position of a person who has damp clothes on, and if he sits in the saddle, or walks home, or rides in an open trap, he is more likely to take cold than if he had not used the mackintosh at all. If therefore, we say, a mackintosh is once put on it should on no account be removed until the clothes can be changed or dried by a fire without reduction of bodily temperature. The use of a mackintosh is to protect a man from a severe storm of rain. His clothes must be damp if he wears one of these protectors. The sole gain from using it is to render the moisture warm instead of cold, and to prevent loss of heat by evaporation. If the mackintosh be removed evaporation commences immediately with all the consequent risks of that process.

If you wish to improve upon the usual method of smothering beefsteak with onions, try this: Cut one quart of onions in very small bits, not over an inch long, and as thin as a sharp knife will cut them. Let them lie in cold water with a good sprinkling of salt in it for half an hour. Drain them well, and fry them in a deep frying-pan, with a good deal of very hot lard in it. They will cook immediately and be crisp and [illegible] excellent.—N. Y. Post.

Nearer to Nature.

Nature has made her laws with us, which we must obey or suffer the penalty. This penalty is often lung or throat trouble, which leads on to consumption. Every man believes consumption incurable. People have been educated to this belief which is proven incorrect by Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure, which is nature's great helpmate, and it cures consumption and all throat and lung diseases speedily and permanently. An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the very best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. For Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Headache, Debility, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Chronic and Nervous Disorders.

A CARD.

We the undersigned, having received great and permanent benefit from the use of "COMPOUND OXYGEN," prepared and administered by Drs. STARKEY & PALEN, of Philadelphia, and being satisfied that it is a new discovery in medical science, and all that is claimed for it, consider it a duty which we owe to the many thousands who are suffering from chronic and so-called "incurable" diseases to do all that we can to make its virtues known, and to inspire the public with confidence.

We have personal knowledge of Drs. Starkey & Palen. They are educated, intelligent and conscientious physicians, who will not, we are sure, make any statement which they do not know or believe to be true, nor publish any testimonials or reports of cases which are not genuine.

CONSUMPTION.

I have a positive remedy for the above disease; by its use thousands of cases of the worst kind and of long standing have been cured. Indeed, so strong is my faith in its efficacy, that I will send TWO BOTTLES FREE, together with a VALUABLE TREATISE on this disease, to any sufferer. Give express and P. O. address. DR. T. A. SLOCUM, 96 Pearl St., New York.

That some persons are so poor or improvident that they can buy only the very smallest quantities of groceries, even a penny's worth at a time, is made manifest by inquiries of grocers and venders in almost any of the poor quarters. In one of the stores a woman was the vender. Her calico dress was new and tidy, and her face and hands were clean. Resignation was the principal expression in her face. The counter, behind which she stood, was at one side, extending nearly to a board partition dividing the room. Opposite the counter were a few boxes, barrels and baskets, some full, but most of them empty. On the shelves along the walls were tin and wooden boxes containing tea, coffee, spices and starch, and a few bottles of blueing. Hanging in conspicuous places were advertising placards. Under one shelf was a long wooden box, about the size of a coal box, but not so deep, divided into two parts for brown and white sugar. On one side of the counter was a small glass case, in which were a few loaves of bread, and adjoining it was a long narrow one, holding cheap candies. At the other end of the counter, and piled high above it, was a quantity of kindling wood, while opposite it, leaving only room for the door to be opened, were two large cans of kerosene oil and one of molasses. On a shelf above them were bars of brown soap, and the smaller cakes for laundry use.

"Have you ever sold a penny's worth of tea?" she was asked.

"I have not, but I have heard of a woman selling a cent's worth and measuring it by a thimble. I have never sold less than an ounce, which would cost four cents."

"Would you sell a penny's worth if called for?"

"Yes, to oblige a customer. But I should not as a rule sell it for it would not pay me. I could not measure it exactly, and would probably give more. I have heard of selling a cent's worth of molasses."

"What is the least quantity of sugar you sell?"

"A quarter of a pound I sell very often. That costs three cents."

"How about starch?"

"I usually sell half a pound for three cents, but sometimes a person wants several things and has money enough for all unless very small quantities are taken. Then I sell a quarter of a pound of starch, but I have to charge two cents for it; so you see they lose by it, and it costs them more to live in the long run."

"Are people so poor that they are obliged to buy such small quantities?"

"Not as a rule; but if they have a quarter, ten cents of it sometimes goes for beer, while the rest of it will be spent for necessary things."

"Do you cut a bar of soap?"

"Oh, yes. I cut a large bar and sell half for five cents, but if it is a small cake I charge three cents. A woman wanting to finish some washing will often run in for a three-cent piece, while——"

"Mother, can I have a mouse?" an eight-year-old child interrupted.

"No you can't, its the last one in the case," referring to a chocolate imitation among the candies.

"Mother——"

"Stop! These children always want something when I have a visitor. They think I won't refuse them then. No, I don't keep eggs. They bring five cents apiece now, and no one in this neighborhood can buy them."

"Do you trust?"

"Some. I had one customer that used to buy five-dollars' worth a week. Sometimes she would pay for all, at other times she would only pay in part. For the past few weeks she has let it run. I heard she was going to move, and I asked her to pay up, but she has been putting me off. She says it is too far to come to deal with me now; but when she was hard up at times she did not think it any trouble. My old man is getting disgusted. He says he's working to support other people. If she don't pay up soon I'll bring her up to the crank."

"Are there many such customers?"

"Yes, a good many. I know a poor widow who had to give up a little grocery because she trusted too much. You see, I have to pay down for everything that comes in the store. Although I have dealt with my wood man for two years, I have to pay for the wood as soon as it is piled on that floor. It is the same with the oil man. If I should owe fifteen cents on a can, and not have the cash ready the minute it was on that counter, he would take it right out."

Another grocer in a much better neighborhood said he had sold half a pailful of coal, also one egg, and very often a penny's worth of parsley, one carrot, one leek, and one turnip; but, of course, the vegetables are usually required for soup, and they are bought by well-to-do people. The poor will often buy partly decayed vegetables, cutting out the good, thereby getting them for almost nothing.—N. Y. Sun.

Lightning.

Mr. Franklin was one of the greatest men that ever lived. He could carry a loaf of bread in each hand and eat another, all at the same time, and he could invent anything that anybody wanted, without hurting himself or cutting his fingers. His greatest invention was lightning, and he invented it with a kite. He made a kite with sticks made out of telegraph wire, and sent it up in a thunder-storm till it reached where the lightning is. The lightning ran down the string, and Franklin collected it in a bottle, and sold it for ever so much money. So he got very rich after a while, and could buy the most beautiful and expensive kites that any fellow ever had.

I read about Mr. Franklin in a book that father gave me. He said I was reading too many stories, and just you take this book and read it through carefully and I hope it will do you some good anyway it will keep you out of mischief.

I thought that it would please father if I should get some lightning just as Franklin did. I told Tom McInnis about it, and he said he would help if I would give him half of all I made by selling the lightning. I wouldn't do this of course, but finally Tom said he'd help me anyhow, and trust me to pay him a fair price; so we went to work.

We made a tremendously big kite, and the first time there came a thunder-storm we put it up; but the paper got wet, and it came down before it got up to the lightning. So we made another and covered it with white cloth that used to be one of Mrs. McInnis's sheets, only Tom said he knew she didn't want it any more.

We sent up this kite the next time there was a thunder-storm, and tied the string to the second-story window where the blinds hook on, and let the end of the string hang down into a bottle. It only thundered once or twice, but the lightning ran down the string pretty fast and filled the bottle half full.

It looked like water, only it was a little green, and when it stopped running into the bottle we took the lightning down-stairs to try it. I gave a little of it to the cat to drink, but it didn't her a bit, and she just purred. At last Tom said he didn't believe it would hurt anything; so he tasted some of it, but it didn't hurt him at all.

The trouble was that the lightning was too weak to do any harm. The thunder-shower had been such a little one that it didn't have any strong lightning in it; so we threw away what was in the bottle, and agreed to try to get some good strong lightning whenever we could get a chance.

It didn't rain for a long time after that, and I nearly forgot all about Franklin and lightning, until one day I heard Mr. Travers read in the newspaper about a man who was found lying dead on the road with a bottle of Jersey lightning, and that, of course, explains what was the matter with him, my dear Susan. I understood more about it than Susan did, for she does not know anything about Franklin being a girl, though I will admit it isn't her fault. You see, the cork must have come out of the man's bottle, and the lightning had leaked out and burned him to death.

The very next day we had a tremendous thunder-shower, and I told Tom that now was the time to get some lightning that would be stronger than anything they could make in New Jersey. So we got the kite up, and got ourselves soaked through with water. We tied it to the window-ledge just as we did the first time, and put the end of the string in a tin pail so that we could collect more lightning than we could hold. It was so cold standing by the window in our wet clothes that we thought we'd go to my room and change them.

All at once there was the most awful flash of lightning and the most tremendous clap of thunder that was ever heard. Father and mother and Sue were down-stairs, and they rushed upstairs crying the darling boy is killed. They meant me. But I wasn't killed, neither was Tom, and we hurried into the room where we were collecting lightning to see what was the matter. There we found the tin pail knocked into splinters and the lightning spilled all over the floor. It had set fire to the carpet, and burned a hole right through the floor into the kitchen, and pretty much broke up the whole kitchen stove.

Father cut the kite string and let the kite go, and told me that it was as much as my life was worth to send up a kite in a thunder-storm. You see so much lightning will come down the string that it will kill anybody that stands near it. I know this is true, because father says so, but I'd like to know how Franklin managed. I forgot to say that father wasn't a bit pleased. —Jimmy Brown, in Harper's Young People.

Rough Diamonds.

Diamonds are known to jewelers and the wealthy as the most valuable and beautiful of the precious stones. They outrank gold and silver, pearls and rubies. They are valued not only for their variety, but for their wonderful brilliancy and the many uses to which they are adapted. They are the gems which glisten in the coronets of kings and queens, and add luster to the charms of buoyant and vivacious beauty. They are most intrinsically valuable because they out-last and outshine all other specimens of material wealth. A man might carry a diamond fortune in his vest pocket and never be suspected of having a dollar. But why should an editor, who rarely ever saw a diamond, much less possess one, endeavor to enlighten his readers on their merits? And yet, in his presumption, this man of supposed brains often launches forth upon strange themes because men in general look to him as a hired thinker, and tolerably well informed upon all subjects. If not, he ought to be. Therefore he must often resort to metaphor to "point a moral and adorn a tale." He must be thoroughly posted in monetary values, though his chances of possessing any great amount of "filthy lucre" are very slim. His opinions on oh dits of society gossip are expected to be oracular, though perchance he may go little into society except for the uses it can make of him. There are people in the world who may be compared to diamonds in the rough. They have all the attributes of soul which should entitle them to shine stars of the first magnitude in the social circle, and yet owing to timidity or a want of polish they never give any light, and they die perhaps leaving the world in ignorance of their many noble and valuable qualities. They are like the gems and flowers in Gray's elegy—hid away, in dark, unfathomed caves, or born to "waste their sweetness on the desert air." These rough diamonds are doubtless more numerous than the world is wont to suppose. Men are too apt to look to the "pomp and circumstance of glorious war," or among creatures of high opportunities and magnificent surroundings for things valuable and grand in nature and character. Though time and circumstances often develop great characters, yet true manhood and womanhood are often disguised under a cloak of overweening modesty, and dispositions which shun public notoriety, and shrink from the vanity and emptiness of human applause. Yet the diamond is none the less a diamond in its rough estate, nor are human characters less entitled to homage, because their glare has never become apparent to the unsuspecting and unappreciative eye. But as polish is everything to the diamond, we might draw the lesson that friction and polish are necessary to develop the brightest and most beautiful gems of human character.—Columbus (Ga.) Enquirer.

Do you need a remedy that will cure every kind of humor from a pimple or eruption to the worst scrofula and syphilitic disorders, use Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. Three to five bottles cure skin disease, salt-rheum or tetter. Four to ten bottles cures running ulcers, scrofula and all syphilitic disorders. One to three bottles cures sores, boils, carbuncles, etc. One to two bottles cures pimples on the face, blotches, etc. It is the only perfect blood purifier that can be made from a thorough knowledge of drugs. Ask your druggist for it. Take no substitute.

New Prolific Tree Bean.

Having raised them for main crop the past season, I can conscientiously give them the following recommend: On good soil they will yield an average of about 150 pods to the tree, 6 or 7 grains to the pod, and 60 bushels to the acre if planted AS DIRECTED. They closely resemble the Navy Bean, cook in much less time than the Navy, are very white, and of excellent flavor. Having but one stalk in a hill they are much easier cultivated than five to seven stalks of any common variety, and can be left in the hill until all are fully matured, thereby avoiding liability to mould. They should be planted as soon as danger from frost is over, in rows two feet apart, and 15 or 18 inches in the row, more than one stalk in a hill will not do, and if more is planted, thin when two inches high to one plant in a hill, and they will completely cover the ground. About four quarts plants an acre. Try them and for main crop you will grow no other. Net price per quart, 25 cents.

CONGRESS.

MR. JACKSON submitted a joint resolution in the Senate on the 3rd for submission to the States of the Constitutional amendment making the President's term six years and making Mr. Bryant ineligible to re-election; referred to Judiciary Committee. Mr. Pugh, from the Committee on Education and Labor, reported favorably a bill to establish an educational fund and apply a portion of the proceeds of public lands to public education. After a short consideration of the House pleuro-pneumonia bill, it went over, and the Senate took up the bill for the relief of Fitz-John Porter. Without action the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned. In the House the morning hour was dispensed with and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Postoffice Appropriation bill. The pending question was on a motion to strike out the provision for postmasters to $[illegible]. A substitute amendment was offered to increase by $[illegible] the appropriation for the salaries of letter carriers. Pending action the committee rose.

IN the Senate on the 14th Mr. Harrison reported favorably and had placed on the calendar a bill for the admission of Dakota. Mr. Plumb submitted a joint resolution, which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture, appropriating $25,000, to be made immediately available under the direction of the Commissioner of Agriculture, for the suppression of the foot and mouth disease among cattle in Kansas. Within a few minutes of its reference Mr. Plumb, of the committee, reported the joint resolution favorably and asked immediate consideration, but objection to its use made it went over. The bill for the relief of Fitz-John Porter was taken up and after a long debate was read the third time and passed—yeas 33, nays 22, after which the Senate adjourned. In the House a resolution was adopted directing the Committee on Public Lands to investigate matters pertaining to the grant of 25,000 acres of land to the State of Michigan to aid in the construction of a breakwater and ship canal, and by that State to the Lake Superior & Portage Lake Canal Company, and determine whether the grant was liable to forfeiture. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Postoffice Appropriation bill. The amendment increasing appropriations for the payment of letter carriers and incidental expenses of the free delivery system from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000 was adopted—122 to 55. Pending discussion on a motion to strike out the proviso that land-grant railroads shall receive full transportation, but that fifty per cent. compensation be allowed other roads, the committee rose and the House adjourned.

MR. BOWEN introduced a bill in the Senate on the 14th to reduce the postage on mailable matter of the second class; referred. Mr. Plumb called up a joint resolution appropriating $25,000 for the eradication of the foot and mouth disease in cattle. He said the disease was very serious and did not affect Kansas alone, but all the States. He sent to the desk and had read a dispatch from the Governor of Kansas urging immediate action. The resolution was discussed at length but without final action the Senate adjourned until Monday. In the House the morning hour was dispensed with, and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar. The bill granting a pension of $2,500 a year to Sentirina Randolph Meikleham, the sole surviving grandchild of Thomas Jefferson, was taken up and after debate the enacting clause was stricken out—129 to 60. The committee then rose and the House ratified its action. A communication from the Secretary of War asking an appropriation of $29,800 for the erection in San Francisco of additional buildings for the headquarters of the military division of the Pacific, was referred. At the evening session the House passed twenty-two pension bills and adjourned until the 15th.

IN the House on the 15th the morning hour was dispensed with and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Postoffice Appropriation bill. The consideration of the first section was completed, when it became evident that the bill could not be finished to-night, and the committee rose and the House adjourned. The Senate was not in session.

Her last calf sold for $4,000.

ST. PATRICK'S DAY was generally observed throughout the country. At New York it was estimated that there were 10,000 men in line. Masses were said in all the churches. The procession at Chicago was headed by the Clan-Na-Gael and the Ancient Order of Hibernians. There was no outside display at Ottawa, Canada, owing to a feeling regarding festivities of a sectional nature. The day was clear at New York, but at Chicago, St. Louis and other places was damp and cold.

PETITIONS were presented in the Senate on the 17th from various public commercial bodies, asking a repeal of the law authorizing the coinage of the silver dollar. Messrs. McMillan, Palmer and Manderson presented petitions from the citizens of their respective States, praying that Congress prepare a sixteenth amendment, prohibiting the disfranchising of citizens on account of sex. The joint resolution appropriating $25,000 for the suppression of the foot and mouth disease among cattle, was then taken up. On motion of Mr. Plumb the amount appropriated by the resolution was increased to $50,000, and after debate the resolution passed—yeas 24, nays 19. The bill extending the Court of Alabama Claims until December, 1884, was passed. Adjourned. In the House Mr. Hewitt introduced a bill to suspend, for two years the coinage of silver dollars and making it unlawful for the Secretary of the Treasury to print and issue Treasury notes of the denomination of one dollar and two dollars; referred. On motion of Mr. Randall, the rules were suspended and the special deficiency bill for the appropriation of $1,679,000 passed—167 to 15. A resolution appropriating $5,000 out of the contingent fund to enable the Committee on Naval Affairs to prosecute the investigation previously ordered concerning the dynamite was adopted. Adjourned.

ADDISON ATOMS.

Spring has come again with its usual accompaniment of blackbirds and crows. A supply of musquitoes and beetles may be expected in due season.

The measles and other like diseases have had a large run here this winter, but thanks to our good M. D.s. and nurses, the death list remains blank.

Our old fresh [illegible] E. Harrington, having closed out his business to Cambridge parties, will devote himself to the mason trade this season.

The village schools closed for vacation last Friday. A public sugar party and literary entertainment was given by the school Saturday eve.

A gravel train was put to work Sunday, clearing away the sand slide west of town and otherwise improving the line. One dollar and fifteen cents per day is the amount paid shovelers.

A. J. Hasbrook's lumber yard is now well stocked with everything belonging to his business. Reports say that Hudson and Somerset notice the falling off of custom in this line.

J. H. Lane and W. A. Wilcox announce themselves prepared to pay the highest market price for grain in the future.

The M. & O. House underwent a general [illegible] The proprietor, Mr. W. H. Terpening, surrendered his lordship to his sister, Mrs. Preston, who proposes to operate a new system of law and labor hereafter. Success to her.

John Terpening is the name which now appears on the door of the Nesmith dry goods store west of the creek. Hub. Cole stands behind the counter.

J. H. Graham, of Somerset, has let his farm for the season and will turn his attention to selling agricultural implements.

Our Tecumseh mail comes to hand on short notice now a days. Lets hear from the cousins.

BROOKLYN BALANCE.

A paragraph is being freely circulated, charging the want of news, to correspondents. There is probably, truth in the story, but there is also a reason for the universal delinquency. In case there is nothing nice to tell, it is deleterious to moral health, to manufacture it, and if there is genuine news that somebody don't want told, one's back hair becomes liable to derangement.

The time of year, when frogs emerge from seclusion is the anniversary of muddy boots, splashes, swears, town meetings and house-cleaning. Experience teaches, that such epidemics, are best soothed by silence, and, suffering everybody to believe themselves, the chiefest of martyrs, and wait 'till the clouds roll by. This being frog season it is not polite to say, that no one has done anything worth mentioning, nor policy to mention what is unworthy of being done. Anticipation is the only mutual ground, where safety is assured to the blameworthy, and there is no harm in sending word around, that in great expectations, there is unity and faith, even in Brooklyn.

RIDGEWAY RACKET.

The first shipment of stock over the M. & O. R. R., was made on Monday, March 24. A carload of unusually fine sheep, shipped by Burt Morley to Buffalo.

Tickets over the M. & O. Road to Tecumseh and return, for 25cts. To A. J. Sutton, station agent here, belongs the credit of effecting this arrangement.

Ridgeway morning mail two hours later, or while it is carried to Tecumseh and back. A nice state of affairs.

A supper with Maple sugar and hot pancakes for the "bill of fare" will be given under the management of the Ladies' Church Social in the lecture room of M. E. Church, on Friday Eve. April 4th. A cordial invitation is extended to all. Supper 15cts.

OUR CLINTON NEIGHBORS.

We paid Clinton a brief visit last Monday afternoon, it being the first time we have been there in several weeks.

Henry Lancaster is now finally located in the Exchange Hotel, and he proposes to keep a first-class house in every respect. He has renovated the whole house, and is taking special pains to set a good table. "Hank" ought to succeed as a landlord.

A call at D. Woodward's foundry found him head over heels in business. His new style of chilled plow with high beam and patent jointer takes like hot cakes. He is preparing to manufacture a large number of them this season. Dave claims that his new plow is one of the best plows now in the market and we have no doubt that the claim is well founded.

We paid Marsteller's Marble Works a visit and found him busy as a bee in a tar bucket. He is doing the largest share of cemetery and cut stone work in this section and his trade is constantly increasing.

John Smith & Son are still located at the old headquarters, selling Dry Goods, Groceries, etc. This establishment still maintains the lead which it has held [illegible]

John Ed McCollum is selling clothing in the old quarters formerly occupied by D. H. Silvers, and seems to be building up a good trade; at least he has all he wants to do to keep him busy.

J. J. White is still running his merchant tailoring establishment, and is prepared to give his customers "fits."

Gus VanDeMark is selling hardware at the old stand, and a better hardware merchant it would be hard to find in three counties.

E. W. Freeze is on the Board of Supervisors this week, but his efficient clerks keep on selling Dry Goods just the same.

Byron Randall is wearing out his rheumatism and preparing for a big summer's trade.

W. S. Kimball keeps a coal fire in the office of the Woolen Mill and is at home to his friends, but the looms of the mill are silent. It has not yet been decided [illegible] resume operations, but probably at an early day.

The McClure Brothers are making harness as usual and are building up a good trade.

Bainbridge & Hause are to be found in their new building, with a full stock of furniture to select from.

A. G. Burton is busy as ever in his carriage factory and blacksmith shop on the old corner.

D. R. Gibson has quit buying apples for this season. He has fifty colonies of bees now engaging his attention, and will have a ton of fancy honey on hand in June.

Will Wood is still at his old tricks and seems to have his hands full in the carriage making line.

MACON MOLECULES.

Among the good things enjoyed by Macon are muddy roads, and very softly enjoyed.

THE PEOPLE'S CYCLOPEDIA.

A new edition of this most valuable work has just been issued. It has the advantage over all other cyclopedias of giving the latest information on all subjects. Its editors and contributors are among the greatest living scholars. On account of its comprehensiveness and systematic arrangement, one can find in a moment the fact he may be wanting.

It is [illegible] most useful cyclopedia in the market for quick reference.

We append the opinions of some of the leading educators of our own state.

From Prof. D. S. Stevens, President of Adrian College:

"After a brief examination of 'The People's Cyclopedia,' I have no hesitancy in pronouncing it a most admirable compendium of valuable information on all subjects. Its compactness, clearness of style, comprehensiveness, and convenience for reference, are a few of its many merits. I cannot well conceive of a cyclopedia more desirable for real service in a family. For those who already have one of the larger cyclopedias, "The People's Cyclopedia" would prove a valuable substitute for the expensive 'annuals,' as it contains the freshest and latest information at a low price."

From Prof. Z. C. Spencer, Superintendent Schools, Battle Creek, Mich.

"I find it to be an exact and full compendium of valuable information. I do not know of any [illegible] cyclopedia which so satisfactorily combines fullness of information with cheapness."

From B. F. Cocker, Late Professor in Mich. University:

"Your cyclopedia fills exactly my idea of what a "People's Cyclopedia" ought to be. The masses no not want a cyclopedia with long articles. The extended treatment of any subject in science, history, philosophy or political economy, should be always done in separate volumes. A cyclopedia should be a work in which a general and brief statement of all the elements of universal knowledge may be found. Yours is to my mind just the cyclopedia the people want. The more I examine it the better I am pleased."

From Prof. H. B. Brown, Pres. of Northern Indiana Normal School at Valparaiso, Ind.

"There is no other work published that gives an equal amount of reliable information for so small a sum of money."

From Prof. L. R. Fiske, Pres. Albion College.

The public should come fully to understand the value of the People's Cyclopedia. There are many noteworthy characteristics which make it superior to most other works of its kind for the masses of the people. Among these may be mentioned the intelligent condensation of the subjects treated; its numerous epitomes of history which in other works can be found only by laborous research; its numerous and accurate maps; the ease with which it can be consulted, etc., all of which combine to furnish a large amount of information at a mere nominal price. It is admirably adapted to the wants of the general public. Any family that desires to be intelligent and keep abreast of the age will be sure to make it a part of their home library.

OLD THINGS GIVING WAY TO NEW.

The late discontinuance of the Cambridge stage route, now superseded in part, by mail service on the new M. & O. railroad, reminds me of the early days in Michigan. In 1832 the Territory got an appropriation from Congress for a road from Monroe to intersect the Detroit and Chicago road near the North-west corner of Lenawee county, in the town of Cambridge. Work was commenced on it in the summer and fall of that year. Some jobs on it were taken by two sons of Thomas Nelson, who had located on one of the earliest taken pieces of land in the six mile square now known as the township of Franklin, and adjoining which I entered my first land in Michigan. The Nelson boys continued to work on the road until it was finished to where it struck the old Chicago road, near the Cambridge P. O. Ever since that part of the Monroe, or LaPlaisance Bay road, so called, was finished from Tecumseh to Cambridge, it has been used as a mail route, and a great thoroughfare for emigrants. Mr. Nelson and his boys were the right kind of men to be pioneers in a new country. In 1833 they sold out to David and Charles Wells and moved west. And about 1835 the Wells' sold out to Deacon William Bradley, who moved on there with a large family. J. J. A.

THE TALISMAN AND THE LEECH.

A FRAGMENT.

It was a lovely lady that on her sick-bed lay,
It was her doughty lover spurred for the leech away,
And met upon the highway, crouched on the road hard stone,
A withered white-haired beggar that made for alms her moan.

The doughty lover cast her his purse from saddle-bow.
"My love is in the agony, and for the leech I go.
In yonder burg physicians many are I trow,
Would that the sanctifiest of all among them I could know."

"Take this," the crone, upstarting, placed up his hand a ring
Of dull and tarnished copper, a mean and battered thing.
"Wear this, and when thou ridest up to the leech's door, See for thyself what company of guests doth stand before."

And before the knight could thank her she vanished quite away,
And there was naught but a wee brown bird sitting upon the spray;
And the light hearted lover onward he spurred

And kissed the tattered talisman, and blessed the kindly fay.

Up the ringing street he dashed to the chief physician's door—
Heaven! what ghastly company was standing it before!
The souls of all the slain were there, ten thousand souls, I trow,
Like witch-fires in a paled night a-wavering to and fro.

On passed the knight to another leech, but before the door paused he,
Was quite as ghastly if not quite so great a company;
And up and down the burg he rode, but everywhere he went Watched the spirit of each patient under a malcontent.

"Alack! doth never a leech have sa—" was his despairing cry,
"And most the Lady Cunegunde in her youth and beauty die?
There is but one physician left, and yonder is his door—
O, heavens! there floats a single ghost—a single ghost, no more."

"O, a blessing on the talisman and on the kindly fay!
Here is the surge on skilled shall charm my lady's hurt away.
Ho! busk ye, busk ye, Master Leech, and ride away with me,
And thou shalt save a precious life, and win a priceless fee."

Up sprang the good physician then to his and the gallant knight,
And swiftly up the towering roof clattered

And merrily the knight he sang and shouted in his glee,
"A blessing on the kindly fay that guided me to thee."

"Now by our good St. Anthony, what is it thou dost say?
Dost thou not know, Sir Knight, there is no goblin, neither fay?
But tell me truly, who it was to me thy steps did guide,
For how should a poor leech be known throughout the country-side?"

"O, trust me, trust me, Master Leech, thy fame spreads far and near;
On every side of thy healing skill what miracles we hear!
For though thy cheek doth brightly bear the rosy hue of youth,
There is no doctor so renowned in all the land good sooth."

"Sir Knight, it ill becomes thy rank to mock a simple man,
One who doth practice Galen's art with all the skill he can;
But only yesterday I hung my shingle out a door,
And I have had but a single call—one patient and no more."

"Now by St. Anthony!" exclaimed the knight * * * *

THE LOVERS' QUARREL.

"Never while I live," said Miss Rashleigh, "never while I live will I see your face again!"

She meant it when she said it, and as she spoke, she threw her betrothal ring towards her lover, who had offended her.

It missed him and rolled down upon the floor and over the sill of an open china closet—one of those old-fashioned closets that used to stand on either side of the mantel-piece.

She did not notice where it rolled; he did though; and after she had left the room, he turned to pick it up. The ring she had worn would always be precious to him.

Miss Rashleigh went straight to her own room, as miserable a girl as ever lived, and a moment later Grandmother Rashleigh bustled into the drawing-room, pushed the open closet door to, picked up the fallen magazine, set the annuals and books of poetry straight on the table, pulled down the shades, arranged the chairs mathematically against the wall, and bustled out again.

"I've had these things fifty years," she said to herself, "and ther's Cornelia and her beau with no more respect for them than if they were so much lumber."

Then she closed the door behind her, and went away to her own room up stairs, where a fine silk patchwork quilt was in the frame, a surprise for said Cornelia.

Grandma Rashleigh gave every young person of the family something of her own manufacture on his or her wedding day.

"Now," the old lady had said a dozen times to Tripheny King, who was helping her; "I rather think Cornelia will have the best thing I've done; and there's a bit in it of every handsome silk there's ever been in the family, and of her father's and grandfather's wedding vests."

"Yes'm, its a real memorial quilt," said Tripheny. "It takes you, mum, to plan such things."

The quilt was finished and bound that afternoon, and Tripheny's joy of quilting being over she went home. But she carried about the village the news that she "was sure all was over between Miss Rashleigh and Mr. Spear. She'd heard Cornelia saying something to her grandma, and the old lady was furious."

"He wou'd never have done that if he had cared for me, you know, grandma," Cornelia was saying at that moment.

"Stuff and nonsense! He loves the ground you walk on!" said the old lady. "You'll never get such another, Cornelia!"

"I shall never marry at all; I hate men!" Cornelia answered.

And then her grandmother made the house too hot to hold her, and she went to her mother's, her usual course when she fell out with grandma.

Three days passed. At the end of the third Patsy Pratt stepped in at Mrs they called her, though she was nearly fifty, for grandma was old Mrs. Rashleigh.

"I expect you'll feel upset when I tell you the news, Cornelia," said she. "You've been tootered this time—he, he, he! Orville Spear ha'n't been heard of since he was at your house. His mother says he went over to explain and make up, and he never came back—he, he! She thought maybe he'd stepped over to his brother's, but he hasn't—he, he! I reckon he's drowned himself!"

"I don't know why the whole town should talk over my affairs and everybody's old maid aggie about them!" cried Cornelia.

Patsy jumped to her feet, seized her parasol and turned towards the door.

"Good afternoon, Miss Cornelia and Mrs. Rashleigh," she said with a contemptuous courtesy. "I'll remember my manners, if other folks forget theirs. Only there's other folks as likely to be old maids as me, and I fancy it's Mrs. Spear's affair now if anything has happened to her boy!"

Away flounced Miss Pratt.

"You've put Patsy in a rage, Cornelia," said Mrs. Rashleigh. "That's a pity; she has a long tongue."

But Cornelia was crying.

"O, mother, dear," she sobbed, "it isn't true, is it? Orville did feel dreadfully. Won't you see mother?"

But at this moment Sally, the little servant girl from Grandma Rashleigh's, came flying into the room, without any more warning than if she had been shot from a gun.

"The old missus says you are to come over at once, both you ladies!" she cried, standing before Mrs. Rashleigh, and repeating her lesson like a parrot. "There's something of importance, and you're needed at worst."

"Get your bonnet, Cornelia," said her mother. "I'll just put on this sunhat. What is it, Sally; do you know?"

"I know it's something dreadful. Missus is almost wild, and there's lots of folks there. Something about Mr. Spear."

The two ladies said no more. They hurried away together, and, entering grandma's parlor, found there assembled more of the members of the Spear family, and a friend or two besides.

Orville had, indeed, disappeared. He had never been home since his visit to tives were anxious to get all the information they could regarding the interview between Orville and Cornelia.

"I had reason to be angry, Mrs. Spear," said Cornelia, proudly; "good reason, and I took off my ring and gave it back and went out of the room. That is all I know. I don't know when he went or where. I—I thought he wouldn't mind so much. I believed he had stopped caring about me."

"He ought to now, at all events," said grandma.

"My boy is dead, I'm sure. I shall have the pond dragged!" said Mrs. Spear, amidst her tears. "He left all his money at home. He wouldn't have gone traveling without a change of clothes. O, you wicked girl!"

"I hope," cried the eldest Miss Spear, "that he'll haunt you!"

"I could kill you, you hateful thing!" cried the youngest Miss Spear.

Cornelia had kept up bravely until now; but when her two friends turned upon her thus, she gave a little scream and fell over on the sofa. She was it a dead swoon, and the water they sprinkled in her face did not bring her to.

Grandma grew frightened.

"I hope it isn't an attack of heart disease," she said. "Poor child! she looks as if she were dead."

"O, don't say that," cried the mother.

They gathered around Cornelia and did all they could for her, and soon she recovered and sat up, but all her pride was gone.

"O, dear! O, dear!" she sobbed. "I wish I had died! I wish I had never come to! O, Orville! Orville! what has become of you?"

"O! oh!" moaned the mother.

"O! oh!" moaned the sisters.

And Cornelia's head fell back again.

"Emma, get the lavender out of the china-closet," said grandma to her daughter. "Quick! It's on the corner shelf!"

Mrs. Rashleigh rushed to the closet.

"It won't open," she cried wildly.

"It's a patent lock," said grandma; "locks as it shuts. Here's the key."

And Mrs. Rashleigh flew back to the door, opened it and uttered a shriek.

There on the floor, huddled up under the shelf, lay poor Orville Spear.

He was white and limp.

Cornelia sat and stared at him in the most awful way. She thought him dead, but the more experienced matron saw that he was yet living.

Sally was sent post haste for the doctor; and there, in Mrs. Rashleigh's drawing-room, he found Cornelia and Orville lying quite unconscious, like Romeo and Juliet in the scene at the tomb, and the rest of the party in a state of bewilderment and terror past description.

At last, however, both were conscious and seated in arm-chairs, regarded each other, while the observers kept silence, and Mr. Orville Spear uttered the first words.

"Of all the confounded fools——"

"Who, dear?" asked his mother.

"Me," said Orville, regardless of grammar. "Who shut me in?"

"What were you in the closet for?" asked grandma, with a guilty conscience.

"To pick something up that rolled there," said Orville.

"The ring?" asked Cornelia, frantically.

"Yes, the ring," said Mr. Spear. "More fool I! Some one banged the door to. I shouted and howled and kicked, and no one heard me."

"O, oh, oh, oh!" shrieked Cornelia, "I believe you hid there just to kill me, for no other purpose than out of revenge."

"You banged the door on me," said Mr Spear. "A jealous woman will do anything."

"I banged the door, Orville!" said old Mrs. Rashleigh. "I! You'd left everything flying. I just pushed it as I passed, and you ought to bless your stars that you are alive, for people don't go into the drawing room, sometimes We use the parlor much more, and I am deaf, and so is old Hepsiba, and you might have died there. Yes, and you'd have killed him, Cornelia," added the old lady, "throwing his pretty diamond ring on the floor!"

"O!" moaned Cornelia. "O!"

"It wasn't her fault. I was a confounded fool all through!" cried Orville. "I knew that closet had a spring-lock. No; don't blame Cornelia."

"I shall always blame myself!" sighed Cornelia. "O! how pale you are!"

"And how pale you are, Cornelia!" sighed Orville. "Did you really care when you thought I was dead?"

"Ladies," said Grandma Rashleigh, "now that Orville has recovered and is getting on, let us go into the other room, and leave these two young folks to talk things over together."

She led the way, the others followed. When the tea bell rang soon after, Orville and Cornelia came out of the drawing room arm in arm, and the wedding day was fixed.—Philadelphia Call.

Dogs.

Among the pests of the farmer the place. Not that the dog is necessarily injurious, any more than some human beings are, but it is the untrained, neglected, and consequently vicious dogs which are a pest to the farmer, as it is the uneducated, neglected and idle youths who become pests of society. A well-trained dog, kept in proper subjection and under control of its owner, may be useful in more than one capacity, while its kind, docile and friendly disposition and its wonderful sagacity may make it an acceptable companion. But when left to itself, like the erring child we read of, it is sure to bring its owner to shame and grief. A Tennessee farmer who has suffered gives some figures which might be duplicated in every other State with great ease. He says that his State possesses 400,000 dogs that are idle, vicious and worthless. Each of these dogs consumes as much food as would make 100 pounds of pork if fed to pigs, which, in the aggregate, is equal to 50,000,000 pounds of bacon annually, worth $3,000,000. This is the direct cost of them. The indirect loss consists in the prevention of the keeping of 200,000 sheep, the yearly profit of which would be $6,000,000, so that the whole loss to the State by reason of the keeping of worthless dogs in a state of ferocious savageness is equal to $9,000,000. The schools of the State cost $3,000,000. So that the keeping of the dogs costs three times more than the education of the children. The farmer might well have added to his productive crop of figures all the various losses and damages direct and indirect from the sadly defective education of the children for which only $3,000,000 can be afforded on account of these dogs.

But it is bad enough, because this is only a very small part of the whole damage which is inflicted upon the public by worthless dogs, or rather through the criminal neglect of the owners of them. For if a man should keep a wolf or other wild ferocious beast and suffer it to go at large to prey upon his neighbors every night he would commit an offense for which he would be amenable to the laws; and it is equally wrong for him to keep a dog and suffer it to become a beast of prey. There is no lawful reason why a man may not keep a wolf or a bear, or a tiger even, if he keeps it in secure confinement. Society does not prohibit this pleasure and gratification, and a man may keep a dog with equal propriety if he will only prevent it from injuring or destroying his neighbor's flock. But certainly every man should be obliged to do this, and farmers who suffer damage have a clear right to insist upon it and to ask for sufficient legislation to enforce it.—N. Y. Times.

The American Girl.

The American girl is champagny. She is glittering, foamy, bubbly, sweet, dry, tart—in a word, fizzy!

She has not the dreamy, magical, murmury lovableness of our Italian girl. And yet there is a cosmopolitan combination in the American girl that makes her a most attractive coquette in her frankness, in her pardonable frivolity, in her being a phenomenon of verbal intrigue!

You may lose your head with her easily in a week, and in the way of recollecting what you had said to her yesterday, for she is gifted with memory; but your heart—jamais!

It takes a longer time for that. But be sure she will have both sooner or later, and, like a true belle, will sing to you amid sighs and smiles:

Be glad while ye may,
Nor take heed of the morrow;
The sweets of to-day
Let us taste while they last!
For life is too short
From the future to borrow;
Dull care, like an ort,
Fling away to the past!

I don't believe she is half as mercenary as she talks, in the vein of "what female heart can gold despise?" Yet she gives a strong impression that the alpha and omega of life is a modiste and a millionaire. My impression of the American girl is one never to be forgotten. She is bright, brisk and business-like.

To be concise, I would call the American girl a sort of social catechism—full of questions and answers. In many instances she omits the answers, and becomes an incarnate "?" I never experienced such a pleasurable witness-box position in all my life.—Italian Paper.

—Josh Billings went into a harness shop in New York to get some trivial thing, and when he was about to pay for it the proprietor said: "Never mind; it doesn't amount to much; some time when you lecture you may send me some tickets." Josh turned and walked nearly to the door, then slowly coming back, said: "See here, Mr. S., you are like a good many other people; you 'cast your bread upon the waters,' but you tie a string to it!" and went slowly out, without another word or smile.

SCROFULA

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"About five years ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (tubers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me.

Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN,
Cor. Sullivan St., New York, June 25, 1883.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882:

"Having suffered severely for some years with boils, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or contaminated condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest Blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In buying a silver watch case great care should be taken to secure one that is solid silver throughout. The cap of most cheap silver cases is made of a composition known as albata, which is a very poor substitute for silver, as it turns black in a short time. The backs of such cases are made much thinner than those of an all silver case, being robbed in order to make the cap thicker and get in as much as possible of the cheap metal. Another important point in a silver case is the joints or hinges, which should be made of gold. Those of most cheap cases are made of silver, which is not a suitable metal for that purpose. In a brief period it warps, bends and spreads apart, allowing the backs to become loose upon the case and admitting the dust and dirt that accummulate in the pocket. The Keystone Silver Watch Cases are only made with silver caps and gold joints.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Feb. 17, 1883.
In our long and varied experience in handling watches, we cannot but acknowledge and give our testimony that the Keystone Solid Silver Watch Cases are the best made to our knowledge. Having no soldering they remain homogeneous, harder and stiffer than they would be were they heated for soldering, and have more resisting power against pressure than any other cases in the market. KING OF THE BLOOD
The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.
Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the worst Scrofula.
It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.
Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are speedily conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.
Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.
It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, FOUL SORES, BLOTCHES, BOILS, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.
It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.
It dispenses TUMORS and CANCERS without the Surgeon's knife.
It cures DROPSY, general or partial.
It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.
It eradicates the effects of Venerial Disease and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.
Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatise on Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.
Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ounces, or to 50 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.
If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, request him to order a supply of it for you, as it will be cheaper than for you to order direct of us, and less trouble.

BULL DOGLETS.

A man who had traveled about,
Was heard very plain to speak out;
"I have chewed in all lands,
But the finest of brands
Is the 'Bull Dog' without any doubt."

A man up at Kalamazoo
Said no decent tobacco he knew;
But the "Bull Dog" he tried—
Was so well satisfied
He bought a whole caddy to chew.

A resident at a way-station
Was grumbling about his location,
He said: "I'd not mind
If I only could find
'Bull Dog Plug' in this part of creation."

An old man who used it before,
Saw a "Bull Dog" sign over a door;
He said: "While I'm by,
I'll procure a supply,"
And bought all they had in the store.

An "old timer," not noted for gumption,
Said his son nearly died of consumption,
But his health was renewed
When the "Bull Dog" he chewed,
That he died was the common presumption.

But the steady increasing demand
Shows the chewers do all understand,
Though "Bull Dog" don't cure
All the ills we endure,
'TIS THE FINEST BY FAR IN THE LAND.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. No other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that "It's the best dollar I ever invested."

LEBANON, N. H., Feb. 19, 1879.
Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co.: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.
Yours truly,
F. C. CHURCHILL,
(Firm of Carter & Churchill.)

FITS

A Leading London Physician establishes an Office in New York for the Cure of EPILEPTIC FITS.

From Am. Journal of Medicine.

Dr. Ab. Meserole (late of London), who makes a specialty of Epilepsy, has without doubt treated and cured more cases than any other living physician. His success has simply been astonishing; we have heard of cases of over 20 years' standing successfully cured by him. He has published a work on this disease, which he sends with a large bottle of his wonderful cure free to any sufferer who may send their address to express and P. O. Address. We advise any one wishing a cure to address

Jokes and Sorrow.

Hobbes, the eminent philosopher, said that laughter is nothing but sudden glory arising from sudden conceit in men who laugh at the infirmity of others with whom they compare themselves at unawares, by which sudden glory the passions of the heart do suddenly and violently break forth and weeps. Mr. Hobbes lived many years ago, but his remark, which is often quoted as an aphorism, lacks that important ingredient which is not always added to every patent medicine advertisement—truth. There are animals that laugh and weep. There are, on the contrary, races of men, like the American Indians and Cingalese Veddas, which do not laugh.

Two essentials are needed in order to produce the physical phenomenon of laughter in man—first, facial, vocal, or other muscles, including the diaphragm, and second, the emotions or ideas which give rise to laughter. Certain animals possess both these essentials. The gorilla has the facial muscles, and travellers claim that various monkeys have them. All the mammalia, in common with man, have the diaphragm, which is capable of spasmodic action. The chimpanzee is said to smile. The smile of the little monkey is a playful one. The dog can both smile and grin, whether affection or pleasure, hypocrisy or cunning dictate. Dogs distinguish the different kinds of laughter, they note the distinction between that which is good-humored and that which is sarcastic. They are sensitive to ridicule, yet not infrequently try to produce laughter in man, and deep is their mortification if they fail. Romance tells us of a Skye terrier that tried to amuse his master and provoke his laughter by certain tricks it had taught itself, and was sulky if its efforts proved fruitless. An orang-outang in the London Zoological Gardens showed every sign of pleasure when its practical jokes excited men's laughter, and Rev. Dr Wood records the instance of a tame jackdaw who enjoyed the fun of boys' games like leap-frog and tag as much as the boys did themselves.

The parrot is a capital laugher. He laughs at his own practical jokes. White, of Selbourne, speaks of the heartiness of laughter in the woodpecker. A pet magpie of Jesse's, he says in that incomparable "History of Selbourne," had a laugh that was so hearty, joyous and natural that no one who heard it could help joining in it. There are tales of certain swallows who on the successful issue of a practical joke played by them on a cat, seemed each to set up a laugh at the disappointed enemy very like the laugh of a young child when tickled. Mr. Cobbe says the goose has, perhaps, the keenest appreciation of humor of any animal, unless it be her own arch enemy, the fox? And she illustrates this assertion by the narrative of a practical joke played on a number of pigs by a flock of geese. The poor porkers were caused to run the gauntlet down a lane of geese biting at them with their bills, simply to frighten them, and that the geese might enjoy the terror and squealing of the pigs.

"One of my horses," says Baker Pasha, "out of pure amusement, kicks at the men as they pass, and, having succeeded several times in kicking them into the river, he perseveres in the fun, I believe, for lack of other employment."

There is a certain hyena which, from the peculiarity of its cry, is styled the laughing hyena, and in Australia there is a bird—a kingfisher—which is called for a similar reason the laughing jackass. Its notes strongly resemble a rude, powerful laugh. The great African traveller, Livingstone, speaks of the African brown ibis, whose cry is a loud ha-ha-ha!

As it is true that certain animals possess the physical qualifications for laughter, so also is it correct that they possess all the apparatus for shedding tears. The dog, horse, elephant, bear, cat, donkey, mule, various deer, soko, chimpanzee, mandril, titi or other monkeys or apes, cattle, camel, giraffe, shed tears under emotions of grief and sorrow. The parrot does not shed tears, but possesses the kindred power of sobbing. Chimpanzees will weep at dread of punishment, monkeys and elephants on account of disappointment or mortification, the Cingalese elephant on account of captivity and confinement, the titi from fear, terror or fright, the stag at bay and caged rat from despair, certain monkeys because they are titied, and the young soko, says Dr. Livingstone, out of mere pettishness or non-compliance with his whims.

Mrs. Burton says she has seen in the Syrian desert "tears roll down camels' faces with thirst." Some one speaking of a mule crippled by a two-inch nail in his foot: "His face was the picture of pain and despair. Tears streamed out of his eyes." Dr. Livingstone records the instance of a young soko, which, if not taken up in the arms like a child when it desired, and appealed to be so carried, engaged in the most bitter human-like weeping. Dr. Boerlage shot a female (mother) ape in Java that fell mortally wounded from a tree clasping the young one in her arms, and she died weeping.

A giraffe, wounded by a rifle shot, was also found to have tears trickling from the lash of his dark, humid eyes. Gordon Cumming, the African traveller, speaks of large tears trickling from the eyes of a dying elephant. Some old rats, finding a young one dead by drowning, wiped the tears from their eyes with their forepaws, says the Animal World. Instances might be enumerated without limit to show that certain animals have both the physical requirements for grins and tears, and are susceptible to the same emotions that cause tears and laughter in man.—N. Y. Mail.

Rheumatic Syrup Co:

Gents—I feel it my duty to recommend your wonderful medicine—"Rheumatic Syrup"—to all who are suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia or kidney difficulty.

I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism, caused by kidney difficulty, and have been treated by our best physicians, but they failed to reach my case or benefit me in the least.

I saw in the Auburn papers the names of a number who had been permanently cured by the use of Rheumatic Syrup, and, being acquainted with many of them, I was induced to try it, and to my surprise I found that all pain had left me before I had finished the first bottle. I continued its use for a time, and to-day I am well as ever and feel no more pain or trouble with my kidneys. It has been several months since I discontinued its use, so I know it is a permanent cure in my case.

I can testify that Rheumatic Syrup will do all—yes, more than you claim for it. I am yours truly,

Mrs. Hattie Paddock.

Opening the Fountains.

In numberless bulbs beneath the skin is secreted the liquid substance which gives the hair its texture, color and gloss. When this secretion stops, the hair begins at once to become dry, lustreless, brittle and gray. Is that the condition of your hair? If so, apply Parker's hair Balsam at once. It will restore the color, gloss and life by renewing the secretion. The Balsam is not an oil, not a dye, but an elegant toilet article, highly appreciated because of its cleanliness.

HUMAN BLOOD.—On the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system. Disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause. A remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Hood's Sarsaparilla undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use. Sold by dealers.

Bulwer Lytton's Bridge

Where it Touches the Shores and the Great Columns in Midstream.

"What a beautiful bridge between old age and childhood is religion. How intuitively the child begins with prayer and worship on entering life, and how intuitively, on quitting life, the old man turns again to prayer and worship, putting himself again side by side with the infant," remarks Sir E. Bulwer Lytton, in his "Strange Story."

Yes, but between its distant abutments the bridge of life has many high and awful arches, through which the wild waters dash and roar in wrath and desolation. Prayer and worship do not subdue these. Nature's solid rocks, though shaken by storm and human hearts shall utter fear and nothing the structure overhead. God's will is best exemplified in the laws He has made for the creatures among whom He has placed them to govern. Neither are children "proof against their father," nor the old man's "forget me not" to the midst of pain dismembered," will alter this by the weight of a single grain.

Science and art are first, then faith and prayer—is the order of Heaven itself. Invariably heals through its agents, and these agents are the discoveries of man—not the vague announcements of prophets or seers. Is life a burden to you? Does time drag? Is your power to cope with life's problem and duties weakened? You are not well. Your blood is sluggish and tainted, perhaps; or some important organ is torpid or overworked. The foe may have taken the form of dyspepsia, rheumatism, gout, malaria, pains in the stomach, chronic headache, or any of a dozen other ills. PARKER'S TONIC will invigorate those who have been shut up in damp, fetid cells. It is powerful, pure, delicious, scientific, safe—the keystone of the central arch of the bridge of life.

ESTATE OF STEVENS MINORS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian on Tuesday, the 4th day of March in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Bertha D. Stevens and Harry L. Stevens, minors.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Edwin B. Wood, guardian of said minors, praying for license to sell the real estate of said minors in said petition described, for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 14th day of April next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next-of-kin of said minors and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF JOSEPH TAYLOR.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 28th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Joseph Taylor, late of Ravensmoor, Chester County, England, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Homer L. Stewart, alleging among other things that the property of said deceased, is in part at least, a mortgage upon real estate owned by petitioner in Lenawee county, which he has assumed to pay and which is past due, and praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Edwin B. Wood, or some other suitable person. And it appearing to the court that some of the heirs-at-law of said deceased are residents of England in Great Britain, a foreign country, having no consul residing in this state, whereby it becomes the duty of this court to notify the consul of such foreign nation in the City of New York, at least sixty days before the day assigned for the hearing of said petition, and of the pendency thereof and the day appointed for hearing the same.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday the 5th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks immediately previous to said day of hearing.

PRACTICAL TEMPERANCE.

MR. EDITOR:

The people of Tecumseh need but one thing to make them [illegible] effort to close up the liquor saloons. They are well enough convinced of the evils and dangers of liquor selling. The business is a bad one, and cannot be defended. We are suffering from it. It is leading our young men astray. If every saloon was closed never to be opened again, as a saloon, there would be few to weep unless it might be tears of joy. But are we sure we can close them and keep them closed in the way proposed? It has been understood until recently that the village trustees were compelled by the present law to grant a license to persons who gave good bonds and paid the special tax levied on their business. The Supreme Court of Michigan has it seems decided that they are not so compelled. According to the decision of this court in the East Tawas case and others, village Trustees have it in their power to reject the best of bonds and say to all applicants for permission to open a place for the retail of intoxicating liquors, we withhold our permission. And as they cannot lawfully sell without that permission, they cannot lawfully sell at all. And so we get local prohibition. What better could we ask? If this is the position of affairs and if our citizens want this traffic closed let them say so by signing a petition to the Trustees requesting them to exercise the discretion the Supreme Court has decided that they have, by refusing to accept all bonds of would be liquor sellers that may be presented to them. If they do not wish this traffic closed, let them say so by declining to sign a petition, or by putting their names to a petition that good bonds be accepted. This is a free country. No man can be compelled to do otherwise than as he pleases in such a case as this. But all should understand that a grave responsibility is thrown upon us by the offer of this opportunity to rid ourselves of what is confessed by every one, or every unprejudiced one, to be an evil of the highest magnitude. If the opportunity be what it is said to be, we can hardly have a better chance to protect ourselves from the dominion of the liquor aristocracy. Let us sign a petition to the Council, and leave it with them. If there is any thing wrong in refusing to accept the bonds we do not ask them to do wrong. If it is right they should refuse them let us give them a loud request to refuse. CITIZEN.

THE DIFFERENCE.

The following statistical information appeared in the N. Y. Evening Post, published by Carl Schurz. I think no will charge that it is due to any fanaticism in Mr. Schurz and it may be well for the friends of law and order to ponder it:

Vineland, N. J. is a city of 12,000 souls and no saloons. It has one constable at a cost of $75 per year. The expense of keeping paupers is $400 per year. Total, $475,00.

Yonkers N. Y. is a city of 15,000. It has 145 places licensed to sell liquor, and 70 places where it is sold contrary to law. Its expense for police is $37,000. It has a police judge at a salary of $4,000, a clerk of the police court at a salary of $800. The expense of its paupers is $12,000. Votal $53,800. Allowing for the difference of 3000 in population the cost of maintaining the city of Yonkers is MORE THAN NINETY TIMES as much as that of Vineland. Now let every friend of humanity ponder carefully the above, and then decide the question, once for all, does it pay to perpetuate the liquor traffic. H.

Geo. C. Kober, Esq., Special Examiner of the Pension Bureau, was in town Tuesday on business. He is engaged principally in collecting evidence in rejected and disputed pension claims, a branch of the service to which he is well adapted by long experience. Mr. Kober is ready at a times to give pensioners any information they may wish respecting their claims and interests. His address is Room 3, P. O. Building, Detroit.

This year the office should seek the man. Beware of those who are figuring for nominations for the different township offices this spring. Let the people nominate whom they want.

PERILS OF THE MINE.

Two Men Meet with a Terrible Death in a

POTTSVILLE, PA., March 25.—A terrible mining accident occurred yesterday afternoon at a colliery on the north side slope of the Sharp Mountain. James Kirk, formerly a well-to-do citizen of this place, has been in reduced circumstances for some time past, and to redeem his fortunes commenced work on a vein of coal he found on the mountain. Too poor to employ miners, he and his boys worked the mine alone and had sunk the shaft seventy yards. Forty yards below them was a drift worked by Vincar Fayant, the mouth of which was 300 yards from Kirk's slope. The plan has left in the drift to support the roof as it was first opened were ribbed back. This in ordinary weather would not have affected Kirk's operations, but during the past two weeks copious rains loosened the earth and it commenced sinking. As Kirk was at work in the afternoon a heavy fall occurred in the slope behind him. He called to his sons to run for deep and they returned with Fayant, who realized at a glance his hazardous position, but bravely entered the slope to rescue Kirk. He had almost accomplished this when a boulder weighing half a ton fell on his neck and crushed him. Meanwhile William Lloyd, a miner engaged in dragging out the mangled remains of his employer. The news spread rapidly, and in a few hours a thousand people had flocked to the scene. Everything was done to rescue Kirk, and at seven o'clock his torn and bleeding corpse was hoisted out. In endeavoring to dig out he had pulled down tons of earth and rock on himself. He was a prominent politician and a few years ago was the Republican candidate for Sheriff. He lost his fortune through speculation. He leaves several motherless children. Fayant was thirty years of age. He had a wife and three children. The latter are down with scarlet fever and the widow is prostrate with grief and the shock. Fayant on Saturday predicted Kirk's fate and that of those who went to his rescue. The calamity is the one topic of conversation to-night.

A Reduction in the Price of Mining Causes a Small Strike.

PITTSBURGH, March 25.—There is but one pit on the Monongahela River paying 3½ cents and it was said yesterday that the operators here would make a reduction in a short time. Joseph Walton & Co.'s men in the first pool went out on a strike against the reduction to 3¼ cents, but it is thought they will return to work today, as the out coal as cheap as any other pool along the river. Hays is the only pit paying 3½ cents, and it is said the operators will also make a reduction here in a a few days. As soon as 3¼ becomes the regular price, O'Neal & Co., in the second pool will reduce to three cents as per agreement which they have with their men, in the fourth pool all the mines are at work at 3½. Several operators who were called upon yesterday said there was no increase in the price of coal in the Southern markets. In Cincinnati fourth pool coal sells now at 5¾, first and second pool at 6½ and third pool at 6¾. These prices are about one cent lower than at this time last year.

Murderous Molly Maguires.

PORT RICHMOND, PA., March 25.—A number of notorious outlaws, who are supposed to be in league with the Molly Maguires that find safe refuge in this section, have formed an oath-bound brotherhood, and under the guidance of a blacklisted miner formerly employed in the Monongahela Valley, will visit the disturbed sections of the coal fields of Western Pennsylvania to perpetrate a series of Molly Maguire outrages. Among the banditti are a number of desperate men, who are believed to be fugitive murderers and conspirators, and they will be vigilantly shadowed by members of the detective corps employed by the coal and railroad companies. The chief of the coal and iron police of Clearfield, Washington, Westmoreland and Fayette counties has been privately apprised of the intended visit, and a sharp watch will be kept upon the marauders as soon as they make their advent in these regions.

A Slight Explosion in a Coal Mine at Johnstown, Pa.

JOHNSTOWN, PA., March 25.—There was a slight explosion of fire damp in the mill coal mine of the Cambria Iron Company, at this place, yesterday morning, magnified reports of which have been telegraphed over the country. Three men and a boy was very slightly burned, but none dangerously injured. There had been a small accumulation of gas over Sunday, and when the miners went to work it ignited from coming in contact with the naked lamps. The fan had not yet been put in full motion. The mine is one of the best ventilated in the country and generates but very little gas. The explosion did not damage the mine. Hereafter a watchman will inspect the mine every morning before the miners are permitted to ente.

Fresh Prosecutions at Corning.

NEW LEXINGTON, O., March 25.—Advices from Corning show that the trouble is not over there. John Meyers, commander of the Post of the Grand Army of the Republic, states that he was assaulted, abused and threatened so on Thursday night last by some men indicted for the recent assault on McDevitt that he took refuge in the hall and remained two days without food and then fled to Columbus.

Counterfeit Twenty Dollar Silver Certificates.

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Treasury Department is informed that new counterfeit twenty dollar silver certificates are being circulated in Ohio and Kentucky. The counterfeits bear either the number B1,487,415 or number B1,407 and may be detected in that way.

Floods in Wisconsin.

MILWAUKEE, March 25.—Serious floods are reported from Darlington and Colamine, Dodge County. Pesatonia River has flooded both towns. People have left their homes and railroad communication is stopped.

An Editor Paralyzed.

PROVIDENCE, March 25.—George W. Danielson, editor of the Journal, while out driving with his family yesterday afternoon, received a paralytic shock in the right arm and leg.

Hotel Burned.

CARMI, ILL., March 25.—The Boyd Hotel at Grayville and a number of adjoining buildings burned yesterday morning. The loss is not stated.

Epizootic at Dayton.

DAYTON, March 25.—The epizootic prevails here to a remarkable extent and is reported to be worse than ever before.

THE AMERICAN HOG.

Senator Vance's Report on its Restriction

WASHINGTON, March 25.—In the Senate Mr. Vance's minority report from the Committee on Foreign Affairs, submitted yesterday, expresses the opinion that Germany has a right to exclude American hog products on the ground that they are unwholesome if she deems proper, and that this Government is not justified in impeaching her motives. If it be true, continues the report, that our pork is to any extent unwholesome we should endeavor by a system of inspection to remove the cause of the complaint. If it be the fear of trichinosis is only a pretext and that the reason for excluding our hog products is a desire to protect their own producers then we are the last people on earth who ought to complain. After surrounding ourselves for more than twenty years with a protective tariff wall so high as to exclude virtually all products of Germany which compete with ours, it is rather late for us to advocate a retaliation against a Government which merely follows our example. In fact Germany's action is a retaliation, and the cry of stop thief cannot change the true condition of things. We have more to learn. We are not so great and independent as to enable us to defy the laws of political economy and the amenities of trade with impunity. We have been told again and again our true policy was to shut up our manufactories from the competition of the world and that all nations thus excluded would be compelled, nevertheless, to buy our bread stuffs and provisions—that they could not do without them. We are greatly surprised and indignant when one important customer says he can get along without our hog products and forbids their coming in and we propose to retaliate. For what? For simply and frankly forbidding them to be imported. Suppose instead of doing this Germany had imposed a duty of one hundred per cent. on them, which as effectually prohibits their importation, what then? Where would be our so-called retaliation? The undersigned can see no difference whatever in the two methods of prohibition so far as results are concerned, only that one is manly and direct whilst the other is indirect and based on false pretenses. Our great meat industry must indeed be cared for. It with kindred agricultural industries furnishes nearly all our foreign trade and they deserve all Congress can do for them. But this bill does not propose the true way to do it. This way is to remove as far as possible all restrictions upon trade and the enlargement of the market for our farmers products all over the world by liberal treaties and tariff laws.

The Butcher's Association Claim That Western Beef is Doctored With Ether.

NEW YORK, March 24.—The Central Committee of the Butchers' Organization, recently formed for the purpose of effecting a discontinuance of transportation from Chicago and other western cities of dressed cattle, met Saturday night. Speeches were made regarding the matter, and it was maintained that the present time, when warm weather was approaching, was the proper one to begin an earnest effort to stop the traffic complained of. It was insisted, notwithstanding the statements to the contrary, that dressed cattle shipments from the West were "doctored" with ether to prevent speedy decay. It was decided to hold a mass meeting shortly, at which the matter will be ventilated.

The Hot Springs Investigation.

HOT SPRINGS, March 24.—The Congressional Committee closed the investigation of the Government work on Hot Springs Creek Saturday and left for Washington. The allegation of fraud has not been sustained. The preponderance of the testimony shows that the material used was good enough for the purpose. Colonel L. C. How, U. S. E., and Colonel A. A. Fleming, City Engineer, Hot Springs, measured the work and found it a fraction less than estimated, made and collected on by the contractors.

A Presentation to an Architect.

NEW YORK, March 24.—In Brooklyn last night the Very Reverend William Keegan, Vicar General of the Diocese, made a presentation to P. C. Keeley, the well-known architect, of an illuminated address and medal, presented now annually by the University of Notre Dame, of South Bend, Ind., to some literary man, artist or architect who may have become most marked in his special work the previous year. A distinguished company was present at the ceremony.

A Fatal Duel in Mexico.

MATAMORAS, Mexico, March 24.—A duel was fought Friday morning at the Ranche Mexa de Leon, near Huijano, fifty miles south of Matamoras between Juan Diaz, a noted desperado, very dangerous and drunk, and one of the privates in the company of guards commanded by Captain Fernandez. The duel lasted some time, nine shots being fired and both of the principals being killed in the fire.

Redeeming Charred Money.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Thomas Dowling, a quarryman near Menasha, Wis., whose earnings of a lifetime, stored in greenbacks and National bank notes, were nearly destroyed by fire recently, representing $2,690, has been fortunate. The Committee on Charred Money has identified $1,950, and the amount will be redeemed at once. This work has been done by those who were so expert in identifying the money destroyed in the Chicago fire.

Why He Killed His Children.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 24.—The preliminary investigation near McBean of the killing of five negro children has caused the arrest of the father, Ed Dows. He was trying to raise a crop, and found it difficult to get provisions for his family. He had doubts whether the children were his, and it is suspected killed them to get rid of supporting them.

The Navajos.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 24.—Agent Riordan, of the Navajo Agency in Arizona, who came to this city with a delegation of that tribe, endeavoring to have the boundaries of the reservation extended and defined, has been suddenly called to the agency by a dispatch from the Acting Agent, stating that an outbreak of the Indians is imminent.

A Mine on Fire.

TACOMA, W. T., March 24.—A fire is raging in New Castle Coal Mine, the most valuable of those belonging to the Oregon Improvement Company. The mine has been on fire for eighteen months. The fact that it had obtained mastery over the management had been concealed. It is believed now that it will be necessary to shut down and flood the mine.

The Scott Act in Canada.

OTTAWA, March 24.—Ontario brewers are here again urging that in the bill to amend the Scott act, now before the House an amendment be inserted permitting the sale of beer, porter, lager and light wines in counties that have adopted that act

HEREDITARY TAINTS.

Some Revelations on A Subject Which Concerns the Welfare of the Race and the Happiness of All.

Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

To any one who has studied the laws of life, and especially those which relate to reproduction, an experience such as we are about to relate, will come with special force and interest. The transmission of certain mental traits of prominence, and of certain physical traits of equal prominence, are facts which all acknowledge, but which none can understand. The father may be distinguished, the son an imbecile, or, the parent may be decrepit and unknown, and the child achieve the highest place possible to humanity. But through it all, there will be certain characteristics, which mark the individual as descending from certain ancestors. Too often indeed, these characteristics are infirmities, and often of a physical nature.

These facts were strikingly brought out during a conversation, which a representative of this paper recently had with Mrs. Carrie D. T. Swift, who is the wife of one of our most prominent citizens. This lady related that she inherited from her parents certain tendencies, over which she had no control, and which were in the nature of blood difficulties, assuming the form of rheumatism. Her experience can best be described in her own words. To the writer she said:

"I felt the beginning of this hereditary taint many years ago, in vague pains, which seemed to come unaccountably and at uncalled for times. They were annoying, exhausting, and interfered not only with my duties, but also totally destroyed my happiness. At first, they would be only transient, appearing for a day or two and then disappearing; then again they would come in such violent forms, that it was impossible for me to lift a cup to my mouth. Afterwards, my feet and hands swelled so that it was impossible for me to draw on my shoes or gloves without the greatest effort. I realized what the difficulty was, but seemed powerless to avert it. I finally became so bad that I was confined to the house and to my bed most of the time. My joints pained me continuously and my feet swelled to enormous proportions. Knowing that I inherited this tendency, I had about abandoned hope, when I began the use of a remedy, which was recommended to me as a friend as being specially efficient in cases of a similar kind. To my great gratitude, I found that it relieved me, restored my appetite, and I am able to say that now I have gained forty pounds in weight, feel perfectly well and am in the best possible condition, owing, wholly, to Warner's Safe Rheumatic cure, which was the remedy I used."

"No one would ever suspect you had suffered so, Mrs. Swift, to see you now," remarked the reporter.

"That is what all my friends say. Only yesterday, an acquaintance of mine, whom I had not seen for some time, hesitated, before speaking, and apologized by saying, 'Why, I really did not know you, you have changed so for the better since I last met you, how well you do look.'"

"Have you any objection to giving the name of the party who first mentioned this remedy to you?"

"Not the slightest. It was Mr. R. H. Furman, the photographer."

The newspaper man, after bidding Mrs. Swift good-bye, repaired to the photographic rooms of Mr. Furman, when the following conversation ensued:

"Have you been a sufferer from rheumatism?"

"Well, I should think I had."

"For how many years?"

"Twelve or fifteen."

"Did you try to cure it?"

"Yes, I tried everything, and at last, went to the Hot Springs of Arkansas, and nothing seemed to do me any good until I tried Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure."

"And it cured you, did it?"

"Yes, completely."

"And you can cordially recommend it?"

"Yes, indeed, more cordially than anything I have ever known of. It is simply a wonderful medicine. I believe that two-thirds of all cases, both acute and chronic, could be cured as I was cured by the use of this remedy. In fact I know a number of persons who have been in the worst possible condition, and are now completely well wholly through its use."

The statements above made are from sources, the authority of which cannot be questioned. They conclusively prove the value of the preparation named and show that even hereditary traits can be removed by the use of the proper means.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

The April number is more interesting than usual, and is replete with instruction and entertainment. The embellishments are admirable—the colored frontispiece, "The Approach of a Storm," is particularly so. The opening article, "How Uniform Standard Time Came About, abounds with information, and is profusely illustrated. There are also illustrated articles by Walter E. McCann, E. A. Duyckinck, Chas. Von Sas, N. Robinson, Prof. Barrett T. N. Seymour, etc. Etta W. Pierce continues her great serial, "A Dark Deed," and there are short stories, sketches, etc., by John Habberton, W. H. McCann, K. V. Hastings, Henlen W. Pierson and other popular writers. There are poems by Sidney Gray, Jos. B. Dalton, S. Waddington, etc., and a large variety of articles, paragraphs, anecdotes, etc. There are 128 quarto pages and over 100 illustrations in each number, and the price is only 25 cents, or $2.50 per year, postpaid. Mrs. FRANK LESLIE, Publisher, 53, 55 & 57 Park Place, New York.

Mrs. Richardson, a soldier's widow, of Adrian, went as a witness to Washington, and had the satisfaction of seeing a swindling pension agent, named G. P. Austin, sent up for nine months. Austin had been a clerk in the pension department and "knew the ropes," and was attempting to swindle Mrs. R. by false pretences.

The following new rule is announced by the Michigan Supreme Court, to stand as chancery rule 123:

In any case in equity where a defendant shall claim from the complainant any relief which, according to the established course and practice of courts of chancery, might be had by cross-bill, such defendant shall be at liberty by answer to present the facts upon which his equity rests, and to claim by such answer the benefit of a cross-bill, and the court shall have power to give relief upon such answer to the same extent that it might have given it had the cross-bill been filed. But if the cause be such that, if a cross-bill had been filed, the practice of the court would have required it to be sworn to, the answer claiming such relief shall be under oath, notwithstanding an oath thereto may be waived by the bill.

Peterson's Magazine for April is of sterling merit, even more so than usual. It opens with a charming steel engraving. "The Little Gleaner." Then comes a double sized, colored, steel fashion plate; four patterns for D'Oyleys, embroidered, printed in colors; and quite half a hundred wood engravings of fashions, designs for work-table, etc., etc. The stories as usual, are the best of their kind. They lead off with "The Utterly Utter Boston Browns," illustrated; that is full of racy wit. "Peterson," in short, gets better and better. The price is still only two dollars a year. To clubs it is astonishingly low, viz: four copies for six dollars and a half, with an extra copy to the person getting up the club. Or five copies for eight dollars, with both an extra copy and "Tired Out," a splendid steel-engraving, or "The Golden Gift," illustrated, for getting up the club. Specimens are sent, gratis to persons wishing to get up clubs. It is not too late to subscribe for 1884. Address Chas. J. Peterson, 306 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Charles T. Hewitt, of Toledo, is spending a day or two in town. He has taken a respite from business since December last, having closed his engagement with Messenger at that time. Since then he has taken a western trip, and is now on the look out for a new business location.

The Prohibitionists under the name of "Union" will put a ticket in the field in every township of Lenawee County. They are greatly elated at the prospects. The first town to put a ticket in the field is Palmyra, where the Union folks have a full ticket headed by W. H. Moore, the present Supervisor.

M. P. Brown has a very attractive sign painted on the east wall of his photograph building. Every person coming west on Chicago street sees that sign the first thing and the first word he says is, "Who did it?" Well, Daglish did it, the man who gets up most of the nobby signs in this town.

Last week Mrs. Alex. Robertson, of Adrian, was called to Riga to aid in caring for children of her brother's family, who were suffering from scarlet fever. She was taken ill of the same disease and her death occured Saturday. Her husband, who is a railroad postal clerk, is said to be completely deranged. The lady was held in very high esteem.

Judge Stacy has rented his farm to Henry Brown for a term of years on shares, who has already taken possession. The Judge is now moving his family to Tecumseh and will take up his residence once more beneath the roof of the old homestead which sheltered him so many years. His friends and neighbors will gladly welcome him back. His law office will remain in Adrian.

A burglar made his way into Dick Diver's house, at Deerfield, the other night. He realized a dollar out of an examination of Dick's pantaloons pockets, when Mrs. Diver awoke.—She aroused Dick, and to make his escape it became necessary for the burglar to stand the proprietor of the house on his head in the corner.—This he accomplished after a struggle and vanished.

There was a man in our town who thought himself wondrous wise, he swore by all the fabled gods he'd never advertise. His goods were advertised ere long, and thereby hangs a tale—the ad. was set in nonpareil and headed "Sheriff's Sale."

During the absence of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Nash of Adrian, Saturday evening, at the skating rink, burglars entered the house, stole a large amount of jewelry and some $6 or $7 of the funds of the Ladies' Library Association, which she had in her possession.

Dr. Furgeson recently of Coldwater, the gentleman who has bought Patterson's drug store, is now fairly settled in his new quarters and is well pleased with the outlook thus far.—As he designs to become a permanent resident of the place he should receive and doubtless will receive a liberal share of the public patronage in his line of trade.

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

OAKLAND, March 1st, 1884.

You see I struck California just in that freshet when everything was soaked with water, and still pouring. It continued to rain for three days after I arrived, and the consequence was I took a severe cold which has lasted me ever since.

I left here for Los Angeles ten days ago, ran into the mountains and found a tunnel fallen in, and some of the track covered with forty feet of earth that slid from the mountain side, and the rest of the track torn up for miles, so you see I [illegible] trains, all in the same fix, and some of them had been there for two days so you see I did not lack for companionship. They did not at first know the extent of the damage and kept the passengers there in hopes to go on in a few days, but the day we got in they made up their minds to order a retreat, so we backed up to a little town on the plains, called Sumner. Some of us occupied the cars and some the only hotel in the place, and a good many more the saloons. There were about four hundred passengers added to the population of the town and you can readily see that we soon made pressing demands on the culinary demands of the place. In a word we ate them clean out by noon the first day, but I must do them justice by acknowledging that we did not drink them out. At this very interesting state of affairs the superintendent of the road, located at this place, very magnanimously came forward and offered to pay our board so long as we were detained at this interesting place. Well, you can imagine the enthusiasm with which this very generous offer was accepted. We cheered this worthy representative of a still more worthy corporation, and all sallied out to do justice to ourselves for once at any rate in partaking of a good square meal. But then a change came o'er the spirit of our dreams, (like the old Lady of Cranberry Cross) when we got there the cupboard was bare, and not a cracker in the house, nor for that matter, in the town. I for one took a good, hearty laugh. I could afford to for I had a well-filled lunch basket. But there was one thing that began to dawn on the minds of some of them, the matter of drink was very thoughtlessly omitted from the order. Well, seeing there was nothing to eat, and everything to drink, we all embraced the situation, or pretty much all I think, for a happier set of men I never saw as long as the whiskey lasted, and I think it lasted till we left, which was that night at twelve o'clock. The passengers all came back to San Francisco but myself. I stopped at Tulare City on the Tulare plains in San Joaquin valley.

The consequence is I have not heard a word from home yet, as my letters are all at Los Angeles, and I think now I will take a boat from here in a few days and go down. I have to pay my fare over again, but I can not help that as I want to hear from home. By the way, I forgot to mention that I returned to Oakland on the 29th, and I am staying here for the present. Tulare is the finest County of land I ever saw or expect to see again. Tulare City contains about 2500 inhabitants, mostly live men, and all very much interested in the improvements of the town. I stayed here for over a week and rode in all directions from the town. I had supposed we had some of the finest farming land in the whole nation and have been just a little vain about it, but when I came to ride over this County I have to acknowledge that we are nowhere. The land for miles on miles is as level as a floor, and I think I never saw such soil in any country; it is dark, rich marl and from six to eight feet in depth. The timber is all white oak of immense size, from three to four and a half feet through at the ground with a body only about ten or twelve feet high, and then branches out in all directions and will cover about four rods square. The limbs curve and the joints hang down some like a weeping willow. They have much the appearance of a burr oak, and are about as high and contain a power of wood of very good quality, but of very little value for posts or rails. This timber covers part of this land, but there are sections where a tree does not grow. The trees are so few that they do not interfere in the least with cultivating the land. Then to think that this land has laid here for years on years, valued at $1.25 to $4 per acre and no buyers.

Finally one year ago, some parties here in Tulare made up a purse and sunk an artesian well 450 feet deep and struck water which rises ten feet above the surface, and then the boom set in and now there are within ten miles square, fifteen wells, each one capable of irrigating 160 acres of land. The pipes of these wells are eight inches and throw a stream night and day. Now this land is selling from $25 to $30 per acre with a rush. If I had a few thousand dollars I would certainly leave it here. Not a bush or sapling is there in the whole county.

A settler drives onto his land, unloads under a tree, hitches his team to a gang-plow and by the first night has two acres plowed, and in a month it looks like an old farm; the ground breaks up so mellow that the first crop is about as good as any. But the rage is fruit. Trees of all kinds will bear heavily the third year; and such grapes. Well there is no use of my trying to describe it any further, the more I say the further I get from it. But I am completely enchanted with the place. Respectfully,

J. B. COLVIN.

ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

HOTEL WEST END,
SAN REMO, Italy, Feb. 25, 84.

BROTHER WILLIAM:—Leaving Paris on the 28th of Dec., on to Lyons making [illegible] three days, and then on to Marsailles on the Mediteranean, where New Years day overtook us. Among the very enthusiastic Holiday keeping Frenchmen, of course they had lots of good cheer with and without music. Here we remained four days, visiting various points of interest, churches, &c. Leaving we came along east, the shores of the sea on our right, and the Maratined Alps on our left. Halting at Nice, where we remained two weeks and had a most delightful time. Our hotel Continental facing the sea, only a beautiful garden and very ample promenades lay between them. The garden, most exquisite, stocked with a full assortment of tropical plants and flowers, stately palms etc. The sight and sweet murmur of the sea is most delightful and refreshing with the full bright sun of Italy, so genial and warm. Really quite a contrast to our stay in cloudy, rainy England and the chill and varying climate of an early Parisian winter. Close to on our rear the spurs of the Alps reaching down to the sea level, with its pretty valleys deeply cut and their sloping sides thickly clothed with tropical verdure and ripening oranges, lemons and olives. The town is large and well filled with guests from the various countries, English, German French and Americans in abundance to find a delightful retreat from the inclement season. Our hotel was well stocked with Americans from various States, and very pleasant people.

Our next move was still on some twelve miles to Mentone, along the sea and similarly situated, except that the mountains there have a greater height and afforded us splendid donkey rides. At various points zig zag along up their steep heights to a town named Ventumelia, another Castalar high up in these mountains, quaint old Italian villages. On to Genoa, built by the French and the section we came on was full of interest. Passing on the way Monaco and Monte Carlo, the last a famous fashionable gambling resort, and at this time it is in full blast and its product is almost a weekly suicide. Fortunes change here rapidly and frequently. We visited one at two different times. I can scarcely describe its great magnificence. A most elaborate palace, finished in marble and furnished with dazzling mirrors and chandaliers, and the richest furniture and crowded with infatuated gamblers, some nine large tables; men and many women eagerly putting down the cash to see what the little joker will decide; piles of gold, silver and stacks of notes are changing hands. The clang of most splendid music at the same time is performed in the saloons, and the ample grounds surrounding this jugernaut of fortune are embellished on the same scale of magnificence. Fountains, miniature lakes, plants and foliage, and all that art can give to attract and flutter in their victims. This is the only remaining open gambling Hell now in Europe, and public sentiment is crying out against it, but so far they hold open, as this little spot of earth is in the principality of Monaco; its area is so small a quaker hat would at least cover part of its domain, a little patch by the sea, and French territory on each side.

From Mentone we came on last week to Bordighere where we made a half of two days. This is also in many respects like the last, only the mountains tame down and are not so bold. This too is fully stacked with people from abroad. To-day we were out on a drive to a quaint old town called Taggid, some five miles, situated in a valley the nativity of a celebrated Italian writer, Dr. Ruffine. This is also a very pleasant place, only twenty miles from Mentone.

I have still some family work to close out in England, and quite hope to place W. Hayden of 1630 in his proper place on record. I have a late clue that I hope will give something positive. I shall bring home very much matter to show that our ancestors held a very trusted and foremost place among our early English cousins. So with our explorations generally. We hope to use our time and talents that good to others, as well as gratification on our part, shall result. We have studied our route, Pompei, etc., pretty thoroughly and are quite ready to look in upon them.

I beg you will excuse the long gaps between our letters, as we have our journals to write in, and after our day's ramble take a needed share of rest, so as to put us in trim; to consult our guide books and study out language so as to be understood, all takes time.

LEVI HAYDEN.

Adrian Record: The genial foreman of the Union Light being invited to a wedding in Raisin, engaged one of Sickles' good rigs, loaded in his best girl and took in the wedding and the feast. Numerous guests were present and many remained till a late hour, our temperance foreman being one of the late birds. But when he attempted to "hitch up," he made the discovery that another guest, possibly full of the marriage wine, had exchanged buggies and driven off, our friend was therefore obliged to do the best he could and so hitched his horse to tother fellow's carriage and arrived safely home. He turned the rig over to Sickles, who looked the vehicle over and declared himself well satisfied, still [illegible] laying lovely when a telephone message arrived from Tecumseh. It seems that the Tecumseh liveryman wasn't satisfied with the trade his customer had made and demanded restitution or—blood. At last account the Tecumseh weddinger had started for Adrian to get back his buggy. This is the way the Light man tells it. We have to believe it, for is he not a temperance foreman?

The wrong buggy that was taken belonged to John Heck, of this village. Mr. Heck has the reputation of being a temperance man too, and his friends feel anxious. Will he please rise and explain.

—FOR SALE.—80 acres of land, off the late Stephen V. Miller farm, located four miles east of Tecumseh, in Macon. 30 acres of promising wheat on ground will go with it. If desirable another 80 acres with buildings will be added. Considered one of the best farms in Michigan. For price, terms, etc., address,

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is now fully established as the most wonderful cure, with the unparalleled success with which it meets almost all other as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most [illegible] and the most stubborn and complicated diseases in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Spraines, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Kidney Complaints, Rheumatism, Abscesses, Felons, Boils, Tumors, Piles, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Tetter, Salt Rheum, and all disorders accompanied with inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends, if but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

LIVES OF PAIN

RHEUMATISM and NEURALGIA have long enough racked the human system.

They have tormented the human family and defied the medical faculty from time out of memory. They have curdled the blood, demoralized the nerves, vexed the nerves, agonized the muscles, and racked the brain with wearying pain.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is the enemy of Rheumatism and Neuralgia, repairs the damage, relieves the blood, uses the nerves, calms the nerves, soothes the muscles, gives rest and peace to the frenzied brain, and restores delightful sleep.

"ATHLOPHOROS" is a new remedy, but it has been splendidly tried. From far and near come forth sufferers. It has cured those diseases. It has cured them. That is all—and that is enough.

"ATHLOPHOROS" can do for you what it has done for those sufferers. It can drive out your Rheumatism and Neuralgia, and will do so if you give it a fair trial.

"ATHLOPHOROS" has by this time had such a good trial all over the country that its true worth is known, and its true character proved.

"ATHLOPHOROS" means "Prize-Bearer," "Victor," "Conqueror." It carries off the prize as Victor over the attacks of those terrible maladies, and Conqueror of the painful agonies their victims have endured. Not a mere temporary relief, but a permanent, enduring, and triumphant cure.

If you cannot get "ATHLOPHOROS" of your druggist, we will send it to you, carriage paid, at regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 WALL ST., NEW YORK.

WORDS FAIL. "Words fail to express my gratitude," says Mr. SELBY CARTER, of Nashville, Tenn., "for the benefit derived from

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Having been afflicted all my life with Scrofula, my system seemed so full of it. It came out in Blotches, Ulcers, and Mattery Sores, all over my body." Mr. Carter states that he was entirely cured by the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and since discontinuing its use eight months ago, he has had no return of the scrofulous symptoms.

All forms of infections of the blood are promptly removed by this time-tried alterative.

The Emperor Louis Napoleon smoked only the finest cigars the world could produce. "Prof. Horsford says the Emperor's cigars were made specially for him in Havana from leaf tobacco grown in the Golden Belt of North Carolina, this being the finest leaf grown.... Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is made from the same leaf used in the Emperor's cigars, is absolutely pure and is unquestionably the best tobacco ever offered.

Thackeray's gifted daughter, Anne, in her sketch of Alfred Tennyson, in Harper's Monthly, tells of her visit to the great poet. She found him smoking Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco, sent him by Hon. James Russell Lowell, American Minister to the Court of St. James.

In these days of adulteration, it is a comfort to smokers to know that the Bull Durham brand is absolutely pure, and made from the best tobacco the world produces.

Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco is the best and purest made. All dealers have it. None genuine without the trade-mark of the Bull.

MISHAWAKA, Ind, Dec. 1, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY.

Dear Sir—Its work has done for me what it does for many. Suffering to a great extent from female weakness, I add my testimony to the value of Zoa-Phora. For five years I suffered greatly with Prolapsus, being obliged to use a supporter during all those painful, weary years, but thanks to your medicine, I wear it no more. I laid it off after using one and a half bottles. I am not well, but I work all the time, and am better than I ever expected to be. You may use my letter, and if any one wishes to write me for more information, give them my full address. MRS. C. G.

JERSEYVILLE, Ill., April 25, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY.

Dear Sir—I am more than pleased with the effect of your Zoa-Phora in our daughter's case. I am surprised to see how she has improved. She is gaining in weight and color, and I think feels better than she ever did; her nerves are steady, and the distress in her chest is entirely gone. I firmly believe that Zoa-Phora is all that has saved her life. I am willing you should use my letter, for I am not afraid to tell what a wonderful cure your medicine is. Yours respectfully,

MRS. SARAH RANDOLPH.

N. B.—This was a case of suppression. From Mrs. John Spitler.

No. 28 Wilt St, Fort Wayne, Ind.

I have suffered for sixteen years with spasmodic pain in my head and general nervous debility. Recently I had a severe attack of pain in my head, caused by weakness and nervous exhaustion. I thought I should die. My husband said we would test Zoa-Phora thoroughly. He gave it to me according to directions for severe cases, and in less than two hours I had complete relief. I advise all ladies who suffer from nervous or sick headache, or any form of female weakness, to use Zoa-Phora. There is no medicine to compare with it.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

—There are in Iowa four Methodist Conferences, more than five hundred pastors and over 80,000 members.

—An Indian student at a school in Huntsville, Tex., was recently expelled for packing his clothes in a trunk on Sunday.—Chicago Times.

—Of the 2,616,879 pupils at elementary schools in Japan only 764,591 are girls. At the high schools there are only 204 female pupils out of 12,313.

The Brooklyn City Bible Society was organized forty-three years ago. It distributes Bibles in Brooklyn at the rate of 3,000 a year, at an average annual cost of $3 many dollars.

A Scotch clergyman at Ayr, a few days ago, prayed: "O Lord, bless the Church, and the United Presbyterian Church and all the other churches, thou knowest the various nicknames, Lord, by which they are called—bless them all!"—N. Y. Herald.

—Henry Ward Beecher said recently: "All the assaults made upon religion have in the end exalted it, purified it, made it more practical," and "that statistics showed that the best men and best citizens are children of devout members of the church."

—Prof. E. J. James, while on a visit to Germany, last summer, asked the professors of twelve German universities: "Do you think that too many young men are studying at the universities?" Almost uniformly the answer was: "There is no doubt of it." "Germany," said one of the professors, "is fostering the growth of a class of professionally educated men for whom there is no room in the professions and who are too proud to go into business of any sort. Result—poverty or suicide."

—People are beginning to ask themselves whether the millions they annually give for public education, a sum which is all the time increasing, are so expended that they produce the best results; and the question is becoming a leading one in other cities besides New York. The conclusions reached are everywhere substantially the same. They are that in trying to do too much we are marring the effect of the whole; and that we should produce better results at much less expense if the instruction given by the State was rudimentary only, but thorough so far as it goes.—N. Y. Sun.

—When the late Professor Sophocles was a proctor in Holworthy Hall, Harvard, [illegible] calling up to bed, fell against his door, and upon being interviewed was anything but respectful in his language. Next morning, awakening with remorseful stomach and an aching head, the offender felt it to be the part of discretion to go to the proctor and apologize. He had not proceeded far in his halting explanation, however, before the other interrupted him with the words: "Not yourself, sir? You were drunk, sir! drunk! But you were so drunk as to be curious, and therefore I shall not report you."—Boston Post.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—Some of the mummies in the British Museum have false teeth on gold plates.

—Mrs. Strong was the first cotton-raiser in California, and last year she produced 150 bales.—San Francisco Call.

—The late Dr. Wood is said to have once condensed a half column poem into two lines:

"Do you love me?" "No."
"Then I go."

—N. Y. Graphic.

—A woman in Georgia wants a divorce because her husband refused to let her know the combination of his safe. For the sake of keeping peace in the family a man should let his wife know the combination of his safe—and keep all his money in bank.—Exchange.

—A young man who had been going with a Vermont girl for some time, and had made her several presents, asked her one day if she would accept a puppy. He was awful mad when she replied that her mother had told her it he proposed to her to say no.—Boston Post.

—I has allus heard it said dat if yer'll arnly stick ter yer business yer's boun' ter win, but dis ain't true in chery case. When yer tries ter keep a oie goose from settin' yer may take de aigs er way an' stroy de nes, but de goose keeps on er settin' jes ax close ter der nes ashe kan get. Dis shows mighty fine 'termination but mighty po' sense.—Uncle Remus.

—An individual applies to the cab company for a situation. "Do you know how to drive?" "Yes, sir." "You know that you must be polite with all your passengers?" "Ah!" "And honest? For example, what would you do if you should find in your cab a pocket book containing $10,000?" "Nothing at all. I should live on my income."—N. Y. Independent.

—Cruel—Effie (to Mrs. Belweather, who has just been speaking of Mr. B.): "Why, Mrs. Belweather, I thought you hadn't any husband." Mrs. B.: "Why, of course I have, Effie. Do you mean to say that you don't know Mr. Belweather?" Effie: "Yes, but I didn't suppose he was your husband. I thought you hadn't any. Papa said you married for money, and that was all you got."—Boston Herald.

—"Grandpa," said an intelligent little fellow, "who made those great ditches in your forehead?" "God, my dear." "What did he make them for?" "I don't know, Willie. Don't ask silly questions." Willie was thoughtful for a few moments, and then said: "I know now! Father can tell how old his cows are by the wrinkles on their horns. Is that what God put wrinkles on your brow for, grandpa?"—Chicago Times.

No Excuse.

An absent-minded Austin Justice of the Peace, whose customers are principally inebriates who are brought before his court, was called on to marry a couple. He did not make any mistake until he asked the bride if she took the groom to be her wedded husband.

"I do."

"And what are the mitigating circumstances, if any," inquired the absent-minded justice.—Texas Siftings.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the very best of health. He has proved to the world that consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. COMPOUND OXYGEN NOT A DRUG

A NEW TREATMENT.

For Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Headache, Debility, Nervous Disorders.

A CARD.

We the undersigned, having received great and permanent benefit from the use of "COMPOUND OXYGEN," prepared and administered by Drs. STARKEY & PALEN, of Philadelphia, and being satisfied that it is a new discovery in medical science, and all that is claimed for it, consider it a duty which we owe to the many thousands who are suffering from chronic and so-called "incurable" diseases to do all that we can to make its virtues known, and to inspire the public with confidence.

We have personal knowledge of Drs. Starkey & Palen. They are educated, intelligent and conscientious physicians, who will not, we are sure, make any statement which they do not know or believe to be true, nor publish any testimonials or reports of cases which are not genuine.

A Legend of Niagara.

A great want has just been filled. Legends about the Niagara Falls have been so scarce that it will be a great relief to many to know that a new one has been discovered. Not exactly new, either, for it is written on old parchment, and must have been lying where it was found for many years, but, as it has just recently been discovered, it is to the present generation new. While shoveling snow from the steps of the Cataract House just after the recent heavy fall the above-referred-to parchment was found. The following is a free translation of its contents. John Bustle Attaway, who dearly loved a handsome young lady in Buffalo, determined to take his darling to the Falls for a trip. Now, John, like many other Buffalo young men, didn't know much about the outside world and had never been warned to avoid the Niagara Falls hackmen. It was with a light heart that he stepped from the train on that bright May morning, and with Angelina Thompson hanging gracefully on his arm, started gaily for the great cataract, little dreaming of the terrible fate that awaited him and that was destined to bring to so glorious a close a day which seemed to have dawned the brightest of all the days of the year. The couple had gone but a few steps when they were accosted by a hackman, who said:

"Have a hack, sir?"

"No."

"Better take a hack. This is one of the finest, and I'll drive you to all the points of interest."

"No; we will walk."

"Why? Do you mean to say that you're going to make that young lady foot it over those rough streets? If I had as handsome a lady as you have I wouldn't be so penurious as to make her tramp around here and have sore feet for a week."

Now John, as was formerly hinted, had some knowledge of the manly art and the remark about penuriousness grated on his finer feelings. Angelina said

"Oh, never mind him, John."

But John's blood was up. So he put up his hands and gave the impudent hackman one in the neck. In an instant they were surrounded. All the hackmen. Angelina screamed, and that made John nervous, and he could not attend to his counters and guards. The only faint made was by Angelina, and the blows from whips, fists and other missiles that rained on John from all sides made him retreat in dismay. And this, the day that opened so brightly, closed darkly, particularly in the region of John Jackson's eyes. But as he washed the blood from his face and tied Angelina's handkerchief around his throbbing temples, he was heard to mutter: "I will be revenged!"

Several weeks had passed. The cataract was still doing business at the old stand, and waving on high its glorious plume of white spray. The hackmen were also at the old stand. The battle with the young Buffalo man had ceased to be a topic among them, and in the wild rush for worldly gain they had almost forgotten the face of Jackson. A wild shriek pierces the morning air, and the train from Buffalo, with clanging bell and hissing steam, brings up at the depot. John Jackson walks from the train. At his side is a person in female attire, but the person has not the handsome form and smiling face of Angelina. The hackmen, in the aforesaid rush for worldly gain, do not recognize the man.

"Have a hack, sir?"

"No."

"Better take a hack. It's fifteen miles to the Falls."

"No; we will walk."

"Oh, you're a pretty fellow to make that young girl trudge around—"

That was as far as he got. Jack's arm shot straightened. His fist had come in contact with the nose of the speaker. The noble form of the hackman was groveling in the dust. It was at this period that the conduct of the person in female attire became noticeable. There was no scream, and nobody swooned, while the attitude assumed was not a usual one for a lady. The hat dropped forward until it nearly touched the nose, while the fists very large ones for a lady were tightly clenched and the elbows were drawn back, in a Pat Rooney style, which plainly showed that their owner would put up with no nonsense. The other hackmen rushed to the rescue of their fallen companion, but the first to arrive received such a stinging blow from John's companion that he retired in dismay. The second was similarly dealt with, and he also took a back seat. In the meantime John was not idle. He kicked, thumped and otherwise maltreated his antagonist until he felt that the dishonor heaped upon him during his previous visit had been wiped out. Then his companion took his arm, and, looking up into his face with a sweet, seaside-musing smile, said: "Did you see me get away with that red-nosed coon what tried to interfere?" The loving couple went immediately to a hotel, and shortly after they had disappeared through the doorway two young men came out. One of them was John, while the other was a stranger, and carried a small bundle. The woman has never since been seen alive. Detroit Free Press.

—Mr. Anthony Rouse, of Chicago, advertised for a wife, setting forth as inducements, a manly form and good bank account. Mrs. Hanson, a blooming widow, claimed the prize and got it. Soon after marriage, Mrs. Rouse said, Mr. Hanson felt a little hurt at her marriage to Mr. Rouse without being divorced from him; so Mr. Rouse paid one hundred dollars to get the divorce; fifty dollars more went to keep Mr. Hanson quiet; a lawyer wanted one hundred and fifty to see the thing through; in two weeks he was shorn of five hundred dollars when, recently, the woman herself lit out. Mr. Rouse calls upon the elements for justice, the law being unable to help him.—Chicago Herald.

Huge Circular Saws.

The largest circular saw that has been sent out of this city recently was exactly six feet in diameter. It was ordered by a match company and went to Michigan. Fifty-two teeth projected from its rim. It is now revolving at the rate of 672 revolutions a minute, and is capable of making a ten-inch to twelve-inch cut with each revolution. It can saw off a forty-foot plank, therefore, in an infinitesimal portion of a minute, though as a matter of fact the frame on which the logs are fed to a saw is adjusted to move at about the speed at which a man can walk. [illegible] there is nothing but a whirr and a shriek to announce the journey of a log's length. This is not a solid sawyer it would have more than one hundred teeth.

It is one of the new patterns in which the teeth are separated from the plate and can be inserted and removed at pleasure. The teeth in the sort of saw of which this monster is a specimen are little curved bits of steel pointed like chisels at the cutting end. They fit into round sockets cut out of the edges of the saw plates, and their little chisel blades project slightly beyond the circle of the plate. There are various inventions in movable teeth for circular saws, and in nearly all of them the circle plays an important part. It looks purely ornamental, but in reality it prevents the steel from splitting with the grain.

Solid saws continue to be made in great numbers, but the inventors of the movable teeth, different patterns of which are made by all saw manufacturers, are deriving fortunes, because new teeth can be replaced for a few cents and in a few minutes, and the body of the saw remains the size it was made, whereas solid saws have to be newly filed and set and sharpened every time they dull, a process that consumes time and requires the services of a sawyer whose skill commands good wages. Every cutting reduces the size of the saw. A seventy-two inch saw is a big one even in Michigan, where the sixty-six inch saw is in common use. There these five and a half foot saws are run at a speed of from 500 to 700 revolutions in Norway pine logs, and they cut as deep with each revolution as the monster above described. The little chisel bit teeth will cut a cut plate during a whole morning day, and an entire set of dull ones can be replaced next day in five minutes for three cents a tooth. Some of the sawdust from one of these great saws was sent from Michigan to the establishment of a great sawmaker in this city. It was esteemed as a curiosity. It was not dust at all, but a mass of little pellets of wood, three-eighths of an inch in thickness. The lumbermen prefer to waste lumber in this way provided they get speed out of their tools. These huge saws are used singly in sawing a rough log into planks. Afterward the planks are reduced to desired widths by edger saws, which are smaller implements revolving together at the proper distances, one from the other.

A saw maker must know whether or not his customer wants to run his purchase at a high rate of speed before the saw is made. Saw makers, in developing a disk of steel into a saw, hammer it so as to leave either a hard or a soft center. A saw that has a soft center will wabble in the middle if a person takes hold of it by the edge and shakes it. If it has a hard center one part will not shake more than another. A saw with a hard center, if driven at a high rate of speed, will not cut straight. Its edge will wabble. But if it has a soft center, and is sent around at a rate of 700 or 800 revolutions a minute, the centrifugal force straining at the center stiffens the saw and keeps the edge steady. To the average mind it would seem that there has been the same straining after ornamental effect in the vertical saws, so odd are the shapes of the teeth. But here, again, the study has been solely to produce strength and cutting power. Some of the vertical saws have dull teeth alternating with the sharp ones. The dull ones do not reach out quite so far as the cutters. Their purpose is to clear the sawdust from before the cutters.—N. Y. Sun.

Unconsciousness of Dying Persons.

"A dying man may be burned with a red hot iron and not feel pain," Dr. Crawford said to a reporter. "Consciousness may remain to the dying almost to the dissolution, but generally they lose the power of thought long before actual death. In cases of death in which there seems to be suffering the writhing and spasms are due to reflex muscular action. Fear weakens the nervous system, and, consequently, hastens death; and the reverse of fear may prolong life." The doctor cited a medical report concerning a Methodist minister. He lay on the verge of death, cold and pulseless, and friends around his bed sang his favorite hymn. As they ceased, and while the physicians stood timing the death, the minister's hands moved, and he whispered, "Glory!" Restoratives were administered, and an hour later the man had recovered. He lived many years after that. He said he understood every word spoken at his bedside. Under the nervous excitement and enthusiasm wrought by the hymn, he had exerted his muscular strength, and lived.—Stockton (Cal.) Mail.

—A woman who desires a clear complexion must give up having a small waist, unless she has it without lacing. Tight lacing gives one a red nose. And who would not rather have a large waist and a white nose than a small waist and a red nose? Tight lacing also prevents regular circulation, inducing chills, heartburn, and a score of diseases which are far worse, and more disfiguring than a large waist.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—Dr. Koch, who is at the head of the German Commission which visited Egypt for the purpose of studying cholera and its causes, found a special or peculiar species of bacterium in large numbers in the intestines of cholera subjects. He thinks there can be no doubt as to the existence of some relation between these minute organisms and the disease, and he wishes to pursue his studies in India, where the plague rages almost unabated.—Health Monthly.

Do you need a remedy that will cure every kind of humor from a pimple or eruption to the worst scrofula and syphilitic disorders, use Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. Three to five bottles cure skin disease, salt-rheum or tetter. Four to ten bottles cures running ulcers, scrofula and all syphilitic disorders. One to three bottles cures sores, boils, carbuncles, etc. One to two bottles cures pimples on the face, blotches, etc. It is the only perfect blood purifier that can be made from a thorough knowledge of drugs. Ask your druggist for it. Take no substitute.

Having raised them for main crop the past season, I can conscientiously give them the following recommend: On good soil they will yield an average of about 150 pods to the tree, 6 or 7 grains to the pod, and 60 bushels to the acre if planted AS DIRECTED. They closely resemble the Navy Bean, cook in much less time than the Navy, are very white, and of excellent flavor. Having but one stalk in a hill they are much easier cultivated than five to seven stalks of any common variety, and can be left in the hill until all are fully matured, thereby avoiding liability to mould. They should be planted as soon as danger from frost is over, in rows two feet apart, and 15 or 18 inches in the row, more than one stalk in a hill will not do, and if more is planted, thin when two inches high to one plant in a hill, and they will completely cover the ground. About four quarts plants an acre. Try them and for main crop you will grow no other. Net price per quart, 25 cents. Order at this office, or, at the residence of W. E. GRAY,
North end Union St., Tecumseh, M.

Formerly weak, nervous, dyspeptic, and debilitated individuals who found only disappointment in the various bitters and secret quack nostrums, pretended kidney medicines, etc., are agreeably surprised to regain perfect health and strength of mind and body and complete heart's ease and freedom from aches and pains by the use of Dr. Guysott's Yellow Dock and Sarsaparilla. It restores every disordered function to a normal condition.

Nutritious food is essential as a means of restoring a consumptive to health. A medicine that will strengthen lungs and soothe all irritation is also necessary. Such a remedy is Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry. It is the only preparation of Wild Cherry that gives complete satisfaction. It quickly cures coughs and colds.

A GENUINE SURPRISE.

Many persons when suffering from Rheumatism or Neuralgia remain indifferent to what will benefit them, because they have tried a multitude of remedies in vain. Let no man or woman despond till ATHLOPHOROS has been tried. Says Rev. Charles E. Harris, of New Haven: "Was advised to try ATHLOPHOROS for acute Rheumatism, but paid no attention to it, regarding the specific as among the [illegible] and one other things advertised as cures. But after a time I tried it, and found that it acted like a charm. Have been quite free from the disease ever since."

CONGRESS.

In the Senate on the 19th Mr. Miller, from the Committee on Foreign Relations, reported the original joint resolution for the inspection of meats for exportation and prohibiting the importation of all articles of food or drink from countries where contagious or infectious diseases exist, and the report of the committee was adopted. Mr. Edmunds, from the same committee, reported back the joint resolution relating to the rights of citizens of the United States in Turkey, and asked for its present consideration. Mr. Cockrell thought the resolution should be referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations, and after a long debate, in which the Judiciary Committee was appealed to and a more definite report asked, the resolution was referred. A few unimportant amendments to bills were made in the House, and the Senate adjourned. In the House Mr. Cox, from the committee on Foreign Affairs, reported back the following resolution, which was adopted: Resolved, That the House, in entering on the death of Dr. Edward Lasker, was informed it is a tribute of respect to the memory of an eminent statesman who served within the United States and to the spirit of sympathy for the German people. A long discussion followed, in which the House was entertained by a war of words between Messrs. Cox and Randall, the latter charging that Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee had neglected to perform their duty in not reporting a tariff bill, and the former retorting that the Republicans had prevented the Ways and Means Committee from reporting a tariff bill by their factious opposition in the House. The House adjourned without passing any bill.

The Senate on the 20th took up and passed the House bill to increase the salaries of United States District Judges to $3,500, after a debate in which Mr. Morrill opposed the bill as being the entering wedge for the funding of excessive salaries, and Mr. Logan argued that the salaries of Supreme Court Justices should be increased, and that the report of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue showed that the income of the Government from internal revenue had increased, and that the salaries of Supreme Court Justices should be increased in proportion. The Senate also passed the House bill to provide for the preparation and publication of the decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, and after a long debate the Military Academy Appropriation bill was taken up and passed. The Senate also passed the House bill to authorize a commission to the Secretary of War to negotiate for the purchase of lands for a military station on the Pacific Coast. The remainder of the day was occupied with the Deficiency bill, the House amendments to which were disagreed to, and a committee of conference asked. Among them was Mr. Edmunds, who, notwithstanding his advanced age, is one of the most active members of the Senate. The House bill to provide for the payment of claims for stores and supplies furnished the Army during the rebellion was passed. The Senate also passed the House bill to authorize the Secretary of the Navy to transfer to the Navy Department the Government property at Mare Island, Cal., and to sell the present site of the Navy Department in Washington. The Senate also passed the House bill to provide for the payment of the expenses of the Electoral Commission and of the support of the Supreme Court of the United States

How to Have a Happy Home.

Reader if you have a happy home be thankful. It is a boon of which [illegible] prived. Many have never known what it is to have a happy,—indeed many have never known what it is to have any kind of home. Others have had happy homes, and that makes the wretched homes where they now live, all the more intolerable. If you have a happy home prize it. Do nothing to cast a gloom over it. Never carry your business cares into it. Never give vent to the vexations of business life in your home. Do not dwell upon the foibles of the inmates of your home. Be guarded in your words. Above all cherish a deep, warm, devoted love for your family. Spend as much time with them as possible. Do not let business have all your time. Remember that love must have something to feed on.

But if you have an unhappy home you are to be pitied. Yet the evil may not be beyond remedy. It does not necessarily follow that you have made a wrong choice in [illegible] ble may have come in later. Coldness may have sprung up in the home. There is the result of neglect. If married people were as careful of their conduct after as before marriage, there would be no trouble of this kind. The trouble is that after marriage they forget those little tokens of love so common with lovers. Husbands fall into the habit of staying from home, and wives neglect to try to make home attractive. Husbands neglect their wives in company and wives their husbands. It is not strange that such things lead to alienation.

Would you remedy the evil? Then begin as you did when you first began to love. Be kind, be attentive, sit and talk together, and walk together, and ride together as often as possible. Do not think it babyish. It is the most proper thing to do. It will pay you. Get books on home and marriage and place them in your homes. Get all the counsel you can, then follow it faithfully. If you will do these things you may yet have a happy home.—Social Reformer.

Obedience to Parents.

There is nothing so beautiful in the child as obedience. How beautiful it is to hear the little boy, or little girl, say, "No, I cannot, my papa said I must not." Such a child will have the love of every one.

But it is hard for children to obey. They start out from home intending to obey, but they meet with other boys and girls. They come to a game of marbles; they stop and become interested, and they forget that they were to go to the store and back in a hurry. They run over to their neighbors and get into a new game, or on a new sled, and forget that mamma told them to run right back home. How necessary it is for little folks to remember and think if they would be good children.

Not only must they learn to think, but they must learn not to listen to others. The little girl is out on the street. Mamma has told her not to go off any where, but another little girl comes along and says, "I am going down street; come with me." And the little girl disobeys her mamma simply because another little girl asks her to do it. Little boys very often disobey father and mother because some other boy asks them to do so. They meet one of their playmates on the street, and he wants them to go with him down to the pond for just a little while, and they go, forgetting that they were sent down street charged particularly to come straight back. How many boys and girls are led into disobedience in just this way.

It is bad for children to be disobedient. It is bad for parents to allow them to be disobedient. It may be hard to punish them; but if wisely done it is the greatest kindness. No boy can grow up to be a good man without learning obedience. He must learn what it is to submit to law; he must learn to give up his will and serve others. He must learn what penalty means, by suffering the penalty of violated laws. The boy who learns obedience at home will become the upright citizen and the pious christian.—Social Reformer.

Lewis Henion, of Woodstock, has had to pay $18 for the privilege of shooting three quails last January.

Forewarned is forearmed.

You need not sow weeds in order to insure a rank crop of weeds in your garden, or in your field. All you need to do is to neglect to sow good seed and the weeds will come. The surest way to prevent their coming is to prepare the soil and till it before the weeds have a chance to spring up. So with your children. It is not necessary that you corrupt their minds, nor yet that you put them under corrupt [illegible] leave the soil unoccupied and the rank weeds of human depravity will spring up and take possession of the soil. You may guard their young lives and think that you will keep out the weeds, but you cannot, the seed will be sown in spite of you, and unless the soil is preoccupied, it will sprisg up and bear fruit.

What then should be done? Sow the good seed without delay. Do not wait to see if the evil is going to creep in. Sow the seeds of truth and purity and religion so thickly that evil will be choked out. In other words, begin early to instruct your children in morality. Teach them temperance, teach them purity, teach them obedience. Point out to them the evil habits of others and draw lessons from those habits. Let them see the world, but in such a way as to make its vices and its crimes hideous to them. Tell your children about themselves, the requirements of their natures, [illegible] them the dangers before them. It is every mother's duty to talk with her son and her daughter frankly of what they are to be, and what they ought to do. It is the duty of every father to do the same. It is a shame that so many parents refuse to do this. Do not think that they are too young. You cannot begin too early.

On the subject of marriage there is a vast amount of ignorance, because parents do not talk with their children as they would talk with strangers. They do not explain to their boys and girls the objects of life. They do not instruct them as to the principles which should govern them in the selection of a companion. Then they wonder that their boys form attachments which grieve them, or that their daughter takes to those who are unsuited to them. It is not a matter of surprise however. Those children have never been instructed as to what they ought to do, and of course they have groped their way in the dark. No wonder if they have stumbled and fallen. It is useless to make a noise after these things are done. It is only locking the barn after the horse is stolen. Experience shows that it does but little good for parents to protest after attachments are formed. In most cases it only makes the erring one more obstinate.

Believe it, the time to make an impression is before your boys and girls fall in love. Talk to them then and they will hear you. Give them principles and they will apply them. Set before them an ideal and they will measure up toward it at least. Begin at once, put good literature into their hands, influence them in every possible way. It will do good just as certainly as the corn carefully planted, will grow up and bear fruit. Be sure that you do not wait too long and let evil get the start of you. Let your children be armed with wisdom against every power of evil.—Social Reformer.

The Michigan Marriage Laws A Grievous Wrong

In this State a man may marry at the age of 18. A woman may marry at the age of 16. And yet in the eyes of the law they are neither capable of entering into a contract until they are 21. That is they may marry while they are still minors, under the control of parents or guardians. The parents may object, they may feel that the match is ill advised and unsuitable; but they cannot prevent it. The parties may be in capable of providing for themselves, depending upon their parents, yet the parents have no redress, they can only submit to the inevitable and make the best of it. This is the law of Michigan.

We do not hesitate to declare that such a law perpetrates a grievous wrong upon parents and society. What right have our legislators to say that parents shall be responsible before the law for their children until 21, and at the same time take them out from under their control years before that time. If parental responsibility is good for anything, it ought to serve in just such cases as this. Parents ought to possess a veto upon the actions of their children, until the law recognizes them as men and women, responsible for themselves. Children are regarded as minors before the law until 21, for good reasons. They cannot make and enter into contracts, nor convey property because their judgment is immature as a rule. It is found that they suffer in their material interests when permitted to do so. Yet the law comes in and declares that these same minors may contract marriages without consulting anybody. If they are not capable, of making a contract, if they are not capable of bargaining and conveying a piece of land, by what reasoning can we prove them capable of entering into the most important [illegible] of parents and guardians is worth anything at all, it ought to apply to this matter of marriage. It ought to possess a veto upon marriage until the parties are free before the law.

But, as we have said this law wrongs society. We are suffering today—terribly suffering—from the effects of hasty, ill-advised marriages. These result from the marrying of boys and girls, whose judgments are immature. They are not fully developed, their tastes change then they become dissatisfied, unhappy, and in a few years apply for divorce. Hence the large number of divorce cases; hence the desolate homes and blighted lives.

But these laws perpetrate a further wrong. They make it impossible for parties to marry under 18 and 16 respectively, under any circumstances. Parents may assent, they feel that under the circumstances their children ought to marry. But the minister, or the justice who dares to marry [illegible] jured girl and her parents, lays himself liable to a fine of $500.

For the protection of parents in the proper exercise of authority over their children, for the protection of society against the results of ill advised and unfortunate marriages, for the salvation of the unfortunate who have stepped aside from the path of virtue, let our great State of Michigan enact that no marriage can be lawfully celebrated until the parties are out from under parental control, except in cases where it is necessary to prevent greater evils, and then only by the mutual consent of the parents interested. From our observation we feel convinced that the less we have of the marrying of boys and girls, the better it will be for our American society.—Social Reformer.

Children in the Home.

A home without children has much less noise and confusion, undoubtedly. Perhaps it has less care and anxiety. But after all, what is home without children? Ask those who have had them, and lost them, and they will tell you that the light and joy of home seems taken away. With tearful eyes they look on the little chair, and the little cart, and the half-worn shoes, and if they could they would gladly bring back the little ones with their noisy hands and tireless feet, even at the cost of all earthly possessions. Those who have never had children of their own, cannot appreciate such feelings. They think that they are the marks of womanish fears and whims. They flatter themselves that they are much happier without them.

But after all their boasting about their freedom to go and come, and the neatness and order of their home, the fact remains that home is not really home without children, not a child, but children. Truly does the Psalmist say, "Lo children are the heritage of the Lord. Happy is the man that has his quiver full of them." There was something grand about those old patriarchal families of eight, ten and twelve children sitting around the table of our fathers and mothers. And it is not so many of our people beg to look upon such families as a grievous burden. They would be, with the present extravagant notions of living and dress, but they were not in those days of plain simple habits and homes. In some things, certainly, our modern customs are not improvements. This may be set down as one of them.

If our children could be taught to practice industry and economy now, as children were a generation or two ago, it would be a good thing for all concerned. The trouble is now, that in too many instances they are no help to their parents, and think only of having a good time. When they are not at school, they think that they must be out on the streets, or somewhere in the pursuit of nonsense. They will not go to church and sit down and behave through the service, they will not go into company and sit down and behave themselves, and listen to music and reading. It is too prosy for them. They must feed their stomachs on confectionery and their minds on folly, or else they are dissatisfied. What the end of these things is to be, no one can predict. Children, under such circumstances, are likely to prove a heavy curse.—Social Reformer.

POLLY'S ENORMOUS WEALTH.

I'm afraid to ask my Polly
For her heart and hand to-day;
I know my love's all folly—
She's the richest in the land.
I'm a clerk with meager earnings,
She's a jewel of lady pride;
And despite my boldness,
In her presence I am cowed.

[illegible]
Toward the rosiest time of life.
And my wish warts won't be many
If sweet Polly is my wife.
But how dare I importune
Her to share my simple lot,
When, although she's worth a fortune,
I can't share the store she's got?

Her priceless gems are in her face
Diamond eyes and ruby cheeks;
Her hair's her gold, and from trace
Pure silver when she speaks.
Shall I dare turn my steps toward
Brisk matrimony's mart,
And try to buy with my slim hoard
Her million-dollar heart?

MARRIAGE IN CHINA.

Curious Courtship of the Celestials—The Wedding Ceremonies—Young Men Engaged for Years to Girls Whom They Have Never Seen.

The lad is early reminded that his parents want grandchildren as soon and as many as possible. His betrothal generally takes place when he is from seven to twelve years of age, though cases have occurred where preliminary arrangements have been made between parents before their children had seen the light of day. A professional class called go-betweens, who make their living by matchmaking, are employed to carry on the negotiations between the two families, the initiative being taken by the parents of the boy. For the convenience of their clients these go-betweens usually carry in their pocket a list of candidates for matrimony. On being solicited the list is consulted, and a bride is selected according to the age or social position desired, subject, of course, to her parent's consent. The go-between in whose veracity and good judgment implicit confidence is placed, is required to guarantee the respectability of the girl's family, and above all her freedom from lunacy, leprosy, or his word of honor that neither she nor her parents belong to that pariah class called play-actors, boat-people and slaves. The girl's parents also institute similar inquiries if the proposal is entertained. Fortune-tellers are consulted, astrologers cast the horoscope of the pair, deceased ancestors are consulted and appeals are made to the patron deity of maidens. Should any unlucky omen transpire, such as the breaking of a tea cup before her eyes, negotiations would be almost certainly broken off. The fates are perhaps propitious. Cards are then exchanged, containing such particulars as to the exact moment of birth, the name, clan and condition of the intended pair, who in all probability have never yet seen each other and will not for long years to come, and are indeed completely oblivious of these arrangements affecting their destiny.

NO SENTIMENTAL NONSENSE.

The young people are considerably relieved of the sweet embarrassment of first love. All the gush of mutual popping, wooing and tender embraces are shut beyond their sense. They know nothing of sweet walks and poems, of serenades and tête-a-têtes. Their courting and love-letter writing are done for them by their parents. When the betrothal is settled the father of the youth writes a tender epistle to the father of the girl, extolling the maiden's beauties and virtues and expressing his desire to make her his son's wife. This letter is accompanied by boxes containing cakes, pork, bracelets, earrings, hair-pins and other presents, on receipt of which the engagement is consummated and nothing but leprosy, lunacy or unfaithfulness can dissolve the sacred and eternal bond. Next day the lad may die, but the engagement remains unbroken. The unfortunate girl, if she makes any claim to respectability, must remain in virgin widowhood all her days, living at the house of his parents, ministering to their needs as a loving daughter-in-law, confessing ever and anon that her crimes brought her son to a premature grave, and mourning with many lamentations and pseudo-grief over the loss of the unfortunate youth, whom she had never so much as seen, and perhaps never heard of. During the whole period of her engagement she must keep in close retirement in the back apartments. She must be solemnly reserved with the domestics and even with her own brothers and sisters. She may not form any attachments with other girls. She must make no allusion whatever to the other sex, much less make any reference to her unknown beau. She must instantly cover her face with a fan should a gentleman by accident come near her, and when she goes out of doors it must be in a closely covered sedan or boat. Of course girls occasionally rebel against this seclusion, so far as to get some gossipping seamstress to tell her of the outside world or even discourse upon the forbidden topic of matrimony, or to furnish her information upon the personal appearance, home and prospects of her future lord.

CHOOSING THE DAY.

After minor ceremonies and the lapse of a period varying from one to eighteen or twenty years, comes the all-important ceremony of Ting Hi. This means selecting the day of marriage, usually some day in the ninth month of their calendar, and no time, labor or expense is spared to insure a propitious day. Fortune tellers, astrologers, deceased ancestors, idols and other oracles are consulted, to whom are submitted the momentous questions of times and seasons for adjusting the positions of the nuptial couch, cutting the bridal garments and stepping into the bridal sedan. When the information has been obtained, it is forwarded to the girl's parents, written on red paper, accompanied by a letter of congratulation and presents of poultry and wine. One of these presents is a basket containing a goose and gander, emblematical of faithfulness, the same birds being said to pair together every season. The bride's father perhaps signifies his approval, and preparations are at once made for the marriage ceremony, which should take place in the course of another month. Immediately after the day is fixed the bridegroom sends the usual pies or cakes, called ceremony cakes, numbering from a score to a hundred and weighing about a pound each, to be distributed among the relatives and friends of the parties. The sum of money agreed upon at the betrothal as the price of the bride or her flower is also sent at the same time. This sum varies from [illegible] to $5,000 for a bride who is fair and pretty and belongs to a good family, a sum so money will be asked which only a rich man can afford. This money, however, must be all returned by the bride's mother in providing her trousseau, household furniture, etc., the bridegroom being only expected to furnish the apartments of their future home.

WEEPING AND WAILING.

For a few days before the wedding day the young lady, who has already been told of the approaching event, gives vent to her grief in orthodox fashion by loud bellowings night and day. The weeping damsel expresses at intervals [illegible] the sonnet of [illegible] regret of being torn forever from her parents and childhood's home. The writer remembers being kept awake for hours by the wails and shrieks of a distracted virgin who was going to be married next day. It is on this last night that the maiden tries on her bridal dress, lights incense before the shrine of her ancestors and prostrates herself in farewell worship before her assembled parents, uncles and aunts. At last the dreadful day arrives. The maiden rises early, bathes perhaps for the first time for two or three months, arranges her hair in matronly style, puts on her bridal garments of gorgeous red silk or satin, sometimes richly embroidered, and a heavy coronet-like head-dress brilliant with red or imitation pearls and precious stones, velvet tassels and fringes, and gold or gilt trappings, which jingle at every step she takes. Her toilet is completed by the large red veil of silk or satin, which completely covers her face from view. It is considered good form to resist the services of her attendants with loud screams and exclamations, any such thing as [illegible] be construed by her chaperon and bridesmaids into an immodest joy at the near approach of wedlock.

THE BRIDEGROOM WAITETH.

The bridegroom remains at home with his friends. He is arrayed in silks and satins, embroidered according to his rank, a red scarf crosses his breast and a brilliant wedding card is worn on his head. He seats himself in glorious state awaiting the coming of the bride. He has already dispatched an elegant bridal sedan, richly gilded and enameled, decorated with kingfisher's feathers and ornamented with gorgeous carvings, which he has hired for the occasion. It is carried by half a dozen men in red tunics and follows in the rear of the procession. It is preceded by gilded pavilions and canopies, red boards with gilt characters representing the academical degrees and imperial honors conferred upon the bridegroom of his ancestors; grand lanterns, splendidly carved and painted, banners, huge fans and state umbrellas according to the rank of the bridegroom's father. The bearers, equerries and musicians that swell the train are all draped in red robes and the whole procession marches along amidst the beating of drums, the clash of cymbals and the screams of clarionets. The procession arrives at the bride's house and is greeted by the dismal howls of females within. A letter written by her husband is now handed to the bride, informing her that the flowery sedan is waiting at her door and inviting her to set out for her new home. Then come sundry exhortations from her parents, exchange of good wishes, protracted partings, chosing songs and vehement protestations from the bride against being taken from her home. This hollow farce is broken up by a bridesmaid casting the veil over the face of the lugubrious bride, while an old hag takes her upon her back in ignominious fashion carrying her out of the door and setting her down in the sedan-chair. The door of the conveyance is then locked and the key handed to the bridegroom's friend. The bands then strike up and the procession returns amidst farewell salvos of bombs and firecrackers, the wonder being that any bride can survive such an infernal din.

COMPLETION OF THE CEREMONY.

Arriving at the door of her new home, she is saluted with more firecrackers. The bridegroom now comes forth with all that dignified bearing and easy carelessness so natural to a well-bred Chinaman, and taps the door of the chair with his fan. The door is then opened and the bride [illegible] thickly veiled from profane gaze, is again carried on the back of a female attendant into her husband's house. She is now a wife, the simple ride in the flowery chair having the mystic power of transforming her into a married woman. The bridegroom now seats himself on a high chair and receives the homage of his dutiful spouse. He then descends, raises her heavy veil, and for the first time gazes upon the face of the girl to whom he has been engaged for the last ten or fifteen years. There follows no rapturous embrace, no word of tender endearment, no look that speaks of love. He simply inspects her for a few moments as he would some piece of furniture, for she is nothing more to him. Sometimes this ceremony of unveiling takes place in the bridal chamber, where they seat themselves side by side, he contriving to sit upon part of her dress, signifying his control and her submission. We take one glimpse of the nuptial couch, hung with slips of paper with such inscriptions as, "May you have 100 sons and 1,000 grandsons," and adorned with orange trees and strings of cash, the symbols of fruitfulness. Heaven and earth, household gods, family ancestors and the parents of the bridegroom are then worshiped by the wedded pair.

THE WEDDING FEAST.

The wedding feast begins in the afternoon and extends over two or three days. Invitations have been sent out weeks before, the guests responding by forwarding a sum of money varying from 100 cash to twenty ounces of silver. This is sent the day before the wedding and goes to defray the expenses of the feast. The banqueting halls are lighted up with scores of prism fringed chandeliers, tables are spread with all kinds of delicacies, hundreds of invited guests, gaudily dressed, throng the room, gargulous groups surround the bridegroom, offering their congratulations, a band of music strikes up and the bride in her wedding robes and tasselled head dress enters the room, supported by two matrons, who guide her heads with speechless reverence to her husband's guests, offering them refreshments, wine and tea. Men and women never feast together, and the most trying ordeal of her wedding days comes when her husband leaves her in the gentlemen's room. She waits upon them in silence, and they in turn chaff her with coarse jests, criticise her appearance aloud and play practical jokes upon her person, often of so cruel a character that if she escapes from the room unscalded or undecorated she may consider herself lucky. She must submit to all this ribaldry and persecution with a calm, placid, unmurmuring demeanor, and any show of either resentment or mirth would be remembered against her discretion for years to come. When the guests have departed she may retire.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Doing Vanderbilt in Wax.

The Edinburgh Musee, which is a waxworks exhibition building, lately erected in Twenty-third street, by a company of French capitalists, and intended to rival Mme. Tussaud's exhibition in London, is to be under the management of young Mr. Weinschenck. This young man is the nephew of the late manager of the Porte St. Martin Theater in Paris, and has Parisian ideas of great men. He was easily convinced a couple of days ago that Mr. Vanderbilt is a truly great man, and that we are all anguishing to see him done in wax.

Mr. Weinschenck jumped at the proposition. He had got models of all the crowned heads, and all the great thieves and murderers. Now he must have Vanderbilt.

He called at the palace and was admitted yesterday.

He entered the potentate's presence all smiles and shrugs.

"Well," said Vanderbilt, gruffly, "what do you want?"

"Monsieur, your pardon, ee you please," began the waxworks man, "I myself ze honor do to give you some wax."

"Give me some whacks?" repeated Vanderbilt, turning pale and measuring his distance from the button of the electric bell.

"Yes, sare, to do you up in wax. I find you a good subject and just fit for ze wax, and I want to take you from life."

"Do me up? Fit for whacks? This is a crank slugger," said the railroad king, and he touched the button.

"I will place you in a leetle hole, in ze well, all by yourself—right next ze Chamber of Horreur. I will say you out like life wiz my wax."

A tall footman, in red plush knee-breeches, silk stockings, pumps, and a gilt laden cutaway coat, entered at this moment. It was the bouncer of the palace. "Algernon," said the noble lord of the manor, "pounce on this fellow who talks of laying me out with whacks."

"Algernon measured little Weinschenck, who began to grin like a tiger, and hesitated. The city saved him. The waxworks man hit on the happy idea of expressing himself in French. He only wanted to model Vanderbilt for his collection. He was understood and got permission. The monopolist has been "done up" in whacks, and rather likes it.—N. Y. Star.

"He Laughs Best Who Laughs Last."

"You've got some nice wood over there in your yard," said a seedy-looking tramp to an Austin Avenue lady.

"Yes," said the lady of the house.

"I would like to carry it in for you," said he.

"My husband intends to carry it in," she replied.

"Well," said the tramp, "I will carry it in and pile it up neat if you will give me my breakfast."

At this offer the lady consented, and the tramp went to work.

After he had carried in a couple of armfuls the lady stepped to the door and found him sitting on the pile with his claws on his knees and his face buried in his hands.

"What is the matter?" said she.

"Oh, lady," said he, looking up, "I am so weak, for I have had nothing to eat since day before yesterday," and he again covered his face with his hands.

This seemed to rouse the lady's sympathy, and she went in and soon returned with an excellent breakfast.

After he had swept everything from the board, he arose and said: "Thanks, my good lady, for this sumptuous repast. Now let me give you this advice: Never again let your sympathy get away with your discretion. I'm off. Ta, ta!" and he walked majestically out the front gate.

The tramp had gone but a short distance when he came back deadly sick.

He seated himself on a curbstone, and a few moments later, having two or three violent spasmodic contractions of the stomach, he lost his ill-gotten breakfast. Indeed his stomach would have followed suit had it not been thoroughly dovetailed to his diaphragm. He believed that he was poisoned, and he became very much alarmed. As soon as he regained strength enough to get to his feet, he slowly retraced his steps and found the lady standing in the front door.

"Madam," he said, in piteous tones, "my breakfast did not stay on my stomach. I believe I'm poisoned."

"That is not to be wondered at," said she. "I suspected your little game, having been caught once before in the same way, so I prepared myself for it by dosing your coffee with tartar emetic. Now let me give you a little advice: Never again let your rascality get away with your breakfast. To beat a deadbeat beats everything. Ta, ta!" and she shut the door in his face.

The tramp started sorrowfully down the street wondering, no doubt, where and how he would get a breakfast that would stay with him.—Texas Siftings.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs; none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1871 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me.

HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of his playmates died of croup the year before, and we were in great fear. We had faith in the efficacy of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried.

A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

JOSEPH WALDEN."

Bybalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles.

E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

How Watch Cases are Made.

Most persons have an ambition to carry a gold watch case, and yet few people know how a watch case is made, or the vast difference in the quality of them. In a SOLID GOLD WATCH CASE, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus is not only needless, but undesirable, because gold is a soft metal and cannot furnish the stiffness, strength and elasticity necessary to make the case permanently strong and close-fitting. The perfect watch case must combine gold with some metal that will supply that in which the gold is deficient. This has been accomplished by the James Boss' Gold Watch Case TRADE MARK which saves the WASTE of needless gold, and INCREASES the SOLIDITY and STRENGTH of the case, and at the same time reduces the cost ONE-HALF.

Send 2 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

BULL DOGLETS.

A man who had traveled about,
Was heard very plain to speak out;
"I have chewed in all lands,
But the finest of brands
Is the 'Bull Dog' without any doubt".

A man up at Kalamazoo
Said no decent tobacco he knew;
But the "Bull Dog" he tried—
Was so well satisfied
He bought a whole caddy to chew.

A resident at a way-station
Was grumbling about his location,
He said: "I'd not mind
If I only could find
'Bull Dog Plug' in this part of creation."

An old man who used it before,
Saw a "Bull Dog" sign over a door;
He said: "While I'm by,
I'll procure a supply,"
And bought all they had in the store.

An "old timer," not noted for gumption,
Said his son nearly died of consumption,
But his health was renewed
When the "Bull Dog" he chewed,
That he lied was the common presumption.

But the steady increasing demand
Shows the chewers do all understand,
Though "Bull Dog" don't cure
All the ills we endure,
'TIS THE FINEST BY FAR IN THE LAND.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

LOWELL, Mass.

Messrs. C. I. HOOD & Co.: Gentlemen—My little boy contracted diphtheria and was very sick. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

CONGRESS.

THE Senate on the 26th took up the bill providing for the allotment of lands in severalty to the Indians on the various reservations and extending the protection of the laws of the States and Territories over the Indians; several amendments were agreed to and the bill passed. The House joint resolution appropriating $1,000,000 for the relief of the sufferers by the inundation of the Mississippi River for the ensuing year was passed. The Education bill was then taken up and debated at length, but without action the Senate went into executive session and soon adjourned. In the House, Mr. Ellis from the Committee on Appropriations reported a joint resolution providing $125,000 of the unexpended appropriation for the relief of the destitute in the district overflowed by the Mississippi and its tributaries; after debate the joint resolution was passed. Mr. Keifer, of Ohio, introduced a bill for the erection of a pedestal for the statue of the late President Garfield in Washington. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the bonded extension bill. A long debate followed, but without reaching a conclusion the committee rose and the House adjourned.

MEMORIALS were presented in the Senate on the 27th from American inventors, protesting against the passage of any act injurious to patentees; from the Legislature of Utah, protesting against the passage of the measures now pending before Congress affecting the interest of that Territory, without a full investigation by a Congressional Committee. Mr. Miller, from the Committee on Naval Affairs, reported favorably the joint resolution authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to offer a reward of $25,000 for recovering or ascertaining the fate of the Greeley expedition. Bills providing for the payment of a number of private claims were passed. The Senate took up the Educational bill, but without action went into executive session and soon after adjourned. The morning hour was dispensed with in the House, and that body went into Committee of the Whole on the bonded extension bill. After a lengthy debate, Mr. Blount moved to strike out the enacting clause of the bill: agreed to—ayes 131, noes 57. The committee then rose and reported its action to the House, where it was continued—yeas 135, nays 85. The bill providing for the retirement of the trade dollar was then taken up, pending discussion of which the House adjourned.

THE Senate on the 28th passed a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to issue a proclamation offering a reward of $25,000 to be paid private parties who shall discover, rescue, or satisfactorily ascertain the fate of the Greeley expedition. Mr. Palmer, from the Committee on Woman's Suffrage, reported favorably a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the Constitution of the United States prohibiting the denial to citizens of the United States of the right of suffrage to women. Mr. Plumb's resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for information relating to the unpaid portion of the war tax of 1861 was agreed to. A bill introduced by Mr. Dolph was passed, amending the Revised Statutes so as to authorize vessels to unload coal, salt, railroad iron, etc., at places other than the port of entry, provided that the peace of unloading be within the collection district and be designated by the Secretary of the Treasury. Consideration of the Education bill was then resumed, but without reaching a conclusion the Senate went into executive session and adjourned until the 31st. In the House Mr. Anderson introduced a concurrent resolution for the final adjournment of Congress at twelve o'clock on June 2, 1884; referred to the Ways and Means Committee. After the transaction of unimportant miscellaneous business, the House went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar. The bill to relieve certain soldiers of the late war from the charge of desertion was discussed at length, and without action the committee rose and the House passed several private bills and adjourned until the 31st.

DOMESTIC.

WHILE workmen were moving a fourton safe in the Arcanal Bank at Pittsburgh on the 26th, the foundation pavement gave way and the safe was precipitated to the cellar beneath, crushing to death George Scrader. The others escaped.

A BILL has been introduced in the Iowa House to appropriate $50,000 to locate and aid in building in Iowa a soldiers' home, a bill for which is now pending in Congress to be erected in a western State.

IT is estimated that John McMahon, the absconding collector of taxes, at Hoboken, N. J., misappropriated $60,000 during the past three years.

A BILL providing that wife-beaters should be publicly whipped was recently defeated in the Massachusetts House of Representatives.

ON the 26th the jury in the case of Hallett Kilbourne against ex-Sergeant-at-Arms Thompson, for alleged illegal arrest and detention, brought in a verdict of $37,000 for plaintiff.

PROFESSOR ELIAS LOENNROT, a distinguished Finland philologist, is dead.

THE war sloop Alert, given to America by England for the Greeley search expedition, has sailed for the United States.

THE immediate cause of the Duke of Albany's death was hemorrhage of the bowels, induced by his recent illness and promoted by undue exercise in dancing. He was standing on a chair at the ball watching a representation of the Battle of Roses, when he was seized with weakness, fell to the floor, cutting his head severely. On reaching his rooms he was taken in a fit and died in a few minutes. The Queen is greatly prostrated by the news, and his young wife is inconsolable.

A LONDON dispatch of the 30th ult. says it was reported that on the 16th General Gordon made a sortie from Khartoum with three thousand men, two guns and a squadron of Bashi Bazouk cavalry, accompanied by three steamers on the river. The rebels were encountered near Haliyeh. Sixty of the enemy's cavalry charged the Bashi Bazouks and put them to flight, causing a panic among the infantry, who also fled in great disorder. General Gordon returned to Khartoum. Notwithstanding this check he declares Khartoum quite safe.

Look out for Your Head!

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid. Applied with the finger to the nostrils.

The chances for making a fortune by deceiving the people are so great that many manufacturers of Baking Powder use the columns of the leading newspaper to show comparative tests. We notice one brand, Deland's Chemical Baking Powder, that has never been mentioned or compared with others. Upon investigation, we find a statement on the label which is the best reason in the world why other manufacturers avoid mentioning it. The brand is Deland's Chemical and the statement reads "Pure Cream Tartar and Bi Carb. Soda Only. No filling whatever."

HUNTING AN ISSUE.

Congress has now been in session about four months, and we may ask what has been accomplished? They have not yet reached the appropriation bills, they have not yet grappled with the much agitated tariff reform, they have not yet taken any steps toward the solution of the Mormon question. It is manifest that a presidential election is approaching and the politicians are afraid to act. It has come to pass that our great political parties have no longer any principles which they think worth maintaining. The democrats are talking about tariff reform, but it is evident from the manner in which they are dealing with it, that they care nothing about tariff reform apart from finding a political issue. The most ardent ones advocate it not from principle, but because they think it will win. They would give it up to-day were they persuaded that it would defeat them. The republicans talk protection, but they too, are hunting an issue. They would not advocate it were it not that they think it will be the winning issue.

Now we do not wish to be understood as belittling the tariff issue. We do not consider it a mere local issue by any means. It is a great problem, and one which is to be solved in the near future by the commercial world. There is reason for difference of opinion upon it. There is difference of opinion, and we must confess after all the discussion pro and con, that it is difficult to say which is the true principle, free trade or protection. There can be no doubt that if national independence and home industry, and wealth are the objects to be sought then we should advocate protection. But if division of labor among the nations as among the individuals of a community is the true policy, if it is best to let each nation do that work which it is prepared to do most skillfully and cheaply, and then exchange with some other nation, which can do some other work of its best, and thus unite the nations together in a perpetual league of friendship by golden chains of commerce, and based as far as possible the feeling of national isolation upon free trade is the true policy. Much may be said on either side. Certainly there is room for discussion. If the parties would take it seriously and deal with it we should have no cause of complaint. It is the degrading endeavor to hoodwink each side at once, which provokes just condemnation.

To be a statesman is to learn to stand as the advocate of great principles. And the statesman was willing to support his principles even if it brought defeat. But alas! what a change there has been since that day! Now the statesman is a politician who has no principles which he cares to maintain. Platforms are still set forth, in beautiful language, but they mean very little. It seems to be understood that they are simply electioneering schemes, to hoodwink plain people and catch votes. So it is that in this day when there are so many living issues before the people, so many grand problems to be solved, our statesmen only consult the interests of party and leave Mormonism and intemperance to flourish, and our finances to drift along in uncertainty and doubt. Pity it is that we have not statesmen great enough to rise above the selfish love of office, and battle for the right, because it is right, willing to stand by it even when the gloom of defeat enshrouds its banner. Until this is done, our statesmen can not hope to fire the American heart and lead our people to great and glorious victories.—Social Reformer.

The Number of Killed and Wounded Now Estimated at Two Hundred—Two Thousand Extra Police to Relieve the Military.

LATEST ADVICES.

CINCINNATI, April 1.—There is no appearance of a relaxation of the preparations for defense. Barricades, barrels and every other sort of material still remain at all the avenues of approach to the county buildings, and behind them stand the militia with guns and fixed bayonets everywhere bristling. The police have been sent away to their regular posts, and are obtaining some rest. Though the general feeling is that there will be no further outbreak, there is not lacking men who predict otherwise.

At the meeting of the citizens' committees appointed by the Mayor a resolution was adopted thanking the Governor and the Ohio National Guard for the efficient aid rendered the civil authorities and pledging support to the Mayor in the course he has adopted and about being to furnish additional means if in the opinion of the Mayor additional force is necessary. Resolutions were also adopted appointing a committee to provide rooms for the use of the courts and recommending that the Court of Common Pleas proceed at once to the trial of criminal cases. The Mayor was requested to select an executive committee of fifteen from the members of his meeting for advice and counsel, to whom all matters should be referred.

It has been ascertained with great satisfaction that nearly the entire record of records in the recorder's office including the records, deeds, mortgages, etc., are saved. A person who had had with the office says there are not more than fifty volumes of the records comprising transactions about three years of the thirty years ago. This will be of a great value considering what else is lost. It is supposed the money in the Treasury vaults and the records in the Probate Judge's vaults are safe, but the safes cannot yet be opened.

The physician attending Briggs Swift says his condition is much improved, though his advanced age, seventy-three years, makes the chances of recovery less. Mr. Swift, with Henry Hanna, were walking up Main Street toward the Court House when at the [illegible] a soldier ordered them to halt. They obeyed. Immediately afterward a gun was discharged in front of them and both fell. Mr. Swift's [illegible] through the thigh of the left leg. He fell in view Mr. Hanna with him was hurried from the excitement.

THE MORTALITY LIST.

The committee of fifteen appointed by Mayor Stephens held a meeting in Pike's Building at noon and decided to increase the force to 2,000 men, enrollment to commence at once, for the purpose of relieving the militia force, to be paid by popular subscription, the contributors to be reimbursed hereafter. A resolution was adopted calling on citizens to organize in each ward for protection and order. The total number known killed is forty-eight. It is thought a number taken home and not reported have died from their wounds. The total number known to be wounded is 128. Many were wounded who could walk to their homes and are not reported. It is thought that between 300 and 500 were more or less wounded.

PUBLIC BUILDINGS WELL GUARDED.

At the jail and city buildings everything is in the most complete state of defense. Across all the streets and all railways approaching the former, the seat of war, the barricades have been strengthened and augmented. The commanding officers are sanguine in their expressions as to no fear of further outbreak, and indeed appearances in the city would lead one to think them perfectly right. The mob seems entirely quelled, and to stand in such wholesome fear of the reckless shooting of the soldiers and the terrible effects of the Gatling gun as to have had a sufficiency of rushing into the jaws of death. The Thirteenth and Fourteenth Regiments, under command respectively of Colonels Picard and Freeman, from Hillsboro and Columbus, seem to be considered the most reliable, and are still on duty guarding the barricades, the point of all the attacks. The entire military force endures the unaccustomed hardships and exposures in a manner befitting even old veterans.

JOINT SESSION OF THE COURTS.

The judges of the Supreme and Common Pleas Courts met this afternoon in general joint session at the Eighth district schoolhouse to consult upon what was best to be done under the circumstances, and as to the most practical arrangements that could be made to proceed with very pressing court business. The county commissioners sent a communication that of the several buildings examined the public library buildings was evidently the best for court room purposes. It was therefore determined to await further action of the commissioners, and the joint session adjourned without anything definite having been determined upon. The commissioners will also immediately engage rooms in some convenient building to be used as offices for the other county officials until the Court House can be rebuilt. They also arranged for an immediate supply of the necessary blank books and stationery, and for clearing away the debris and for plans for repairing the present building. The outside walls and some of the inner ones are still sound. It is now thought that the contents of all the safes are saved. The fireproof material answered all requirements and stood the terrible test very well. The vault of the Probate Court, in which all wills are kept, is in excellent condition.

CONDITION OF THE WOUNDED.

The wounded, with few exceptions, are doing well. At the hospital since the last report: Henry Neimeyer, aged forty, tailor, shot through the right shoulder and lung, and Philip Rabbe, aged forty-seven, moulder, residing in Avondale, shot through the chest, have died. Rabbe's case was a peculiarly affecting one. Wounded as he was, through the lungs, he could hardly breathe. At each attempted inspiration the air would enter the orifice in his back, causing increased agony, to be renewed at each succeeding respiration and inspiration. Thomas F. Green, a colored coachman, and son of Rev. E. W. Green, of Maysville, Ky., also died this morning. Green was shot near Powell's store, on Main street during the attack of the mob upon that place while passing on his way to take a car home. He is spoken of by his former employers as a most exemplary young colored man, and was an Odd Fellow in good standing.

About five o'clock this evening a fatal accident happened in front of the jail. A number of soldiers of the Governor's Guard, Columbus, were lying against the stone wall on the sidewalk asleep, when one of the guns leaning against the wall was knocked down and discharged. The bayonet in falling slightly wounded Private H. L. Stockwell. The ball struck the wall and knocked off a piece of stone, which wounded Okey Armistead, the drum corps sergeant, and the ball then glancing struck Israel S. Gatz in the eye and lodged in his brain. He was removed to the hospital, where, at nine o'clock p. m., he was in a dying condition. Gatz was a clerk in a railroad office at Columbus.

WANDERING THROUGH THE RUINS

of the Court House but the toppling inner walls, hanging iron joist or stair railings as well as the uncertain floors made that too venturesome for most visitors. Photographers and artists were taking views and sketches of the scene. The people the barricades something in the suggestive fearfulness of those protruding guns and an uncomfortable uncertainty as to whether they might not be discharged upon insufficient provocation took away all the interest to mere sight-seers. People did not like to see a squad collected anywhere in sight of the soldiers, and the policeman's request, "Move on," was always promptly obeyed. The subsistence of the troops at the jail has been comparatively easy, though the first meal taken by the fourteenth Regiment was very unsatisfactory. It was served Sunday morning by placing on the sidewalk barrels of bread, kettles of pickled beef and mackerel filled with coffee. Dry only table was the sidewalk and the only tableware was a tin cup for each man. Since then the men have been fed at a restaurant within the lines. It was observed, with unfavorable comment, that one of the several saloons within the lines was open and doing an excellent business.

The chief topic of conversation among the lawyers who wished about the ruined Court House was the effect upon all legal business of this

DESTRUCTION OF THE RECORDS.

As to real estate titles not much more than inconvenience is expected, as many of the deed records were saved and beside the abstract company has copies of the abstracts of all titles which, with the deeds in the possession of individuals, keep the chain of titles clear. The greatest inconvenience and loss will result from the loss of original vouchers in cases of estate, assignments and trusts in the Probate Court. How to collect taxes is a problem not yet solved. The commissioners have asked to be present when the treasurer opens his safe. This is because there are no means of determining how much money he has there belonging to the county. The destruction of the records of civil suits, while causing inconvenience, will clear up many tangled and tedious cases, and will probably not be [illegible] disaster.

Since the last report

FOUR ADDITIONAL DEATHS

have occurred at the hospital: Fred Bickenhurst, Leroy Simmons, Charles Miller and Andrew Nichols. The exact number of dead and wounded will probably never be ascertained on account of many wounded being carried away by friends, but the number of killed outright or dying at the hospital up to midnight to-night is forty-one, as shown by the city undertakers and the hospital records, and such information from those taken home as could be had, and the number of wounded, compiled from the same source, is 120. They are probably half as many more wounded and not reported.

TROOPS RETURNING.

COLUMBUS, March 31.—Advices from Cincinnati are such that at noon Governor Hoadly has ordered the troops en route to return. The Fourth and Fourteenth Regiments have been relieved and the rest of the troops held in Cincinnati till further orders. The city will be guarded till Wednesday at least.

A New School for Indian Boys.

YANKTON, Dak., March 31.—For several months Bishop Marty, of the Catholic Church of Dakota, has been trying to secure the establishment at Yankton of a Government school for training Indian boys. A fine three-story brick building, which was built for the Academy of the Sacred Heart, but which the Sisters of Mercy were not able to pay for, has passed into control of Bishop Marty. The possession of this building, the nearness of Yankton to the Indian Territory, Bishop Marty's long experience among Indians, and his interest in their welfare, have brought about the success of the movement. Last night forty Sioux Indian boys reached Yankton to become members of the school, which will be similar to the Indian schools at Hampton and Carlisle, and is the only one of the kind west of the Alleghenies. Yankton's public schools are considered the best in the Territory. The Academy of the Sacred Heart is a good school for Catholics. Yankton College, established by the Congregational churches of Dakota, is now in its second year, with seven teachers and 100 students. The addition to the new school will serve to make Yankton the educational center of Dakota.

The Cattle Disease.

ELK CITY, KAS., April 1.—The excitement about the foot and mouth disease is gradually subsiding. Some of our leading stock men who have been on the grounds pronounce it not the old foot-and-mouth disease that injured the live-stock interests of the Old World so badly. Our stock are getting along finely, and we are in hopes that two weeks more will put them on the grass. If our cattle were to take a disease like that in Woodson County, we would put on white paint on the parts affected and drench with Glauber salts. I would not wait, either, for their hoofs to come off or the flesh to slough to the knees. It occurs to me that those cattle must have been badly handed. The stock interests of the State have suffered a good deal from this excitement, very few cattle changing hands, and all waiting for developments, but the trouble is about over and things will soon get back to their old place.

The Manhattan Railroad.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Jay Gould has arranged with the Mercantile Trust Company to purchase from the first preferred stockholders the Manhattan Railway, in whose favor a dividend was declared payable April 1. Their claims to a dividend from the New York Elevated Railway for a like amount in the case of the Merger agreement of the three elevated railway companies should be adjudged invalid.

Oyster Packer Failed.

BALTIMORE, April 1.—Ferdinand H. Sieward, an oyster packer, has assigned. The liabilities are unknown.

Paper Mill Burned.

NIAGARA FALLS, March 31.—Hill & Murray's paper mill burned yesterday. Loss $40,000. Insured.

Stories on the Road.

Commercial Travelers at a Wayside Inn—Something to Put in a Gripsack.

"Gentlemen, I almost envy you the positions you fill; your experience of the world; your knowledge of business; the changing sights you see, and all that you know."

This warmly expressed regret fell from the lips of an elderly pleasure tourist, last August, and was addressed to a semicircle of commercial travelers seated on the porch of the Lindell Hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

"Yes, responded a New York representative of the profession, "a drummer lays without his pleasures, but he runs his risks too—risks outside the causes of railroad collisions and steamboat explosions."

"What risks for instance?"

"This, for instance," said Mr. W. D. Franklin, who was then traveling for an eastern house and is known to merchants in all parts of the country. "The risk which indeed amounts almost to a certainty of getting dyspepsia from perpetual change of diet and water and from having no [illegible] was any danger. I say was, for I am all right now."

"No deception on your digestion" broke in a unknown fat sleep-traveler lighting his cigar afresh.

"Not a quarter per cent. But I had to give up traveling for a while. The dyspepsia ruined my paper. Finally I came across an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC. I tried it and it fixed me up to perfection. There is nothing on earth in my opinion equal to it as a cure for dyspepsia."

Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of New York, the proprietors, hold a letter from Mr. Franklin stating that precise fact. PARKER'S TONIC aids digestion, cures malarial fevers, heartburn, headache, coughs and colds and all chronic diseases of the liver and stomach. Put a bottle in your valise. Prices 50 and $1. Economy in larger size.

ESTATE OF STEVENS MINORS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian on Tuesday, the 4th day of March in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Bertha D. Stevens and Harry L. Stevens, minors.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Edwin B. Wood, guardian of said minors, praying for license to sell the real estate of said minors in said petition described, for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 14 th day of April next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next-of-kin of said minors and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF JOSEPH TAYLOR.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 28th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Joseph Taylor, late of Ravensmoor, Chester County, England, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Homer L. Stewart, alleging among other things that the property of said deceased, is in part at least, a mortgage upon real estate owned by petitioner in Lenawee county, which he has assumed to pay, and which is past due, and praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Edwin B. Wood, or some other suitable person. And it appearing to the court that some of the heirs-at-law of said deceased are residents of England in Great Britain, a foreign country, having no consul residing in this state, whereby it becomes the duty of this court to notify the consul of such foreign nation in the City of New York, at least sixty days before the day assigned for the hearing of said petition, and of the pendency thereof and the day appointed for hearing the same.

Thereupon it is ordered, that Monday the 5th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks immediately previous to said day of hearing.

The temperance people of Tecumseh mean business. The ministers have all preached on the subject with in the past month. On the evening of the 23d of March a union temperance meeting was held in the Methodist Episcopal Church. Petitions are now being circulated among both men and women praying the Council to refuse to accept bonds from the saloon men. Unless there is a weakening on the part of those who are intrusted with this important work, it does seem that the great end will be reached and our saloons shut up. May God hasten the day!

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

The clerk of the weather is getting ready for election day.

The indications all point to a warm contest at the coming spring elections.

Archie Sherrard is in town a few days, circulating around among his old friends.

The April term of the Circuit Court began last Tuesday. The jury has been summoned to attend on the 8th inst.

James DePuy, Esq., of Moscow, Cayuga Co., N. Y., spent last week with his nephew, Frank DePuy, in Macon.

Will Kies returned from his western trip last Saturday looking as hale and hearty as a veritable farmer. His health is fully restored.

It is quite likely that the Democrats will run J. W. Bradner for supervisor of Clinton again this spring and if they do they will elect him.

Frank Bumann has not sold out his business here in Tecumseh but will next week have his teams on the road buying farmers' produce.

Gov. Begole has appointed Thursday, the 24th day of April, as "Arbor Day. Make a note of it and let every man in the community plant a tree on that day.

Blissfield had a blaze last Tuesday. Rhoades Bros.' meat market being destroyed by fire. The building was partially insured but the loss will be considerable.

Next Saturday is registration day. Persons who have moved into town since the last election must register on Saturday or lose their vote at the town election.

Cassius Fisk, of Clinton, is the proprietor of a lemon tree. He recently picked from it a ripe lemon three and one-half inches in diameter, which [illegible] ing.

The ladies of the Methodist church netted $43.15 at their old fashioned New England supper on Wednesday evening of last week. They wish to thank the public for their liberal patronage.

C. A. Thatcher, of Tiffin, Ohio, will make another delivery of fine crayon portraits the first of May. We take pleasure in recommending his work as it has given universal satisfaction to our citizens.

Dr. Stolze will deliver a lecture Sunday afternoon at the Opera House, at 2 o'clock, on "The Moral and Social Effect of What we Eat and Drink."—This is considered one of the Doctor's greatest lectures.

A petition has been forwarded to Washington asking for a daily mail from Onsted on the M. & O. road via Springville and Cambridge to Brooklyn. The people interested are sanguine of success.

The Britton Literary Society will give an exhibition at Macon Grange hall, on Wednesday evening, April 9. A good entertainment and we hope they will draw a crowded house. Admission 10 and 15 cents.

Dr. Stolz has just closed a very successful course of Health Lectures at Adrian, running two weeks and has arranged to give six lectures at the Opera House in Tecumseh commencing this Thursday evening, April 3. Opening lecture free. Go early to secure good seats.

It is hoped that only the best men of either party will be nominated for the various offices to be filled at the coming election, so that no matter which ticket wins, good and efficient officers will be chosen to manage the affairs of the township for the ensuing year. This is a matter in which every tax payer should be deeply interested.

Among the first duties devolving upon the new village Council will be the appointment of a marshall. The present incumbent, J. W. Cole, has filled the position admirably, reflecting credit upon both himself and the village. We believe a majority of our citizens will agree with us in expressing the hope that he may receive a re-appointment.

The Social Reformer for March was issued yesterday. It is the best number published thus far, and the publisher has concluded to issue the paper regularly hereafter, once each month, and charge a subscription price of twenty-five cents a year therefor. A wise conclusion. Sample copies sent to any address by writing to Rev. Geo. W. Hudson, Tecumseh.

"Aunt Laura" Haviland, of Raisin, although now past the allotted age of three score and ten is enjoying good health. She is now engaged in lecturing on temperance and selling the book entitled 'A Woman's Life Work.' It is a book of thrilling interest, giving her experiences in old slavery times, when her house was a station of the "Underground Railroad." The fugitive slave always found shelter beneath her roof and assistance on his way to freedom. The book will be a valuable addition to any one's library and ought to have an extensive sale.

We have several new Toledo cards this week.

"All Fools" day passed without any serious accident in this town.

Teachers and pupils are enjoying a vacation this week. The spring term will open next Monday.

We are indebted to the Social Reformer for several interesting articles in this week's HERALD.

Regular meeting of Tecumseh Masonic lodge to-morrow evening. Let there be a full attendance.

Dr. R. B. House has just returned from the east, where he has been on professional duties.

Our enterprising furniture dealers, Slayton & Kinney, announce a grand clearing sale this week. Read it carefully and profit thereby.

We paid Kelley, Hoxsie & Co., of Holloway a short call last Tuesday and found them prospering. The firm is building up a lucrative trade.

Dr. Geo. Ferguson has a new card in this week's HERALD. He is getting settled down in business finely and is well pleased with Tecumseh.

The Democratic Caucus will be held at the Council Room next Saturday at 3 o'clock, P. M., to nominate a ticket for the ensuing town election.

C. H. Hopkins has gone to Battle Creek, and is thinking seriously of taking up his permanent residence there. Should he conclude to remain there, Battle Creek will secure a first-class artist.

The Gardener's Monthly for April is at hand and it is an extra number. The colored plate of single dahlias is handsome enough for a frame, and the contents are well up to the usual standard. C. H. Marot, publisher, 814 Chestnut St., Philadelphia.

The 2d Quarterly meeting for the conference year was held at the Methodist Episcopal Church on the 8th and 9th of March. In the absence of the Presiding Elder the pastor officiated. Nine were received into the church, making a total of 40 since the coming of the present pastor, the 1st of last May.

E. J. Collier of Adrian, has rented for five years the store five doors east of where he is now located. It will be fitted expressly for his business, and his patrons can rest assured of seeing the most complete stock of Pianos, Organs and Sewing Machines in the State. He will move in about two weeks.

Our marriage notices contain the announcement of the marriage of John B. Whelan, of Detroit, to Miss Myra Reynolds. The groom is a graduate of our High School and the bride has made many friends since her residence in Tecumseh. It is a good match in every sense of the word. We extend our congratulations and best wishes for a happy and prosperous future.

Clinton News: The big dam at Norvell went out Sunday morning and let a flood of water come rushing down the mighty Raisin. Monday afternoon the water was very high at this point. It washed out the embankment at the west bridge, so that it was unsafe to cross with a team. As a consequence many who had come to town were unable to get home at night, except by making a detour through Bridgewater or Newburg.

A letter received from L. A. Davis of Burlington, Kan., says:

"I notice an item in the HERALD in regard to the cattle plague in Kansas. The facts are these. No plague has broken out among the cattle; cattle are perfectly healthy and hearty, even those that have frozen their feet off are nearly all hearty and well every other way. Wire fence and narrow belts of timber, make poor wind brakes to protect cattle from the sharp, cutting winds in Kansas, with the mud half knee deep. There have been no cattle killed or burned on the account of disease."

Probably nineteen farmers in twenty must buy seed corn for next spring's planting, on account of the failure of the '83 crop to ripen. We must look sharp to the seeds we buy, that they are better than our own, as many unreliable parties will offer inferior stocks, to take advantage of the demand. We suggest that every corn grower should send to Hiram Sibley & Co., the reliable seedsmen at Rochester, N. Y., and Chicago, Ill., for their Catalogue and seed-corn circular. This house makes a specialty of seed-corn and we believe that they will do what they say they will.

OLD MAIL ROUTES.

F. A. Dewey, Esq., of Cambridge, has kindly furnished us with a few statistics in regard to the mail routes of this section in an early day, from which we gather the following:

In the month of January, 1834, the first mail over the LaPlaisance Bay road west of Tecumseh, was carried by stage and Michael Hendershot was driver. In 1834 the first mail was carried to Swansville or Brooklyn, from Springville—then later a mail route was established from Ann Arbor to Jackson via Grass Lake. Then one from Napoleon to Jackson. Then Brooklyn had a side cut from Napoleon. In the year 1871 Mr. Dewey got the mail route through from Cambridge to Brooklyn and it was carried until the year 1882. The first stage wagon west of Tecumseh with mail was in the year 1830, via Clinton to Jonesville, which was the first post office after leaving Tecumseh. Sumner Spofford was driver.

C. C. Tefft has moved into his new residence bought of J. E. Hall.

Geo. Goodrich of Clinton is spending his time now boiling sap. It has not been very good sugar weather thus far.

Philo C. Mills of Adrian, comes over to shake hands with his Tecumseh friends occasionally. We acknowledge a pleasant call from him last Monday.

Jerome Green of Raisin, is raising hogs on a large scale. He has sixty eight sheats now on hand to fatten, which he intends to turn off in August.

A set of platform scales, which he will place in position soon. He will give his personal attention to his farm this summer.

We have been pleased to note the action of the officers in regard to the Crouch murders. They were certainly very tardy in taking up the matter. If they had moved before the man Foy was out of the way they might have been more successful in unravelling the mystery. Then it seems, too, that they might have properly paid more attention in regard to those tracks in the plowed field, at the time of the inquest. And in regard to the failure to investigate more fully the causes of Mrs. Holcomb's death, the public can never feel fully satisfied. Of course the evidence against the accused is only circumstantial; but it would have been well to follow every clue from the first no matter where it pointed. Since the investigation began it has been pushed with commendable zeal, and it is to be hoped that the officers may yet be able to unravel the mystery.

The Cincinnati Riot.

Every lover of peace and order has read with profound regret the account of the riot in Cincinnati. Scores of lives have been lost, a great number have been wounded and thousands of dollars worth of property has been destroyed. For 48 hours the city was [illegible] joice that the authorities resisted the lawlessness so firmly. But at the same time we cannot but sympathize with the spirit which led to the disturbance. It took the wrong course but the principle is right. The laws have been so long trampled under foot by those whose duty it is to uphold them that forbearance has almost ceased to be a virtue. It is the beginning of an earthquake which will convulse the whole country, unless the evils are remedied. Unless our laws are executed and criminals punished the people, maddened by hope deferred and hoping against hope, will rise up like infuriated beasts and involve themselves, and the judges, jurors, lawyers and legislators, who have so long trampled on justice, in one common ruin with themselves.

THE PEOPLE'S CYCLOPEDIA.

Of this, the latest of its class and the production of the greatest scholars of Europe and America, the New York School Journal thus speaks:—"We cordially welcome this new work because it is based on correct principles. It is the cheapest Cyclopedia now published in a form at all acceptable."

Having educated himself, so to speak, to produce such a work, Dr. DePuy has chosen an able corps of assistants. Among them we note Judge Fancher, Prof. Winchell, Dr. Haven, President Alden, Professor Milne, all of whom we know personally to possess the trained powers of mind to fit them to aid in such a work. The others are well known to the public as men of exact, varied, and special knowledge.

We subjoin the following opinions of professional men in this place.

From Prof. D. A. Hammond, Supt. of Schools, Tecumseh.

I have only been able to examine "The People's Cyclopedia" cursorily, but I like it and cheerfully recommend it. I consider it a solid, excellent work, sufficiently full for most purposes, and yet so low a price as to place it within the reach of all the people. Having the Britannica still feel the need of a more compact work, and I gladly avail myself of the opportunity of supplying that need.

From Geo. W. Hudson, Pastor M. E. Church, Tecumseh.

I have examined at considerable length, the People's Cyclopedia, edited by W. H. DePuy, and have no hesitation in pronouncing it the most convenient work of its class in the English language. It gives just the information most needed by business and professional men, and in such form as to be always ready to hand. Then the work is FRESH, being up to date in every particular. Its inexpensive form, too, puts it within the reach of every intelligent family.

From C. M. Woodward, M. D., Tecumseh.

I have examined People's Cyclopedia carefully and at considerable length, and believe that as a work of reference it has no equal, and is superior as such, for the busy man of business, to more voluminous works, and I can earnestly recommend it, as a very valuable work at a low price, to all needing a cyclopedia.

From Wm. H. Babbitt, Pastor Presbyterian Church, Tecumseh.

There is a wonderful amount of useful information of various kinds crowded into the volume of the People's Cyclopedia which I have examined. I do not remember having ever seen a work that contained so much in the same space that was likely to be useful in the office, the study and the home.

SHALL WE HAVE SALOONS?

Until recently, it has been supposed that we must have liquor saloons. It was thought that if a man presented ample, legal, valid bonds to a township board, or municipal council, those bonds must be accepted and permission given to open a saloon. But now a decision has been rendered by the Supreme Court of the State, to the effect that any board or council acting in its official capacity, may simply refuse to accept the bonds which may be presented, without giving a reason why, and that when such a board shall see fit to do so there is also room to doubt in question that official action. This gives to any town, village or city, the right to elect men pledged to refuse to accept any bonds which may be presented.

If now we have saloons, whose fault is it? We can no longer lay the blame on the state. It rests upon us in our cities and villages and towns. If the people wish saloons they can have them just as they have had in the past. If they do not wish them, then all they have to do is to go to caucus, and go to election, and secure such men on the board or council as will refuse to accept bonds. This done, the saloon keeper must strike his tent and take his departure.

Let it not be forgotten that the responsibility now rests with the people. If any place now holds on to the saloons it is because the people wish to do it. It is because they consider the saloons a blessing, or because they wish to lessen their taxes, or because they are too indolent to rise and drive them away. In either case, the people may justly be charged with being partners in the vile business.

But some are afraid that it will injure business if we shut up the saloons. They fear that it will drive trade away. In some places it might be so where there is a large foreign element. But in most places it would not make any perceptible difference in the trade. Some old topers might go away where they could get their bitters. But how much is their trade worth? They are not the paying customers, the saloon keepers get their cash, while the grocer and dry goods merchant have to trust them. Besides, there are men enough in our village who would be kept from drink, and perhaps permanently reformed, to more than make up for all loss sustained. They would become paying customers.

But this ought not to be a question of dollars and cents. The merchant ought not to weigh his dollars against human happiness. Suppose that he does make a few dollars by having the saloons kept open. Can he afford it? Can he afford to become a practical partner in the saloon business in order to make money? If so, why not go into it boldly and let his name appear on the sign. The fact is, we have too much of this making money at the expense of humanity. We stay away from election because we do not wish to injure our trade, we refuse to sign a petition for shutting up saloons, for fear we shall lose a contract, we refuse to identify ourselves with any movement against this crying abomination of our civilization, because we are afraid it will drive somebody from our counters. Is this manhood? It reminds us of the case of the man whose wife had driven him under the bed, and who poked his head out, saying as he did so, "while I have the spirit of a man I will peep." It is a virtual surrender of manhood and conviction to the love of gain. But the strangest thing of all, is to see a member of a christian church, and a professed temperance man putting his name on the bonds of a saloon keeper. How any one can reconcile it with right and duty, we cannot understand. As long as this subserviency to the rum power prevails we shall have saloons. It is not because we are bound to have them, but because we have not the moral courage to get rid of them. When will our business men break away from this bondage and assert their manhood? Whenever they will, we shall see every saloon shut up. More than this, we shall see our communities a great deal more prosperous than they now are.—Social Reformer.

DIED.

In Macon, March 13, 1884, at the residence of her son Alfred, Mrs. Candace Lewis, aged 77 years. Mrs. Lewis, whose maiden name was DeWell, was born March 1, 1807, in Mendon, Ont. Co., N. Y. She was the youngest of six children, and was married May 5th 1827. In the fall of 1833 Mr. and Mrs. Lewis came to Michigan and settled in Oakland county. In 1852 they removed to Macon, where they lived about fifty-one years. An excellent farm and home are the fruits of their toil and care. At a Fourth of July celebration held at Tecumseh a short time after the war, Mr. & Mrs. Lewis received a large and beautiful bouquet of flowers for having sent more boys to the army than any other one couple of parents in Lenawee county. One was killed in the battle of Gettysburg. For nearly half a century they have been accepted members of the Baptist church. For nearly 20 years Mrs. Lewis has been an invalid through inflammatory rheumatism and unable to attend church services. For several years her sufferings have been very great. Like a traveler worn and weary in the rough journey of life she looked to the approach of death as to a day of release and rest. The expected day came, and the end was peace. The following lines were composed by her, and written in a neatly arranged and carefully preserved family record.

I leave you here a little book
For you to look upon,
That you may see your parents' care
When we are dead and gone.
Give ear, my children, to my words,
Whom God hath dearly bought,
Lay up His laws within your hearts
And print them in your thoughts.

The funeral services were held at the house March 14th, and the remains were placed in the family burying ground at Pennington's Corners. Rev. J. C. Wortley officiated in place of Rev. Milo Smith, who was ill.

An old fashioned, flesh colored profile is pinned on one page of the book.

At his home, in Clinton Township, John A. Gregg. Aged 40 years.

Deceased was born in Groveland, Livingston Co., N. Y. He came to Michigan in 1864, and in 1870 was married to Ann Service and settled on his present home. In his early boyhood he formed no bad habits, and in manhood it was the same. To do right seemed to be his motto, and all who had any business transactions with him found him honest and upright. He was the oldest son of a family of twelve children; his parents, three brothers and six sisters survive him. He was a dutiful son, a kind brother, a loving husband and father, and leaves a wife and four children, and a large circle of relatives and friends to mourn his loss. He was a member of no church but respected religion in all its forms. The deceased was a modest and unassuming man, of a temperate disposition and exemplary habits, and will be missed in the community where he lived.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand and with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bite of Insects, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is exerted over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and fiber is searched out and made sensible by its searching and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Athlophoros

ATHLOPHOROS is a novel word to most people who speak the English language. The Greeks used it centuries ago, meaning by it "THE PRIZE BEARER."

ATHLOPHOROS is the first and only medicine which has carried off the prize as the perfect remedy for Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

Like two relentless tyrants they have for ages held their suffering victims in an iron grip. These poor sufferers have been slaves in the power of their oppressors.

ATHLOPHOROS has entered the arena, engaged in conflict with the monsters, and won the victory. As the conqueror in the Grecian games of ability and endurance, ATHLOPHOROS has won the prize, not alone by giving temporary relief, but by bringing an enduring cure, as well, to those who have suffered the excruciating agonies of Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

ATHLOPHOROS is a novelty, not only in name, but in its elements. It is unlike any preparation yet introduced.

ATHLOPHOROS acts on the blood, muscles and joints, removing the poison and acid from the blood, carries them out of the system.

ATHLOPHOROS is put up with consummate skill, and contains nothing that can possibly harm the most delicate constitution.

Now, do you want to suffer on and on? or do you want to be well?

"Athlophoros" WILL Cure You

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

A CLEAR HEAD.

"One year ago I was induced to try AYER'S PILLS as a remedy for Indigestion, Constipation, and Headache, from which I had long been a great sufferer. Commencing with a dose of five Pills, I found their action easy, and obtained prompt relief. In continuing their use, a single Pill taken after dinner, daily, has been all the medicine I have required. AYER'S PILLS have kept my system regular and my head clear, and have done me more than all the medicines ever before tried. Every person similarly afflicted should know their value. 152 State St., Chicago, June 6, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY:

Dear Sir—I cannot speak too highly of what I believe to be a most wonderful medicine. Desiring to be of service to suffering women, I add my testimony to the value of Zoa-Phora. For five years I suffered greatly with Prolapsus, being obliged to use a supporter during all those painful, weary years, but, thanks to your medicine, I wear it no more. I laid it off after using one and a half bottles. I am now well, and I work all the time, and am better than I ever expected to be. You may use my letter, and if any one wishes to write me for more information, give them my full address. Mrs. [illegible]

PERRYVILLE, Md., April 25, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY:

Dear Sir—I am more than pleased with the effect of your Zoa-Phora in our daughter's case. I am surprised to see how she has improved. She is gaining in weight and color, and I think she's better than she ever did; her nerves are steady, and the distress in her chest is entirely gone. I firmly believe that Zoa-Phora is and that has saved her life. I shall use it, and should use my letter, for I am not afraid to say what a wonderful cure your medicine is. Yours respectfully,

MRS. SARAH R. SNOWDEN.

N. B.—This was a case of suppression.

From Mrs. Joan Spitler,

No. 28 Wilt St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

I have suffered for sixteen years with spasmodic pain in my head and general nervous debility. Recently I had a severe attack of pain in my head, caused by weakness and nervous exhaustion. I thought I should die. My husband said we would test Zoa-Phora thoroughly. He gave it to me according to directions for severe cases, and in less than two hours I had complete relief. I advise all ladies who suffer from nervous or sick headache, or any form of female weakness, to use Zoa-Phora. There is no medicine to compare with it.

Railway-Mail Service.

In 1811 there were 2,404 Post offices, and during the year the mail was carried 13,750 miles in stages, and 61,171 miles in sulkies and on horseback. In 1818 the railway mail service began with 1,943 miles of railroad throughout the country. In 1846 mails were carried over 3,092 miles of railway, which increased in 1882 to 100,505 miles. The miles of annual transportation of mail by railroad in 1852 amounted to 11,032,706, which increased to 113,903,318 in 1882, with an increase in the number of railway mail service employes from 43 in 1846 to 3,072 in 1882.

The machinery of the Post-office Department is a system of cog-fitting parts, [illegible] were it not so, in the new, as truly united period and space allotted this work, in postal cars, could not be successfully accomplished. The interior dimensions of postal-cars vary from whole cars sixty feet in length to apartments five feet five inches in length by two feet six inches in width. The most comprehensive conception of the practical working of the postal-car system can be found in a railway post-office car from forty to sixty feet long. It is in charge of four clerks, one of whom has charge and makes the "trip report," in which is noted connections missed and other irregularities that may occur. The interior of the car is fitted up with a carefully studied economy of space. Occupying one end of the car are cases of pigeon holes or boxes, numbering from 600 to 1,000, arranged in the shape of a horse shoe, for the distribution of letters. These boxes are labeled with the names of the post-offices on the line of road, connecting lines, states and prominent cities and towns throughout the country. A long narrow aisle passes through the centre of the car, on both sides of which are racks for open sacks and pouches into which packages of letters and papers or other mail matter are thrown on the sides above are rows of suspended pouches with their mouths open. By this plan a award of 200 different pouches and sacks can be distributed into between the termini. On one side of the aisle is a narrow counter upon which the mail matter is emptied from the pouches and sacks; this is hinged to the pouch-rack, and can be swung back to enable the clerks to get at the pouches more easily. The space beyond, divided by stanchions, is for the storage of mails and for their separation into piles. The lights in the [illegible] the hatch in order not to lose time in tunnels and dark stations.

The work in the car begins sometimes several hours before the starting of the train. Transfer clerks and porters deliver the pouches and sacks into the car, the label on each being scanned and checked by the clerks to detect if all connections due are received, and that no mail may be delayed by being carried out on the road with the other mail and returned. The two clerks to whom is assigned the duty of distributing direct packages of letters and newspaper mail, including merchandise, empty the pouches, out of which, pouch packages of letters and circulars to be distributed unbroken into pouches and others labeled to this route and different states, which are in turn to be separated into packages by routes, States, and large towns to the letter case. To the clerk in charge is assigned the sorting of such letters as are destined to distant routes or terminal connecting lines, and his associate or second clerk is busy distributing letter mail for local delivery and into separations for intermediate connections. In addition to sorting letters the clerk in charge has the registered mail, which requires special care in its reception and delivery, booking, and receipting therefor. Large pouches of registered mail are also placed in his charge en transit between large cities and representing great value.

The peculiar tooting of a whistle, or the peculiar movement of the train around a curve, warns the fourth clerk of a "catch" station, the letter mail for that Post-office is deposited by the local clerk in the pouch, the train is stopped, the pouch is thrown out at a designated spot and the pouch is dexterously caught without a slacking of the speed of the train. The contents of the pouch thus caught are quickly distributed, and the work goes on. When the station at which pouches are caught are within a mile or two of each other the greater dexterity is needed to assort the mail between stations.

The manner of catching the mail from the track side is as follows: A crane is erected near the track, having two arms between which the pouch is suspended loosely, being held in such a way as to readily engage by an iron rod slightly inclined at the end, which is disconnected with a bar across the door of the car. The details of the work in the car are many and various, and he position of the clerks is no sinecure. There are a number of lines in the Far West where the clerks do not leave the car for a month or days. For nigh on the country the total number of pieces of ordinary mail handled by railway postal clerks in the lines during the year ending June 30, 1881, amounted to 3,381,416,280; the number of errors made in their distribution was 255,148 pieces, or a percentage of correct distribution of 99.97. Colonel Chance, in Lin. Stat. Monthly.

—Governor Robinson, at his reception in Boston on Washington's birthday, was presented with a printed copy of a hitherto unpublished letter of George Washington. It was written to Nicholas Pike, of Newburyport, author of the first arithmetic published in this country, and acknowledged the receipt of a presentation copy of the work. Bos on Herald.

According to the Lyon Medical, women practiced medicine and surgery over a century and a half ago. There were then in Lyons forty-three master surgeons and thirteen widows of surgeons in regular practice. All doctors' widows had the right to practice medicine and surgery.

An aged physician, who has visited graveyards in all parts of the world, and noted the average age at death, has found that the highest average was in New London, Conn., and is now living there with the expectation of living for some years to come.—Bos on Herald.

Nearer to Nature.

Nature has made her laws with us, which we must obey or suffer the penalty. This penalty is often lung or throat trouble, which leads on to consumption. Every man believes consumption incurable. People have been educated to this belief which is proven incorrect by Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure, which is nature's great helpmate, and it cures consumption and and all throat and lung diseases speedily and permanently. Trial bottles free, of Baker and Hall.

International Throat & Lung Institute
81 Lafayette Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

This institute was founded by Dr. M. Souvielle of Paris, ex-aide surgeon of French army, for the special treatment of Catarrh, catarrhal Deafness, Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, using in the treatment of above named diseases Dr. Souvielle's new and wonderful invention, the SPIROMETER, an instrument which conveys medicine at properties direct to parts affected, and which is now used in all the leading hospitals in Europe. It is only since Dr. Souvielle's invention and discovery of this new method of treating the air passages, that Throat and Lung diseases are no longer feared. Physicians and sufferers are invited to investigate this mode of treatment. If impossible to come in person, write for list of questions and International News. Thousands treated by letter. Instruments sent to any address by express, with full directions for using. Call upon or address DR. M. SOUVIELLE, 81 Lafayette Ave., Detroit, Mich.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption,

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the very best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. For Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Headache, Debility, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, and all Chronic and [illegible]

A CARD.

We the undersigned, having received great and permanent benefit from the use of "COMPOUND OXYGEN," prepared and administered by Drs. STARKEY & PALEN, of Philadelphia, and being satisfied that it is a new discovery in medical science, and all that is claimed for it, consider it a duty which we owe to the many thousands who are suffering from chronic and so-called "incurable" diseases to do all that we can to make its virtues known, and to inspire the public with confidence.

We have personal knowledge of Drs. Starkey & Palen. They are educated, intelligent and conscientious physicians, who will not, we are sure, make any statement which they do not know or believe to be true, nor publish any testimonials or reports of cases which are not genuine.

Pleasant Surroundings.

The farmer who does not pay some attention to the appearance of his home will not only loose in an æsthetic point of view, but will actually lose in dollars and cents. The value of his farm will be enhanced by a clean and dry highway in front, beautiful shade trees well kept, and a lawn newly mown. That unsighly pile of wood, with large and small chips strewn about the whole yard, can be made less offensive to the sight, and the dingy-looking houses and sheds might be painted, all of which are more important factors in the valuation of farm property than is generally

But when we consider how much influence our surroundings have in the development of taste, especially in the young, the question of money value should take second rank as a motive for beautifying the farm. We cannot conceive of a botanist or a fine florist having spent his youth away from flowers and from scenes pleasing to the eye. The natural course of his mind toward his chosen work would have been changed if his youthful eye had rested on none but the rude and common place objects around his dwelling-place. It is the duty of parents to educate their children in something more than grammar, geography, reading, writing and spelling there should be a careful training of the mind towards the appreciation of good books, good manners, and the beautiful in nature. The child cannot grow up a boor or a clown in manners or in appearance if it is early taught to love plants and trees, if its eye is early taught to rest with delight and not indifference on a beautiful object or a beautiful scene. Good books are sought when such a taste is cultivated as naturally as water seeks its level.

Poverty and lack of time are the excuses made by farmers for allowing their farms to look as if they had been visited by a small tornado. But improvement in the appearance of the house and its surroundings requires labor more than the expenditure of cash. Those farmers who find time for this work of beautifying are the ones who plan their farm operations well in advance, with an eye to economy in time and the farmers whose places are uninviting are usually those who have no forethought in their farm operations and hence are always "rushed."

A goodly number of farmers that we know of, regret the slovenly and bare condition of their premises do not know how to commence and carry on the work of improvement: for in their childhood they were not surrounded by any better scenes, and they developed no natural taste for the beautiful, and have no skill in the simplest operations of land cape gardening and floriculture. But this may be partially overcome by observation, by attending farmers' meetings where some discussion on the subject is likely to occur, or where he can converse with those who can put him in the right track. An energetic farmer can make his home a thing of beauty if he will.—Lansing Republican.

The Best Was Good Enough.

A smiling, well-dressed youth, accompanied by a damsel who was evidently far gone in love, came into a drug store at the South End last evening, and walking up to a cigar case and commandingly placing his gloved hand over the boxes containing the "six-for-a-quarter" kind said "Give me a twenty-five cent cigar."

"Two for half a dollar?" asked the polite druggist.

"Yes, that is the kind, but I will only take one to-night; I have left my case at home and they break up terribly in my pocket," was the reply.

Reaching out a handful of the choice brand to his customer the apothecary wondered just which he had selected one to suit him, and then replacing the rest in their proper box took the proffered twenty-five cent piece and dropped it in his till.

After doing that he furtively took two dimes from a box in his money drawer, and, procuring some matches from a shelf, dropped the money and the lucifers in the young man's hand, saying, as he did so: "Here, have a match?"

This advice was taken by the youth, and when he had succeeded in lighting his purchase and its costly aroma reached the olfactory organ of his admiring companion she turned her love light orbs to his and said in tones of worshipful awe:

"Oh, Charlie how can you afford to smoke twenty five cent cigars?"

When he had assured her that "the best is good enough for me," his conquest was complete and she departed in his company willing to follow him to the ends of the earth.—Boston Globe.

How to Tan Sheepskins.

Where farmers kill but a few sheep during the season they can make better use of the pelts than to sell them if they know how to preserve them. For mats take two long-wooled skins and make a strong suds, using hot water when it is cold wash the skins in it, carefully squeezing the lather between the hands to get the dirt out of the wool, then wash the soap out with clear, cold water. Then dissolve a dram and salt each a half pound, with a little hot water sufficient to cover the skins and then let them soak one or two nights or twelve hours, then hang over a pail to drain. When they are well drained spread or stretch carefully over a board to dry. When a little damp have one ounce each of saltpeter and a dram powdered and sprinkle on the flesh side of each skin, rub in well, then lay the flesh sides together and hang in the shade for two or three days turning the under skin up permost every day until perfectly dry, then scrape the flesh side with a blunt knife to remove any remaining scraps of flesh. Trim off projecting points, rub the flesh side with the hands. They will be very white and handsome, suitable for a door or carriage mat. They also make good mittens. Lambskins, or even sheepskins, if the wool be trimmed off even to a half or three-fourths inch long, make beautifully and warm mittens for ladies or gentlemen and the girls with a little practice can make them.

Chinese Beggars.

One can not walk the length of a single street without meeting a ghastly procession of blind beggar-women, each with a hand placed on the shoulder of the preceding one, each with an emaciated infant strapped to her back, tramping along in quest of alms. They have hardly passed by before a group of lepers come hobbling along with puffed, knobby faces, and discolored skin, hideous as are perhaps a mass of running sores and their feet and hands from which fingers and toes have literally peeled off, are simply hideous to behold. Sometimes few girl lepers who protected have found themselves surrounded by a group of leper women clamoring for alms, thrusting a bamboo basket in the stranger's face, or pawing at their clothes until relieved or driven off by the street watchman. Perhaps there is no place in the world where so many monstrosities and such sickening deformity meet the eye as during an hour's walk along a Chinese street. The calm of Chinese beggardom can furnish such examples of distorted faces and crippled limbs as no hospital doctor at home ever beheld or dreamed of. I have seen a poor creature rolling over and over on the pavement with arms and legs withered into mere sticks. Another day there was a victim to elephantiasis, with legs literally swollen to elephantine proportions.

Many of these vagrants are able-bodied men and have adopted a mendicant life either because they can find no work or else because they are too lazy and find begging a more remunerative occupation than honest toil. Some of these vagabonds will make small fortunes by petty thefts, and by begging alone they will make 200 or 300 cash per day, which is at least double the wages of a coolie or day laborer. While traveling on foot one day in a lonely part of the Kwang Tung province I saw before me on the roadside a big, bulky, baleful beggar, dressed in a ragged gown thickly wadded with cotton that peeped from a hundred holes in his rotten garments. His face and limbs were black with the accumulated filth of a lifetime. His thick, black hair hung in tangled masses like a mop over his shoulders and his eyes glared with fiendish ferocity. My flesh began to creep as he approached and I instinctively sought means to avoid him. The field, knee deep in mud. I therefore kept straight on my course, which lay along one of the usual narrow, granite paved highways, so common in South China. He approached me with a determined, nonchalant air, that indicated trouble, and took up his position in the middle of the path, his huge body blocking up the way. He held out his grimy paw and demanded one dollar before I passed. The loathsome brute was covered with diseases and his clothes were teeming with filth and full of vermin.

I offered the usual two cash, which he indignantly refused and commenced to lay hands on my collar, declaring he would strangle me if I refused his demand—a threat which he seemed physically capable of carrying out on the spot. I shook off his squalid arms and he drew back to make another more desperate onslaught. I got ready for him and received him between the eyes. The blow made him reel into the paddy-field, and stung with pain he set up a terrific bellowing. Fearing that his cries would call to the whole detachment of his ragged brethren to the rescue, I took to flight. Looking back, I saw to my consternation that the wretch had recovered himself, had cast away his rags and was pursuing me almost as naked as he was born, at a pace that gave me no chance of escape. With no firearms or weapon of defense, what was I to do? A fist might have been pummeled to a jelly, but no impression would be made on the hide of such a monster. Happy thought. My pipe-case was in my pocket. I drew it forth and pointed it at his face. It appeared a revolver to him. Thoughts of powder, bullet and sudden death dashed across his brain. He, perhaps, remembered that his mother had told him to come home early. In an instant he turned his naked back upon me. Never did a pipe-case work such magical effects before. He paused not to utter one word of adieu. He simply fled.—Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Some Valuable "Health Hints."

Don't shake a hornet's nest to see if any of the family are at home.

Don't try to take the right of way from an express train at a railroad crossing.

Don't go near a draft. If a draft comes toward you, run away. A slight draft is the most dangerous.

Don't blow in the gun your grandfather carried in the war of 1812. It is more dangerous now than it was then.

Don't hold a wasp by the other end while you thaw it out in front of the stove to see if it is alive. It is generally alive.

Don't try to persuade a bull dog to give up a yard of which it is in possession. Possession to a bull dog is ten points of the law.

Don't go to bed with your boots on. This is one of the most unhealthy practices that a man, especially a married man, can be addicted to.

Don't call a very large, strong, sinewy man a prevaricator. If you are sure he is a prevaricator, hire another man to break the news to him.

Don't allow the baby to drink the contents of the red lye. Concentrated lye is dangerous, even in very small doses, except to a man who is accustomed to drinking Baltimore corn whisky.—Omaha Bee (Ind.) Traveler.

Rheumatic Syrup Co:

Gents—I feel it my duty to recommend your wonderful medicine—"Rheumatic Syrup"—to all who are suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia or kidney difficulty.

I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism, caused by kidney difficulty, and have been treated by our best physicians, but they failed to reach my case or benefit me in the least.

I saw in the Auburn papers the names of a number who had been permanently cured by the use of Rheumatic Syrup, and to my surprise I found that with many of them, I was induced to try it, and to my surprise I found that all pain had left me before I had finished the first bottle. I continued its use for a time, and to-day I am well as ever and feel no more pain or trouble with my kidneys. It has been several months since I discontinued its use, so I know it is a permanent cure in my case.

I can testify that Rheumatic Syrup will do all—yes, more than you claim for it. I am yours truly,

Mrs. Hattie Paddock.

New Prolific Tree Bean.

Having raised them for main crop the past season, I can conscientiously give them the following recommend: On good soil they will yield an average of about 150 pods to the tree, 6 or 7 grains to the pod, and 60 bushels to the acre if planted AS DIRECTED. They closely resemble the Navy Bean, cook in much less time than the Navy, are very white, and of excellent flavor. Having but one stalk in a hill they are much easier cultivated than five to seven stalks of any common variety, and can be left in the hill until all are fully matured, thereby avoiding liability to mould. They should be planted as soon as danger from frost is over, in rows two feet apart, and 15 or 18 inches in the row, more than one stalk in a hill will not do, and if more is planted, thin when two inches high to one plant in a hill, and they will completely cover the ground. About four quarts plants an acre. Try them and for main crop you will grow no other. Net price per quart, 25 cents.

Vital Question!!

Ask the most eminent physician Of any school, what is the best thing in the world for quieting and allaying all irritation of the nerves and curing all forms of nervous complaints, giving natural, childlike refreshing sleep always?

And they will tell you unhesitatingly "Some form of Hops."

CHAPTER I.

Ask any or all of the most eminent physicians:

"What is the best and only remedy that can be relied on to cure all diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs: such as Bright's disease, diabetes, retention or inability to retain urine, and all the diseases and ailments peculiar to Women."

"And they will tell you explicitly and emphatically 'Buchu.'"

Ask the same physicians

"What is the most reliable and surest cure for all liver diseases or dyspepsia: constipation, indigestion, biliousness, malarial fever, ague, &c.," and they will tell you: Mandrake or Dandelion."

Hence, when these remedies are combined with others equally valuable

And compounded into Hop Bitters, such a wonderful and mysterious curative power is developed which is so varied in its operations that no disease or ill health can possibly exist or resist its power, and yet it is Harmless for the most frail woman, weakest invalid or smallest child to use.

REMINISCENCES OF ROCHESTER.

The Falls of the Genesee and Sam Patch's Fatal Leap—One of its Business Houses and its Great Magnitude.

The present floods, which are either devastating or threatening the country in every direction, are justly cause for apprehension. No matter whether they come suddenly or by slow degrees, they are, in either case, a great evil and much to be dreaded, and yet America will always be troubled by these spring overflows. Probably one of the most disastrous that ever occurred, occurred in Rochester, N. Y., about twenty years ago. The Genesee river just above the falls, where Sam Patch made his final and fatal leap, became completely blockaded by ice, forming an impassable dam, and the water coming down the Genesee river overflowed the principal portion of the city of Rochester. This catastrophe would have been repeated the present year had not the energy and foresight of the city authorities prevented it. The writer happened to be in Rochester at that time and was greatly interested in the manner in which this great catastrophe was averted. Every few moments a roar like the peal of thunder or the booming of a cannon would be heard, and in order to see this ice blasting process, the writer went to the top of the new Warner building, which overlooks the Genesee river. From here he was not only enabled to see the process uninterruptedly, but also the magnificent building which has just been completed. This is unquestionably the finest building devoted to business and manufacturing purposes in America, being entirely fireproof, eight stories high, and containing over four and a quarter acres of flooring. Mr. Warner treated your correspondent very courteously, and in the course of the conversation said:

"We are doing a tremendous business and are far behind in our orders. This is the season of the year when people, no matter how strong their constitution may be, feel, more or less, the pain and indisposition, the headaches, colds, neuralgia, rheumatism, chill pains, sore throats, coughs—all the 1,001 ills that flesh is heir to come this time of the year, if at all. It is natural, therefore, that we should be very busy. This is specially true of our Safe Rheumatic Cure, and it is something we never thought for a new remedy."

"Singular, but I had forgotten that you do not advertise to cure all diseases from one bottle, as is done generally by many other medicine men, but I supposed Warner's Safe Cure was for the cure of rheumatism."

"And so it has been until our remedy which was especially for rheumatism and neuralgia, was introduced. We have been three years perfecting this new remedy. Study first taught us there were certain powderful elements in Warner's Safe cure, better known as Warner's Safe Kidney and Liver cure, that made wonderful cures in chronic and acute rheumatism, but during our investigation, we learned of a remarkable cure at a celebrated springs, and put experts to investigate and found that the springs did not contain any valuable proprieties, but the course of treatment that was being given there was performing all the benefit. By carefully combining the active principles of this remedy with our Safe cure, we have produced our Safe Rheumatic Cure, and the cures it is effecting are simply wonderful, and I do not doubt it will become as popular as our Safe Cure."

"You seem to talk freely in regard to your remedies and appear to have no secrets, Mr. Warner."

"None whatever. The physician with his hundred calls and one hundred diseases, is necessarily compelled to guess at a great deal. We are enabled to follow up and perfect, while physicians can only experiment with their hundred patients and hundred diseases. With the ordinary physicians, which, of course discourages investigation, to a great extent. This is why the great discoveries in medical science of late years have been made by chemists and scientists and not by physicians, and it in a measure accounts for the great value of our remedies, also for the remarkable success of all those doctors who make a specialty of one or two diseases."

"And you find that you are curing as great a number of people as ever before?"

"Yes, a far greater number. We never sold so much of our medicines as now, and never knew of so many remarkable cures."

The writer departed after the above interview, but was greatly impressed not only by the sincerity of Mr. Warner, but by the vastness of all he saw. Mr. Warner's medicines are used throughout the entire length and breadth of the land, and we doubt not the result they are effecting are really as wonderful as they are related to be.

Our population is on the increase.

What makes Will Carter so smiling? A daughter, to be sure.

Thos. Biddle, having rented a farm near Saline, is moving this week.

Will Remington is moving on Dr. Howell's farm.

Jesse Coller moved his family to Milan last week.

Capt. J. Bontecou, of Petoskey, visited friends in Macon last week.

Miss Helm, of Tecumseh, closed her school in the Mills district Friday the 28th. Miss Helm gave entire satisfaction. The district has retained her for the spring term.

Miss Edna McClue will teach a spring term in the Lindsley district, Saline township.

Wednesday, March 26, being Mrs. Lester Coller's birthday, her friends determined to surprise her. Accordingly, a large number, loaded with rich viands, marched to her home, took possession, and reigned victorious from 7 P. M. to 11, when each, wishing Mrs. Coller many more birthdays, returned to his respective home.

Chas. Hendershot and James Cary returned last week from Penn., where they spent the winter.

James Lindsley was married last week to Mary Snobles. Never too late, James.

Ira and Lewis Coller spent Sunday in Milan with their brother.

At the last examination of teachers, Maude Howell passed a very creditable examination. She intends to do her first work as teacher in the Merrit district.

Mrs. Hornbaker died Monday afternoon. She leaves a husband and one child. Mr. Hornbaker has the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

[illegible] of Dr. Geo. Howell, Wednesday evening, April 9. A good time.

Carl Mills was thrown from a buggy last Sunday, and sustained slight injuries.

Zoe Pennington left last week for "the Eden of the West." Her intention is to take up land. She has more pluck than many young men.

Surprise parties are becoming contagious. Mr. and Mrs. Hebron Camburn were victimized last Friday evening, it being Mrs. Camburn's birthday. Suffice it to say that Mrs. Camburn was completely surprised, and that all concerned had a good time.

Last Thursday evening about twenty Maconites hied away to Ridgeway to make G. W. Jackson a social visit. A good time as usual.

FRANKLIN FACTS.

The Republicans of Franklin elected their entire ticket except James M. Burns for Drain Commissioner on the Union ticket, who had one majority. Below are the candidates chosen:

Supervisor, Daniel W. Love, 61.
Clerk, Thos. M. Camburn, 58.
Treasurer, Elijah Buck, 46.
Justice, Edwin Cook, 52.
Highway Com., John F. Smith, 54.
School Insp., Amos Sayers, 23.
Constables, William Osborne, [illegible] Alden Rundell, 48; Bert Crittenden, 48, Charles Wilson, 48.

SPRINGVILLE SNUFF.

Quite a snow storm last Tuesday.

Miss R. S. Moshar returned from Toledo last Monday, after a week's visit at that city.

The dance at Ayres' Hall on the 4th inst., was a success socially but not financially.

The Good Templer's sugar party that was to be given last Monday eve., was postponed till Tuesday the 15th inst., on account of inclemency of the weather.

The Nationals and Democrats had a lively time at their caucus, Thursday of last week, in which many warm discussions ensued, but finally agreed on a ticket which was elected with the exceptions of School Inspector, Drain Commissioner and one constable. The Township Clerk was a tie and decided by chance, the Prohibitionists being the lucky party secured their candidate.

FARMERS' CLUB.

Club met according to adjournment at the residence of Mr. John Fisher, March 28. This being the last meeting of the season, and as usual wound up with a supper, the attendance was large and the program was well carried out. The music was all good, select reading superb and the essay by Mrs. F. C. Rector was one of the best efforts of the season. The supper was no discredit to the farmer's wives of this section.

Club adjourned to meet at Mr. Jacob Everhart's, Friday afternoon, April 25, at 2 P. M.

PROGRAM.

Inst. Music—Anna Everhart.
Essay—Mrs. J. W. Gillespie.
Select Reading—Mrs. R. B. Gillespie.

Question—Does it pay to harrow wheat in the spring and what are the most profitable crops to raise as spring crops?

A full attendance is requested.

Committee on refreshments, Miss Anna Everhart, Mrs. F. C. Rector, Mrs. R. B. Gillespie.

F. V. HORTON, Sec.

Baptist Churches do not usually observe Easter, yet many of them occasionally improve it as a favorable opportunity to consider the great pivotal doctrine of the resurrection of the Lord. It is our purpose to observe it with a special service in the evening. It is expected that the service, prepared by Rev. Robert Lowry, will be used. The following is its outline:

1. Organ Voluntary.
2. Anthem—All we, like sheep—
3. Responsive Reading—The Prophecy.
4. Prayer.
5. Hymn—Praise to God.
6. Responsive Reading—The Death.
7. Chorus—Stabat Mater.
8. Responsive Reading—The Burial.
9. Chorus—At Jesus' Grave.
10. Responsive Reading—The Resurrection.
11. Chorus—Christ is risen.
12. Sermon.
13. Chorus—O Lilies, Sweet Lilies.
14. Responsive Reading—The Argument.
15. Hymn—Jesus ascended.
16. Quartette and Chorus—If Christ be not risen.
17. Responsive Reading—The Evidence.
18. Duet and Chorus—O the Tidings.
19. Responsive Reading—The Faith.
20. Chorus—Jesus Enthroned.
21. Benediction.

If you wish a good supper do not fail to attend the "Junior Class Banquet."

Webster defines "Banquet" as a rich entertainment. This is what you may expect from the Juniors.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

We gathered the following election news from off the C. T. line Monday night. The Dem. Hold ridge in Raisin. Rep. still Love in Franklin. Rep. discovered a fixed star in Clinton; they call it Mars-teller, and something about one James running ahead in Tecumseh.

To Mr. and Mrs. E. Buck, a girl.

Mr. and Mrs. Garret Darby celebrated their wooden wedding last Thursday.

Highway commissioner Bowen is in Morenci looking after horses.

School commenced in Newburg district last Monday with Miss Church as teacher.

Three C. T. line operators elected to township offices last Monday.

Mrs. J. M. Hicks is very sick. Dr. Jones renders the medical aid.

Mrs. Julia A. Wright, of Ovid, Branch Co., is visiting at J. F. N. Bowen's this week.

Uncle James Updyke recovers very slowly; he has begun to use crutches a little.

The L. S. & M. S. freight office has been connected with the C. T. line, Hughes and Ward both being operators.

It would be interesting if we could know what our ancestor would think of us, and if he would consider that our gains compensated us for losses—that our luxuries balanced our worries. It is certain he would consider our children failures. Not that he would not be as properly proud of them as we are, but he would not understand some of their little peculiarities. He would not know what to make of a young person who had to be fed with amusement and occupation. In his day youth employed itself. But take from our child his book, his weekly paper, his magazine, his patent toys, his bicycle and printing press, take his name from his club, his base-ball from his hand, and what a forlorn, uninferested, unemployed creature is left! In himself how barren are his resources!

Regular meeting of Tecumseh Council No. 9, R. T. of T. will be held this Thursday evening. A full attendance is requested. By order of S. C.

Eternal Vigilance.

It is possible for us to think that whatever other people's children may do, ours cannot go astray. We may think that they are a great deal better than other people's children. This is all right; we ought to think well of our children, we ought to have confidence in them. But when we think that our children cannot go astray we wrong both ourselves and our children. We thereby expose them to danger and temptation from which it is our duty to defend them. If the angels could fall, if Adam and Eve could be led into sin, what folly in us to think that our children are secure? They are only children. And being children they cannot have the discretion of older people. They need older heads to teach them and more experienced eyes to discern for them the way of safety. No matter how good they may be they need the watchful care of father and mother to keep them out of the evil way and lead them in the right way. They cannot find the right way by instinct: it must be by knowledge and experience. But they are unlearned and inexperienced. How important that they receive the benefit of your knowledge and experience. This they can only do by receiving your constant care. Remember that over confidence is always perilous. The over-confident merchant is the one whose accounts are left to take care of themselves. The over-confident commander is the one who leaves the camp unguarded of fails to profit by the advice of others. The successful commander is the watchful commander who cannot be taken off his guard by any movement of his antagonist. The successful business man, is the one who always takes pains to see how his accounts stand. So also the good father and mother are the careful, watchful father and mother, who have confidence in their children, but at the same time, watch over them with jealous care, so as to guard them from the many snares and pitfalls laid for their unwary feet. Parents, remember that as eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, so is it the price of virtue and nobility and purity in children. Remember that the power of evil is ever at work and must be met at every point if your children are to grow up unharmed by them.—Social Reformer.

Second Marriage.

While it is best for widowers with families to seek out companions younger than themselves, it is possible to carry this to an extreme. It is a notorious fact, that widowers of all ages, and conditions, have a wonderful drawing towards young women. It is common for men in their dotage, with families of children grown up, to seek to marry young women. This amounts almost to a mania. The age is made the prime requisite, and if a woman is young and handsome, her general fitness or unfitness is not canvassed at all. Often when the widower finds a young woman ready to listen to his suit, his head is turned, and he does not stop to ask if she has the proper qualifications and disposition to go into his house and care for his children and look after his interests. She is young and beautiful, and that is enough. He shuts his eyes to everything else, he turns a deaf ear to the warning of friends, and the entreaties of children, and marries her in defiance of reason and common sense. * * * * The matter of age should be an important consideration. A man should never think of marrying a mere child to be taken into his family; he should marry a woman old enough, and motherly enough to command the respect of his children. If his children are grown, and he needs a companion for his home, he may as well marry one of about his own age, either a maiden lady, or a widow whose children are also grown. There is no reason why he should marry a young woman. The necessity does not exist in his case. But it is often necessary for a man well on in years, to marry a woman much younger than himself for reasons already given, yet, in these cases men should not choose women simply because they are young but because along with their age they possess other needed qualities. In no case should there be too great a discrepancy in ages; a great deal depends upon circumstances. If a man is youthful and well preserved, he may safely marry a woman much younger in years. Such a man at the age of 45 may safely marry a woman of 30, or 25, or even 20, provided there exists a normal, healthy love between them.—MARRIAGE GUIDE.

The annual shearing will be held Tuesday, April 22d., at the residence of J. Britton, Britton Station. All are cordially invited to attend.

THE LITTE COAT.

Here's his ragged "roundabout,"
Turn the pockets inside out;
See, his penknife, lost to use,
Rusted shut with apple juice;
Here, with marbles, top and strings,
Is his deadly "devil sling,"
With its rubber limp at last
As the sparrows of the past!
Beeswax, buckles, leather straps
Bullets and a box of caps—
Not a thing of all I guess
E'en these tickets, blue and red,
For the Bible verses said—
Such as this his memory kept—
"Jesus wept."

Here a fishing hook and line,
Tangled up with wire and twine,
And dead angle worms, and some
Slugs of lead and chewing gum,
Blent with scents that can but come
From the vial of rhodium.
Here—a soiled, yet dainty note,
That some little sweetheart wrote,
Dotting—"Vine grows round the stump,"
And—"My sweetest sugar lump!"
Wrapped in this—a padlock key
Where he's filed a touch-hole—see!
And some powder in a quill
Corked up with a liver pill,
And a spongy little chunk
Of "punk."

"Here's the little coat—but O!
Where is he we've censured so?
Don't you hear us calling, dear?
Back! Come back, and never fear;
You may wander where you will,
Over orchard, field and hill;
You may kill the birds, or do
Anything that pleases you;
Ah, this empty coat of his!
Every tatter's worth a kiss!
Every stain as pure instead
As the white stars overhead;
And the pockets—hushes were they
Of the little hands that play
Now no more—but, absent, thus Beckon us.

"OLD MR. BINNEY."

All their friends had said, when Mrs. Binney died: "Now what a good thing it would be if old Mr. Binney would but marry Miss Bright!"

Miss Bright had not been without her troubles, and very hard ones they had been too; but she bore them with a brave heart, and carried a smiling face, and had a thankful spirit within her, striving always to remember her blessings, and how much they outnumbered any evils she was called upon to bear.

Indeed, to listen to Miss Bright's chosing you would have counted her as one of the luckiest persons ever born. She had had the kindest of friends, the most comfortable of situations, and the girls she had taught were endowed with an amiability of disposition which made it a positive pleasure to be with them. The only accusation she could bring against them was that they were all in such a terrible hurry to grow up and get married, and then Miss Bright's occupation was gone, and she had to step out into the world and find a fresh field for her labors.

As years rolled on, each one adding to the score of Miss Bright's age, these hunting grounds of instructions became more and more narrowed. Children of eight began now where girls of eighteen used to leave off, and history and geography, to say nothing of the parts of speech and grammar, were all so altered, that poor Miss Bright had to acknowledge that at times she really did feel quite confused. "Very soon I shan't be left with anything to teach," she would say, pathetically, and then Mr. Binney's nephew, Joe, or some other good fellow who heard her, would declare she should set up a school for wives, for there never were such wives as the girls whom Miss Bright had brought up. She had taught Joe's wife Sally and her sister, and though since then she had had other situations, at holiday time, or whenever she was seeking employment, she always returned to the house of Dr. Brendon, their father.

When Mr. Binney dropped in, as he frequently did, to inquire after his old friends the Brendons, he, from time to time found Miss Bright there, and happening on the occasion of one of her visits to bring the news that Mrs. Binney was ill, with no one whose business it seemed to be to look after her, nothing was more natural than that Miss Bright should volunteer, and a great comfort they found her.

So sprightly yet unobtrusive was the cheery little woman that Mrs. Binney herself was influenced in her favor, until, with an eye to their mutual comfort, Mr. Binney proposed Miss Bright staying with them altogether. "Why not?" he said. "We could well afford to pay her a salary." But this word salary, acting like magic on Mrs. Binney, seemed to bring her to her senses immediately. She would be very glad to have Miss Bright as a visitor as long as she liked to stay, but as to living with them altogether, "No!" she would not give her consent to that; she had always objected to having in her house a third party. It was then that Miss Bright's friends pulled very long faces, indeed. What would she do? they asked her.

"Oh, something is sure to turn up," she would say, hopefully. "Whenever I have come to my last ebb an opening has been made for me, so I am not going to despair now."

And she said this all the more emphatically, because in spite of her confidence she could not help feeling that a voice which she could not still kept repeating: "What will you do when you grow older? Teaching will get harder than ever." That was true enough, but what else was there for her to do?

When Mrs. Binney died, which happened quite suddenly about a year before, there had been some talk as to Miss Bright going to Mr. Binney as housekeeper, but this proposition had been made without the knowledge or consent of the principal person concerned, who, as soon as the hint was given, negatived it.

Mr. Binney thoroughly appreciated Miss Bright, but he had lost his taste for matrimony; he remembered that he had spent forty excellent years without a wife, and, notwithstanding that he was now a widower, he could not conscientiously say that he felt his state to be so very unhappy.

Susan the cook, respectable and staid, would, he felt sure, manage his household properly, and if it proved that she should give way to extravagance, as people seemed to say, Mr. Binney fancied he could better put up with that evil than with too much of the economy from which he had suffered already.

So all the hopes that on the death of Mrs. Binney, Joe and Sally and the Brendons had cherished for Miss Bright were ruthlessly dashed to the ground. Evidently Aunt B. was not to have a successor.

"If we could but have got her there as housekeeper," said two of these arch-conspirators, "the rest would have been easy." But though they returned to the attack several times, no good came of it. Mr. Binney shared in their regret at the loss of Miss Bright's society, wondered as they did what would become of her, and, his visitors gone, to make his sympathy apparent, he sat down and wrote a kind, little note with a check for £10 folded within it.

Now she is going away altogether, over so far—for Miss Bright had had another piece of news to tell. An old pupil of early days had been recently left a widow; her health was as delicate as her heart was kind, and when she made the proposition that Miss Bright should come and spend the remainder of her days with her it was not entirely of her own comfort she had been thinking. Miss Bright had readily accepted her offer, and she had written to tell Sally that the next week she should come up and see them.

She could only stay a few hours with them when she came. The farewell visit was to be paid later. "But I think," she said as she was going, "I will call on my way home and say good-bye to Mr. Binney in case I might not have another opportunity."

"Do," said Sally, and away she went.

Mr. Binney was at home. He had not been quite well lately; nothing more than a cold, but it had kept him a prisoner. To-day he might have gone out, but he had not felt inclined to, and he gallantly said he was glad to be in, as he should have been sorry indeed to have missed seeing Miss Bright.

"And so you are really going to leave us," he said, and almost regretfully, too. "Well, you will be very much missed. I don't know what the Brendons will do."

"They will not miss me more than I shall them," and the brave little woman made an effort that her voice should not sound shaky; "but you know, Mr. Binney, I am not growing younger, am I?"

"No," he said. "That is true. I was saying the same to myself of myself only to-day."

"Yes, only with men it does not seem to matter, but with women the thought always comes with a little shudder, that when we get old and want quiet and rest and a comfortable arm-chair by the fire there is a doubt whether we shall be able to get them."

Mr. Binney did not answer, and fearing she was saying too much about her own feelings she altered her tone, which had been a little sad, and went on in her usual cheerful way: "But then I ought to feel so thankful that this opening has been made for me. I told them that I knew something would come; it has always done so; I have always been so lucky."

"It's your happy disposition makes you say so, my dear Miss Bright; a cheerful spirit shortens the longest day. I wish I could follow your example. I often feel condemned at my want of contentment—of gratitude, I ought to say."

But that Miss Bright would not allow, she reminded Mr. Binney of the many kind actions he had done, and in her own quiet way thanked him for the thoughtful present he had sent to her.

"No, no, no, now you must not speak of that," Mr. Binney hastily interrupted her, and to give a turn to the conversation he said she "must have some tea," and ringing to order it, he hoped she could stay.

Well, yes, she thought she could spare time for that, indeed, to be plain, she was not in such a very great hurry. The fact had been that Joe had an unexpected holiday, and she saw that, only for her being there, he had come home to go out somewhere with Sally.

"So I hope the little fib I told will be forgiven me, for when I said that I was wanted at home, although it was quite true perhaps, I need not but for that have left quite so early. But it was so nice of Joe to come home. I do love to see husbands and wives companions to each other."

"Ah, indeed, yes, that is the object of matrimony, too often, I fear, lost sight of in our day, by the young and the old, too."

But Miss Bright did not agree. "No," she knew so many united couples. "There were the Brendons now—" but at this moment the tea was brought in, and Miss Bright asked should she pour it out. Her offer was accepted. "Only," said Mr. Binney, "you must take off your cloak, or you won't feel the good of it when you go; and your bonnet, too; wouldn't you feel more comfortable without that?"

Miss Bright said "No," she would not take her bonnet off.

"Haven't a cap with you, I suppose?" said the old gentleman slyly.

"Yes, indeed I have—a present from Sally—and a very becoming one, too."

"Put it on then, and let me pass my opinion."

Miss Bright hastened to obey, and when she came for his inspection the smile on her face and the soft pink in her cheek made her look ten years younger.

"Well," she said, "now what do you think of it?"

"I think if you take my advice you will never wear any other."

"Really," and she laughed softly; "but it is for high days and holidays, you know!" And she tip-toed to look in the chimney-glass, saying that it certainly was a very pretty cap, and then she sat down to pour out the tea. "The best tea things!" she said, admiringly; "I am so fond of pretty china!" And then searching in the sugar basin, she added: "I have not forgotten that you like two lumps of sugar, you see."

Mr. Binney smiled complacently; a feeling of well-being and comfort took possession of him.

Of a certainty it was very pleasant to have a congenial somebody to bear one company, one who could talk well, listen well and hold her tongue well, if necessary. Experience had assured him that Miss Bright possessed each of these good qualities. When she had stayed there when Mrs. Binney was first ill, their evenings had passed very pleasantly, and recalling the things they had done, he asked:

"Do you often play chess now?"

"No, never."

"Cribbage, backgammon?"

"I've no one to play with. That is one thing in my going away," and she swallowed a sigh—"my evenings will be less lonely."

"Ah, yes, I find the time very long after dinner. I don't like to go to bed before half-past ten, although I often feel inclined to."

"And the days draw in so quickly now, there is no afternoon—it is all evening, which reminds me that it is getting time for me to go, for it takes a quarter an hour to get to the station."

"Not in a cab."

"No, but I am going to walk—it is quite fine and dry, and if I feel tired at the Conway road I shall wait at the corner for the omnibus passing."

Miss Bright began to put on her bonnet. Mr. Binney walked to the window, for a minute he looked out, then he rang the bell.

"I shall go as far as the Conway road with you."

"Oh, Mr. Binney! No, pray don't think of such a thing? It might give you a cold, and there isn't the slightest occasion. I am so accustomed to go about alone."

But Mr. Binney remained firm; his hat and coat were brought to him, and away the two set off together. They chatted pleasantly as they walked along. "I shall hope to come and see them all sometimes," Miss Bright said. "I know as long as the Brendons have a home they will take me in."

"And remember that so long as I have a house there will be room for you in it."

"That is very kind of you, Mr. Binney," she said softly. "I am sure I do not know why people are all so good to me."

Mr. Binney apparently was no better able to inform her, and they walked on silently until the Conway road was reached.

"Now, then," said Miss Bright, "here we say farewell," and she held out her hand, but Mr. Binney did not take it; he was engaged in hailing a cab he saw; then he drew out his purse and Miss Bright knew that he intended settling with the man for the fare. She shook her head at him reprovingly.

Mr. Binney gave the directions to the driver and then he held out his hand, hesitated, opened the door and said, "I don't see why I should not go with you as far as the station."

At the railway station they had but a very short time of waiting. Miss Bright stood near the carriage which she had chosen; nothing remained but to say good-by and enter.

"And you will let us hear how you get on?" for she had not said she was coming up again.

"Oh, I shall often write to the Brendons and Sally. You will hear of me through them."

"And I hope so very much that you will be comfortable and happy."

Miss Bright tried to smile, but her eyes filled rapidly, and to hide the tears she half turned away.

"I wish that you were not obliged to go away; couldn't anything be managed for you?"

She shook her head sadly. "No," she said; "I tried everything I could," and here a sob would come, "but nobody seemed to want me."

"I—I want you."—Mr. Binney was stammering out his words excitedly. "Miss Bright, can you—will you stay for me? Could you consent to become Mrs. Binney?"

"Mrs. Binney!—I!"—everything seemed to swim around her—"but, Mr. Binney, such an idea never once occurred to me."

"I am very sure of that," my dear," he said, earnestly, "and it has taken some time to come to me, or I should have made the offer long ago; however, better late than never—that is, if you will accept me."

"Oh, but I think it is too good of you—and you feel sure that I can make you happy. What will the Brendons and Sally say?"

"Say that I am more lucky than I deserve to be for not asking you before. Now, I understand why I wouldn't consent to your being my housekeeper; I was wanting you for my wife, you know."

Miss Bright held up her hands in dismay.

"Oh, my!" she cried. "There's the train off—gone, I declare!"

"What of that if it is?—another will soon follow, and while we are waiting for it, we can arrange our plans and fix the day."

And if any one wishes to know how it all ended, I can satisfy their curiosity by telling them that a more happy, cheery couple never were seen than the present Mr. and Mrs. Binney.—Temple Bar.

Hard Times for Drummers.

The drummers have had some hard times of it lately. Three of them boarded a Chicago, Burlington & Quincy train at Monmouth the other day and with long faces began to discuss the situation. "I have sold only three bills of goods in four days," said the Chicago drummer, "and didn't get a nibble in Monmouth." "Neither did I," said the Burlington drummer, "and I haven't made expenses this week." "Now, to show you how funny luck runs," spoke up the St. Louis man, "I'll tell you my experience. I've been out thirteen days now, and hadn't sold a dollar's worth of goods until to-day. In Monmouth I took one solid order." "The thunder you did," ejaculated his unbelieving listeners. "Yes, boys, and I'll tell you how I did it. It's a pointer for you. You know that big Dutchman that keeps a grocery there on the square near the post-office, I s'pose. Didn't you call on him? Well, I did. I was desperate, too, and was bound to sell or talk him to death. I stuck to him three straight hours, boys, but I fetched him. Just as I was getting hoarse he turned around kind o' quick and business-like, and says: 'I poot a stop on this, bye Gimminy! I gif you an orter, und I vant it villed pooty quick, too.! I know ven I'f enoof. I'm no delephone to schtan oop und be dalked at all de day long!'" "Bet it made you feel good," said the Chicago man; "first customer in thirteen days. But what did he order?" "That is the worst of it," replied St. Louis. "He ordered me out of his store!"—Chicago Times.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 2, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have contained the humor for at least ten years; but it did not show, except in the form of a scrofulous sore on the wrist, until about ... peared at that time, it gradually spread so as to cover his entire body. I assure you he was terribly affected, and an object of pity, when he began using your medicine. Now, there are few men of his age who enjoy as good health as he has. I could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 73 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

How Watch Cases are Made.

This process of manufacture was invented by James Boss, who started in business in 1854, and the methods and tools used in making these watch cases are covered by patents. This is the only watch case made under this process. For many years the introduction of these goods was slow, owing to popular prejudice against "plated" goods, but gradually the public learned that the James Boss' Gold Watch Case was not a cheap gold-washed or electro-plated article, but was made of genuine gold plates of standard quality and thickness. Conscientious adherence to the determination to make the best watch case ever put on the market, and the adoption of every improvement suggested, has made the James Boss Gold Watch Case the STANDARD. In this watch case the parts most subject to wear—the bow, crown, hinges, thumb-catches, etc., are made of SOLID GOLD.

WE DO NOT CLAIM

that HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA will cure every thing, but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the blood.

Why Suffer with Salt-Rheum?

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. The skin would become dry, chap, crack open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged, and I was obliged to keep them bandaged with linen cloths. The skin was drawn so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears into my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. I used one box of Hood's Olive Ointment, to relieve the itching. Hoping many others may learn the value of Hood's Sarsaparilla and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gathered from All Quarters.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE, April 1.—A resolution was offered and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations requesting the President to institute negotiations with the Government of Spain for reference to an umpire for the decision of the question whether the treaty of 1819 has ceased to be obligatory on the United States, and whether the United States Government is bound in good faith to pay the full amounts awarded by the judicial tribunal to whom the same was referred for payment for losses sustained from forces acting under orders of the United States in 1818 and 1820. Bills to increase the efficiency of the General Land office, and Mr. Morrill's bill for the improvement of coinage, were passed; also a bill directing the Secretary of the Treasury to refund to John P. Wallworth $2,820, the proceeds of a sale by order of General Banks, of certain funds of the Louisiana Bank, of New Orleans, in 1863. The Education bill was taken up, and pending discussion the Senate went into executive session and adjourned.

HOUSE.—Mr. Dorsheimer presented a memorial for a bondholder of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company, praying to be heard before the Committee on Public Lands on the bill declaring the forfeiture of land granted, and asking Congress to protect their interests; referred. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill, and the bill was read by paragraphs for amendment. Without action the committee rose. General Grant being present on the floor of the House, a short recess was taken by unanimous consent and he was escorted to the space in front of the clerk's desk, where leaning on one of his crutches, he received the respects of the members, and the Speaker introduced to him the Representatives with whom he had not been previously acquainted. When the House reassembled the Speaker laid before it a message from the President recommending an appropriation of $100,000 for the protection of the levees of the lower Mississippi River. Adjourned.

SENATE, April 3.—Mr. Hoar presented a petition from eight thousand citizens and soldiers of the Western States connected with the National League, praying that a pension of at least eight dollars in money be given to each honorably discharged soldier and sailor of the late war. Mr. Wilson presented a joint resolution from the Iowa Legislature, urging that in view of the rapid absorption of public lands fit for settlement, Congress may take immediate steps to recover the unearned portions of lands granted to railroads. A resolution was agreed to, instructing the Committee on Library to inquire into the expediency of purchasing from the Lewis family for the United States the sword worn by Washington on the occasion of his resigning his commission in Congress. The Senate then took up the Education bill, which was debated at length, but without action adjourned.

HOUSE.—A joint resolution was passed authorizing the Secretary of War to loan flags and camting to the Mayor of Richmond, Va., to be used at the fair in that city in aid for the home for disabled Confederate soldiers. Mr. George, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, reported back a joint resolution which was adopted, authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to make an examination into the massacre of Dr. Marcus Whitmore and others in Oregon. The morning hour was dispensed with and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Indian Appropriation bill. A motion to strike out the clause appropriating $12,500 for the pay of five Indian inspectors and to insert a proviso abolishing the offices of Indian inspectors and authorizing the Secretary of War to detail five officers of the army, not under the rank of captain, to act as Indian inspectors, was agreed to—91 to 67. After concluding forty-six of the fifty-two pages of the bill, the committee rose and the House then adjourned.

SENATE, April 4.—Mr. Logan presented a petition from the Chicago Board of Trade protesting against the further coinage of silver dollars; also from the Chicago Trades and Labor Assembly, protesting against the repeal of the present patent laws. A bill to authorize the appointment and retirement of disabled officers of the regular army honorably discharged under the act of July 15, 1870, was referred. A joint resolution making an appropriation of $100,000 for the protection of the existing levees on the Lower Mississippi, was referred to the Committee on the Improvement of the Mississippi. The Education bill was then taken up and debated until adjournment.

HOUSE.—The morning hour was dispensed with, and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Indian Appropriation bill. The consideration of the bill having been concluded the committee rose and the bill passed. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar. Some time was spent in considering the bill to relieve certain soldiers of the late war from the charge of desertion, but no final action was reached. At the evening session the House passed eighteen pension bills and adjourned.

SENATE, April 5.—Mr. Garland reported favorably with an amendment the House bill making it a felony for a person falsely and fraudulently to assume to be an officer or employe of the United States, passed. A petition was presented from the California State Board of Silk Culture, praying that Congress establish a bureau of silk culture. Mr. Hoar introduced a bill to reimburse the United States for interest paid on war loans refunded. The Education bill was then taken up, and after a long debate and the adoption of several amendments it was finally passed on motion of Mr. Allison, that the bill be postponed to before adjournment on the 7th. The Senate then went into executive session and adjourned.

HOUSE.—A resolution was reported from the Committee on Naval Affairs and adopted, requesting the Secretaries of Navy and War to report on the feasibility and expediency of constructing an interoceanic waterway for the relief of the Atlantic and Gulf seaboard. The morning hour was dispensed with and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Agricultural Appropriation bill. Several amendments were adopted, among them one increasing from $10,000 the appropriation for the distribution of seeds, plants, etc., and then, the committee having risen, the bill passed. The amendments to the House bill making it a felony for any person to fraudulently assume to be an officer or employe of the United States, were concurred in. Adjourned.

Look out for Your Head!

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid. Applied with the finger to the nostrils.

The Dundee new $18,000 school house is nearly completed.

Mr. Gough on Silk Hats.

"It would be no violation of the commandment," said John B. Gough "if a man were to fall down and worship the silk hat, for it is not made in the likeness of anything in heaven, or on earth, or in the waters which are under the earth." Besides it heals the head and causes the hair to fall off. Parker's Hair Balsam will stop that and restore the original color to gray or faded hair. Not oily, not dye, beneficial, deliciously perfumed. A perfect hair dressing. 50c All druggists

We feel that we are doing the public a favor in calling their attention particularly to Hood's Sarsaparilla. This is not a patent medicine, but a proprietary article, possessing real curative properties, and its effects upon the Blood are very positive. Spring Debility, Biliousness, Dyspepsia and all troubles caused by impure blood readily yield to this excellent medicine. We think those who give it a trial for that "out of sorts" feeling from which so many suffer and which is peculiar to this season, will be quite satisfied with the results.

A Swede working in L. P. Swift's camp, near Chase, was killed last Saturday by falling upon him.

We All Believe

That it is a long lane that has no turning; that many a shaft at random sent, finds a mark the archer little meant; that no remedy sold will cure coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and all throat and lung troubles so quickly nor permanently as Dr. Bigelow's Positive cure; that our druggists, Baker and Hall, are very generous to give trial bottles of this remedy free of charge.

Nearly all the cash subscriptions asked for the Toledo, Ann Arbor & Northern road have been pledged.

Thousands Say So.

Mr. T. W. Atkins, Girard, Kan., writes: "I never hesitate to recommend your Electric Bitters to my customers, they give entire satisfaction and are rapid sellers." Electric Bitters are the purest and best medicine known and will positively cure Kidney and Liver complaints. Purify the blood and regulate the bowels. No family can afford to be without them. They will save hundreds of dollars in doctor's bills every year. Sold at fifty cents a bottle.

THE TOWNSHIP ELECTION.

The election was quite warmly contested and a large amount of "slipping" was done, on both sides. An inspection of the figures given in full below will show that the majority of the votes poled were split tickets. Alf James for Supervisor had a walk over, as did Newt. Satterthwaite for clerk. The contest was on full term Justice and Treasurer, and most of the work on both sides was bestowed on these two candidates. The Union ticket received a good vote, more than many people supposed it would.

Coldwater Republican: "Last Saturday forenoon Judge Cooley of the Michigan Supreme Court, was in the city and we took the opportunity to interview him regarding the subject of liquor bonds, the surety on the same and the action of the village board or city council regarding them. It has been quite commonly remarked that if such a body should reject such bonds absolute prohibition might prevail and they based their assertion upon a decision of the Supreme Court in this State. The fact is that no Council or Board can refuse to act upon bonds presented. They must act; but the question of sufficiency is left entirely with such body; and if a Council or Board should, in their judgment, deem the bond insufficient on the ground of the character or of the financial ability of the surety then the Court will not interfere to compel such Council or Board to approve the bonds. This, in brief, is the view of the Court; but it in no way releives the Council or Village Board from responsibility in the matter."

Full information concerning the "Junior Class Banquet" will appear in next week's HERALD. Read it and profit by the information there gained.

OHIO ELECTIONS.

The Strength of the Political Parties Tested in the Local Elections.

COLUMBUS, O., April 7.—Reports received up to midnight indicate that the Republicans have carried the city by about 700 majority, electing a majority of the School Board, one Waterworks Trustee and a Police Commissioner, making three Republican police commissioners, giving the Republicans control of the police, which has heretofore been in hands of the Democrats. The Republicans have evidently made a clean sweep of the city. Accurate returns from fifteen out of the twenty-six precincts show a net Republican gain in these presincts of 340. Hoadly's majority in the city last fall was but 324.

CINCINNATI, April 7.—The election to-day was devoid of interest and the vote was light. The principal officers to be elected were a Judge of the Superior Court, Clerk of the Police Court, member of the Board of Public Works, Director of the Infirmary and members of the Council and Board of Education. Besides the Republican and Democratic, there was a municipal reform ticket nominated. It received a comparatively small vote. One-third of the city heard from at midnight shows a net Republican gain of 150, the comparison being made with a year ago, when the Democratic candidate for member of the Board of Public Works had 740 majority.

At 1:30 returns from half the city have been received. Nothing definite can be said as to the result, but indications are that a portion of the Republican ticket is elected. Richaris, Republican, for the police court, leads the ticket.

YOUNGSTOWN, April 7.—Election to-day gave a perfect sweep to the Republicans, they electing Walter L. Campbell Mayor by 244 majority over Mathew Logan. The Republicans also elected Knight City Solicitor and six Councilmen out of seven, leaving the council Republican by four majority. The Republicans elect eleven out of fourteen on the Board of Education.

CLEVELAND, April 7.—The Republicans won a remarkable victory here to-day, the city giving a Republican majority of about 3,000 for the city ticket. The Council and Board of Education will also be Republican.

MICHIGAN ELECTIONS.

EAST SAGINAW, April 7.—At the city election a light vote was polled. The Republicans elect the Mayor by 409 majority and one Justice of the Peace by 1,554 majority, six of the eight alpermen, six school inspectors and three Supervisors. The Democrats elect the Treasurer by 639 majority, two Aldermen, three School Inspectors and one Supervisor. Saginaw City elects a Republican Mayor, one Justice of the Peace and two of the six Aldermen.

INDIANA ELECTION.

MUNCIE, Ind., April 8.—Returns on township election came in very slowly, in this, Center Township. The entire Republican ticket is elected by 200 majority. The township gave a majority for Hawn of 410. Hamilton township elected a Democratic trustee. The other townships are believed to have elected Republicans. The result indicates slight Democratic gains. This is due to the fact that the Republican nominating election absorbed the entire interest of good workers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 7.—The township election passed off quietly. A very light vote was polled. Returns are meager, but they indicate the re-election of the Democratic Trustee by a reduced majority. Returns from the State do not show a noticeable change.

ANDERSON, April 7.—Reports from all parts of the county show Republican gains. Two Democratic townships elected Republican trustees. Anderson township gives Campbell, Democrat, 158 majority, a Republican gain of 67.

The Rush to the Fort Ransom Mines.

LAMOURE, Dak., April 7.—The rush to the Fort Ransom gold mines has begun. H. W. Griswold, of Chicago, arrived Saturday last with his family and a party of friends. He appears as confident as ever. Two large lots of rock have been tested. In one instance there was a showing of ten dollars to the ton and in the other over forty dollars of gold and silver. During the winter Mr. Griswold visited some of the Colorado mines to inspect the machinery in use, and he has already had placed on the ground in the Fort Ransom district the best crushing apparatus extant. Prospectors have been in the field for the last two weeks and claims are being staked out everywhere the snow covers the ground. A good hotel and some other business houses have been opened in the town of Griswold. The mining interest bids fair to develop just such a furor as existed last fall. Prospectors are extending their operations into the Bear Creek region and toward Lamoure. There is little chance to secure a promising claim on the Cheyenne except at a fancy price. A member of the Lamoure Mining Company said to-day that he believed the whole country hereabouts would be prospected this season. Lamoure is seventeen miles from the Griswold mines.

A Lawyer Whipped by Milliners.

NORTH LEWISBURG, O., April 8.—This place is excited over a horsewhipping case here Saturday. A. D. Palmer, aged thirty-six, is a prominent attorney and leading citizen of Lewisburg. He has a pretty wife and two children, Cora and Mary Ash[illegible] are handsome milliners of the same town. Palmer has been forcing unwelcome attention on the young ladies. Saturday afternoon he met them on the street, and, as they claim, insulted them. Miss Cora seized a stick of wood and with a whip in the hands of Mary they polished off Palmer. He s[illegible] long enough to feel blood trickling down his face and then fled. There is much talk over the event.

A Wife Beheaded.

ALTOONA, Pa., April 8.—Mrs. L. U. Beach, wife of a prominent physician, was discovered in her room this morning with the head almost severed from the body. The circumstances are so suspicious that the doctor has been arrested. It is said that he has already admitted to a member of the family that he committed the deed. Two large knives and a cleaver, used for amputating purposes, were found beside the victim.

Minister Hunt's Funeral.

WASHINGTON, April 8.—The funeral of Judge Hunt, late Minister at St. Petersburg, will take place here to-day with military honors. The pall bearers will be Chief Justice Waite, Admiral Porter, Admiral Rogers, ex-Secretary Blaine, ex-Postmaster General James, Senator Gibson, Judge Bancroft Davis and Judge Peabody.

Proves a Canard.

CUMBERLAND, Md., April 7.—The reports sent hence that a prize fight and general row had taken place at Hyndman, Pa., near the Maryland State line, in which three men were killed and several badly injured, is without any foundation.

ON THE SCAFFOLD.

A Pennsylvanian Dies an Ignominious Death—The Victim Not One of the Murderers.

HARRISBURGH, Pa., April 8.—A strange story is told in connection with the arrest, trial and execution of William E. Delaney, Librarian of the Pennsylvania State Senate. Delaney was recently hanged at Tombstone, Ari., with four others, for the murder of the Bisbee family on the 8th of December.

Captain Delaney is thoroughly convinced that his brother was innocent of the crime for which he suffered death. As soon as John learned that his brother was to be executed he made every possible effort to save him from the gallows. He claims to have secured positive proof that his brother had never been in the place of the murder and that when the Bisbee family was murdered he was in Mexico, over two hundred miles distant. Delaney is said to have been convicted on the testimony of a man (Daniels) who swore that he saw Delaney in his store a few minutes before the commission of the crime. All efforts to get Delaney another trial were abortive. Captain John C. Delaney placed $1,000 in the hands of Father McBride of this city, with instructions to forward the money to the Catholic priest at Tombstone, A. T., to pay a lawyer to take charge of Delaney's case. A reply was received from Father P. J. Gallagher, saying that $10,000 could not secure the services of a lawyer for the intended purpose, owing to the desperation of the men who wanted to see Delaney hanged. On March 22d Father Gallagher wrote to Captain Delaney thus: "The lawyers still refuse to take an appeal because of the dread of the community. The sentiment has changed very much, however, in your brother's favor, as you are informed. There is a direct proof against him yet. I can do nothing unless I can get an appeal taken. I have done all I can."

An unsuccessful effort was made to have President Arthur stay the execution, and Delaney was executed, protesting his innocence. On the day before the hanging Delaney wrote his brother that Daniels, the principal witness against him, had on the previous night shot and killed a man. It is claimed that Delaney's life was sacrificed by men in pursuit of revenge and gain, and that the men whose evidence convicted him received a reward of nearly $1,700. For that amount perjury was committed, besides Delaney had incurred the hatred of lawless men. Delaney is alleged to have located three valuable copper claims in Arizona. Specimens of this ore were received in this city by Captain Delaney and pronounced by an assayer of the richest quality. He was offered $6,000 for the claim, which proposition Captain Delaney told his brother to reject. The bid was increased to $10,000, but was again refused at the request of Captain Delaney. The party who offered these sums became young Delaney's enemy, and involved him in a quarrel with a drunken Mexican woman. While wresting a revolver from the woman, the man fired at Delaney, who, returning the fire, wounded his adversary. A few days later the men met in a cabin when Delaney was again assailed. This time he badly wounded his enemy. Delaney was arrested, but acquitted, the evidence showing that he had acted in self-defense. Threats were then made by the wounded man that he would have Delaney's life, and Delaney thought it advisable to leave for Mexico. During his absence the plot was concerted to implicate him in the Bisbee murder. Delaney's copper claims had been located and perfected under the law, and when he realized that he would be hanged he made a deed of them to his brother John, which was mailed but has not reached its destination. It is believed the deed was stolen from the mail through the instrumentality of those in pursuit of the claims.

ORRIN A. CARPENTER.

He Refuses to Recognize the Right of the Citizens of Lincoln to Order Him to Leave.

LINCOLN, Ill., April 7.—The committee of fifty appointed at the mass meeting here March 26 to "express their views of the subject of crime" convened in the Court House Saturday afternoon, and in a body went to the residence of Orrin A. Carpenter to present him with a copy of the resolutions, among which was "that we demand of the said Carpenter that he leave Logan County without necessary delay."

At the residence Mr. H. L. Pierce, as chairman, advanced to the door and presented the paper inclosed in an envelope, which Mr. Carpenter refused to receive, and it was laid on the floor at his feet, and in response to which he said: "I do not recognize your authority to pass or to present to me any such resolutions, and I refuse to accept them. I have lived a law-abiding citizen in this county for the last thirty years, and I don't know any more about the killing of that girl than you do. I shall use my own judgment and discretion as to my future course. I thank you all for your friendly visit."

The appearance of the procession upon the streets moving in the direction of the Carpenter residence created much excitement, but no demonstration of violence was offered, and no reply was made to Carpenter's refusal to receive the paper, and all is quiet as though the proceeding had not been had. When, where, and how the shocking affair that has so torn up the community will end it is impossible to see or learn. It is reported to-night that suit will be entered against each member of the committee, and it appears from surface indications that the end is far off.

More Grain for the Flood Sufferers.

ELDORADO, Kas., April 7.—A train consisting of twenty-five cars of corn and flour left this city at six o'clock Saturday morning via St. Louis, Ft. Scott & Wichita, Missouri Pacific and Ohio & Mississippi Railways for Cincinnati, being the contributions of the people of Butler County to the Ohio flood sufferers. The train, which contains 10,000 bushels of corn and 4,000 pounds of flour, will be delivered in Cincinnati by the above roads free.

Fatal Family Feud.

GREENSBURG, Pa., April 8.—Saturday night, during a dance at a farm house near Salem, a drunken row occurred in which one man was fatally and three others seriously injured. The fight sprang from an old feud between the McLaughlin and Wagner families, and three brothers of each family took a hand. Elmer McLaughlin struck George Wagner over the head with a paling, splitting open his skull. Wager is living, but the physicians say he cannot possibly recover.

Believed to Have Been Murdered.

STAPLETON, L. I., April 8.—The body of a man found in the woods near New Brighton Saturday last with a sword cane beside it has been identified as that of Carmilio Farachs, a cigar maker of Brooklyn, who was seen Saturday morning going towards Staten Island ferry in company with Antonio Flacomio, a neighbor, and who is believed to have murdered the deceased in a quarrel over business matters.

Stories on the Road.

Commercial Travelers at a Wayside Inn—Something to Put in a Gripsack.

"Gentlemen, I almost envy you the positions you fill; your experience of the world; your knowledge of business; the changing sights you see, and all that you know."

This warmly expressed regret fell from the lips of an elderly pleasure tourist, last August, and was addressed to a semicircle of commercial travelers seated on the porch of the Lindell Hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

"Yes, responded a New York representative of the profession, "a drummer isn't without his pleasures, but he runs his risks too—risks outside the chances of railroad collisions and steamboat explosions."

"What risks for instance?"

"This, for instance," said Mr. W. D. Franklin, who was then traveling for an eastern house, and is known to merchants in all parts of the country. "The risk which indeed amounts almost to a certainty, of getting dyspepsia from general shiftlessness in diet and water and from having no fixed hours for eating and sleeping. I myself was an example. I say, was, for I am all right now."

"No discount on your digestion" broke in a Chicago dry goods traveler, lighting his cigar afresh.

"Not a quarter per cent. But I had to give up traveling for a while. The dyspepsia ruined my paper. Finally I came across an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC. I tried it and it fixed me up to perfection. There is nothing on earth in my opinion, equal to it as a cure for dyspepsia."

Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of New York, the proprietors, hold a letter from Mr. Franklin stating that precise fact. PARKER'S TONIC aids digestion, cures malarial fevers, heartburn, headache, coughs and colds and all chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys. Put a bottle in your valise. Prices 50c and $1. Economy in larger size.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL ARNER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 1st day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Samuel Arner, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Augustus Montgomery, administrator of said estate, alleging among other things that he has paid the debts of said deceased, the expenses of his last sickness and funeral, and praying for the allowance of his final account and for such further order as shall be deemed lawful and necessary, and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 28th day of April, A.D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

OBITUARY.

The Milwaukee Sunday Telegraph of March 30th contains this beautiful tribute to the late Mrs. Geo. L. Graves. When a little child, in all its precious innocence, is tenderly removed from this world to a better one, we know not from what sin and suffering it may have been saved, and our sorrow is tempered by this reflection; and when one laden with years and good deeds is called hence, we feel that when one's task is finished, 'tis well to lie down for a long rest; but when one whose beautiful life has not yet reached its fullness, is taken away from the work that only she could do, and do well, how almost impossible it is to be resigned to say with the heart, as with the lips, 'Thy will be done.' Such an one was Mrs. Geo. L. Graves, whose sweet earth-life came to its close March 27, 1884. With her life was indeed real and earnest, and ever and always she was, what she seemed to be,

"A perfect woman nobly planned."

No one who ever looked in her face could but feel that it was a face with a soul behind it, and a beautiful soul; no one who came into her presence could but feel the influence of that soul, and of her life in all its grace, and purity. It was this rare, sweet influence, this shining forth of the radiant light within the temple, that raised those who saw her only for a brief time, to exclaim, "what a lovely woman!" and it was the same inherent quality that bound to her with strong affection, and ever increasing admiration those who were privileged to know her well, and only they could really appreciate the loveliness of her mind and disposition, the extraordinary strength and nobility of her character, and while they mourn her loss they will ever be grateful that they knew her, and find in her memory an inspiration toward all in life, that is "good and true, and beautiful."

The deceased was a daughter of Hon. Wm. H. Osborn, of this village. Her childhood was passed amid the scenes of the old homestead near Macon. Her education was finished in the Tecumseh High School. To those who were favored with her friendship in the years gone by, no eulogy is necessary. The tribute to her memory by a Milwaukee friend is not overdrawn. The kindly heart, the genial smile, the devotion to duty, the womanly demeanor of her character captivated her youthful companions and bound her associates to her by the strongest ties. And when she had entered upon the scenes and duties of after years, her beautiful maiden life developed into that of a typical wife and mother. The old friends of Sophia M. Osborn, upon hearing of her demise, will feel the choke of sorrow and shed the tear of sympathy for the bereaved husband and motherless children. But in this dispensation the consolation of friends is a feeble reed to lean upon. The stricken husband will look to the Giver of All Good for guidance, taking comfort in the thought that the spirit of the departed one has only "gone before."

The April number of the Baptist Items was issued Tuesday and is fully up to its usual standard of excellence. We are indebted to the Items for a column of news on our local page this week.

Bro. Field is fitting up his office in Bidwell's building, south of Slayton & Kinney's store, and is moving in the material. The first number of the Tecumseh News will be issued next week Thursday.

Frank L. Smalridge, of Detroit, paid Tecumseh a flying visit Tuesday. He is still running a drug store at 702 Jefferson Ave., where he would be pleased to see his Tecumseh friends when they visit the city.

Osborn & Wilson go to Lansing next week to attend the State Shearing Festival. They will take their stock ram "Greasy Bill." Bill's shearing record for three years is, 1st, fleece 22½ lbs.; 2d, 33¾ lbs.; 3d, 40 lbs.

We chronicle this week the marriage of Mr. C. D. Bills and Miss Nettie Faling. Thus another of our young bachelors becomes a benedict. May the union prove a happy one and be blessed with many little responsibilities.

A letter from Rev. G. W. Puddefoot of St. Ignace, says the weather is fine in that section. They had only three rough days in March. The Algomah makes her trips regularly through the ice, while teams still cross the straits on the ice, which is rather a strange sight.

Fred B. Wood now has his "sheepskin," and is an Attorney at Law, fully licensed to practice. With the excellent preliminary training Fred has received, and his extended acquaintance in this section, we predict for him a lucrative and influential practice.

Elliott Gray arrived home from Ireland last Tuesday evening. He left the "old sod" on March 27th and stopped over two days in New York, being just thirteen days on the road. He had a pleasant trip over the Atlantic, although not as quick a one as he has made heretofore.

A new time schedule went into force on the M. & O. road last Sunday. The trains going west run nearly the same as before, but the Eastern trains run considerably later. The connections at Allegan and Monteith and also at Britton with the Wabash will be improved under this arrangement.

Mrs. Spaulding has a lemon tree in her green house which is a curiosity. It contains blossoms, and fruit from the fruit setting to the ripe lemon. She has shipped lemons to both Chicago and Milwaukee. Mrs. Spaulding's stock of flowers is unusually large this spring, and she is prepared to fill all orders promptly.

Coldwater Republican: We are sorry that the Dr. has decided to leave us. He was a good citizen, a hard worker in the cause of temperance, and the workingman's friend and moreover a first class physician. This change also takes another family from us, Mr. Frank Ferguson, his son, who will assist his father in the business. We cannot recommend the Dr. too highly to the citizens of Tecumseh.

Prof. C. M. Vet of Jackson, whose card we publish to-day, is a violinist and musician of a high order, and has consented, at the request of several of our music loving people, to come to Tecumseh once a week, on Tuesday, for the purpose of giving instruction here in music. The pupils of the professor must certainly profit by his practical and excellent method of teaching, and in time become excellent performers on their respective instruments. Should the Prof. find more pupils, he will give more time to his visits here.

The election in Clinton resulted in the choice of the entire Democratic ticket except supervisor, Marstellar, Republican, being elected to that office. Following are the officers chosen, with their majorities

Stroud F. Marstellar, Supervisor, 29.
Charles W. Nash, Clerk, 32.
John B. McAdam, Treasurer, 38.
John W. Gillespie, Commissioner of Highways, 32.
David G. Kuder, Justice of the Peace, 36.
R. B. Gillespie, Drain Com., 38.
Wesley R. Keyser, School Insp't r, 36.
Constables—J. C. Burroughs, W. H. Smith, L. C. Gragg, Alfonso Kuder.

A WORD OF EXPLANATION.

Last Saturday evening Jay Santus, of Ridgeway, came to the HERALD office and left an order for the Democratic tickets of that township. They were promptly printed and with the slips he ordered delivered to him. During the progress of the work, another citizen of Ridgeway who claims to be a Democrat, called and asked for fifty extra tickets to be delivered to him privately and to be paid for by himself. We declined to furnish the tickets without an order from Mr. Santus. Later in the evening, about ten o'clock, and after the Ridgeway tickets had gone he returned and insisted upon having fifty extra tickets, and upon our persistent refusal to print them for him, he proceeded to free his mind in very emphatic language in the presence of several bystanders. We do not make this statement by way of apology. When a man does right no apology is necessary. But we make it to show the citizens of Ridgeway that when a committee bring their election printing to the HERALD office, they can expect; not only to receive good work, but to be treated with good faith.

BEEBE VS. AUSTIN.

Two of Tecumseh's Young Sports Indulge in Ten Rounds of Collar and Elbow at Armory Hall.

About 200 of Tecumseh's sport-inclined citizens assembled at Armory Hall last Tuesday evening to witness the wrestling match between Charles Beebe and Daniel Austin, two amateur wrestlers of Tecumseh. It was to be collar and elbow, best two falls out of three, the winner to have the door money. Floyd Bostwick had been selected as referee and Frank Silvers acted as second to Austin while Ed. Prichard performed the same service for Beebe. At 8:10 o'clock the men came on the floor and were introduced to the audience. Austin was dressed in white pants and red stockings with the usual loose canvass jacket, while Beebe wore white pants and brown stockings and jacket. Both men appeared in good shape though a little nervous, it being their first appearance in the wrestling ring. Austin was about an inch the taller, and 12½ pounds heavier than his opponent, still Beebe had a kind of a "git thar" look about him which inspired confidence in his admirers.

Referee Bostwick called time and the men clinched for the first round. Austin acting on the offensive. After considerable play Beebe got a grapevine lock around Austin's leg and threw him on his side. No fall was the decision. Austin then put in some of his fancy steps and tripped Beebe, thowing him three times in succession, but none were declared fair. At the third fall time was called. This round lasted 8 minutes.

The second round was called at 8:21 and the men came up looking as fresh as ever. Beebe led out and got a toe lock but slipped. He got another hip lock on Austin and in the struggle forced him off the carpet. They were put back again and Beebe got him again and threw him on his side. No fall was declared. Time of round 4 minutes.

The third round Austin secured a grapevine lock and threw Beebe square on his back, and the first fall was declared for Austin.

The fourth and fifth rounds were given to by-play and were of little interest. The sixth round Beebe led out with a grapevine lock and laid Austin on his back as slick as any professional could have done it, amid a thunder of applause, and ended that round. Each now had a fall and the excitement ran high. Beebe seemed to be the favorite. The seventh and eighth rounds lasted five minutes and both men went down several times but no fair fall was called.

The ninth round the men came up to the mark looking a little winded. Beebe got a lock on Austin's hip and they both went to the floor, Austin falling under. The crowd called out a fall for Beebe, claiming that Austin broke his hold to save himself, but Referee Bostwick decided it was no fall. The tenth and last round was won very neatly by Austin, who laid Beebe on his back in about a minute, and he was declared the winner of the money.

The usual number of kickers were present and declared the decisions of the referee one sided, but the majority of the audience seemed to be well satisfied with the rulings, which were in every respect fairly given. The receipts amounted to $26.90.

Next Tuesday evening Austin will wrestle with Ed. Prichard at Armory Hall under the same rules for door money.

FROM THE BAPTIST ITEMS.

Bro. Charles McNeil has been quite ill for the past few days.

Master Robie VanWinkle is just recovering from a long sickness.

Four persons were baptized at Clinton last Saturday eve., the 6th inst.

Bro. Millard Marks has removed his residence to the eastern part of town.

Bro. Thompson and family have moved onto the farm of Bro. J. H. Brainble.

Bro. Frank Beemann has removed to the first house north of A. P. Coldington's.

Mr. and Mrs. Burtel, have moved out upon their farm formerly owned by Mr. Brownell.

Bro. T. Mills has decided to remain in the employ of Mr. Shull another year. A good employer and a good employe.

Bro. D. T. Hall was suddenly called week before last to the State of N. Y., to attend the funeral of his grand mother. He was gone about six days.

Mr. O. B. DeWolf did not go to California. Changed his mind and went to Missouri. Mr. and Mrs. DeWolf, Bertha and Winnie are expected home soon.

The house of O. B. DeWolf has been quite a hospital for the past two weeks. Miss Herring, Roy May and Grace have all been sick. All are better now.

Dr. and Mrs. Hamilton are still very feeble. The doctor enjoyed a short visit a few days since, at the home of Rev. M. E. Hayne, a former pastor of this church.

All our young people, who are at College, came home for the Spring vacation. They were well and hopeful. Everybody was glad to see them and they seemed glad to see everybody.

On the 4th inst. a few of the older members of the church paid Dea. J. C. Clough and wife a surprise visit, a token of esteem. The visit was thoroughly enjoyed by all who went.

Frank Benedict left home March 31st for Ohio. He will soon return with a lady whom he will introduce as Mrs. Benedict. He will then be Benedict in earnest: Benedict by name and a benedict because married. We wish them long, useful and happy lives.

Mrs. Vail, Mrs. A. Yawger's sister, returned to her home in Auburn, about two weeks ago. We regretted to have her go. She had been with us so long that we had come to count her as one of our own people. We hope she will spend another winter with us very soon.

Bro. P. B. Swick now enjoys the reputation of an inventor. He has secured a patent for a thill and hold-back strap combined. Its reception by the public is very encouraging. A few years ago a man in Ypsilanti invented a whip-socket, out of which he made his fortune. We wish Bro. S. the same gratifying result.

The Sabbath School in Dist. No. 5, Clinton, which has been closed during the winter months, opened again April 6th. The members of the school hope to secure the services of the village Pastors from time to time, and trust the school will if possible, be more interesting than last summer. It is the prayer of each teacher, that seed here sown will bear much fruit.

Dr. W. E. Burtless, now of Midland, made his Tecumseh friends a short visit last week. He is practicing medicine and surgery at Midland with very unusual success. His business is very large. Fourteen years ago he was an active worker in our Church S. S., and Society. He was largely the introducer of our library system, and was a long time an efficient secretary of the school.

Hot buckwheat cakes, hot biscuit and maple syrup were served by the friends of the S. S., at the chapel March 20th. The entertainment was a new venture, an experiment. It was a success in a small way. If the weather had not been so unfavorable more would have been made. As it is the library fund is a thing that exists in real cash, not simply in the mind of the Supt. It was encouraging to see the young people take hold and work. It was very discouraging to see so many of the older people, who have children to be benefited by the school, conspicuously absent. This ought not so to have been.

Everybody is enthusiastic over the new choir. The singing is inspiring, and then the members of the choir are reliable. It is a rare day when any of them are absent except for unavoidable causes. The Sunday evening song service is growing in interest and excellence. Can any one tell why the singers persist in taking the back seats at the beginning of every service, making necessary a scene every time in order to get them to take the front seats? The cynic says: They do it so as to be coaxed. The wag says: They do it so that the chorister or pastor may have a weekly opportunity of getting up the sheep. But then we have no sympathy with the cynic and wag, nor with the singer, who takes a back seat.

LAND OF GRASSHOPPERS AND CYCLONES.

As promised a few weeks ago, I will try and give a description of our trip to Kansas. We left home March 3d, took the M. S. R. R. to Chicago and Rock Island to Kansas City. Our train from Chicago consisted of ten coaches, three baggage cars, and drawn by two engines. Everybody and his family seemed to be going to Kansas.

On getting off the train at Kansas City about the first man we met was Mr Linch, who was book keeper, and clerk for Spellacy at Tecumseh. He was as much pleased to see some one he knew as we were. Enquired about the Tecumseh boys in general and sent respects to all. He kindly showed us the city, and by the way, it is a young Chicago, containing between eighty and one hundred thousand inhabitants, and is chuck full of business. There is only one depot and that is called the Union, and all trains center there which makes it very convenient for the traveling public. The city is built on the bluffs of the Missouri river, and to a stranger going in on the cars, he would think it was not a very large place, but go up the hill about 200 feet and he will change his mind. The streets are all up hill and down, and are quite a sight. It seems strange so large a city should be built in such a hilly place when there is so much level land in the west. The tickets we bought at Adrian were to Independence Kansas, were first-class and good for forty days, but any one wishing to visit any part of Southern Kansas or Indian Territory, and purchasing the Independence round trip ticket, can if they desire, on reaching Kansas City, by calling on H. E. Moss, ticket agent for the Kansas and Southern Railway, and the payment of $5, exchange the portion of the ticket over this road for what they call the "grand circuit ticket" which carries you over the Kansas Southern to Windfield, and over the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Road from Windfield back to Kansas City, allowing stop-off at all points south of Ottawa on this line and at Wichita, Newton, Peabody, Florence, Emporia, and Topeka, on the A. T. & S. F. Road. This is the route we took and the first stop we made was at Garnet, Anderson Co. Here we took another road to Mont Ida about 12 miles from Garnett, where we enquired for our old friend Henry Wilson. We found he lived only 2½ miles from town, so we walked out to his ranch. Found Henry feeding his sheep, and he had a fine flock of them, about 750, all looking well. He had about 200 fat ones that he expected to ship to St. Louis the next week, said he had lost only two of his flock this winter. He had a good stock of horses, cattle and hogs, and abundance of corn and hay for all. He owns a quarter section of good land all under cultivation, with a nice creek running through it, and timber along its banks, a good house, plenty of fruit, and comfortable sheds for all his stock. We stayed over night at his house and the next day, and were well entertained by himself and wife. Henry is doing well, and I think his many friends in and about Tecumseh will be glad to hear it. He said tell them he would like to see them at his place any time.

Our next move was back to Garnett, from there south to Cherryvale, Montgomery Co., where we again left our route and took another road to Savery, Greenwood Co., where we had relatives. Found them well and prospering. Stayed there three or four days, looked over the country in Elk and Greenwood Counties. Savery is only four years old, but is a lively little town, with two railroads. From Savery to Howard, which is at the end of a branch of the A. T. & S. F. R. From there took stage across to Moline, ten miles, which brought us back on our route again. Moline to Windfield, which is a fine town in Cowley County. Our next stop was at Wichita, Sedgwick Co. Wichita is the liveliest town we struck in Kansas. It is on the Arkansas river and the nicest farming country about there I ever saw. The town is only fourteen years old but is business. They claim 13,000 inhabitants, have street cars, etc. We attended a blooded cattle sale while there. Yearling heifers of the Hereford breed went off like hot cakes, for $300 to $350. Land is high close to town they ask from $50 to $100 per acre, but these places have good buildings and are in good shape. Of course a few miles from town land is cheaper. Wichita had twenty car loads of corn and provisions on the track which they were going to send to the Ohio sufferers. It was to start March 15, the railroad carrying it free. The cars were nicely decorated with flags and designs. One was a pair of grasshoppers hitched to a big ear of corn; on another it is said "we pay our debts."

From Wichita to Newton, Florence, Emporia and back again to Kansas City. Left the city at 6 P. M., steamboats were running on the river, we crossed the Mississippi at Davenport next morning at 6 o'clock and it was froze about two feet thick; quite a change in twelve hours.

Back to Adrian safe and sound. Met Sheriff Bidwell at the depot, who kindly offered to take us to Franklin and save the county one night's board. Thanks to Charley. In conclusion I would say that I was pleased with Kansas and its productions. Healthy climate, good churches, schools and people more sociable than in Michigan. If they have as good crops the next two years, as the last two, a man can go there and double his money in that time.

NEW TOMATO.

LIVINGSTON'S FAVORITE.—Originated with Mr. Livingston, who also introduced the Acme and Paragon, and presents this as the largest perfect shaped tomato in cultivation. On our Trial Grounds, and in the hands of many others who have tested it during the past season, it has proven not only the largest and handsomest, but one of the best in quality of any on our list. Vine medium, with large dark green, healthy leaves; having numerous clusters of from three to seven large, smooth tomatoes which are a rich, dark color, oval outline, exceedingly smooth, free from all cracks or blemishes, and ripening evenly throughout, flesh very firm but without green spots. This variety seems remarkably free from rot, and must become a favorite with all who try it. Our stock of seed is direct from the originator.

The description we give of this new Tomato is the same as given by a prominent seedsman and from what we saw of it last season we decided to plant largely of it for the early market crop, and can highly recommend it for private gardens. We shall have the plants for sale, growing in small boxes so that they can be taken from the green house and carried any distance and planted when convenient. We shall also have a large supply of plants of all varieties. Early and late Cabbage, Tomato, Celery, &c., for sale in their season at the residences of E. J. Hollister, Tecumseh, and Geo. N. Hollister, South of Comfort's Brick Yard, Raisin.

DIED.

COLEMAN.—At Lake Ridge, April 2nd, 1884, Nelson Coleman, at the advanced age of 77 years.

The deceased was born in Springfield, Otsego County, N. Y., March 17th, 1807, and has been a resident of Lake Ridge since November 1863, where, by his genial and happy temperament he won a large circle of friends. He leaves two sons, also an aged sister and three brothers, two of them older than himself, to mourn his loss. The funeral was conducted by the Rev. Mr. Boyden of the South Macon Dutch Reform Church. Text, 2nd. Corinthians, 5th chapter 1st verse.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame, every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

FOX'S

"BOOK OF MARTYRS" contains many frightful stories of most agonizing suffering. But nothing, either in story or picture, can be more distressful than the sharp, severe, shooting pains daily and nightly endured by those who are martyrs to that most terrible torment, Neuralgia. To get rid of this martyrdom is the first business of those who suffer.

ATHLOPHOROS regenerates painful nerves, and drives out the horrors of Neuralgia.

ATHLOPHOROS gives health to Rheumatic sufferers, which the most skillful physicians have not been able to heal.

ATHLOPHOROS operates on the blood, muscles, and joints; and dissolving the acids that cause Rheumatism, removes them from the system.

ATHLOPHOROS is pronounced by all who have used it, the infallible specific for Gout, Rheumatic and Neuralgic diseases.

Read the testimony of one of the sufferers. David Little, Sumner, Benner Co., Iowa, writes:

"I am past 71 years of age, have had the Rheumatism three years and eight months, last mentioned of my weight, could not walk, but shuffle along on crutches, could not sleep, nerves shattered, no strength in my hands, wrists, knees or feet. But thanks be to God for your great discovery. The medicine arrived Saturday night. I took a dose Sunday morning, felt it all over me, and kept on with it. Monday morning I got up and dressed myself, and walked out into the kitchen without the aid of a crutch or cane, and wished them all a happy New Year. I rest well nights, am gaining in strength, and once more enjoy life. Wish I could put ATHLOPHOROS in the hands of every sufferer from this terrible disease."

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid on receipt of regular price, one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 WALL ST., NEW YORK.

THINK OF IT NOW!

Although much is said about the impurities of the blood, and purifying medicines, it may be possible that the subject has never seriously claimed your attention. Think of it now!

Almost every person has some form of scrofulous poison dormant in his system. When this develops in Scrofulous Sores, Ulcers, or Eruptions, or in the form of Rheumatism, or Organic Diseases, the suffering that ensues is terrible. How to the gratitude of those who discover in the thousands yearly do, that will thoroughly eradicate this evil from the system.

As well expect life without air as health without pure blood. Cleanse the blood with AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists. $1, six bottles for $5.

When you come to think of it, it is not odd that literary people prefer a pipe to a cigar. It is handier to smoke when they are writing, and exer so much cleaner. And then it gives them the true essence and flavor of the tobacco.

The most fastidious smokers among all nations and all classes of men agree that the tobacco grown on the golden Tobacco Belt of North Carolina is the most delicious and refined in the world. Lighter than Turkish, more fragrant than Havanas, free from nitrates and nicotine than any other, it is just what the connoisseur praises and the habitual smoker demands. The very choicest tobacco grown on this Belt is bought by Blackwell's Durham Tobacco Co., and appears in their celebrated Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco. It is known the world over. Get the genuine, with Bull trade-mark, then you will be sure of having absolutely pure tobacco.

MISHAWAKA, Ind., Dec. 1, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY:
Dear Sir—Overwork has done for me what it does for many. Desiring to benefit suffering women, I add my testimony to the value of Zoa-Phora. For three years I suffered greatly with Prolapsus, being obliged to use a supporter during all those painful weary years; but, thanks to your medicine, I wear it no more. I laid it off after using one and a half bottles. I am not well, but I work all the time, and am better than I ever expected to be. You may use my letter, and if any one wishes to write me for more information, give them my full address. MRS. G.
JERSEYVILLE, ILL., April 25, 1882.

DR. PENGELLY:
Dear Sir—I am more than pleased with the effect of your Zoa-Phora in our daughter's case. I am surprised to see how she has improved. She is gaining in weight and color, and I think feels better than she ever did; her nerves are steady, and the distress in her chest is entirely gone. I firmly believe that Zoa-Phora is all that has saved her life. I am willing you should use my letter, for I am not afraid to tell what a wonderful cure your medicine is. Yours respectfully,
MRS. SARAH RANDOLPH.

N. B.—This was a case of suppression.

From Mrs. John Spitler,
No. 28 Wilt St., Fort Wayne, Ind.

I have suffered for sixteen years with spasmodic pain in my head and general nervous debility. Recently I had a severe attack of pain in my head, caused by weakness and nervous exhaustion. I thought I should die. My husband said we would test Zoa-Phora thoroughly. He gave it to me according to directions for severe cases, and in less than two hours I had complete relief. I advise all ladies who suffer from nervous or sick headache, or any form of female weakness, to use Zoa-Phora. There is no medicine to compare with it.

Feminine Fancies.

Basques are not changed in shape from those worn during the winter, with pointed front, short sides, and square postilion plaited back. The most youthful-looking jerseys have a vest of a contrasting color, made of jersey cloth, such as red, cream, or gray inside black wool jerseys, and their rolling collar and the buttons and cuffs and postilion plaitings are of velvet. A great deal of silver braid and metal bees and butterflies will be used on the velvet collar and cuffs and vests of such garments. Buttons are inconspicuous and small, as they are usually hidden either by a coat vest or by the velvet ribbon bows.

Grape hyacinths are among the most popular of the new spring flowers. In their natural colors, white and a pinkish purple, they are remarkably pretty, and trim most effectively. They are much used for trimming small bonnets of delicate gray.

Straight back breadths are one of the features that promise to find favor, but although the drapery is straight, it is so stiffly lined, is as if so voluminous and is worn over so large a pad bustle that a very bouffant effect is given. Three breadths of silk are thus arranged in two triple box plaits, with an erect heading at the top, which is hooked over the end of the basque.

The only universal feature of new draperies is that the fulness begins at the belt, not several inches below it, as its design primarily is to enlarge the hips, and secondarily to soften the severe outlines of the whole costume; otherwise this drapery may drop down far below the knees, or else be very short, or it may be bunched up in a quite short pouf in the back, with straight box plaiting hanging below this pouf to the foot of the skirt, or else the entire back breadths may hang straight from belt to foot.

The newest jerseys are really short postilion basques, and are fitted by tri'nt darts and side forms precisely as other basques are, their only special feature being the webbing of which they are made, and the fact that they have no lining and are cut so very small that they are easily stretched into a smooth, close-fitting garment.

An important feature of the new costumes is the appearance of fullness and width given to the lower skirt; this fullness is confined to the outside, however, as every French dress is made up on a foundation skirt of silk, alpaca or silesia, which remains very narrow and closely gored, measuring not more than two and three-eighths yards around its lowest edge.

Panniers, flounces, sleeves and Moyenne vests are made of escurial net, which forms a most attractive combination with lustrous silk or satin, and which is more popular at present than ever before. An entire dress of escurial net over satin makes a very handsome toilet.

A striking costume of very pale fawn colored cashmere for spring wear is trimmed with sapphire velvet and blue snot with fawn.

Polonaises are straight princesse dresses in the back, with a basque front that may be pointed, or belted with velvet and a clasp, or else in square coat shape a la Louis Quatorze, with square pockets piped with velvet on each side, and a full lace cravat that reaches from the throat to the waist line. Straight full box plaited back breadths are on some of these garments, while others have the middle forms cut off in a point on the tournure, and to these, gathered in a great roll over the pad, are added three straight breadths of silk that hang to the end of the lower skirt; these breadths are lined with stiff lawn, are caught with a tape underneath sewed across half their length below the waist, and are buttoned (invisibly) to the low skirt on each side near the foot.

The long paletots or jackets, with pointed sides and short backs, once in favor for outside wraps, are now revived in the richest black materials, such as gauze velours, jetted net, and Spanish or thread lace over satin surah linings. If the dress is black, it is well, at this intermediate season, to choose black satin charlaunes, or else merveilleux, and have jetted net for a soft vest, and pulled skirt front with tucked satin side panels and full, long black drapery.

Gowns for visiting and afternoon wear will be made of biscuit cashmere or fine ribbed ottoman cloth, another new material, combined with shot silk, velvet or ottoman broche in various shades of color, the most popular being crimson, chartreon, sapphire blue, or rich mistletoe green.

Every shade of fawn, from the palest biscuit to deep plain brule, will be much in vogue this spring, as also an uncommon "unknown" brown, dark chocolate blended with red, and a new tint of bright, warm green.

The spring hats that have made their appearance are straws, the crowns of which are generally very high and the brims narrow, and the shades so striking as to be obtrusive, and to fall back upon bonnets.

The back breadths of foundation skirts still have the springs across them to make them bouffant and the cushion of hair sewed to the belt in the back is the bustle preferred to all others.

Black silks will be much worn this summer. They will be trimmed with lace in preference to jet and passementerie.

The newest and prettiest feather ornaments for the hair are in white, pale pink and pale blue, and are powdered with gold or silver, and mounted as aigrettes.

Velvet ribbons with satin on the wrong side are quite a feature of trimmings for spring silks.—Boston Herald.

—The famous Colonel Crockett was once in company with two men who quarreled, and in consequence of the attempts of the gentlemen present to reconcile them, became so furious that it was thought necessary to control their seemingly impassioned resentment by holding them. Colonel Crockett held one, whose courage he had some reason to doubt, and from whom, during the scuffle, he received a kick on the shins. "See here," said the Colonel, somewhat angered, "if you do that again, I'll let you go." The wrathful man didn't do it again, and the matter was soon honorably ended.

Brother Shinbones Deals.

"Hi yi! ha! ha!" laughed Shinbone Smith as he entered the humble residence of Peter Magull about one o'clock this morning.

"Wha's de matter, Brudder Shinbones?" asked Pete.

"I ben ter Noo Yawk."

And then Shinbones broke down with laughter.

"Wal, tell us all 'bout the cuecus," begged Pete.

"Jes' yo' hole yo' breff a minnit, chile. I ben ter call on Brudder Squeezeout Peabody. When I got dar I fonn' Brudder Wakeup Misery and Brudder Lemuel Patterbury. Dey war' playin' pokah. Did yo' ebber play pokah?"

"Yas, I ben dar," answered Pete, sadly.

"Wal, dey axed me fur ter play, an' I tole 'em dat I didn't know nuffin 'bout de game. Dey 'lowed dat 'twas berry easy fur ter learn, an' dey'd show me how ter play. Wal, I tuk a hand in. Dey lak'd at my hand ebbery time, an' tole me jess how ter let. De funny part on it war dat ebbery time I bet zackly de way dey tole me I got left."

"Doggone me, Brudder Shinbones," exclaimed Pete, "d'dn't yo' know no bettah dan ter do dat?"

"Hyar, now, chile, yo' hole yo' breff till dis hyar darky gets frough. Arter we'd done gone played 'bout 'n hour, I sez to Brudder Wakeup, who war settin' nex' ter me, sez I: 'Brudder Wakeup, I reckon I got dis hyar game 'bout learnt now, so 'f yer don't mind I'll try ter play widout yo' 'sistance.'"

"'Yo'm right welcome, Brudder Shinbones,' sez he.

"'Let de precession wigg'e,' sez I ter he, sez I.

"So we played de nex' hand, an' I held two small pair an' bet like de duce on 'em. Wal, I los' fifty cen's. I didn't say nuffin, 'cause de nex' hand war my deal. De way I shuffled dem dar keerds would 'a' made you tired.

"'Don't wear out de pack,' sez Brudder Lemuel.

"'No, but I want ter get 'em well shuk up,' sez I.

"Wal, I dealed de keerds. Brudder Squeezeout, he put up de ante. Brudder Wakeup he riz it two, an' Brudder Lemuel he doubled it. I seed em' an' went 'em four better. Yo' jess ort ter see dem darkies open deir eyes an' examine deir hands. Brudder Squeezeout, sez he ter me, 'I reckon dat I'll have ter see dat raise an' go yo' one better.' Wal, dey went right on 'round de table raisin' it, an' I stuck right by 'em. Putty soon Brudder Squeezeout begin to look scart.

"'Brudder Shinbones,' sez he, 'yo' got putty good hand, ain't yer?'

"'Fair ter middlin,' sez I.

"Wal, nex' roun', Brudder Squeezeout called me. 'I got a ace high,' sez I. Den dey all looked surprised, an' Brudder Wakeup, sez he ter me, sez he: 'Yo're larnin' putty fast wen yo' know how to bluff.' Den dem blamed fools all showed deir hans. Brudder Squeezeout had fouh twos, Brudder Wakeup had fouh sixes, an' Brudder Lemuel had fouh nines. He reached for de pot, but I sez: 'Hul on, dar!'

"'W'a's de matter wid yo'?' sez he; 'yo' got a ace high.'

"'Yes, sez I: 'but it am de ace of clubs, an' de odder keerds am de king, queen, jack an' ten o' de saine trump.'

"Yo' see, chile, I played that game befoah de wah."—N. Y. Times.

Cut Off His Nose.

Paul Varzerau is a barber employed on the North Side. Theresa Barsaloux, a comely young woman, has long been the idol of the tonsorial Paul. But while reciprocating the affections of the young barber, she was fully aware that a few thousand dollars which she possessed in her own right in a measure placed her above a barber beau. While her feelings were thus nicely balanced, there appeared upon the scene a young man bearing the prosaic cognomen of William Brown. He was a traveling man. His bold methods of wooing were more than a match for the timid advances of Paul Varzerau, and he bid fair to win the maiden and her wealth. Paul saw this with many forebodings.

One of Brown's attractions was a remarkably handsome nose, which was his most noticeable feature. Without it he would have been nobody. It was of the Grecian style, white as a pillar of marble, and as smooth. Young women have been known to lose their hearts to a pair of eyes, to a handsome head of hair, and, in instances of intellectual and spectacled young females, to a torchead. But Theresa fell in love with a nose—the nose of William Brown. She confided this fact to Paul Varzerau, and with words every one of which rasped his feelings as he was wont to rasp the beard of his customers, expatiated upon the wonderful influence which this nose exercised over her. When Paul left that evening he had made a fiendish resolve.

Two days later Paul Varzerau stood behind a chair in the barber-shop where he has learned William Brown was in the habit of getting shaved. It was on the afternoon of the third day that the ill-fated William Brown entered the shop and seated himself in Paul Varzerau's chair. There was his nose—cold, white, symmetrical and smooth. "Aha! A few short seconds and I shall be avenged," thought Paul. And he ground his teeth as he stropped the razor. The keen blade cut a hair in twain.

"Be careful and don't get any lather on my nose," quoth William Brown, "no bay rum on my face, either."

"Scaere! The puppy! how proud he is of his nose. But I must be calm and control myself," thought Paul. He mixed his lather and spread it over the face of his customer who had closed his eyes and seemed to be indulging in the luxury of a doze. He shaved one side of William Brown's face and dulled the razor. Paul stropped the razor back to an edge. He then elevated the chin of the unfortunate man and laid bare his throat. The eyes did not open. Paul held the razor aloft a second. Then with a skillful swoop it descended and cut off the nose of William Brown, who did not even open his eyes. Paul Varzerau stood for a moment paralyzed. The razor fell from his grasp, his knees gave way beneath him, and he tottered out of the door.

The nose was gone.—Chicago News.

Portraits Cut on Thumb Nails.

FINGER NAILS CAMEOED, PRICE $25 AND UPWARD.

The above curious sign, hanging in a parlor window of a small house on a street not a hundred miles from the corner of Broad and Walnut, attracted the attention of a Record representative yesterday afternoon, and ascending the marble steps he rang the bell. A small colored boy, clad in a claret-colored livery, and the front of whose jacket was almost concealed behind several dozen brass buttons, opened the door.

"I want to see the finger-nail man. Is he in?" questioned the scribe.

"Yes, sah. Step this way, sah," and the sable juvenile led the way into a small parlor, in which were seated two very pretty young ladies and a blonde dude; the former together, the latter off in a corner by himself.

"Take a seat, sah," continued the boy, pushing forth a chair, and then vanishing through the door, which he closed behind him.

After an interval of five minutes, during which the reporter got interested in an article in a copy of the Atlantic Monthly for June, 1869, which, with several other specimens of current literature, lay on the center-table, the folding doors of the rear parlor opened and a modest looking young woman came out. She handed a small package to the young ladies, who at once went away, and the blonde dude then stepped forward.

"Aw, Miss Jones, I'm awfully sorry, but I cawn't come to-morrow morning; must go to New York, you know. Won't Saturday do as well? Same time, you know."

Miss Jones acquiesced in the change of time, and the blonde dude departed.

"I was attracted by the sign in your window. May I ask what it means?" asked the reporter.

"Certainly, sir," was the smiling reply; "it means just what it says—finger nails cameoed; that is to say, I will cut a cameo on either of your thumb-nails, portrait, initials, or a crest, just as you choose to have it."

"Is not that something new?"

"It is the very latest idea from Paris, and I am the only manicure in this country who can do it. I studied it for six months there, and only came home about two months ago; but I don't think Philadelphia is up to the cameo idea yet. I have only had three customers for that sort of work. I think I will take an office in New York. I would no doubt do much better over there."

"It seems to be an expensive luxury."

"Well, yes, it is so. To cut a good portrait head on your thumb-nail and then finish it properly I would have to charge fifty dollars; but I could do a crest or a monogram for forty dollars or thirty dollars, or even twenty-five dollars, as I say on the sign."

"What sort of designs have your customers here chosen?"

"All portraits. Two were young men who were engaged and wanted their fiance's portraits done, and the other was a young married lady who had her husband's picture cut. She said it was for his birthday present."—Philadelphia Record.

The Czar's Life

Among the "forbidden literature" now circulating in Russia is the story of one of the most dramatic plots ever recorded in the history of political assassination. The narrative is founded on events which are said to have taken place in St. Petersburg shortly after General Gourko had been called from Odessa to act as quasi-Military Governor of the Russian capital. One bright May morning, when the excitement was at its height, the watchful eye of a policeman posted at the top of the Nevsky prospect caught sight of an equipage coming up the thoroughfare at a trot. It bore armorial devices well known in the Russian capital; the coachman was there who persisted in being wigged in defiance of his master's orders, to the great merriment of St. Petersburg jehus; on each side rode the regular escort of six mounted Cossacks, each holding his lance in rest and wearing his ball of forage slung over his shoulder more as if he was campaigning on the Don than upon civil service in the streets of the capital. General Gourko and his escort—the guardian of the peace had easily recognized and hastily saluted his chief, the new Prefect of Police—turned into the cavalry parade, at the top of the Nevsky prospect, and at once made their way into the Alexander Square, on the Neva side of which rose the massive and somewhat fantastic outlines of the winter palace. The equipage having drawn up at the side entrance of the building, the General alighted and rang. On the doorkeeper presenting himself—an officer of the Emperor's private guard—the prefect briefly stated the object of his visit. He desired an immediate conference with the Czar. The hour was early, day having only just dawned. At the same time his business brooked no delay—it concerned the safety of the Emperor himself. The janitor was at first inexorable, expostulating that his imperial master had been already in bed an hour. Yet at last he yielded. Up the broad staircase they went together. They trod on gorgeous carpets, brushed past the wealth of the winter palace in malachite and lapis lazuli, only pausing in their ascent when they had reached a landing giving access to one of the capacious saloons. At this point General Gourko was instructed to wait. At this point, too, the Czar's officer seems to have repented of his decision. The narrative represents him as closely scrutinizing the prefect of police in the growing light, and of subsequently proceeding in the direction of the Emperor's sleeping apartments, in no great haste to arouse royalty from its first slumber. The man did not arouse the Czar at all. What he did was to descend to the guard-room and dispatch a messenger. The man left the palace on the Neva side. He there took a droshky, and drove past the side entrance into the Nevsky. During his absence the Czar calmly slept on; General Gourko impatiently paced the saloon, and the military guardian of the imperial bedchamber went about giving some orders to the palace guards.

In a quarter of an hour the messenger returned. He had been sent to General Gourko's residence, in the Nevsky prospect, and he brought back the information that the Prefect of Police was at that moment in bed. The early visitor was thus an imposter. He was something more, for from his pockets, after he had been seized and pinioned, they drew forth a six-barreled revolver and a two-edged hunting knife. The Czar's life had been saved, yet had hung for a few moments in the balance. The made-up Gourko—the Prefect of Police, imitated down to the minutest details of hair, complexion and wig—might have deceived even the Emperor himself. Not a whit less perfect was the art which had reproduced the Gourko coach and escort. Only the sham Prefect was secured, and not his confederates. Simultaneously with the arrest guards had rushed from the palace to seize the latter. But the equipage had gone, the Cossacks were gone, the coachman was gone. A policeman afterward told how he had seen the cavalcade pass over one of the Neva bridges and disappear in a thoroughfare of Basil Island. The carriage was never found, and, for all that could be ascertained concerning them or their steeds, the six Cossacks may be mounted and riding, lance in rest, to this day. As for the chief actor in the plot, the conspirator who only failed in his impersonation of General Gourko because of his inability to be in two places at one and the same time time, his personality has never been discovered. He is the one mystery which the Nihilists themselves have never been able to penetrate. His secret remains with him, and he keeps it to the present moment, for he is still a prisoner in the island fortress of Peter and Paul.—N. Y. Herald.

The Character of Henry V.

E. S. Brooks, in an article on "Harry of Monmouth, the Boy General," in the St. Nicholas, thus takes issue with Shakespeare in his estimate of the character of Henry V.:

"But when you come to read in Shakespeare's matchless verse the plays of 'King Henry IV.' and 'King Henry V.,' do not, in your delight over his splendid word-pictures, permit yourself to place too strong a belief in his portrait of young 'Prince Hal,' and his scrapes and follies and wild carousals with fat old Falstaff and his boon companions. For the facts of history now prove the great poet mistaken; and 'Prince Hal,' though full of life and spirit, fond of pleasure and mischief, and, sometimes, of rough and thoughtless fun, stands on record as a valiant, high-minded, clear hearted and conscientious lad. 'And when we reflect,' says one of his biographers, 'to what a high station he had been called whilst yet a boy; to what important commissions he had been intrusted; how much fortune seems to have done to spoil him by pride and vain-glory from his earliest youth, this page of our national records seems to set him high among the Princes of the world; not so much as an undaunted warrior and triumphant hero, as the conqueror of himself, the example of a chastened, modest spirit, of filial reverence, and of a single mind bent on his duty.'

"The conqueror of himself! It was this that gave him grace to say, when crowned King of England in Westminster: 'The first act of my reign shall be to pardon all who have offended me; and I pray God that if He foresees I am like to be any other than a just and good King, He may be pleased to take me from the world rather than seat me on a throne to live a public calamity to my country.' It was this that gave him his magnificent courage at Agincourt, and in the midst of the gorgeous pageant which welcomed him at London, made him refuse to let his battle-bruised helmet and his dinted armor be displayed as trophies of his valor. It was this that kept him brave, modest and high minded through all the glories and successes of his short but eventful life; that made him the idol of the people, and one of the most brilliant figures in the crowded pages of English history."

"Didn't Know It Was Loaded."

The supreme and unutterable idiot who killed a Brooklyn girl the other day because he "didn't know it was loaded" has been arrested. It is a question whether such stupidity as he exhibited is not as bad as deliberate malice. Certainly hanging the wretches guilty of it would be quite as likely to deter others as that penalty deters those who kill from other motives.

He was spending the afternoon with three or four young ladies, and after a pleasant talk asked them if they wished to be mesmerized. He said he was a mesmerist, and they laughingly agreed to put themselves under his influence. They were accordingly seated, and after a few passes he drew a heavy four-barreled revolver from his hip-pocket. The young women were frightened, and prayed him to put up the weapon. He refused, and said he needed it in order to mesmerize them. One of them ran across the room and stooped behind a chair, remarking that she didn't like that kind of slight-of-hand performance. This amused him, and to their consternation he flourished his weapon more than ever, turning it upon Miss Renny. She, being frightened, started to run for the next room. He laughed, cocked his weapon and pulled the trigger. A report was heard, and Miss Renny fell to the floor with a bullet in her forehead. The shock so startled them that nobody moved. Then Riley exclaimed: "My God! what have I done?" Of course, he was "sorry," and "distracted," and "grieved," and "didn't know it was loaded." But it was loaded, and he, like so many of his idiotic kind, had fooled with it and taken a life.

Ought not a person endowed with so low an order of intelligence be put where he can do no further harm? When a pet dog or bear or leopard or any other dangerous animal begins to bite and tear those whom it plays with, even in sport, it is generally agreed that they are dangerous and ought to be dispatched. So long as fools can provide themselves with pistols, are they not as perilous as dogs with teeth, or bears and leopards with claws?—Detroit Free Press.

Rheumatic Syrup Co:

Gents—I feel it my duty to recommend your wonderful medicine—"Rheumatic Syrup"—to all who are suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia or kidney difficulty.

I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism, caused by kidney difficulty, and have been treated by our best physicians, but they failed to reach my case or benefit me in the least.

I saw in the Auburn papers the names of a number who had been permanently cured by the use of Rheumatic Syrup, and, being acquainted with many of them, I was induced to try it, and to my surprise I found that all pain had left me before I had finished the first bottle. I continued its use for a time, and to-day I am well as ever and feel no more pain or trouble with my kidneys. It has been several months since I discontinued its use, so I know it is a permanent cure in my case.

I can testify that Rheumatic Syrup will do all—yes, more than you claim for it. I am yours truly,

Mrs. Hattie Paddock.

New Prolific Tree Bean.

Having raised them for main crop the past season, I can conscientiously give them the following recommend: On good soil they will yield an average of about 150 pods to the tree, 6 or 7 grains to the pod, and 60 bushels to the acre if planted AS DIRECTED. They closely resemble the Navy Bean, cook in much less time than the Navy, are very white, and of excellent flavor. Having but one stalk in a hill they are much easier cultivated than five to seven stalks of any common variety, and can be left in the hill until all are fully matured, thereby avoiding liability to mould. They should be planted as soon as danger from frost is over, in rows two feet apart, and 15 or 18 inches in the row, more than one stalk in a hill will not do, and if more is planted, thin when two inches high to one plant in a hill, and they will completely cover the ground. About four quarts plants an acre. Try them and for main crop you will grow no other. Net price per quart, 25 cents.

"THE THIRD HOUSE."

Its Good and Bad Members-The Remarkable Experiences of a Close Observer of its Workings During a Long Residence at Washington.

(Corresponding Rochester Democrat.)

No city upon the American continent has a larger floating population than Washington. It is estimated that during the sessions of congress twenty-five thousand people, whose homes are in various parts of this and other countries, make this city their place of residence. Some come here, attracted by the advantages the city offers for making the acquaintance of public men; others have various claims which they wished present, while the great majority gather here, as the crows flock to the carrion, for the sole purpose of getting a morsel at the public crib. The latter class, as a general thing, originate the many schemes which are neither directed at the public treasury, or toward that revenue which the black-mailing of corporations or private enterprises may bring.

While walking down Pennsylvania avenue the other day I met Mr. William M. Ashley, formerly of your city, whose long residence here has made him unusually well acquainted with the operations of the lobby.

Having made my wants in this particular direction known, in answer to an interrogative, Mr. Ashley said:

"Yes, during my residence here I have become well acquainted with the workings of the 'Third House,' as it is termed, and could tell you of numerous jobs, which, like the 'Heathen Chinee,' are peculiar."

"You do not regard the lobby, as a body, vicious, do you?"

"Not necessarily, there are good and bad men comprising that body, yet there have been times when it must be admitted that the combined power of the 'Third House' has overridden the will of the people. The bad influence of the lobby can be seen in the numerous blood-bills that are introduced at every session."

"But how can these be discovered?"

"Easily enough, to the person who has made the thing a study. I can detect them at a glance."

"Tell me to what bills do you refer?"

"Well, take the annual gas bills, for instance. They are introduced for the purpose of bleeding the Washington Gas Light company. They usually result in an investigating committee which never amount to anything more than a draft upon the public treasury for the expenses of the investigation. Another squeze is the abattoir bills, as they are called. These, of course, are fought by the butchers and market men. The first attempt to forge a bill of this discription was in 1877, when a prominent Washington politician offered a fabulous sum for the franchise."

"Anything else in this line that you think of, Mr. Ashley?"

"Yes, there's the job to reclaim the Potomac flats, which, had it become a law, would have resulted in an enormous steal. The work is now being done by the Government itself, and will rid the place of that malarial atmosphere of which we hear so much outside the city."

"During your residence here have you experienced the bad results of living in this climate?"

"Well, while I have not at all times enjoyed good health, I am certain that the difficulty which laid me up so long was not malarial. It was something that had troubled me for years. A shooting, stinging pain that at times attacked different parts of my body. One day my right arm and leg would torture me with pain, there would be great redness, heat and swelling of the parts; and perhaps the next day the left arm and leg would be similarly affected. Then again it would locate in some particular part of my body and produce a tenderness which would well nigh drive me frantic. There would be weeks at a time that I would be afflicted with an intermitting kind of pain that would come on every afternoon and leave me comparatively free from suffering during the balance of the twenty-four hours. Then I would have terrible paroxysms of pain coming on at any time during the day or night when I would be obliged to lie upon my back for hours and keep as motionless as possible. Every time I attempted to move a chilly sensation would pass over my body, or I would faint from hot flashes. I suffered from a spasmodic contraction of the muscles and a soreness of my back and bowels, and even my eyeballs become sore and distressed me greatly whenever I wiped my face. I became ill-tempered, peevish, fretful, irritable and desperately despondent."

"Of course, you consulted the doctors regarding your difficulty?"

"Consulted them well I should say I did. Some told me I had neuralgia others that I had inflammatory rheumatism, for which there was no cure, that I would be afflicted all my life, and that time alone would mitigate my sufferings."

"But didn't they try to relieve your miseries?"

"Yes, they vomited, physiced me blistered and bled me, plastered and oiled me, sweat, steamed and everything but froze me, but without avail."

"But how did you finally recover?"

"I had a friend living in Michigan who had been afflicted in a similar way and had been cured. He wrote me regarding his recovery and advised me to try the remedy which cured him. I procured a bottle and commenced its use, taking a table-spoonful after each meal and at bed time. I had used it about a week when I noticed a decrease of the soreness of the joints and a general relief. I persevered in its use and finally got so I could move around without limping, when I told my friends that it was Warner's Safe Rheumatic Cure that had put me on my feet."

"And do you regard your cure as permanent?"

"Certainly, I haven't been so well in years as I am now, and although I have been subjected to frequent and severe changes of weather this winter I have not felt the first intimation of the return of my rheumatic trouble."

"Do you object to the publication of this interview, Mr. Ashley?"

"Not at all, sir. I look upon it as a duty I owe my fellow creatures to alleviate their sufferings so far as I am able, and any communication regarding my symptoms and cure that may be sent to me at 506 Maine avenue will receive prompt and careful attention."

"Judging from your recital, Mr Ashley, there must be wonderful curative properties about this medicine?"

"Indeed, there is, sir, for no man suffered more nor longer than did I before this remedy gave me relief."

"To go back to the original subject, Mr Ashley, I suppose you see the same familiar faces about the lobby session after session?"

"No, not so much so as you might think. New faces are constantly seen and old ones disappear. The strain upon lobbyists is necessarily very great, and when you add to this the demoralizing effects of late hours and intemperate habits and the fact that they are found out, in their steals, their disappearance can easily be accounted for."

"What proportion of these blood bills are successful?"

"A very small percentage, sir. Notwithstanding the power and influence of the lobby, but few of these vicious measures pass. Were they successful it would be a sad commentary upon our system of government, and would virtually annihilate one branch of it. The great majority of them are either reported adversly or smothered in committee by the watchfulness and loyalty of our congressmen."

Advertising Cheats!!!

"It has become so common to write the beginning of an article, in an elegant, interesting manner,

"Then run it into some advertisment that we avoid all such,

"And simply call attention to the merits of Hop Bitters in as plain, honest terms as possible,

"To induce people

"To give them one trial, which so proves their value that they will never use any thing else."

"THE REMEDY so favorably noticed in all the papers,

"Religious and secular, is

"Having a large sale, and is supplanting all other medicines,

"There is no denying the virtues of the Hop plant, and the proprietors of Hop Bitters have shown great shrewdness.

"And ability

"In compounding a medicine whose virtues are so palpable to every one's observation."

Did She Die?

"No.

"She lingered and suffered along, pining away all the time for years,

"The doctors doing her no good.

"And at last was cured by this Hop Bitters the papers say so much about.

"Indeed! Indeed!

"How thankful we should be for that medicine."

A Daughter's Misery.

"Eleven years our daughter suffered on a bed of misery,

"From a complication of kidney, liver, rheumatic trouble and Nervous debility,

"Under the care of the best physicians,

"Who gave her disease various names,

"But no relief,

"And now she is restored to us in good health by as simple a remedy as Hop Bitters; that we had shunned for years before using it."—THE PARENTS.

Father is Getting Well.

"My daughters say:

"How much better father is since he used Hop Bitters."

"He is getting well after his long suffering from a disease declared incurable."

"And we are so glad that he used your Bitters."

Cover Your Heads!

One week ago we opened our new Hat and Cap Department, and although we felt sure of the support of the public in our new venture we were not prepared to see our sales for the week fully double our expectations. Everyone should see our celebrated $1 Hat, which is sold by other dealers at $1.50. This Hat we make our specialty. We purchase such large quantities to supply our different stores that we can well afford to sell them at $1, and still have a fair profit. Our $1.50 Stiff Hats in all the latest shapes; other dealers price $2. Our $2 and $2.50 Hats, from the best makers, and our $3, $3.50, $4 and upwards, are all fine imported English Stiff and Soft Hats. Every line we sell at 50 cents less than elsewhere in the city.

Confirmation Suits!

We are showing a Large Stock of Suits for boys to wear when taking their first communion. We are offering special bargains in Boys' Dark Suits in all prices. The assortment of styles and patterns is the most varied and extensive we have had for years. Intending purchasers will save themselves time and trouble by coming direct to our store, for they not only have the advantage of our large stock to select from, but will find our prices lower, our goods better made and trimmed, and our styles newer than you can find elsewhere.

JERSEY SUITS!

We have just received a large consignment of imported English Jersey Suits for boys and children. They are durable and stylish. Every mother is invited to call and inspect them.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

MACON MOLECULES.

Maude Howell commenced her school Monday.

Franc Richart is teaching in Clinton township.

A large number was in attendance at the sugar festival last week. Proceeds over $7.

Spencer Morgan intends to go West this week. Horace Greeley's advice is still heeded.

It is rumored that the "Corners" is to have a sidewalk. A good idea after "the mud has dried up".

Since the last change, we receive our mail two days behind time. A nice arrangement! We hope the next change will be to consolidate the Macon and Ridgeway postoffices with headquarters at the latter place.(?)

Frank Odell is making preparations to build an addition to his house.

Carl and Mark Mills leave for Detroit soon, where they will take a commercial course.

Dr. Howell attended the county convention at Adrian last Monday.

In our notice of James Lindsley's marriage, we got the lady's name wrong. It should have been Anna Snauble and not Mary Snobles, as the types made it read last week.

HOLLOWAY HAPPENINGS.

Mrs. Eli Chatfield who has been very ill for some time is now improving.

Uncle Libni Kelly was taken last week with a very severe chill, but is now considered out of danger.

Measles and scarlet fever are visiting sections of our community.

Holloway will endeavor to support two butcher shops this summer.

Mr. Thos. Miller, who has just taken his degree as M. D., at Washington, is visiting his friends here.

C. W. Arner began work this week in a hardware store at Wellington, O.

Mr. Sumner Satterthwaite has left the Quaker mill, and will try something else.

Wm. Calhoun has rented his farm and moved into Tecumseh.

Sutton is now a regular station on the Lake Shore, and tickets are sold to and from all points. It has a post office also.

Quarterly meeting services were conducted at the Friend's Church last Saturday and Sunday.

The base ball boys will come out strong this season; two clubs will be organized next Saturday at the village.

Miss Carrie Doty, who has been adjudged a full fledged school ma'am by the board, will begin teaching this week up in Rollin. She entertained a few of her young friends very pleasantly last Friday evening, before going away.

Minnie Jones of Tecumseh, will preside as teacher in the Kelley district.

Maud Simmons began teaching last week in the township of Franklin.

Last Thursday evening the church gave a sugar festival at Mr. Kishpaugh's. The sugar was sweet, the girls noisy, and at last accounts Mr. K's house was still standing.

Miss Eliza Jackson, whom every student at the Raisin Valley Seminary will remember, goes this week to Kansas to live. She leaves behind a host of friends who earnestly wish her every success in her new home in the west.

SPRINGVILLE SNUFF.

John Kerr, Jr., expects to start for Texas in about two weeks.

Several letters have been received from Sewel Matherson and he seems to be enjoying Brooklyn City life highly.

Mr. Oliver, of N. Y. City, still remains at C. E. Jessups' in a critical condition.

C. D. Smith and John Ladd commenced business in Tecumseh last Monday, on a house for J. H. Smith.

The Good Templars' Sugar Party given on last Tuesday evening was quite well attended considering the unfavorable weather.

J. C. Kinney having gained sufficient strength to attend to business, will return to Cincinnati soon.

W. H. Smith is still compelled to use the crutch. Hope to see him able to throw it away soon.

RIDGEWAY RUMBLINGS

Montie Florence is very sick.

Vote Miller called around among his friends last week.

John Houseman has purchased the Sanford lot and is busy repairing. His intention is to make it his home in the near future.

P. W. Cadmus has moved his shop on a lot which he purchased for the purpose, and David Coryell has removed the blacksmith shop in the rear of his store for a store-room. Purdy Haight is to occupy the former for a shoe shop.

The program furnished at the literary last Friday evening was well received and highly commended. With one exception, every person published to take part was present and fulfiled the part assigned with credit.

The Ridgeway Enterprise is now the leading paper of this town and is doing an extended business in its advertising columns. This has resulted so profitable (?) to the editor that a rival publication is seriously contemplated, the advent of which is announced for Friday evening, April 25th.

At the next regular meeting of the Literary Society, to be held Friday evening, April 25th, the following program will be presented;

Devotional Exercises.
Music—Miss Nellie Clark.
Recitation—Miss Lottie Arner.
Declamation—Rev. Peter Sharp.
Music—Mrs. Frank Temple.
Recitation—Miss Luella Wilson.
Select Reading—Harry Wood.
Poem—Dr. D. W. Loree.
Music—A. J. Sutton.
Paper—Miss Kittie Clark.

RECESS, TEN MINUTES.

Music—Miss Allie Arner.
Debate—That frequent elections are conducive to more corruption than honesty. Aff.—A. E. Palmer. Neg.—Geo. D. Arner. Followed by open discussion.

Admission free, but collection taken to meet necessary expenses.

Exercises begin promptly at 7:30. Doors closed during each exercise to avoid interruption.

BY ORDER OF COM.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

"The day is cold and dark and dreary."

The Episcopal church has purchased a new chapel organ.

Geo. Freeze, of Detroit, was in town Monday.

B. O. Randall & Co., are shipping about 25 barrels of eggs a week.

Ed. Stansfield, of Des Moines, Iowa, is here among friends for a few days.

Port Smith has a new partner in the livery business; weight 9½ lbs. Mother and son are doing well.

T. H. Biggins has moved into the Bert Tate house.

James C. McAdams, of Cadillac, this state, was visiting friends in town the early part of this week.

Ed. Van DeMark now occupies the brick dwelling of Nelson Miller.

The Blue Ribbon club gave a supper, followed by an entertainment, at Town Hall, Wednesday night.

J. E. McCollum has moved his stock of clothing into Mr. Clark's building on the North side of the street.

Mrs. Hill and her grandson have moved into Lester Rickerson's house.

A. C. Huntington, formerly superintendent of the woolen mills, was in town Friday and Saturday of last week.

Hanny Ensign has been visiting at D. H. Davis. Mysie McCall of Hanover, Ill., was here also, over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas C. Burroughs were the happy recipients of a present last Tuesday. 'Twas a fine boy, about the usual color, and weighed 9½ pounds.

Geo. W. Lewis of South Bend, Ind., who was for a long time superintendent and stockholder of the woolen mills, was here Monday to attend the annual meeting of the stockholders of that corporation.

Mrs. Larzelere has been repairing her residence recently occupied by F. H. Biggins, for her own use. Her grandson, Charles, will live with her.

Some party or parties, with more ambition than brains, sawed two maple trees half off in front of the residence of Mrs. Smith, on Jackson St.; one of them, in consequence, fell down in the storm Tuesday night. If he or they are caught, the extreme penalty for such cases would be too little for so mean a trick.

The annual meeting of the Episcopal Church for this Parish was held Monday night at the church. The officers elected for the ensuing year, were: Wardens, J. S. Kies, Peter Kishpaugh. Vestrymen, W. V. Fisk, E. VanDeMark, E. Slinger, Thomas Mathews, Victor Haywood. Secretary, D. Keyes. Treasurer, Peter Kishpaugh.

The Band assisted by the Dramatic club, played "Out in the Street" to a fair house in Manchester last Friday night. They repeat it here to-morrow, Friday night. The boys are trying to raise money for a new set of instruments which they need. Their show is good, and this community ought to patronize it.

Last Sunday Ab. Ward burned his hands quite badly in his efforts to save a little boy, four years old, whose clothing in some way took fire. The boy's name is Limpricht and is now considered out of danger.

John T. Clark has been putting up a new wind-mill with a derrick 50 feet high; and he proposes to have a tank of 50 barrel capacity raised high enough to force the water into nearly all his fields. He is having a drive well put down to supply the water.

Easter Sunday was appropriately observed by the Churches here. It is a growing custom, not only with the Episcopal church, but with other denominations, to celebrate the event which this day commemorates; and our churches are not behind in this respect. St. John's church was decorated and each Sunday School scholar received a beautiful Easter card. The Congregational church was also decorated, the Sunday School having had an Easter concert. The pastor of the Methodist church delivered a very good Easter sermon, and the Baptist church appropriately held the day with a concert that was well received.

Detroit parties were here last week to look at the woolen mills with a view of purchasing it. The Mill has now been idle for some time and it is generally understood that it will not be started again under the present management. A meeting of some of the stockholders was held Friday night to confer with the Detroit parties; but on account of the price, or for some other reason unknown to the public, no sale was effected. It seems a pity that the mill which has been and can be a benefit to this town should remain dead property. If it remains idle too long, it is liable to become as large a white elephant on the hands of some people in this town as the Biddle house is on Uncle Luther Beecher's of Detroit.

AN HONEST SHOW.

There is something in the tone of the advertising literature, and indeed even in the beautifully colored pictorial bills of the Anglo American Circus of four combined shows, that commends itself to the attention of a reasonable public. It is so full of consistent reasoning that one is compelled to admit that it means just what it says. The extravagant waste of superfluous adjectives and meaningless titles are conspicuous by their entire absence, and to the disinterested observer one is at a loss to conscienciously doubt the sincerity of every promise made. It is an extreme delight to commend to the public such an honest enterprise, and it is only justice to state that it is in all respects a show, meriting the largest patronage. It will attract tremendous crowds too. Tecumseh, Monday, May 5.

AUCTION SALES.

Galusha Case having sold his farm will sell at public auction on the premises two miles east of Springville on town line, known as the Wheeler farm, Friday, April 18th, at noon, one span of mules, 1 horse, mower, grain drill, double harness, household furniture, 2 cows, plows, drags, cultivators, stoves, corn, 150 sheep, quantity of oats, etc. Twelve months credit Ben Reynolds, Auctioneer.

Thomas Quarton having sold his farm will sell at auction on the premises, 3 miles east and half mile north of Pennington's Corner, Macon, on Thursday, April 24th, 50 ewes with lamb and in lamb, 22 yearling sheep, yearling bull, 15 hogs, 1 sow and pigs, 30 chickens, farming tools, wagons, harness, mower, household goods, etc. Twelve months credit. H. W. Stevens, Auctioneer.

Farmers, as much as any class of men in the world, should keep scrap books and fill them with agricultural matter clipped from papers and magazines. Such books are always handy and valuable for purpose of reference. They are indispensable to men who desire to keep well informed in regard to any profession, science or enterprise or to know the tone of public opinion as to current topics of thought. How many farmers will try it? If any should try it for one year, he would not part with that volume for ten times the cost of it.

As spring draws on apace, street corners and dry goods boxes in front of stores are becoming the popular resort of a class of men the world would be better off without. The man of action and the industrious citizen will often wonder what such fellows were created for. The only solution we can give is that they eat as much as anybody and thus prevent an over production of provisions.—Ex.

A Georgia preacher said: "I once loaned a cart and ox to some boys to go to a camp meeting. They tied a nubbin of corn to the shaft so it would be a few inches ahead of the animal's nose. He came near running himself to death trying to get it. Brethren, the devil keeps a dollar just ahead, and many of you are killing yourselves trying to get it.

Wauseon Republican: "A returned Dakotian seems to be a little sarcastic in his remarks regarding that country. He says, 'every bunch of willows is a great forest, every pond a lake, every dry ravine a roaring river, every town a county seat, and every man a d——d liar.'"

Tecumseh Herald

TECUMSEH, MICH., APR. 17, 1884.

THE ANCIENT MINER'S STORY.

Oh yes, I'm fixed as solid, sir, as most of folks you seek;
At least the coyote Poverty has ceased to sniff at me;
That mine is worth a million down—that is, it is to-day;
What it might cost to-morrow, though, I couldn't exactly say.

A boy in old Connecticut—this dream I used to hold;
What if the cellar of our house should spring a leak with gold,
And I from there at any time a shining lump could bring?—
I've got a cellar in this rock that's just that sort o' thing.

The sum my father slaved himself for twenty years to pay
I've taken out of that there hole in less than half a day.
If I could lead him up yon path, I'd make him smile, at least;
But his old labor-hardened hands are moldering in the East.

I'd pack my mother up this hill, and open to her view
Enough to give a benefit to all the poor she knew;
I'd pan a heap o' happiness out of her dear old face;
But mother's struck a lead of gold in quite a different place.

My girl? Well, may-be this is soft; but since the question's put
I wouldn't tell this to any one except "a tenderfoot"),
We used to climb those Eastern hills (she was a charming witch),
And prospect on what we would do when I had "struck it rich."

But her old father hadn't the heart to let us marry poor,
And so I shook off Yankee dust and took a Western tour.
My trip it lasted several years. The old man grieved, no doubt,
I swore I never would come back till I could buy him out.

You don't know what it is to hunt and drift from day to day,
To strike a vein that almost shows, then dodges clean away.
You do? Well, yes; but have you starved, and begged, and almost died,
With treasures that you couldn't find heaped up on every side?

And then her letters wandered, like; then tapered to an end;
I wondered on it for a while, then wrote a school-boy friend;
And just as I had struck this mine, and my old heart beat high,
There came a letter up the gulch—it was my friend's reply.

"She's been a-wandering in her mind the other afternoon
She went within the asylum walls, as crazy as a loon."
* * * * * * *
A rush across the barren plains, a snail's railroad ride,
And I was in the asylum, too, a-kneeling at her side.

I thought she knew me, just at first; but soon she shrank away
And never looked at me again, whatever I might say,
She wanders round or crouches in a western window niche,
And says: "My love will come to me when he has 'struck it rich.'"

No word or look for me. Oh, but the Eastern hills were cold!
And something seemed to always say: "Go back and love your gold!"
And I came back; and in this hut my purpose is to stay—
A miser, with his treasure bright already stowed away.

I'm President, Cashier and Board of quite a wealthy bank,
With none except myself to please—and no one else to thank;
But nothing makes my heart beat fast—and I am growing old,
With not a thing to love or leave except this pile of gold.

But I have learned a thing or two; I know as sure as fate,
When we lock up our lives for wealth, the gold key comes too late;
And that I'm poorer now than through those happy days in which
I owned a heart, and did not know that I had "struck it rich."

AN INDIAN GIRL'S REVENGE.

The legends of the various Indian tribes of South America furnish no more terrible one than that of Saw-na-da-wa, the "Berry Hunter," a young girl possessed of more than ordinary beauty for one of her race. The daughter of the Chief of the Aburanian tribe of Guatemala, she was naturally proud of her blood and station, and revengeful of an insult to very desperation. Often had she been wooed, but never won. The arrow that was to reach her breast appeared not to have been feathered until Carlos Estalez, an agent for a fur house, took up his abode in the vicinity of her people and filled her ears with a glowing account of how Pocahontas had been respected and treated. Then her pride awoke as it never had before, and she longed for such a position. Her fondness for attention was flattered by his constant visits to the wigwam of her father, and her love of dress pampered by his showy presents. She held her head still higher above her companions passed them with a cold stare and haughty tread, and took but little pains to disguise her determination to become the wife of the white man.

And, so far from other female society that was at all attractive, it was very pleasant, without doubt, for Estalez to coquette with the Indian girl—to have her watch for his coming—to see that she dressed and decorated herself exclusively for him, and to feel that she loved him. But it was a very dangerous pastime. The fox was not more crafty nor the rattlesnake more treacherous and bitter for him if he had made either of them a companion. Yet the girl loved him to adoration. He was by far the most handsome man that had ever trodden her shores; one, in fact, that any girl would gladly have accepted for a lover, bringing, as he did, the charms of education and money to back those of manly bearing and beauty.

During the entire winter he had been attentive to the Indian girl, and with the coming of the warmer months they often floated over the crystal waters of the rivers or wandered through the evergreen woods. At first Estalez had thought nothing of her, save as a pleasant companion; but as the days passed his stay protracted, and orders coming for him to remain another year he began to realize she was very necessary for his comfort, and his liking grew into something very like to love. Then he built a wigwam of much greater pretensions than any in the village, and resolved that she should fill it; in short, be his wife—wife, as such marriages were viewed by him—that is, simply marriages of conveniences, to be entirely ignored by the husband when he departed, no matter though half a dozen half-breed children had the right to call him father.

There was one of the number that constituted Carlos' party that looked more than did a[illegible] and Pedro Miguel had been a trader and trapper among the red men in that locality for more than a score of years. He knew their character too well to judge them otherwise than aright, and he shook his head solemnly as he saw the matter verging toward a climax.

"What are you taking so much trouble about that wigwam for, Carlos?" he asked Estalez one day, as he saw the rude but comfortable structure near completion.

"To live in, Padro," was the answer.

"Wasn't the one you wintered in good enough?"

"No; it was cold and uncomfortable."

"Are you going to live in it alone?" asked the old man, turning his head, as if ashamed of the question.

"Can't tell yet. But there goes the 'Berry Hunter,' and I want to see her."

And he dashed down to the water's edge, hailed her as she was passing in her canoe, jumped in, and was paddled away toward one of the little islands that lined the shore, flashing with their dense foliage like emeralds set in a changing sheen of turquoise.

"There goes a man to his ruin," muttered the old trapper sorrowfully, as he took up his rifle.

Often had he intended to warn Estalez, but he was his superior, and, infirm of purpose, he put off the evil day.

But the young man gave little heed to the words he had so often. From the moment he had seen the Indian girl all other thoughts were banished from his mind. With her light canoe dancing over the waves, and dressed with far more than ordinary brilliancy with scarlet flowers woven in the heavy braids of her intensely black hair, with her eyes lighted at the sight of him she loved, and from whom she hoped so much, with a smile upon her face and sweet words of welcome upon her red, ripe lips, it would have been strange if it had been otherwise.

The little island reached, they moored their canoe, and wandering away from the shore an[illegible] of sight as well as hearing [illegible] lives upon the short and velvet [illegible], mosaiced by myriads of tiny flowers.

"How beautiful you look to-day!" said Carlos, as he took her hand within his own.

"Is the daughter of the red man as fair in the eyes of the paleface as those of his own people?" asked the girl, raising her eyes so as to look him fully in the face.

"There are few as handsome as you are. I know thousands that would give all they have for your figure and eyes and hair."

"But they are like snow, and the daughters of the Aburanians are as brown as the hill-side when the Manitou of the Frost has breathed upon it."

"Pshaw! you are the fairest of all your tribe. You know that I have often told you of Pocahontas. I doubt if she was as white as you."

"And yet was looked up to by the pale-faces?"

"Yes; went to England, married one, and lived in such splendor as you never dreamed of."

Never before had Estalez fully determined upon his plan of action. Now he had made up his mind to win her at all hazards, and throwing his arms around her waist he drew her to his side, whispered burning words of love, and for the first time kissed her. And thus they sat—she loving and dazzled by the splendor he promised should be hers when he returned to civilization, and he forgetful of all but the passion of the hour. With the declining sun they returned to the shore a promised man and wife, though as yet no time had been fixed upon. That was a sweet decision left for the future.

The old trapper, Pedro, saw them as they landed—saw their parting. It was such an one as lovers have indulged in since Eden, and will until the end of time. He saw the tender embrace, could almost hear the kiss, and resolved to be reticent no longer.

"I want you to tell me one thing, Carlos," he said, as they sat by their bright camp-fire, smoking, after a late supper.

"Well, Pedro, what is it?"

"Do you intend to marry that pretty 'berry hunter?'"

"Why? will it make any difference to you?"

"Certainly not, but it will to you, if I don't miss my reckoning, and I am not apt to do it when there is anything of the present nature about the matter. I've lived too long among the Indians not to know them thoroughly."

"Well, I intend to marry her."

"You had better not. She's just as dangerous and treacherous as a poisoned serpent, if she is fooled with."

"What makes you think so?"

"What would make me think there was a snake around if I saw her glide, or a beaver if I saw her dam? I always know what kind of an animal is about the moment I see the tail.

"You are much mistaken about her, Pedro, she loves me to distraction."

"Very likely, now; but I reckon it won't always be so. You don't expect to remain in these woods until you die?"

"No, thank Heaven; another twelve months will see me clear of them forever."

"And what are you going to do with the 'Berry Hunter' when you leave?"

"What makes you ask such a question?"

"To know whether you are going to take her to your home when you leave this locality."

"No, I don't intend to. Hundreds have married—the ceremony is only a mere farce—married squaws before and left them whenever they pleased."

"And you intend to do the same by 'Berry Hunter?'"

"Certainly. Do you think I would be fool enough to take home a wife like 'Berry Hunter?' Oh! no—not by any means."

"Then you had better change your tactics and leave the Indian girl honorably alone. That is all I have got to say, and what in the name of thunder was that?"

His quick ear had heard a slight rustling in the bushes, and in a moment after there was a plunge in the lake.

"It was only a cussed otter," he continued, as he proceeded to arrange the wood upon the fire.

An otter? How quickly he would have changed his mind if he had seen the [illegible] upon the shore at a little distance and darted along the homeward trail, almost as swift and noiseless as the wind. She had listened to every word—knew that she was to be made a wife and then deserted—knew that all the promises of her white lover were lies! Ah! if there ever was a hell raging in a human bosom—ever a brow blacker than a thunder-cloud—it was hers, as she rushed toward her wigwam with her fingers playing convulsively with her long knife.

But the next day, when she met Estalez, she was as calm as a summer morning. She yielded to his embraces—she returned them with interest—she showed her love so warmly that if he had any doubt he was more than satisfied now.

"Come," he said, "tell me when you will be my wife?"

"Let the pale-face be at yonder rock," she replied, pointing to a distant one, "before the sun has drank up the dew. There let him remain until the 'Berry Hunter' comes. She will not be long. Then she will answer."

And so it was decided, and the gray of morning found the white man at the trysting place. But the hours crept along, and he was yet alone.

The sun rose and began beating all around him. Something must have detained the Indian girl, he fancied, and determined to wait yet longer. Suddenly, however, he was aroused by a startling hiss. He turned, and saw a huge rattlesnake crawling up the side of the rock (he was unarmed, and there was not even a stick for defense near.) He would have descended, but was met by another. For a moment he stood, overpowered with fear. Then he saw the scaly monsters crawling up toward him in every direction—knew that the hot sun-rays had lured them from their holes—knew that he was standing over their den, and thousands upon thousands were surrounding him!

"Oh! my God, what shall I do?" burst from his lips in the terrible agony of the moment.

A wild, ringing, almost fiendish laugh rang upon his ears, as if in reply, and, looking up, he saw "Berry Hunter" standing upon a rock high above him.

"Berry Hunter! Berry Hunter! For Heaven's sake, save me!" he shouted, and the answer came back, borne by the winds, to his ears:

"The paleface's tongue is as false as the serpent's. He would have made her his wife and then deserted her. The very night that she promised to be his, she crawled to his wigwam and heard all. She told him to come here—here to the very center of the serpent's den—for his answer. The poisoned teeth and fiery tongues will give it to him. See!"

The pen is powerless to describe the scene that followed. The Indian girl, from her lofty look-out, saw all—saw a human form fighting with countless serpents, whose fangs were driven deep into the quivering flesh. She saw him fight with all the desperation of despair. She heard his prayer for mercy, and answered with horrid, mocking laughter. She saw the maddened wretch, completely covered with a net-work of scaly coils, leap headlong from the rock—knew that she was terribly revenged, and calmly sought old Pedro and told him that his master wanted him. Ah! how the old man shuddered when he found the disfigured corpse, and read at a glance the true history of the matter. His eyes could not be deceived, no matter what another's might be. He made a coffin of bark, and was preparing to bury the remains, when he saw "Berry Hunter" standing at a little distance, laughing and making gestures. This action exasperated Pedro, and he determined upon revenge.

"God forgive me," he muttered between his teeth. "It may be wrong to take a human life, but—"

The ringing of his rifle cut the sentence short, and at the same time an arrow from the unerring bow of "Berry Hunter," who saw Pedro's intention, pierced the old man's heart, while simultaneously a bullet from Pedro's rifle crashed through the brain of the unfortunate Indian girl. Thus closed a tragedy, short but terrible in its ending.

Four Boys Did It.

It was nothing—nothing but the body of a laboring man suspended to a limb of a tree on Seventh street, moving like a pendulum as the night wind swayed it. A woman who was returning from the grocery caught sight of the ghastly spectacle and dropped two bars of soap and a pound of candles on the walk, and ran screaming away. Two boys came along and took a skip through the mud and raised a yell, and the driver of a milk-wagon stopped his horse and rang his bell in a way to bring a dozen householders out doors. A half circle was formed about the tree, a policeman sent for, and a sudden hush fell upon the crowd.

"Probably out of work and driven to it," whispered one.

"No doubt he had trouble with his wife," sighed a second.

"Looks to me like a man who had drained the cup of sorrow to its dregs," said a third.

By and-by a policeman came hurrying along, puffing and blowing and followed by a crowd of boys.

"Stand back—all of you stand back!" cried the officer.

Nobody stood back, of course.

"Now somebody get me a step-ladder."

Fifteen or twenty persons suggested that somebody run for the Coroner, but no one started. A dozen others suggested that it was against the law to cut a body down unless the Coroner was present, but the ladder came and the officer mounted it and opened his knife and commanded:

"Now, then, three or four of you come here to ease the body down when I cut the rope!"

Four or five men stepped out, but they had no sooner seized the suicide's legs than they fell back. In half a minute more the officer backed down the ladder. Then a general titter ran through the crowd, and a small boy called out:

"I seed 'em when they did it! It's a straw-man, and four boys hung him up and runn'd away."—Detroit Free Press.

How Watch Cases are Made.

A plate of SOLID GOLD 14 2-10 karats fine is soldered on each side of a plate of hard nickel composition metal, and the three are then passed between polished steel rollers. From this plate the various parts of the cases—backs, centers, bezels, etc. are cut and shaped by dies and formers. The gold is thick enough to admit of all kinds of chasing, engraving, and engine-turning. The composition metal gives it needed strength, stiffness and solidity, while the written guarantee of the manufacturers warranting each case to wear twenty years proves that it contains all the gold that can possibly be needed. This guarantee is given from actual results, as many of these cases have been worn perfectly smooth by years of use without wearing through the gold.

DUBUQUE, IA., Dec. 14, 1880.

I have used one of your James Boss' Gold Watch Cases for seventeen years. I bought it second-hand and know of its having been used before I got it, but do not know how long. It looks good for ten years longer. Did not suspect it was a filled case until so informed by a jeweler a short time since. I most cheerfully recommend your cases to be all they are represented to be, and more.

SAMARITAN NEVER FAILS. NERVINE

"You claim too much for SAMARITAN NERVINE," says a skeptic. "How can one medicine be a specific for Epilepsy, Dyspepsia, Alcoholism, Opium Eating, Rheumatism, Spermatorrhœ, or Seminal Weakness, and fifty other complaints?" We claim it a specific, simply, because the virus of all diseases arises from the blood. Its Nervine, Resolvent, Alterative and Laxative properties meet all the conditions herein referred to. It's known world wide as

THE GREAT NERVE CONQUEROR

It quiets and composes the patient—not by the introduction of opiates and drastic cathartics, but by the restoration of activity to the stomach and nervous system, whereby the brain is relieved of morbid fancies, which are created by the causes above referred to.

To Clergymen, Lawyers, Literary men, Merchants, Bankers, Ladies and all those whose sedentary employment causes nervous prostration, irregularities of the blood, stomach, bowels or kidneys or who require a nerve tonic, appetizer or stimulant, SAMARITAN NERVINE is invaluable. SCROFULA.

A remedy that can destroy the germs of scrofula, and when once settled has the power to root it out, must be appreciated by those afflicted. The remarkable cures of young children and the more wonderful cures of those of middle age and late in life, as illustrated by our printed testimonials, prove HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA to be a reliable remedy, containing remedial agents which do positively cure scrofula and eradicate it from the blood.

WARREN, N. H., Jan. 21, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.: Gentlemen—For ten years previous to the early part of 1877 I had been a constant sufferer from scrofulous ulcers or sores, which had finally reduced me to a helpless condition, as described in my letter to you in September of that year. The continued excellent health which enables me to keep house for my aged father and to enjoy life, keeps alive my intense personal interest in HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude for the permanent cure this wonderful medicine effected in my case nearly two years ago, while living in Lowell, when all my physicians gave me up as being in an incurable condition. One thing before I close. I have recommended your Sarsaparilla to hundreds, and I think more than a thousand cases, and my faith in its invincibility in curing scrofula has become absolute by the wonderful cures it has effected aside from my own. I trust you will not be slow in making the merits of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA known everywhere, for it is a duty you owe to mankind. With best wishes I remain very truly yours,

SARAH C. WHITTIER.

General News Summary.

Interesting Home and Foreign News.

CONGRESS.

IN the Senate on the 9th Mr. Hill, from the Committee on Postoffices and Postroads, reported favorably on the original bill to establish a postal telegraph system. The Senate resumed consideration of the Naval Appropriation bill, but without action went into executive session, and adjourned. In the House, Mr. Hopkins, of Pennsylvania, offered a preamble and resolution reciting, among other things, that the present system of transporting live stock by railroad companies engaged in interstate commerce is barbarous and destructive; that ten per cent. of the animals perish in consequence of this treatment and the flesh of the remainder is unfit for human food; that it is charged that the act of Congress requiring railroad companies to unload stock in transit every twenty-eight hours is persistently violated; therefore, Resolved, That the Committee on Commerce be instructed to inquire whether these evils in fact exist, and to what extent they may be remedied by law, with the power to send for persons and papers and with directions to report at any time by bill or otherwise. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Commerce. The House then went into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of bills for public buildings. After debate the committee rose and reported the Keokuk and Waco bills to the House. Without action the House adjourned.

THE Chair laid before the Senate on the 10th a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury urging the necessity for a new revenue cruiser for the Alaskan waters, and recommending an appropriation of $175,000 for that purpose. A joint resolution from the Legislature from California was presented, urging Congress to adopt Mr. Sumner's bill relating to the postal telegraph. After the introduction and reference of several new bills, the Senate resumed consideration of the Naval Appropriation bill. An amendment was adopted increasing the amount appropriated to complete the ordnance outfit of the three new cruisers and one dispatch boat, from $400,000 to $500,000. Pending debate on the amendment providing for the construction of steel cruisers, the Senate went into executive session, and when the doors reopened adjourned until the 15th. In the House, Mr. Eaton, from the Committee on Laws relating to the election of President and Vice President, reported back the Senate bill on that subject, with an amendment in the nature of a substitute; placed on calendar. The Senate bill to further suspend the operation of section 5,547 Revised Statutes, in relation to the Guano Island, was passed, after which the House went into Committee of the Whole on the public building measures. A number of bills for the erection of public buildings in various localities were considered favorably, when the committee rose and reported to the House. Without further action the House adjourned.

THE Senate bill authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to offer a reward of $25,000 for rescuing or ascertaining the fate of the Greeley expedition, passed the House on the 11th. The resolution declaring that the charges against H. V. Boynton were not sustained by the evidence and that there was no ground for action by the House, was adopted without opposition. Mr. Henley, from the Committee on Public Lands, reported the bill forfeiting the Northern Pacific land grant; placed on calendar. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the Pension Appropriation bill; the bill appropriates $29,684,400 and reappropriates an amount estimated at $66,000,000; the appropriations for the current year were $126,000,000, of which only $25,673,000 was expended for the first half of the year. After debate and without action the committee rose. The Speaker laid before the House a message from the Chief of Ordnance for a permanent annual appropriation of $1,500,000 to provide the necessary armament for seacoast fortifications; referred. At the evening session the House passed five pension bills and adjourned. The Senate was not in session.

THE House on the 12th adopted a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for copies of any correspondence now pending with officers of customs at New York as to interpretation of section 1775, Revised Statutes, and Civil Service law in reference to preference given in appointments to honorably discharged soldiers and sailors. A number of bills were reported and placed on the calendar. At the conclusion of the call public business was suspended, and the House proceeded to the consideration of resolutions expressive of regret at the death of the late Thomas H. Herndon, of Alabama. After eulogies by several members, the House, as a mark of respect to the memory of deceased, adjourned. The Senate was not in session.

DOMESTIC.

APRIL returns to the Department of Agriculture make the winter wheat area about 27,000,000 acres. Compared with the area harvested last year the present breadth is an increase of five per cent. The present area is greater than the census year by more than two million acres, an increase about 1,500,000 acres on the Pacific coast and nearly 750,000 acres in the Southern States. There is a small increase in the Middle States, and a slight decrease in the Ohio basin. The condition of wheat averages 95, one hundred representing the full stand, unimpaired vitality, and medium growth. In April, 1883, the average was 89, and 85 in April, 1881. The April average of the large crop of 1882 was 104.

THE members of the Grand Army of the Republic held a camp-fire at Masonic Hall, Washington, on the evening of the 11th, in commemoration of the operations against Vicksburg. General Joseph R. Hawley presided, and all the posts of the Grand Army in the city were represented in the assemblage. Among the prominent men present were President Arthur, General Grant, Secretary Lincoln, Generals Logan, Hazen, Doubleday, Raum and others. General Logan made the principal address and was followed by short speeches from General Grant and other distinguished actors in the Vicksburg campaign.

THE schooner Nelson Y. McFarland is reported lost at sea and five fisherman drowned.

REPORTS received from 609 townships of Michigan indicate that the winter wheat crop and the clover crop will be about 97 per cent., apples about 90 per cent. and peaches but 50 per cent. of an average.

THE Secretary of War has received a telegram from Major Stickney, of the engineer corps at New Orleans, regarding the condition of the levees, in which he says: The whole line along the Tensas parish front is badly broken. The grade was much too low for this flood and the water poured over the tops of the levees for miles. There are no breaks in the Concordia parish front except on Lake Concordia, where the levee is small. The overflow in both parishes is not as large as in 1882 by three to four feet. From Red River to Profit Island no breaks have occurred. The river is rapidly receding, and it is not probable any other break will occur. The situation is more encouraging than could have been expected two weeks ago and it seems very probable the cotton crop may be raised in Tensas and Concordia.

WHEAT seeding is already in progress in southern Minnesota and Dakota, a week in advance of last year. There will be a substantial increase in the acreage of the territory.

Look out for Your Head!

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid. Applied with the finger to the nostrils.

The Dundee new $18,000 school house is nearly completed.

When medical science admitted that Rheumatism and Neuralgia had their seat in the blood, it remained to find a successful remedy for the poisonous acid which caused them. That remedy has been found. It has been named ATHLOPOROS, which is a Greek word composed of athlon, a prize, and phero, to bear away, that is "bearing away the prize." And this it does both in promptitude and final efficiency.—Says Mrs. Eliza Evans, of Upper Derby, Delaware county, Penn.: "After the third dose of ATHLOPHOROL I rested better than I had done for months."

The True Test.

If a man is hungry within an hour more or less after a meal he is a dyspeptic, it shows his stomach is not able to dispose of what he has eaten, but to eat again, and thus impose more work, is absurdity. Take Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic which cures dyspepsia, and all stomach, liver, kidney and bladder troubles. It is a perfect tonic, appetizer, blood purifier, a sure cure for ague and malaria diseases. Price 50 cents, of Baker and Hall.

The new Dundee Buckeye chair factory's machinery is expected every day.

Of a large number of preparations, Ely's Cream Balm gives the most relief. I can recommend it for Catarrh, Cold in the Head or Hay Fever.—S. B. Lewis, Principal Graded School, Clinton, Wis.

A Blessing To All Mankind

In these times when these newspapers are flooded with patent medicine advertisements, it is gratifying to know what to procure that will certainly cure you. If you are Bilious, blood out of order, Liver inactive, or generally debilitated; there is nothing in the world that will cure you so quickly as Electric Bitters. They are a blessing to mankind, and can be had for only fifty cents a bottle.

An easy way to detect imposition in Baking Powder is to boil a small quantity in water. If ammonia is present it will produce an odor; if alum, it will smell old and taste bitter; if starch, flour or filling, they will remain in the cups as the Cream Tartar and Soda will all disappear. DeLand's Chemical Baking powder is made from Cream Tartar and Soda only, and by the use of it, you get full strength, full weight, no imposition, and very fine, delicious pastry at low cost. Sold only in cans. Try it. Test it. Use it.

Stories on the Road.

Commercial Travelers at a Wayside Inn—Something to Put in a Gripsack.

"Gentlemen, I almost envy you the positions you fill; your experience of the world: your knowledge of business; the changing sights you see, and all that you know."

This warmly expressed regret fell from the lips of an elderly pleasure tourist, last August, and was addressed to a semicircle of commercial travelers seated on the porch of the Lindell Hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

"Yes, responded a New York representative of the profession, "a drummer isn't without his pleasures, but he runs his risks too—risks outside the chances of railroad collisions and steamboat explosions."

"What risks for instance?"

"This for instance" said Mr. W. G. Franklin, who was then traveling for an eastern house, and is known to merchants in all parts of the country. "The risk which indeed amounts almost to a certainty of getting dyspepsia from perpetual change of diet and water, and from having no fixed hours for eating and sleeping. I myself was an example. I say was, for I am all right now."

"No discount on your digestion?" broke in a Chicago dry goods traveler lighting his cigar afresh.

"Not a quarter per cent. But I had to give up traveling for a while. The dyspepsia ruined my paper. Finally I came across an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC. I tried it and it fixed me up to perfection. There is nothing on earth in my opinion, equal to it as a cure for dyspepsia."

Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of New York, the proprietors, hold a letter from Mr. Franklin stating that precise fact. PARKER'S TONIC aids digestion, cures malarial fevers, heartburn, headache, coughs and colds and all chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys. Put a bottle in your valise. Prices 50c and $1. ESTATE OF JOSEPH TAYLOR.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 28th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Joseph Taylor, late of Ravenspoor, Chester County, England, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Homer L. Stewart, alleging among other things that the property of said deceased, is in part at least a mortgage upon real estate owned by petitioner in Lenawee county, which he has assumed to pay, and which is past due, and praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Edwin B. Wood, or some other suitable person. And it appearing to the court that some of the heirs-at-law of said deceased are residents of England in Great Britain, a foreign country having no consul residing in this state, whereby it becomes the duty of this court to notify the consul of such foreign nation in the City of New York at least six days before the day assigned for the hearing of said petition, and of the pendency thereof and the day appointed for hearing the same.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday the 5th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks immediately previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL ARNER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 1st day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Samuel Arner, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Augustus Montgomery, administrator of said estate, alleging among other things that he has paid the debts of said deceased, the expenses of his last sickness and funeral, and praying for the allowance of his final account and for such further order as shall be deemed lawful and necessary, and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 28th day of April, A.D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF CHARLES F. PATTERSON.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on Wednesday, the 2d day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Charles F. Patterson, minor.

On reading and filing the petition of James W. Patterson, guardian of said minor, praying for the allowance of his sixth account as such guardian, now on file in this court.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 28th day of April, A.D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next-of-kin of said minor, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

UNION COUNTY CONVENTION.

The Unionists held their County Convention at Dean's Opera House last Saturday with a good attendance. The following delegates were chosen to the State Convention which will be held at Battle Creek, on the 14th of May.

First District.—G. P. Waring, Ridgeway; Edwin Howell, Macon; George Humphrey, Palmyra; Elisha Luke, Ogden; Zach. Cook, Raisin.

Second District.—E. B. Sutton, E. B. Chase, T. F. Moore, D. L. Blackstone, A. B. Clark.

Third District.—Porter Beals, Rollin; Geo. Taylor, Rome; Dr. Bond, Springville; R. B. Sutton, Dover; R. H. Rodgers, Medina.

On motion, the delegates were given the right to substitution, in case they were unable to attend the convention.

From the edition of Messrs. Geo P. Rowell & Co's AMERICAN NEWSPAPER DIRECTORY, now in press, it appears that the newspapers and periodicals of all kinds at present issued in the United States and Canada reach the grand total of 13,402. This is a net gain of precisely 1,600 during the last twelve months, and exhibits an increase of 5,618 over the total number published just ten years since. The increase in 1874 over the total for 1873 was 493. During the past year the dailies have increased from 1,138 to 1,254; the weeklies from 9,062 to 10,028; and the monthlies from 1,091 to 1,499. The greatest increase is in the Western States. Illinois, for instance, now shows 1,009 papers in place of last year's total of 904, while Missouri issues 604 instead of 523 reported in 1883. Other leading Western States also exhibit a great percentage of increase. The total number of papers in New York State is 1,523, against 1,399 in 1883. Canada has shared in the general increase.

No special attention seems hitherto to have been called to the remarkable portraits of American statesmen that have recently been appearing in HARPER'S. They have included so far full page portraits of Washington, the elder Adams, Jefferson, Madison, and Alexander Hamilton, besides several smaller portraits; for the May number we are promised Monroe, Henry Clay, and Rufus King; and Mr. Kruell, the distinguished engraver who has done most of these, is understood to be busy upon the younger Adams, Jackson, Calhoun, Webster, and others. The portrait of Buchanan in the January number may also be mentioned. Many of these have been engraved from original paintings or drawings not before reproduced, and the result is likely to be an American portrait gallery fitly presented in the highest style of the especially American art of wood engraving.

FATAL MINE EXPLOSION.

Two Men Killed and Others Injured—Foul Gasses Collect Through the Carelessness of Some Boys and Ignite Fire in the Miners' Lamps.

ELIZABETH, Pa., April 15.—Shortly after five o'clock yesterday morning an explosion of fire damp occurred in the coal mine of John A. Wood & Sons, near here, killing two men instantly and injuring several others. The dead bodies of James Painter and James Stevenson have just been brought out of the mines horribly burned and blackened. They went to work at five o'clock and had just reached the point where they were when the explosion occurred, the fire damp igniting from their lamps. At first it was thought many others were in that part of the mine and had perished, but it is now certain that they were the only ones killed. William Kent was five hundred yards from the explosion and was severely injured by being violently thrown down. A workman named Simmons, who was half a mile away, was struck on the head by a flying pick and sustained serious injury. A number of others were bruised and cut by the falling debris. Willing workers have been at the scene all the morning, but their labors have been interfered with by the foul gasses and they have only succeeded at noon in reaching the bodies. Both victims are young men of family. Boys playing in the mine yesterday are supposed to have left the trap door open, which allowed the collection of the fatal gas. The explosion fortunately occurred when but few men had gone to work, else the loss of life must have been great.

A BOOMERANG LAW

That Comes Back to Trouble Its Inventors.

NEW ORLEANS, April 14.—The new patent election law prescribed by the Louisiana Legislature to [illegible] use of the people promises to come back to plague the inventors. The law says "that all the names of persons voted for shall be printed on one ticket or ballot of white paper of uniform size and quality, to be furnished by the Secretary of State." As soon as the Republicans nominated their ticket Judge Merchant, the chairman of the Republican campaign committee, a very shrewd politician, lost no time in calling on the Secretary of State and purchasing a very large supply of the ticket paper. The balance of the supply was purchased by a few New Orleans job printers, when it was discovered that the stock was exhausted and not half the county parish Democrats were supplied. This placed the Democratic official in an unpleasant predicament and sent him in haste to this city. How the matter was finally arranged is explained in a card which he publishes in the morning papers here, in which he lets the cat out of the bag by saying: "Owing to the uneasiness felt in regard to the election paper I will state, that in ordering this paper I had it water-lined 'Secretary of State.' This was done for identification only. I ordered two millions of tickets of that kind, basing my estimates upon the Congressional and city election of 1882, leaving a margin of 900,000. At this late date I find that the orders from the country parishes have more than consumed the original amount of paper ordered, so I instructed my agents, Messrs. Brandas & Co., of New Orleans, to receive all the paper of that quality without the water line and use it. They have done so, and have a sufficient quantity of paper for all emergencies. The law does not contemplate that the paper should be water-lined."

Augustus Schell's Will.

NEW YORK, April 15.—Augustus Schell's will filed yesterday gives his wife $200,000 in cash and the life use of his city real estate, and of 100 shares each of the stock of the New York Central, Union Pacific and Chicago & Milwaukee Railroads. Two brothers are given $400,000 each; the five children of a sister $100,000 each; the widow of a deceased brother $50,000. These are the only large bequests. Other relatives and a number of charitable institutions get from $500 to $10,000 each.

Shot His Uncle's Head Off.

ST. LOUIS, April 15.—A Post-Dispatch Carrollton, Mo., special says: "Sunday morning Humphrey Bunch and Jesse Glover, farmers residing in the northwestern part of the county, quarreled because Bunch, who was the uncle of Glover, refused to allow the latter's cattle to feed on his pasture. Glover went away, but returned shortly and shot the top of his uncle's head off. The murderer fled but is hotly pursued.

The Strike Near an End.

FALL RIVER, April 15.—The eleventh week of the strike opens with a decided gain for the manufacturers. They are running more machines than at any time during the strike. The manufacturers and workers predict that the strike is approaching an end. The greater part of the funds have been exhausted, and but little is coming in from the outside.

Sustaining the Scott Law.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 15.—Judge Lemon, Commager and Mackey, of the district Court, yesterday afternoon rendered the decision in the Buttzman-Mueller Scott law tax case, that the law is constitutional. They admitted being influenced by the decision of the Supreme Court in the Bennet & Bauder case, in which the law was sustained.

The Filibustering in Cuba.

KEY WEST, April 15.—Mail advices from Havana state that Aguero is receiving everywhere on the road men and horses, having burnt various plantations where help was denied. The insurrection will increase if the troops are unable to capture the parties. Some papers accuse the military authorities of utter ignorance and indifference.

Demonstration of Labor Unions.

NEW YORK, April 15.—The immense demonstration of labor unions at Union Square last night in favor of eight hours as a day's labor passed off quietly. In anticipation of trouble a large force of police was stationed in the adjacent streets and patrolled the square. As the unions marched by the Tribune office in going home they stopped and hissed, but there was no unruly action in any direction.

Foundered at Sea.

NEW YORK, April 15.—It is reported that the United States and Brazil Mail Steamship Company's steamer Reliance, running between New York and Rio de Janeiro, has been lost with her cargo, including seven thousand bags of coffee. The passengers and crew are reported saved.

The Legislature of Ohio Adjourns.

COLUMBUS, April 15.—Both Houses of the Legislature adjourned at noon yesterday, after a stormy session. A resolution was adopted appointing a commission to investigate election frauds in Cincinnati.

SOUTHERN FOREST FIRES.

The Most Widespread Destruction Ever Known in South Carolina Counties.

COLUMBIA, S. C., April 15.—The forest fires kindled by the gale of last week swept over large areas of the counties of Richland, Lexington, Fairfield, Kershaw, Chester, Sumter, Orangeburg, Clarendon, Williamsburg, Darlington, Lancaster, Marlboro, Coleton, Aiken and Berkeley. The destruction of houses, valuable timber lands, fencing, growing crops and live stock was the most widespread ever known in the history of the State. It is impossible to estimate the amount of damage but it will aggregate many hundred thousands of dollars. In Kershaw County the fires were especially terrific, sweeping over a thickly settled territory, and destroying houses, timber, and fencing for many miles. It was with great difficulty that the flourishing town of Camden was saved, it being for twenty-four hours surrounded on all sides by the flames. Large numbers of cattle and hogs grazing in the woods were roasted alive. Three-quarters of the pine forests in the county were destroyed, thus breaking up the entire turpentine business in that section.

Three churches escaped destruction in a miraculous way. Antioch Church is surrounded by heavy pine forests, and just before the fire reached the immediate vicinity of the church it divided and went around it, joining together on the opposite side and sweeping on with its former fury, leaving the church untouched. At Mount Zion the flames acted in a similar manner, passing close around the church, but harming nothing. At Pine Tree Church the fires passed under and around the building, burning straw, wood and lumber, etc., but doing no other injury to the church. At Sandy Grove the fire went through the church-yard, burning all the fencing, railing, and sheds around it, and the cemetery adjoining the church, but doing no injury to the church itself. The damage in Kershaw County will amount to fully $100,000. In Clarendon and Darlington Counties the damage done to turpentine farmers is irreparable.

RECOVERING THE BODIES.

More Mangled Remains Taken From the Pocahontas Mine.

POCAHONTAS, Va., April 15.—The work of recovering the dead was continued yesterday. During all night the time of the party at work was employed in prospecting and collecting the bodies, and putting them into boxes. Twenty-six bodies were boxed, and at nine o'clock in the morning they were brought out at the fan entry and placed in a row for identification. Of the twenty-six eleven were recognized by relatives or friends. The first was that of Howard Quarles. His wife, who had day after day been watching from sunup to sunset for the body of her dead husband, fell in a dead faint immediately upon recognizing the mangled corpse. She was removed to an adjoining cabin, and received proper attention. The others identified were James Hampsen, known by his shoes; Sam Anderson, by a pair of boots; Henry Miller, by his watch; F. Brown, by his striped pants; Thornton Hicks, by a pocket knife; Robert Pardue, by having a boot and one shoe on; James Pardue, by his mustache; James Whitten, by the size and shape of his head; Charles Johnson, by a ring on his left hand, the ring being identified by his sweetheart, who loaned it to him; Booker Hall by his overalls, jacket and boots. All the above were colored men, and were found side by side in the fan entry. Two mules were taken out of mine this evening. One had a portion of the gear still on, the other was mangled and dismembered. They do not expect to take out any more bodies until day after to-morrow, as the portion of the mine unexplored is under water. Preparations are being made to pump the water out with the engine, and a pipe was put in position yesterday.

A Death-Bed Confession Convicts Sharon's Persecutor of Conspiracy.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 15.—In the Sharon divorce trial yesterday the deposition of H. M. Rrue, of Santa Cruz was read. During the progress of the trial Harry Wells, a witness for the plaintiff, testified that Sharon had, in his presence, introduced Miss Hill to True as "Mrs. Sharon." True, who is on his death-bed, deposed that Wells' testimony was a "put-up-job" between Miss Hill, Wells and himself. It was arranged that Miss Hill should testify to that effect, and he and Wells would confirm it. He became a party to the arrangement, believing he could make money out of it, but being on his death-bed wanted to tell the whole truth before it was too late. He said: "I don't propose to go to my grave with a lie on my lips." He said the counsel for the plaintiff was not a party to the arrangement, but was told of it afterward. True's deposition created a sensation. He is sixty-seven years old. His death is momentarily expected.

Investigating the Riot.

CINCINNATI, April 15.—Coroner Muscroft has begun the inquest on the victims of the late riot. He has selected thirteen, intending to let that examination cover the entire number. So far nothing has been elicited beyond the testimony for the identification of the bodies. It is said the Coroner will not make a searching investigation, leaving that to be done by the special Grand Jury, which began its duties yesterday morning, after being charged by Judge Avery to make inquiry into the late riot, the burning of the Court House and the charges of corruption in connection with the jury that tried William Berner. The testimony before the Grand Jury is given privately and all are sworn to secrecy.

Death From an Anesthetic.

ALLIANCE, O., April 15.—The one case in a thousand in which the administration of an anesthetic produces death occurred yesterday morning at Damascus, a village about seventeen miles east of this place. A gentleman named St. Clair sent for Dr. Farquar for the purpose of having some teeth extracted. The physician came, and at the request of the patient proceeded to administer the anesthetic. Mr. St. Clair at once became unconscious and alarming symptoms made their appearance. The case became desperate, and despite the efforts of the doctor at resuscitation the man expired in a few minutes. No one was present except the physician, and family of the deceased.

Buried Under a Sand Bank.

RANKSVILLE, April 15.—While a young man named Daniel Miller was working in a sand pit near the Brown Manufacturing Company's works yesterday, the bank caved and buried him. On excavating him, it was discovered that his lower limbs had been seemingly paralyzed.

An Attempted Assassination.

LIBERTAD, April 14.—An attempt was made yesterday to assassinate the President of Guatemala. He was slightly wounded.

IMPOSSIBLE ESCAPE.

Absolute Truth with Collateral Proof From Which There Can Be no Appeal.

For the past three years we have had a standing offer of $5,000 for any statement of cure published by us which was not, so far as we know, bona fide. We did this in order that all readers might know the absolute truth of all our assertions and that they were based upon the value of our remedy and not upon idle words. Below we give a few extracts from recent letters, which speak for themselves. We will only add that we could furnish one hundred thousand more of a similar nature did occasion require, but we believe the entire American public is now convinced of the positive value of Warner's Safe Cure. H. H. WARNER & Co.
Rochester, N. Y.

"Warner's Safe Cure does all claimed for it." MRS. JAMES SINGLEY.
Petaluma, Cal

"I was cured of Kidney disease and bleeding piles by 11 bottles of Warner's Safe Cure." R. H. HOWARD.
Auburn, Me.

"I was a physical wreck by kidney disorder, but Warner's Safe Cure has completely cured me." G. C. LANING.
Columbus, O.

"I was a sight to behold from kidney dropsey, but was restored to perfect health by Warner's Safe Cure." JAMES ALLEN.
Troy, N. Y.

"My physicians said I would never get out of bed again. I took Warners Safe Cure and felt like another being." F. CULVER HUTCHINS.
Beverly, N. J.

"I had 22 quarts of water taken from me caused by dropsy. Ten bottles of Warner's Safe Cure entirely restored me." GEO. B. PEASLEY.
Manchester, N. H.

"A neighbor of mine, W. A. Thompson, has been raised from the dead by the use of your Warner's Safe Cure." JOHN NORTON, P. M.
Summit City, Pa., Feb. 8th.

"Physicians said I could never be cured of calculus and stranguary, but four bottles of Warner's Safe Cure entirely removed my complaint." T. O. LEWIS.
San Francisco, Cal.

"I was wholly prostrated by a complication of diseases and as a last resort purchased Warner's Safe Cure. Every one of the old troubles have disappeared and I am very grateful." W. E. BENEDICT.
Albany, N. Y. Press and Knickerbocker.

"I suffered for over twenty years with a lame back caused by kidney complaint, and my spine and nervous system were badly affected. When I had abandoned all hope I began the use of Warner's Safe Cure and have not felt so well and strong for twenty years." J. J. WRIGHT.
Fon du Lac, Wis.

"For two years I suffered intensely and was made miserable through diseased kidneys and bladder, and nervous exhaustion and entire prostration. Doctors and medicine did not afford me any relief, and I was advised to use Warner's Safe Cure, which I did in connection with the Safe Pills, and am thankful to state I am entirely cured of the dreadful malady. MRS. DORMER, 448 South Tenth street.
Denver, Col. Feb. 19th.

"I want to state how much my husband has improved while taking Warner's Safe Cure. All swelling has disappeared from his limbs; his water trouble is much better and his voice is so improved that he preaches every Sabbath. We are very thankful. The people all around here are taking the remedy, and some are getting well by the use of a few bottles. Multitudes more must have it."
MRS. REV. F. A. SOULE.
Sing Sing, N. Y., Feb. 29th.

"For a score of years I suffered with what the doctors pronounced dilation and valvular disease of the heart, but now I am led to believe that the heart trouble was only secondary and a symptom of other complaints. Frequently I was threatened with death by suffocation, my breath failing me entirely. I became cold and numb, and was as near death as any living person ever has been. This was three years ago and I have ever since enjoyed complete health wholly through the use of Warner's Safe Cure." A. BILDERBECK,
Chicago, March 1st. 28 13 street.

Hudson Post: Arthur Hawkins, Gordon Palmer, and several other young men, were having considerable fun in the barn of Mr. Palmer, east of Medina, by being drawn up to the roof of the barn, and then riding the length of the barn by the railway hay carrier. After several had taken their turn in riding, Archie Hawkins "went over the road," but arriving at the end of the track the rope pulled out, and the young man dropped twenty-five feet to the floor, breaking his arm and dislocating his wrist. Dr. Dodge was called and set the broken bones.

It is certainly very funny to hear a man howling about patronizing home industries, when he uses a rubber stamp to make the most horrible daubs of letter heads and cards with which nice paper is spoiled, or patronizes some cheap amateur who does him a job for a trifle above nothing. Many men's ideas of patronizing home industries are for everybody else to do it.

TAKE NOTICE—All persons indebted to me are requested to call and settle at once, as I shall leave town soon for another business location.

Slayton & Kinney have within the last few days, shipped Furniture to Clinton, Dundee, Cambridge, Lansing and Texas. Good goods and low prices appear to take well.

A state law requires that a census of all births and deaths shall be taken in every township, city or ward between the 10th day of April and the 1st day of June. This census will be for the year 1883.

Inter-Ocean: A single case of hydrophobia will stir the authorities up to kill every unmuzzled dog found in the streets. But delirium tremens may kill scores of men in brown stone fronts and in huts of poverty and the same authorities will hold inquests and sigh over "the mysterious ways of Providence."

An exchange gives the public this gentle reminder: "Never growl because the newspaper fails to give every scrap of news, so long as you never take any particular pains to give any information. The average editor isn't a medium or a mind reader, but gets the news just the same as the milkman gets his milk—by pumping."

Union Light; Many of our ladies are still under the baleful spell of Japanese "crazy" patchwork as all our milliners will testify. Unless a reaction soon sets in, the certainty and swiftness with which the disease fastens itself, will have so far controlled the poor victims that no appeal either to their conscience or affections will arouse them.

As Clinton has no local paper now, the HERALD feels justified in making more of a specialty of Clinton news than heretofore. S. O. Van DeMark has been engaged to represent the HERALD in Clinton. Items of news, orders for subscriptions and job printing can be handed to him, and he will attend to their delivery. Our Clinton friends will be well served.

Adrian Times: The new uniforms for the band arrived yesterday, through the U. S. express company. They are very handsome, and the boys are justly proud of them. The material used is blue broadcloth, and the trimmings are chiefly of gold lace. Gold buttons are also used. The head gear consists of a helmet, surmounted by a white plume, tipped in black.

Morenci Observer: The Seneca post office on being re-established was made a "special office," which implies that it must supply itself with mail matter from the most convenient point, and that the compensation of the carrier must not exceed two-thirds that of the postmaster, and Mr. Nelson, the new appointee, reports that he can get no carrier at that rate; so that office has thus far done no business and the outlook for the future is discouraging.

Grand Haven Herald: Good times are coming. People and especially farmers went into the winter in a despondent state. Economy was made the rule. Its good effects have given heart and hope. Prices of products are improving. Not for years has wheat got through the winter so well. Fruit prospects are good, some sorts never better. The lumber business promises to be the best for years. Both in business and politics the coming season will be one of great activity.

Hillsdale Leader: George Banker thinks the Buffalo cattle market is beyond human understanding. He recently shipped a carload of steers to Buffalo, fat and prime in every point, for which he paid $3.90 per hundred in Hillsdale county. He was forced to take $3.25 for them, but the strangest part is, A. P. Cook of Brooklyn, Mich., bought them at $4.00, and reshipped them to this state, and when the market is favorable will again treat the animals to a ride to Buffalo.

Clinton News: An old letter was picked up the other day down by the old tannery building which bore the date of 1848, folded and sealed without an envelope. The seal had never been broken. It was written by a party in Adrian to a once prominent citizen of this town, long since dead, and was in the nature of a political assessment for services rendered by the writer. The wonder is how the letter came where it was found, out of doors, and as fresh as though written a year ago; also, whether the writer ever got his pay.

The Dayton Hedge Co., have contracted about 200 miles of hedge in this county, to be commenced the present season. The plants for this vicinity arrived last week.

The time for cleaning streets and lawns has come. Let every citizen contribute something to the good appearance of the village by making his own premises as attractive as possible.

S. W. Anderson started for New York last week to buy a stock of goods for his firm, W. & S. W. Anderson & Co. On Friday the house received a telegram announcing his serious illness and his wife left on the first train for New York. Subsequent intelligence received from there states that Seaton is improving, but he is still under the physician's care being prostrated with a severe attack of gastric fever and rheumatism.—Yesterday morning Fred Rosacrans left for New York to complete the purchase of their spring stock of goods, and Mrs. Anderson will remain there until her husband is sufficiently recovered to be able to return home.

The members of Co. C are making arrangements for an amateur theatrical entertainment, which will probably come off about the 12th of May. Harry C. Chapman, who had charge of the play "Driven from Home," which was put on the stage by the G. A. R. a few weeks ago, will assume the management, and carry the leading role in the cast. The plays to be presented will be "Michael Erle" and "The Marble Statue." A committee already has the matter in charge and the cast of characters is being arranged. It is probable that the play "Driven from Home," will be presented one evening. The Armory boys have taken hold of the enterprise with vim, and will spare no pains to make it a success.

Marshall Statesman: A young man presented himself at this office last Saturday morning and enquired concerning the republican ticket for Newton. On being informed that our "devil" was grinding them out at that moment, he placed an order for 100 extra tickets and stated that he would call for them at noon. At 12 o'clock he presented himself, but could show no order from the republican supervisor of that town for the tickets. This subjected him to a vigorous cross examination and it was finally developed that he was one John Hallern, a democratic resident, who wished the tickets in order to play a sharp game on the republicans of that town. He received instead of the tickets a bit of good advice, which if he heeds, will some day make him a good citizen.

Junior Class Banquet.

The Junior Class of the Tecumseh High School will give an entertainment at the Opera House to-morrow evening, the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the piano fund. The chief feature of the entertainment will be an excellent supper, served from 5:30 until 9:00 o'clock, and the supper tickets, peculiar in more ways than one, will be sold for the small sum of 25 cents. Ice cream may be had at a trifling extra charge. An elegant cake will be voted to the most popular lady in town. These are only some of the features of the entertainment; to know them all you must come and see, hear, and taste them. No pains will be spared to make this entertainment a success, and we hereby invite the public to attend our "Junior Class Banquet."

EASTER SERVICES.

At St. Peter's Church an early service was held as in former years at 6 o'clock. At 10:30 A. M., a second service was held, during which the two sacraments of Holy Baptism and the Lord's Supper were administered. At 3:30 P. M., an Easter Sunday School service was held, at which cards, bouquets of flowers, easter eggs, and oranges were distributed to the children. At all the services the Church was well filled. The floral decorations were abundant and in usual good taste. The music was appropriate and highly appreciated by the different congregations.

A Special Service was held at the Baptist Church last Sunday evening to commemorate the resurrection of the Lord. It consisted of responsive Scriptural reading and singing by the choir and congregation, beside the regular sermon, the theme of which was "The resurrection of Christ the keystone of our faith". The service used was prepared by the well known composer and Baptist minister, Rev. Robert Lowry, and entitled "Early in the Morning". The logical order of the responsive readings may be seen by their subjects: The Prophecy, The Death, The Burial, The Resurrection, The Argument, The Evidence, and The Faith. Without any attempt at decoration, friends brought in plants and flowers, which were placed on and around the rostrum, imparting an air of joyous freshness, beautifully emblematic of the sweet and inspiring event which the service sought to commemorate. The music and singing were all that could be desired, and linger with many like a sacred benediction. The angelic announcement to the women, "He is risen, as he said", has a glad, glad import.

Adrian reform school for girls, with a capacity of 130, is now accommodating 150. The cottage addition, to hold 65 more will be ready for occupation in a few weeks.

Adrian Record: The new court house was partially staked out this morning and work will probably be commenced next Monday. The clerk's and treasurer's office will be torn off the present old building to make room for the new. The size of the new structure will be 104x125, over all. The basement is to be 9 feet high and the water table 7 feet from the ground. The heighth of the building will be 78 feet from the water table to the top of the roof, and the tower will be 126 feet. One of the contractors, Mr. Allen is now here and is getting ready to commence active work as soon as possible.

THE WRESTLING RING.

Last Tuesday evening being the time announced for the wrestling match between Daniel Austin and Ed. Pritchard to come off, a representative of the HERALD entered Armory Hall about 8 o'clock on that evening and found a large audience already assembled to "take in" the sport. Manager Silvers announced that the seconds had already been chosen, but no referee had been decided on, and the audience was invited to nominate some one in the house to fill the position. After considerable difficulty Frank Wilson was prevailed upon to accept it. Messrs. Silvers and Bostwick acted as seconds to Austin and Pritchard respectively, and at 8:30 the contestants for public fame (and door money,) in the wrestling ring came on the floor and were greeted by a howl of delight from those assembled.

After examining the jackets, etc., Referee Wilson called time for the first round and the struggle began. The men were pretty evenly matched, though Pritchard was somewhat the taller. After considerable "feeling" Austin succeeded in getting a lock on Pritchard and laid him on his back. The fall was declared for Austin.—Time of round 7 min.

The second round Pritchard acted on the offensive and nearly drove "Oscar Wilde" with his maneuvering. He succeeded in getting him down, but it was no fair fall.

The third round was a little int rest.

The fourth round after about 20 minutes hard work, Pritchard got a toe lock on Austin and threw him. The referee decided it was a fair fa The men were then given 20 minutes for refreshments. The audience seemed to take the hint, and in about two minutes the hall was empty and the reporter was left alone in his glory to wonder if the saloons across the road would realize enough during these 20 minutes to make up for election day last week Monday.

At 9:44 the crowd having returned time was called for the fifth round. The men seemed to be afraid of each other and had to be told several times to stand closer together. Pritchard looked pretty well winded, but Austin stood it like a second McLaughlin. Ten or fifteen minutes were given up to straddling around the ring, pounding each others shins, etc., but at last Pritchard caught Austin off his guard and tripped him down as neat as could be, and the fall was declared in favor of Pritchard, thus giving him two falls out of the three. The door receipts amounted to about $50.

Next Tuesday Austin will try Chas. Beebe another bout at catch-as-catch-can wrestling.

Slayton & Kinney have a new card this week.

He who seeks to build himself up by tearing down others, in the hope of rising on their ruins, can have little merit of his own on which to build.

The Galesburg Enterprise has passed into the hands of H. A. Brown. A. E. Marvin, its original proprietor, is going to start a paper at Addison.

Grand Rapids has a new $10,000 broom company, but the Bissell carpet sweeper company, recently burned out there at a loss of $35,000 above insurance, has not yet decided to rebuild.

C. D. Hildebrand, the reformed outlaw—personal experience and startling exposures. An illustrated lecture of prison life. Opera House, Wednesday and Thursday, April 23d and 24th.—Reserved seats now on sale at Kiel's.

Toledo, O., Journal. It is not often that a criminal who has run a headlong career of crime for 30 years turns reformer, but when he does he has a racy story to tell and some practical points to make. In this role, Mr. C. D. Hildebrand, who is personally known here, having been tried here in 1871, narrowly escaping the penitentiary, is a grand moral success.

NO SOONER, NO LATER.

The date of the Anglo American Four Combined Shows, when once fixed is never changed under any circumstances, and its railroad contracts are made months in advance of the arrival of the various advertising cars. The public is therefore warned not to be misled or confused by any future announcements, as these monster shows will positively exhibit in all its entirety, at Tecumseh, Monday, May 5.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years,

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

It Can Cure

It is a fact that remedies almost without number, already contest the claim to cure all the ills that afflict suffering humanity. Thousands have found them powerless to work a cure for them.

No diseases have so baffled all attempts at permanent relief as have Rheumatism and Neuralgia. A long succession of disappointments has made their agonized victims despair of the possibility of cure. Forcenturies they have been considered beyond the power of medical skill to cure.

And yet we say both can be cured, and that ATHLOPHOROS will do the business. The best proof that it can do it is that it has done it.

It Did Cure

Rev. R. R. Dudley, D.D., pastor First Congregational Church, New Haven, Conn., Rheumatism, had kept him from the pulpit four or five months at a time. He says he had suffered all that one could, and live. He took his first dose of ATHLOPHOROS on Friday; Sunday he was in his pulpit; Monday he was well, and has remained so since.

Rev. William P. Corbit, D.D., pastor George St. M. E. Church, New Haven, Conn., was laid up for two months with Inflammatory Rheumatism, suffering most excruciating torture. ATHLOPHOROS cured him, and he believes it to be infallible.

H. S. Chandler, of the N. Y. "Independent," says ATHLOPHOROS cured him of Rheumatism from which he had suffered for a year and a half.

Rev. W. B. Evans, Washington, D. C., says: "I consider its work almost in the light of a miracle. It is a most wonderful medicine. It ought to be spread throughout the land."

It Will Cure

The great question is, Will it cure me? We believe it will. Is it worth trying? You must decide.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

Analysis by Dr. A. Voelcker, F. R. S., Consulting Chemist Royal Agricultural Society, England, shows only a trace of nitrates in Blackwell's Bull Durham Tobacco. The soil of the Golden Belt of North Carolina, in which this tobacco is grown, don't supply nitrates to the leaf. That is the secret of its delicious mildness. Nothing so pure and luxurious for smoking. Don't forget the brand. None genuine without the trade-mark of the Bull. All dealers have it.

The Horse-Made Dude.

"Do they make you tired?"

"Well, I should hum!"

The question and its metaphorical but vigorously expressive answer were inspired by the presence of a Detroit dude (a genuine specimen of the species) in a Griswold street barber shop. The person who proposed the question was a gentleman who subsequently exclaimed that the sight of a dude or even a dudeling (who merely parts his hair in the middle), had almost as marked an effect on him as water has on a dog affected with hydrophobia.

"I git quite a procush of them things in my chain," continued the barber, with a curious nervous movement, a twitch, rather, as he informed the patient clerk, as she did not intend to purchase. "A friend asked her to look at some silks for her and get a few patterns. Mrs. Shoppington did not mention who this friend was. Possibly she referred to that relative in the suburb.

The clerk begged her pardon, but it was contrary to rules to give patterns. Mrs. Shoppington was very sorry. Her friend would be so disappointed. Then she looked at the silk again, and remarked that "that" would just suit her friend, she was sure. Now, couldn't the clerk break the rule for this once? She wouldn't ask such a thing for herself. But her friend—

The clerk relented and cut off a snip, and having done this, it was the easiest thing in the world to induce him to give patterns of three or four more pieces, for possibly, you know, her friend might prefer some one of the others to the piece which suited Mrs. Shoppington's eye.

Only a remnant.

But a solitary remnant no longer. It now had several companions, as rich and lustrous as itself.

Mrs. Shoppington's step was lighter and her smile sweeter than when we first saw her emerging from Satinsheen & Grosgrain's, notwithstanding she then looked supremely happy.

Mrs. Shoppington's shopping tour promised to be a successful one. And it was eminently successful. It is unnecessary to follow her from store to store, or to relate the sweet little subterfuges through which she possessed herself of silken patterns of every hue and in goodly number.

Only a remnant.

When she arrived home, after her day of pleasure, she opened her shopping bag, and, with face aglow with joy, displayed to the admiring family the result of her operations.

"There!" she exclaimed, triumphantly, "I've got enough now. I'm going to work on it to-morrow, and I guess you won't find another one in the city that will begin to compare with it."

A woman's no simpleton, say what thou wilt;
She can get without money a silk crazy quilt.

What Science Is Doing for Us.

"Clearin' up?" replied the Old Settler. "I hain't been able to see no sign o' any clearin' up yit. It usety be, b'gosh, that ye could go a little by the moon in makin' yer calc'lations 'bout things; but fur all the use the moon is now fur that, ye mowt jest ez well scoop the in'ards out'n a skim-milk cheese, light a taller dip, an' put it in it, an' hang it up on a flag pole. I ben sayin' along during this damp spell: 'Wait till the moon changes, an' this weather'll flop 'roun' with a jerk, an' we'll hev it dryer'n a temper'nce picnic, an coider'n an ic'cle off'n the North Pole.' Wal, the moon changed t'other day, but 'stid o' the weather fetchin' up with a short jerk an' takin' the back track, it just tuck to rainin' all the harder, an' gives me a durn nice record for knowin' a thing or two. I tell ye, b'gosh, that these gastrominers that's a settin' up nights all over the country, pokin' their spyglasses 'round, drawin' bead on a comet every little spell, an' wingin' a new star now an' then, an' a gossipin' 'bout what they imagine they've t'oun' out, like a lot o' ole women at a tea party, is a playin' bob with things in this mundane spear. 'Fore we know'd that they was mountains on the moon things worked all right. We know'd jist w'en to pole our beans an' stick our peas; w'en to 'spect wet weather an' w'en we was gointer hev a drout; w'en to go a fishin' an' w'en to kill our pigs. But now we're gittin' too smart, an' we don't know nothin'. 'Twon't s'prise me a durn bit to wake up some fine mornin' an' find ev'rything drowded out, or burnt up, or knocked pizzle-e-whang, by a comet gettin' on its ear. 'Twon't, b'gosh."—N. Y. Sun.

Only a Remnant.

Yes, only a bit of crumpled silk hid away amidst the luxuriant disorder of a lady's shopping bag. A slender slice of shimmering silk in close companionship with a dainty pocket-handkerchief, a button-hook, a very rich portemonnaie with a very poor interior, ten or twenty wrinkled hair-pins, three car-tickets, a recipe or two, a card case, and a miscellaneous assortment of caramels, gum drops, and a dreamy, complex atmosphere of patchouly and hamamelis.

Only a remnant.

But a remnant with a history, a remnant with a future full of romantic possibilities.

That remnant was e pluribus unum? that is to say, one of many which were to find temporary accommodation in that shopping-bag, many which were to be got by means similar to those which secured this.

But our business at present is not with them but with this one only: this solitary remnant: this silken hermit.

On the morning of the day which found this remnant in Mrs. Shoppington's shopping-bag, Mrs. S. started out bright and early, arrayed in her best attire and her most insinuating smile. This was sufficient indication that she was bent on a day of pleasure, to-wit, she was going a shopping.

Following the injunction of old, she took no scrip in her purse, or none to speak of. Money is the last thing thought of or needed to the woman on a shopping tour. There is this difference between the sexes, a man buys, a woman shops.

Mrs. Shoppington, her shopping-bag and its contents, including the remnant, the hero of our story, had just emerged from the establishment of Satinsheen & Grosgrain's. Mrs. Shoppington had been successful in that establishment. She had made a goodly beginning, and Mrs. Shoppington was happy.

She had told the clerk that she wished to look at some of his silk. She was better than her word. She looked at all the accommodating clerk showed her, and he showed her the entire stock in trade. Then she informed him that she was not ready to purchase that day. She had not come prepared to buy. Indeed she had not thought of visiting any store, being in a great hurry to visit a relative in the suburbs; but just as she was about passing the door she remembered that she wished to look at some silks, and she couldn't resist the temptation to step in for just a moment. She was very sorry she had put him to such trouble, but would the clerk give a pattern of that lovely silk upon which her eyes lingered so admiringly.

The clerk would, and he did, and hence the remnant in Mrs. Shoppington's shopping-bag, and hence her happy countenance.

But Mrs. Shoppington did not hurry away to the railway station. Possibly she had forgotten her relative in the suburbs whilst feasting her eyes upon those silken temptations, or in her joy over the remnant in her shopping bag.

For she entered the dry-goods house of Hamburg & Co., a few doors away, and went instinctively to the silk counter. She was shown several invoices of the glossy fabric, and then, as in Satinsheen & Grosgrain's, she informed the patient clerk that she did not intend to purchase. A friend asked her to look at some silks for her and get a few patterns. Mrs. Shoppington did not mention who this friend was. Possibly she referred to that relative in the suburb.

The clerk begged her pardon, but it was contrary to rules to give patterns. Mrs. Shoppington was very sorry. Her friend would be so disappointed. Then she looked at the silk again, and remarked that "that" would just suit her friend, she was sure. Now, couldn't the clerk break the rule for this once? She wouldn't ask such a thing for herself. But her friend—

The clerk relented and cut off a snip, and having done this, it was the easiest thing in the world to induce him to give patterns of three or four more pieces, for possibly, you know, her friend might prefer some one of the others to the piece which suited Mrs. Shoppington's eye.

Only a remnant.

But a solitary remnant no longer. It now had several companions, as rich and lustrous as itself.

Mrs. Shoppington's step was lighter and her smile sweeter than when we first saw her emerging from Satinsheen & Grosgrain's, notwithstanding she then looked supremely happy.

Mrs. Shoppington's shopping tour promised to be a successful one. And it was eminently successful. It is unnecessary to follow her from store to store, or to relate the sweet little subterfuges through which she possessed herself of silken patterns of every hue and in goodly number.

Only a remnant.

When she arrived home, after her day of pleasure, she opened her shopping bag, and, with face aglow with joy, displayed to the admiring family the result of her operations.

"There!" she exclaimed, triumphantly, "I've got enough now. I'm going to work on it to-morrow, and I guess you won't find another one in the city that will begin to compare with it."

A woman's no simpleton, say what thou wilt;
She can get without money a silk crazy quilt.

About Pools.

"Stranger," he began, as he shoved his hat back on his head and sat down on a trunk on the platform, "what is this 'ere about these 'ere railroad pools?"

"How?"

"Wall, then, what is a railroad pool?"

"Why, a number of railroad lines put all their earnings into a bag, shake it up and divide even."

"What's that fur?"

"So that all can get a whack at business."

"An' its according to law?"

"Yes."

The man pulled his hat down, rested his elbows on his knees for a "think," which lasted three or four minutes and then suddenly arose and said:

"Stranger, I've been a 'tarnal fool!"

"How?"

"Why, thar's a chap livin' nex' door to me at hum who has allus worked four hours to my one, and who earns a dollar to my quarter, and it has never occurred to me to make him pool our wages and whack up!"—Wall Street News.

—Is it a fact that brown eggs are preferred in market to white ones? If so—why?—because they look neater by showing dirt less? We can remember—some of us—spleening against brown eggs when they first appeared, and if the fashion has changed it will probably change again as soon as vigilant management chooses to give its attention to white ones.—*N. Mr. Gough on Silk Hats.

"It would be no violation of the commandment," said John B. Gough "if a man were to fall down and worship the silk hat, for it is not made in the likeness of anything in heaven, or on earth, or in the waters which are under the earth." Besides it heats the head and causes the hair to fall off. Parker's Hair Balsam will stop that and restore the original color to gray or faded hair. Not oily, not dye. beneficial, delicously perfumed. A perfect hair dressing. 50c All druggists

Nearer to Nature.

Nature has made her laws with us, which we must obey or suffer the penalty. This penalty is often lung or throat trouble, which leads on to consumption. Every man believes consumption incurable. People have been educated to this belief which is proven incorrect by Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure, which is nature's great helpmate, and it cures consumption and and all throat and lung diseases speedily and permanently. Trial bottles free, of Baker and Hall.

International Throat & Lung Institute
81 Lafayette Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

This Institute was founded by Dr. M. Souvielle of Paris, (ex-aide surgeon of French army), for the special treatment of Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness, Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, using in the treatment of above named diseases Dr. Souvielle's new and wonderful invention, the SPIROMETER, an instrument which conveys medicinal properties direct to parts affected, and which is now used in all the leading hospitals in Europe. It is only since Dr. Souvielle's invention and discovery of this new method of treating the air passages, that Throat and Lung diseases are no longer feared. Physicians and sufferers are invited to investigate this mode of treatment. If impossible to come in person, write for list of questions and International News. Thousands treated by letter. Instruments sent to any address by express, with full directions for using. Call upon or address DR. M. SOUVIELLE, 81 Lafayette Ave., Detroit, Mich.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption,

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. B. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of Consumption. His child is now in this country, and enjoying the very best of health. He has proved to the world that Consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. A Clerical Anecdote.

In the Century, Rev Dr. Charles S. Robinson continues his discussion of the annoyances and humors of the musical service in churches, and relates this anecdote: "Glorious Easter was at hand and great preparations were made in the rural parish for its celebration; boughs were twined in the arches of the building; flowers swung in wreaths overhead and shone in beautiful baskets among the aisles; children had been rehearsing carols. All the town came in on that notable morning. It was a scene never to be forgotten. The minister was radiant; his eyes beamed with delight. But a thought struck him: this audience, so happy, so generous, so enthusiastic—would they not hear him a moment for a stroke of business? After the invocation and the first song, he surprised them with a proposition to bring 'Easter offerings' now at once to God's altar, and lift the dear old church out of debt: oh, then there would be a resurrection! The congregation would come up from under its great stone into a new life if they would roll it away! Then the plates went their course, and hearts were touched, and purses were emptied, and the heaps of money lay before the moistened eyes of the relieved pastor as he tremulously thanked a good God for his people's fidelity in response. 'The money is here, I am sure it is,' he exclaimed. 'If there be a little in arrears it can be made up in a day, and now we are ready heartily to go on with the worship of our risen Lord.' So the fixed programme proceeded. A little German had been procured from the metropolis for an annex to the tenor: his solo came in at t is exact crisis of grateful emotion: he rendered it with a fresh aplomb, though the consonants were awkward: 'An' de det sall be raised—de det sall be raised—an' de det—an' de det—sall be raised—sa'l e raised in de twinkling of an ay-ee!'

"Now it is quite safe to say that after the congregation went home, the theme of the day was dissipated, and the two events uppermost in everybody's mind were the surprise which the eager minister had sprung upon the people, and the ridiculous appropriateness of the declamatory solo which followed it. On general principles, we have no objection to the collection of money to discharge religious obligation, even in divine service; but it does seem a pity that a humorous episode should be the chief reminiscence of such a solemn occasion."

Pauperizing Cattle.

One of the religious papers, dealing with the subject of mission work in the Western States and Territories, draws an illustration from the experience of men who know all about cattle: In New Mexico, Colorado and Wyoming Territory, and all along those lines of longitude, millions of cattle subsist through all the winter seasons on the native grass without being fed. The cattle kings of Wyoming told me when I was laboring there that, from the severity of some of their winters, they lost from three to five per cent. of their cattle. I asked why they did not keep a supply of hay to help the weaklings through. "Give them hay and they quit work, and their example tends to demoralize the herd—cheaper to let them die." A friend of mine in Nevada, who had a stock ranch, told me once, in the severity of a hard winter, he bought a stack of hay to tide his weakly cattle through a cold snap. His supply of hay was not at all adequate to the length of the winter season, but would sustain life till the snow should pass away and allow the cattle access to the grass; but, to his great disappointment, all the cattle admitted to the hay-stack lay down by it as soon as they filled themselves. Then when hunger returned they would walk to the water-trough and drink, and return to the hay-stack and eat. Thus they spent their days till the hay was all devoured, and there, one by one, they lay down and died.

The next winter was also very severe, and my friend saw that he was likely again to lose a large number of cattle, but, having learned a lesson of wisdom on the distribution of charity, he determined to adopt a different method: so he procured a supply of hay, but kept it entirely out of sight of the herd, and during the very severe weather, he had each "cowboy" sling two bundles of hay across his shoulder, and have them hang down fore and aft of his body, so as to attract the attention of the cattle, and pass quietly among them as they were scattered widely over the plains, and when they found one in a starving condition, just to lay down a little hay and pass on. In that way he did not pauperize, but he did vitalize and keep his needy cattle to work on the line of self-support. He did not lose one that winter.

The Care of Callas.

Now this, I judge, is the scientific treatment to give the calla. Let it have rest from June to September, but do not suffer its rootlets to die or become withered. Look closely at a calla root. It is like a cord of flesh, and each delicate hair is a mouth, through which nourishment is to be drawn for the plant. If the bulb is found stripped of its live and healthy rootlets when time for repotting comes, then two or three months will be taken in supplying a new network before there will be any extra energy to put into blossoms. Here is seen the error of the "drying process." It is a waste of strength and time to suffer the roots to become impaired.

The method I have employed for years is to place the pots outdoors in their erect position, thus insuring to them the watering of the dew and occasional rains, no more, unless there be a long drouth, during which they should be sometimes sprinkled. In September the plants, having then one or two short leaves, are repotted, taking care to preserve all the healthy roots uninjured; regular watering is commenced; two or three new leaves are thrust out and blossoms are secured within a month after repotting. Few callas, under the "drying process," will blossom before January or February. Under the plan here advocated, the "resting process," they are secured in October, and are produced during the longer period in equal plenty and luxuriance.

I have had thirteen blossoms within a twelve-month from a single bulb with but one crown and stalk. Who can show better results than this? I do not permit the younger bulbs to grow, but force all the strength of the plant into one stalk, and am repaid by having my lilies come in pairs, two out of each blossom leaf, one generally showing itself before the other is gone. With my five pots, of a single stalk each, I have had seven blossoms in sight at once, and never less than three.

Single stalks grow in greater luxuriance, producing larger blooms and leaves. By crowding the pots with many stalks, more blossoms will be secured from the same space at your window, but they will be of an inferior order. The true window gardener is not anxious to have so many plants, but strong, and large, and blooming ones. Give me one large calla that blossoms freely rather than a dozen tiny pots.

Do not water callas at the bottom; for no matter how warm the water is, it will be cold when it reaches the roots. It is better to use as warm as the hand will bear, and pour in at the top, letting the old and cold water run off at the bottom. The whole pot is then thoroughly warmed through. Use as little water as may be, else the richness of the earth will be carried off by that which escapes. A little ammonia in the water adds greatly to the vigor and productiveness of the plant.—*N. Glass Printing-Plates.

Many as are the automatic engraving processes that have been proposed from time to time, and successful as some of them have proved when worked with a combination of skill and capital, it is not unlikely that many possible, and even practical methods are destined to make their appearance as years roll on. We have now before us the first number of the Australian Graphic, of November 24, 1883, published at Sydney, which forcibly illustrates the fact that there is yet another process available other those hitherto in use. This journal is unique, inasmuch as the whole of its seven full pages of illustration are printed (with type) from relief blocks on glass, at an ordinary letter-press machine. To this first issue we are indebted for the following description:

"The inventor of the process, Mr. Samuel Henry Croker, formerly of Rallton, Tasmania, but now of Sydney, devoted himself for some years to considering how the pictorial press could be supplied with a cheap, rapid and durable means of reproducing drawings. After careful study of current methods, and almost incessant experiment, he at last resolved to take as the basis of a new process the erosive action of fluoric acid on glass. Various metallic substances suggested themselves to the inventor as the material to be engraved, but were rejected in favor of glass, for the reason that the fluoric acid has a vertical or deepening effect only on glass, while in the case of metals it has a lateral or undermining influence as well. And, in point of cost, besides, glass has the very great advantage over all other substances of being inexpensive. To adapt the engraved plate to typographical purposes, it has to be mounted on an iron block, the cementing material being one of the registered features of the process. Thus fixed, it is 'type-high' and ready for printing from. At first sight glass appears too brittle a substance to pass through the printing-machine, but experiment has proved the contrary, and it was not found necessary to carry out the inventor's first intention to print from electrotypes taken of the glass. Not only has experience proved that the risk of fracturing the glass in printing is reduced to a minimum, but it has also shown that the glass has decided superiority over the boxwood used by wood-engravers, in that it is not affected by any variation of temperature. The finer portions of wood-engraving are subject, too, to deterioration through the pressure and damping involved in printing; but the most delicate engraving on glass, will appear as vivid and exact at the last copy of a large impression as at the first."—Printing Times.

Courtesy in Public Places.

It is a lamentable fact that one can hardly enter a horse-car, or go to any public place without seeing flagrant disregard of the rules of good manners, and that, too, not only in people who are not expected to know better, but often in the behavior of richly dressed women who doubtless call themselves ladies. The error and vulgarisms alluded to are frequently committed through thoughtlessness or ignorance, and those who are guilty of these improprieties would, doubtless, be surprised and shocked if they were aware of the estimate placed upon them and their breeding by people who formed their opinion from some little act, tone or movement which had wholly escaped their attention. For example, a richly dressed woman enters a crowded car. A gentleman rises and offers her his seat. She takes it without the slightest sign of gracious acknowledgment. We immediately say, mentaly: "She has no manners, no courtesy." She places a small coin between her teeth or lips, showing her want of delicacy, refinement and neatness; but without enumerating the disagreeable things often seen, let us, for the benefit of those who may wish to improve, mention a few common rules of good breeding which are, alas! too often ignored by those who should know better.

It is vulgar to do or say anything that attracts attention. Loud laughing is in very bad taste. Loud conversation while walking with a friend in the street, shopping, or riding in a horse-car, displays a great want of refinement and of good sense. Besides the odiousness of making one's self conspicuous in this way, it is really dangerous, as no one knows what foul germs of disease concealed in the dust of the streets may blow into the mouth, and, lodging in the warm, moist throat, germinate, giving rise to disease, if not to death. For the sake of health as well as decency, therefore, it is better to keep the mouth shut as much as possible. The same considerations will lead a lady to wear a veil. Never talk of personal or private affairs in public places; no one knows who may be your listeners. To speak of your own affairs in public is imprudent and vulgar; to speak of your friends' affairs in public is rude and impertinent. The same remark applies to postal-cards.—The Household.

Rheumatic Syrup Co:

Gents—I feel it my duty to recommend your wonderful medicine—"Rheumatic Syrup"—to all who are suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia or kidney difficulty.

I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism, caused by kidney difficulty, and have been treated by our best physicians, but they failed to reach my case or benefit me in the least.

I saw in the Auburn papers the names of a number who had been permanently cured by the use of Rheumatic Syrup, and, being acquainted with many of them, I was induced to try it, and to my surprise I found that all pain had left me before I had finished the first bottle. I continued its use for a time, and to-day I am well as ever and feel no more pain or trouble with my kidneys. It has been several months since I discontinued its use, so I know it is a permanent cure in my case.

I can testify that Rheumatic Syrup will do all—yes, more than you claim for it. I am yours truly,

Mrs. Hattie Paddock.

New Prolific Tree Bean.

Having raised them for main crop the past season, I can conscientiously give them the following recommend: On good soil they will yield an average of about 150 pods to the tree, 6 or 7 grains to the pod, and 60 bushels to the acre if planted AS DIRECTED. They closely resemble the Navy Bean, cook in much less time than the Navy, are very white, and of excellent flavor. Having but one stalk in a hill they are much easier cultivated than five to seven stalks of any common variety, and can be left in the hill until all are fully matured, thereby avoiding liability to mould. They should be planted as soon as danger from frost is over, in rows two feet apart, and 15 or 18 inches in the row, more than one stalk in a hill will not do, and if more is planted, thin when two inches high to one plant in a hill, and they will completely cover the ground. About four quarts plants an acre. Try them and for main crop you will grow no other. Net price per quart, 25 cents. Order at this office, or, at the residence of W. E. GRAY, North end Union St., Tecumseh, M.

Humor in the Stomach.

Much of the distress and sickness attributed to dyspepsia, chronic diarrhoea and other causes is occasioned by humor in the stomach. THE LADIES' FLORAL CABINET, NEW YORK, has among the illustrated articles in its March number two that render it especially attractive. One, on its first page, of a scarlet Lily, the blossoms of which range themselves in a circle at the top of the flower-stalk, making a gorgeous crown. The other of a Floral Arch, illustrating one of the ways by which the lawn can be ornamented aside from bedding arrangements. Various interesting papers are contributed by well-known writers. Mr. Wm. Falconer, formerly superintendent of the Harvard Botanical Gardens, describes how a garden can be made beautiful with a few flowers collected from the woods and meadows. F. ESTATE OF JAMES MILLER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court, for the County of Lenawee holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 14th day of April in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James Miller, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified, of Thomas Miller a son of said deceased praying that administration of the estate of said deceased may be granted to Alexander W. Miller, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 19th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks, previous to said day of hearing.

GUARDIAN SALE.

BY virtue of a license granted to me as guardian of Bertha D. Stevens and Harry L. Stevens by the probate court for the county of Lenawee, dated the 14th day of April A.D., 1884, licensing me thereto, notice is hereby given that on the 31st day of May, A.D., 1884, I will sell at public vendue to the highest bidder at the law office of the undersigned in the village of Tecumseh, Michigan, at the hour of ten o'clock in the forenoon, all the undivided one-eighth of those parcels of land situate in the village of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, described as follows: House and lot six rods square from out of and upon the southeast corner of block eight (8) of Henry L. Hewitt's addition to the village of Tecumseh, reference being had to the Record of said addition in Register of Deeds office for said county, and that house and lot bounded by beginning in the west line of Evans street one and 13-100 chains north of the north line of Logan street, thence north on the west line of Evans street to the southeast corner of Exchange Hotel lot; thence west on the south line of that lot, three and 18-100 chains to the J. B. Hoag lot, (now Marsh lot); thence south to land formerly James Wheeler's land; thence east on north line of said Wheeler's land to place of beginning. Terms of sale published at and before sale.

Dated April 15th 1884.

EDWIN B. WOOD,
Guardian of said Minors.

Cover Your Heads!

One week ago we opened our new Hat and Cap Department, and although we felt sure of the support of the public in our new venture we were not prepared to meet such sales for the week fully double our expectations. Everyone should see our celebrated $1 Hat, which is sold by other dealers at $1.50. This Hat we make our specialty. We purchase such large quantities to supply our different stores that we can well afford to sell them at $1, and still have a fair profit. Our $1.50 Stiff Hats in all the latest shapes, other dealers' price $2. Our $2 and $2.50 Hats, from the best makers, and our $3, $3.50, $4 and upwards, are all fine imported English Stiff and Soft Hats. Every line we sell at 50 cents less than elsewhere in the city.

Confirmation Suits!

We are showing a Large Stock of Suits for boys to wear when taking their first communion. We are offering special bargains in Boys' Dark Suits in all prices. The assortment of styles and patterns is the most varied and extensive we have had for years. Intending purchasers will save themselves time and trouble by coming direct to our store, for they not only have the advantage of our large stock to select from, but will find our prices lower, our goods better made and trimmed, and our styles newer than you can find elsewhere.

JERSEY SUITS!

We have just received a large consignment of imported English Jersey Suits for boys and children. They are durable and stylish. Every mother is invited to call and inspect them.

Those that claim to know all about it, say that the eclipse of the moon this month has been the cause of the late cold weather. We don't pretend to be posted in such matters, but if it is true it is laying a fearful responsibility and the cause of not a few swear words on a shadow.

The low price of wheat brings that cereal in slowly. The crop on the ground for this time of the year is not up to an average in this section.

John Palmer's family, which has been boarding with Mrs. Howell the past winter, has moved back into the Bradner house.

The new council met Monday night and placed the bonds for liquor dealers at $3,500. The bonds last year were $5,000 under which but one saloon was licensed, although it is said by those who claim to know, that under the names of "budge" and birch and pop, something with a stronger smell than these harmless beverages ought to have, was sold in several places. Public sentiment has changed this year and all such places will be licensed and the money put on the streets. The Council has also appointed George Haggart marshall for the coming year.

The entertainment given by the Band last Friday evening was greeted with a very good audience. The play was "Out in the Streets," and as this was the third time the company has played it, they had become quite proficient in the parts. Cos. Davis as "North Carolina Pete" did some very good "ebony" business, and the acting of Miss Lina Jones was worthy a larger stage and better surroundings. A pleasing feature of the entertainment was a quartette—a parody on "Paddy Duffy's Cart" with the "Old Band" as a subject—written and sung by Charley Keyser with a chorus of gentlemen. This gentleman can be complimented on his muse and the commendable manner in which the song was sung. The receipts were about $30

More trouble for the woolen mill and no prospect of its starting soon. It is well known that some of the minority stockholders have long been dissatisfied with the way the mill has been running, and they have recently filed a bill in the Court of Chancery setting forth their grievances. The bill charges the present management with mis-management and violation of the corporation laws, and asks that a receiver may be appointed, the property sold, and the proceeds divided among the stockholders. What the evidence will bring forth, remains to be seen. In the mean time, the mill remains idle, the machinery rusts and Clinton's white elephant grows larger and larger each day.

It is rumored that Clinton will struggle with Tecumseh in a wrestling match within the next 60 days. Clinton's champion is of large stature and caliber as to stomach, and he will wrestle a prominent citizen of Tecumseh; stakes $200 a side, $50 forfeit. We do not know whether the rules allow it or not, but would suggest that the contestants come in to the arena well padded; also that a derrick be erected with a log-chain attachment to use in case of an emergency. According to the Clinton Champion the P. C. of T. will stand no chance of winning the match, and, unlike Banquo's ghost, will "down" before the ability and ponderous strength of his opponent. Our man, at the conclusion of this match, will challenge any one in the world for any amount of money. We suppress the names of these contestants. But if this paragraph excites curiosity in the minds of the curious, they may be able to get some particulars from Dr. Joseph C. Burroughs.

HOLLOWAY HAPPENINGS

Why does not spring stop its fooling, and come along.

The Dayton Hedge Co. will put out fence this spring for our enterprising farmers. Geo. Holloway, Horace Holdridge, and the Boyd Bros., we understand, have invested.

New and commodious sheds are being erected at the church by our village carpenters, Wright and Lewis.

The people of Holloway, have, at last awakened to the necessity of improving the road to the corners. A large tile drain will be put in immediately. The tile are on the ground and work began last Monday. A part of the expense will be defrayed by money already subscribed; it is expected that the township will assume the remainder. Of course it is now in order for the chronic croaker and stingy tax payer to toot his horn. Who will be first to give us a blast?

On last Monday morning a mild specimen of a lunatic rolled out of his nest in Dr. Begel's barn where he had spent the night. A short time after, he appeared at Mac Sleeper's house where he favored the family with a long and eloquent prayer. Mac heard his supplication, gave him bread to eat, and then invited him out to toil a little at the wood pile. Here he gave strong evidences of insanity, by his continuing long and hard work till the middle of the afternoon. He took his departure soon after, no one knows where.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

Spring apathy disappears before a day of sunshine, and a move-on mania seems to possess the town.

Buildings that began the village are being transformed into wall-flowers, to make room for new, and a general dissatisfaction with what was, and is, pervades the minds of those who rent homes. The want of houses, built to accommodate people encumbered with children, is a serious inconvenience. The law and the land-lord are especially severe with owners of babies. They may drown them, and they cannot hire a house unless the little ones are non-est. The worst old tumbledown hut to be found is considered too good to be marred by children, and if some one would invest for these unwanted tenants, a shell, to be worn snail-fashion, he could do an immense business, whether wheat goes up or down. The question is not is the mother neat and orderly, or the father addicted to closing doors with his boot-heels, but its have they got children? It is a short catechism, but how it spoils the disposition, hampers enterprise, narrows trade and village growth. Ten families might be admitted into our precincts if they had no children, and some already here are in danger of joining the exodus because of them. Yet, it is men, with large families, who are supposed to work for their maintainance, and who must buy largely from merchant and butcher wherever they find employment.

Now that we are near the throes of a Presidential election, it does seem as if a protective tariff or high license for this branch of hewers, is a public necessity.

Reform is the order here. One business firm of long standing, has become new in title, and one has divided and multiplied.

The Post-office is now the termination of Ennis block, but it may not be next week, as that side of the street is endowed with mushroom proclivities and presents a solid front to the public from corner to street turn and the end is not yet

Lapeer county sheep breeders and wool growers' club will hold its first annual festival at Metamora, May 6.

Noah Stinchcomb, a young man living north of Charlotte, has been removed to the Kalamazoo insane asylum.

Michael May, wife and child were poisoned recently, at Evart, with canned corn beef. Mrs. M. is still very sick.

Edward St. Arnold, a Frenchman of L'Anse lived 95 years, only to perish by falling into an air hole on the bay.

Second annual convention of the lumberman's missionary association of Michigan, will be held at Bay City, April 29.

C. T. Chapin, formally proprietor of the Cadillac News, will open a large book and job printing office at Cadillac about May 1.

The maple sugar season is over at Nashville, which is in the heart of Michigan's best sugar territory, and the export is very light.

A Port Huron carpenter says he can purchase lumber in Saginaw and ship it to that city 20 per cent cheaper than he can buy it in Port Huron.

Crepin, Murphy & Co., of Whitehall, have sold the entire cut of their mill for 1884, about 30,000,000 feet, to the Chicago lumber company, for some $500,000.

The tramp nuisance is growing very serious about Marshall, some 40 have been sent to jail during the winter, and they are regarded as dangerous citizens.

Calhoun county fairs have been held at Marshall long enough, Battle Creek thinks, and the latter burg has decided to erect suitable buildings and hold the fair there this fall.

An editor of the Norway Iron Chronicle grows dizzy over being presented with a basket of radishes and lettuce, and says they were "as fresh, tender and sweet as the bloom on a maiden's cheek."

The result of the different suggestions will be a bill by Congressman Cutcheon calling for $250,000 for a branch national soldiers' home for Michigan, to which all disabled soldiers shall be eligible for admission.

Dr. Daniel Clark, a physician in the deaf and dumb institution at Flint since its foundation, untill recently, died of inflamation of the bowels. He was pension examiner for 20 years, and member of the school board for 22 years.

A steamboat is now built at Bay City, which will be the largest wooden steamer on fresh water. Her extreme length is 305 feet, length of keel 285, breadth of beam 40, depth of hold 22, lower hold 12, between decks 10. About 1,500,000 feet of white oak and 300,000 feet of pine will be used in her construction. She will be able to carry 3,000 tons of ore, 100,000 bushels of corn, or 2,000,000 feet of lumber and will cost $150,000.

Jacob Brumm, the young farmer of near Charlotte, recently discovered to be a forger, is so ill from the expose that it is not considered safe to proceed with the arrest. The case is a remarkable one, as by industry and good habits Brumm had inspired perfect confidence throughout the community. His brother-in-law, Jacob Upright, a responsible farmer, had signed his notes, and they aggregate 18, amounting to $7,000. The money thus obtained is not yet accounted for.

Henry Willis, of Battle Creek, is a sort of Michigan Lesseps. He is now 80 years old, has been at work four years to get a canal, 112 feet wide and 10 feet deep, built from Lake Michigan to Lake Erie. Such a canal, he says, would admit vessels of 1,000 tons burden, and if built where he suggests, would drain a million of acres of swamp land, making the best of soil for cultivation. He is not in the least discouraged, but is still confident that he will live to see boats crossing southern Michigan.

TECUMSEH, MICH., APR. 24, 1884.

ME AND MARY.

All my feelin's in the spring
Gits so blame contrary
I can't think of anything
Only me and Mary!
"Me and Mary" all the time,
"Me and Mary" like a rhyme,
Keeps a-singin' on till I'm Sick of "Me and Mary!"

"Me and Mary! Ef us two
Only was together—
Flyin' like we used to do
In the April weather!"
All the night and all the day
I keep wishin' thataway
Til I'm gittin' old and gray
Jest on "Me and Mary!"

Muddy git along the pike
Sence the winter's frozen,
And the orchard's blackard like
"Bloomin" out this season:
Only heard one bluebird yit—
Nary robin nor tomtit:
What's the how and why of it?
S'pect it's "Me and Mary!"

Me and Mary liked the birds—
That is, Mary sorto'
Liked 'em fust, and afterwards
Why I thought I orto.
And them birds—ef Mary stood
Right here with me like she should—
They'd be singin, them birds would,
All for me and Mary.

Birds or not, I'm hopin' some
I can git to plowin'
Ef the sun'll only come,
And the Lord allow it,
Guess to morry I'll turn in
And git down to work agin;
This here loafersin' won't win
Not for me and Mary!

For a man that loves like me,
And is afeard to name it,
Till some other feller, he
Gits the girl—dad-blame it!
Wet or dry, or cloud or sun—
Winter gone, or jest begun—
Out-door work for me or mine,
No more "Me and Mary!"

MY FAIR ROAD COMPANION.

At Perote, where we halted for a relay and refreshments, all my fellow-passengers took leave of me, very solemnly assuring me that, if assailed by the ladrones or robbers, it would be much better for me to take matters quietly, and suffer myself to be gentlemanly plundered than to run the risk of having my throat cut for resistance, as I had somewhat boldly proclaimed it was my intention of doing. I thanked them for their advice, and replied that I would take the matter into serious consideration.

At Perote, I repeat, all who had been my companions from Vera Cruz took leave of me, this being the end of their journey in that direction; but there was one new passenger here to go forward, whom, to my agreeable surprise, I found to be a beautiful young lady, some twenty years of age.

Senorita Paula, as I subsequently ascertained her name to be, was indeed one of those rare beauties seldom met with except in works of fiction—tall, graceful, with a profusion of long, black hair—soft, clear, melting dark eyes—features as perfect as ever came from the hands of the sculptor, and with an animation the most fascinating—varying in expression with every changing mood of the intellectual possessor. A glance at her bewitching dark eyes showed me that she was one who was naturally of a social disposition; and as we rattled away from the gloomy town, I took the liberty of opening a conversation.

"They tell me," said I, "that the route between here and Mexico is a very dangerous one to travel."

"There is little to fear," she replied, with a sweet smile and in a melodious tone, "except from the professional robbers, and they seldom harm any one who makes no resistance."

"It seems strange to me," I rejoined, "that you Mexicans should take such things as a matter of course, and deem resistance a very impolite way of treating the knights of the road, instead of boldly asserting your rights and abating the evil by a manly spirit of resistance. For myself, I must consider it the most cowardly of proceedings for any respectable party to set out prepared to quietly gratify the cupidity of the ladrones, and unprepared to treat them to their just deserts."

"Every traveler, senor," she replied, "should, before setting out, count the cost of his journey; and, as of course, it is natural he should value his life highly, it seems to me natural that he should pay a certain sum for positive safety, rather than put that life in jeopardy. For instance, in traveling from Vera Cruz to Mexico, if he will first reckon that so much is the fare by the diligencia, and that so much will be required for entertainment on the way, and so much for the contingency you speak of, he will then have the exact cost between the two points; and if he will look at the whole, as the sum total of his journey he will not seem to be robbed by any one party more than another."

"That," I replied, "may be, I believe is, the Mexican mode of doing business, but does not tally with the preconceived ideas of foreigners."

"But every one," replied the fair speaker, "should conform to the customs of the country he visits."

"And do you, then, go prepared for this highway robbery, and have you no fear in thus journeying by yourself?"

"Well, senor, what can I do? I am, as you perceive, an unprotected lady, who, for certain reasons am required to make the journey between Perote and the Capital some two or three times a year, and you certainly could not expect me to go prepared to resist an armed band. As to fear, I will not deny I have my share of that, but, so far, I have never met with any rough treatment, and of course I trust to the saints that my fortune will ever be as propitious."

"And have you really been robbed on your journey back and forth?" I inquired.

"I think I have paid my share to the ladrones for my transit through their country," she laughed.

"And you expect to continue a repetition of the same for the rest of your life?"

"Who knows?" she replied. "At least I hope to be always prepared."

"And your fellow travelers," said I, "have you never seen any disposed to resist these unlawful acts?"

"Once, senor, an American and an Englishman who were in the same diligencia with me fired upon the robbers, killing one and wounding two."

"And did the robbers fire [illegible]"

"Yes, but fled immediately, and fortunately injured none of our party."

"As I should have expected," returned I. "You were not robbed on that occasion, I suppose?"

"We were not, senor, but the two foreigners subsequently paid dearly for their resistance, for in journeying back and forth both were killed, separately and at different times, near the same spot. You see these crosses by the side of the road, senor?"

"I have observed them frequently, but here they seem to be much more numerous," I replied, looking forth from the vehicle.

"Each stands on the spot where some one has met a violent death," she rejoined: "and, as we go along, I will call your attention to those which mark the places where the foreigners met, theirs."

"Do you know," said I, "that I am resolved to emulate their example, let the consequences be what they may?"

"Holy saints defend us!" she exclaimed; "you are not in earnest, senor."

"Seriously so, I assure you."

"You would only bring certain death upon us both."

"Say, rather, I should lighten the expenses of the journey—for your knights of the road understand retreat as well as advance—and you yourself have acknowledged that firm resistance put them to flight for once."

"But there were numbers opposed to them, senor, and you are only one."

"But, fortunately, I have a couple of revolvers, which, in two good hands, amount to some ten or a dozen shots, and my friends have repeatedly told me I am not a bad marksman."

"Ah, Santa Maria! you will think better of this, senor; the very idea of resistance terrifies me!"

"But not the idea of robbery?"

"Because I have never met with violence."

We continued to converse in a similar strain for some time longer—my fair companion gradually changing the subject, and seeming much interested in myself. I learned that her family name was Valerde, that she was unmarried, that her father and brother were officers in the army, and so forth, and so on: and in return I gave her my own name, stated something of my history, business and prospects, and, [illegible] tive than I would advise any friend to be with any stranger of either sex in a strange country.

As we continued our journey, the conversation gradually changing from one thing to another, Senorita Paula suddenly brought it back to the point where it first opened.

"We are coming upon a dangerous part of the road," she said; "are you still resolved to defend yourself if assailed?"

"With your permission, senorita?"

"I do not think it advisable," she replied; "but still, if such is your intention, I think it no more than right that you should give me a chance to take a part in my defense, since my risk of danger will be as great as yours!"

"And have you really the nerve, after all, to defend yourself?" I inquired.

"If I had the means, senor."

"I have two pistols," said I; "if you will accept of one of them, it is at your service."

"You are very kind, senor—but can I fire it?"

"With ease, senorita;" and producing one of my revolvers, I explained to her the manner in which it was to be used.

"And this, you say, will shoot some half a dozen times?"

"I think it safe to calculate that five charges out of the six will explode, senorita."

"A very formidable weapon, indeed!" she replied; "and with such I can almost fancy we are safe. You have another, you say, like this?"

I produced it.

"What a beautiful invention!" she observed, reaching over and taking it from my hand. Then extending her hands, one of the revolvers in each, she continued: "Armed like this, one might almost count himself safe against a host! You say this is fired in this manner?" she proceeded, cocking one of the weapons as she spoke, and pointing it toward the road.

"Have a care, senorita, or you will discharge it!"

The words were scarcely uttered, when her finger pressed the trigger, and one of the barrels was exploded with a sharp report. A minute after, and while I was gently chiding her, we heard a loud, quick tramp of horses, and several sharp, rapid exclamations.

The next moment our conveyance was stopped suddenly, and we saw ourselves surrounded by some eight or ten mounted men, one of whom, in a loud voice, exclaimed:

"Yield you prisoners, or die!"

"Quick, senorita!" said I, extending my hand; "quick! in Heaven's name give me one of those weapons, for now is the time for decisive action."

"Nay," she replied, putting the weapons behind her, "you will be too hasty! Let them suppose we yield—let them open the door!"

"Oh, no! it will then be too late!"

As I spoke the door was suddenly thrown open and three or four swarthy, heavily-bearded men presented themselves to my view.

"Quick, senorita, for the love of God!" I cried, grasping at her arm.

"Hold!" she exclaimed, instantly presenting one of my own revovers to my head. "Resistance is useless—you are our prisoner!"

"Gracious Heaven!" exclaimed I, perfectly astounded. "Our prisoner, did you say? It is not possible that one so fair and lovely as yourself is in any manner connected with these banditti!"

"It is even so, senor," she replied, with one of her most bewitching smiles; still keeping one of my own weapons turned against myself and significantly pointing the other to the door. "You will oblige us by stepping forth and giving yourself into the care of these good gentlemen, who will see that you are treated as a brave man should be, but who will trouble you meantime for any little change and valuables you may have to spare!"

There seemed to be no help for it—the beautiful Senorita Paula Valerde was a spy and accomplice of the ladrones. She had entered the diligencia at Perote for no other purpose than to [illegible] condition of things inside and be able to signalize her associates as she passed along, so that they might know exactly in what manner to conduct themselves and make their work sure without risk. By a simple stratagem she had obtained my arms just at the point where she knew the attack would be made, and her discharge of the pistol, as if by accident, was the sign to show them that all was secure.

"I acknowledge myself conquered by being outwitted," said I, bowing to la senorita.

Then turning to the robbers, who had now collected in a body in front of the door of the diligencia, I continued:

"Gentlemen, will you permit me to alight and make you some valuable presents? In the language of your country, all I have is yours."

The leader of the party bowed politely in return and said, with a grim smile:

"Si, senor, we shall be most happy to receive anything which so distinguished a traveler may have to bestow."

With this I quietly stepped from the vehicle, and one quick, searching glance put me in possession of the whole state of affairs.

The diligencia had been stopped in a wild, gloomy place, and the driver was sitting carelessly on his box, taking everything as a matter of course. He might also be an accomplice of the robbers, or he might not; but, in either case, there was little hope of assistance from him—for any attempt of the kind would certainly bring upon him a severe punishment, sooner or later. I glanced up and down the road, where it wound between dark, overshadowing trees, but discovered nothing to give me any hope. The robbers, some eight or ten in number, and all well armed, were collected around me, part of them mounted, and the others standing on their feet, holding their mustangs by the bridle. Looking upon my case as a desperate one, so far as being plundered was concerned, I still retained my presence of mind, and did not wholly despair. True, I had been outwitted and disarmed, and now stood singly between numbers, but the idea of yielding tamely to this outrage was repugnant to my very nature, and I resolved to put any favorable opportunity for defense and retaliation to the strongest test.

"Will you accept this purse?" [illegible] producing one that held several gold coins, and handing it to the chief of the ladrones.

"Thank you, senor! you are very kind!" he said, as he took it in his hand, with a polite bow, and chinked the money.

"This diamond pin may prove acceptable to your friend?" I added, as I quietly removed it from the bosom of my shirt, and handed it to the gentleman on the left, who received it in the same polite manner. "This diamond ring I trust you will retain as a keepsake," I continued, drawing the jewel from my finger and presenting it to a third. "I beg your pardon, senores!" I pursued, glancing at the Senorita Paula, who, with my pistols still in her possession, was quietly standing within the diligencia, regarding the whole proceedings with one of her sweetest smiles; "I must not forget this beautiful lady! I have here," I went on, at the same time producing the article, "a very beautiful gold snuff-box—set, as you perceive, with diamonds—will your ladyship honor me by accepting this as a slight token of my regard for the pleasure afforded me by your company and conversation?"

"You are a very gallant gentleman, senor!" she laughed, taking the two revolvers in one fair hand and presenting the other.

I reached the box toward her, but my hand trembled a little—and, just as the present was about to touch her fingers, it slipped and fell between us.

"A thousand pardons, senorita, for my awkwardness," I said, as I bent down to pick it up.

Now was the all-important moment of life and death! All were in a measure off their guard; and one quick, furtive glance showed me that the girl still held my weapons carelessly in one hand, with the other remaining extended for the prize. I lifted the box carefully; but, as I raised myself, I gave a wild, startling yell; and as the senorita started back, I, with the quickness of lightning, seized both weapons and wrenched them from her.

To wheel and commence firing upon the party, was now only the work of a moment. The first shot, fortunately, stretched out the chief; the second took effect on the one nearest to him; and by the time the third had been sent on its mission, there arose one simultaneous yell of dismay, and the astounded robbers began to scatter in every direction. I had no disposition to follow them, however; another minute they might rally and turn upon me; and, springing forward, I grasped the reins of a freed mustang, and vaulted into the saddle. One more glance around me, showed me the Senorita Paula upon the body of the chief, her laughter changed to grief, and some of the scattered cowards bringing their weapons to bear upon me.

"Adios, senorita and senores!" said I, bitterly; "he laughs best who laughs last!"

The next moment I was dashing away down the road, the half-rallied robbers pouring after me a volley, but fortunately not touching their mark. They would doubtless have followed me in hot pursuit, but for the wholesome dread they had of my still undischarged weapon.

As it was, I escaped and entered the town of Puebla in triumph; where, it is almost needless to add, a narration of my exploit made me a hero and a lion for the time.

Here I sold my captured mustang and trappings for enough to indemnify me for what I had disposed of in the way of presents; and the next day saw me an inside passenger of the same diligencia en route for Mexico, where I arrived in safety, without any further event worthy of note.

What became of the robbers and their beautiful accomplice I never learned, but the lesson taught me on that journey I have never forgotten; and during the remainder of my stay in that country no pretty woman ever had the honor of being my business confidante, or of getting possession of my trusty and unfailing revolvers.—Clarence Mowbray

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"No. 548 9th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
Mr. Wm. D. Ayer & Co., Gentlemen:
Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching, humor affecting my legs especially my limbs, which itched so maddeningly at night, and burned so intensely that I could scarcely bear anything near them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in bygone years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the Sarsaparilla, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.
Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of Ayer's Sarsaparilla to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to throw off and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Humors, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

How Watch Cases are Made.

It is a fact not generally known that the James Boss' Gold Watch Cases really contain more pure gold than many "solid" gold cases. The demand for these watch cases has led to the manufacture of a very poor grade of solid gold watch cases—low in quality, and deficient in quantity. These cases are made from 4½ to 10 karats, and a 5 or 6 karat case is often sold for 12 or 14 karats. It is NOT economy to buy a watch case so poor in quality that it will soon lose its color, or one so soft that it will lose its shape and fail to shut tight, thus letting in dust and damaging the works, or one so thin that a slight blow will break the crystal, and perhaps the movement. It IS economy to buy a James Boss' Gold Watch Case, in which NONE of these things ever occur. This watch case is not an experiment—it has been made nearly thirty years.

HAZLETON, PA., Oct. 24, 1882.
I sold two James Boss' Gold Watch Cases thirty years ago, when they first came out, and they are in good condition yet. One of them is carried by a carpenter, Mr. L. W. Drake, of Hazleton, and only shows the wear in one or two places; the other by Mr. Bowman, of Cunningham, Pa.; and I can produce one or both of these cases at any time.

General News Summary.

Interesting Home and Foreign News.

CONGRESS.

IN the Senate on the 16th a resolution was agreed to directing the Judiciary Committee to inquire whether Paul Strobach, whose nomination for Marshal for the middle and southern districts of Alabama was rejected by the Senate, and who is now performing the duties of that office, is entitled to occupy the office. The Senate resumed consideration of the bankruptcy bill. A number of amendments were offered and agreed to, after which the senate went into executive session and adjourned. The House dispensed with the morning hour and went into Committee of the Whole on the Morrison tariff bill, which was debated at length, when the committee rose and the House adjourned.

THE Senate on the 17th passed a bill authorizing the managers of the Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers to locate a branch home at some suitable point in either of the States of Arkansas, Colorado, Kansas, Iowa, Minnesota, Missouri or Nebraska, and appropriating $250,000 for the purpose. The bill authorizing the Secretary of War to adjust and settle the account for arms between South Carolina and the Government of the United States, and to balance the same by so reducing the overcharge made against the State in 1869 under the act of 1808, so that the amounts paid on account by South Carolina in the last ten years may be taken in full satisfaction of the account, was passed—yeas 20, nays 12. The consideration of the bankruptcy bill was then resumed, but without reaching a conclusion the Senate adjourned. In the House a bill was passed authorizing the construction of a railroad bridge across St. Croix River, in the States of Wisconsin and Minnesota. The morning hour was dispensed with and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the Pension Appropriation bill. Among the amendments offered was one by Mr. Rosecrans, striking out the provision for the pay of pension agents, and transferring the duties of those officers to the pay department of the army. Pending a vote on this amendment, the committee rose and the House adjourned.

IN the Senate on the 18th Mr. Sherman, from the Committee on Library, reported adversely the newspaper copyright bill, but it was nevertheless placed on the calendar. A bill was introduced and referred providing for the deposit in the Treasury of the receipts from the money order system, and the payment of its expenses from the Treasury. The Senate then took up the Postoffice Appropriation bill. After agreeing to most of the amendments recommended by the committee, the bill as a whole was agreed to. The Senate went into executive session, and when the doors reopened a message from the House announcing the death of Senator Voorhees was laid before the Senate. Remarks in memorial of the deceased were delivered by several Senators, and the Senate then adjourned until the 21st. The House took up and passed the bill limiting the time within which prosecutions may be instituted against persons charged with violating the revenue laws. In Committee of the Whole the bill to relieve certain soldiers of the late war from the charges of desertion was debated and laid aside with a favorable recommendation. The bill for the relief of Myra Clark Gaines was considered, but without coming to a conclusion the committee rose. At the evening session a number of pension bills were passed and the House adjourned.

THE Speaker laid before the House on the 19th a message from the President transmitting several communications from the Secretary of the State, among others one respecting the approaching international conference at Washington for the purpose of fixing the meridian proper to be employed as the common zero of longitude and the standard reckoning throughout the globe, and recommending an appropriation of $100,000 to defray the expenses of the same. The message was appropriately referred. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on bills reported from the Committee on Labor, the first bill considered being that establishing and maintaining a department of labor statistics. Several amendments were adopted, and pending debate on the bill the committee rose and the House adjourned. The Senate was not in session.

DOMESTIC.

FOUR hundred thousand ounces of silver were purchased by the Treasury Department on the 17th for delivery at the Philadelphia and New Orleans mints.

THE Commissioner of Internal Revenue has appointed Gustave Clemens, of Illinois, revenue agent, vice W. D. Clarke, resigned.

WHILE the family of Michael O'Brien, of Erie, Pa., were discussing their evening meal on the 20th a kerosene lamp exploded with great violence, setting everything on fire around them. Most of the burning fluid fell upon a little three-year-old daughter, fairly roasting her alive. The parents were also badly burned.

H. C. FILLMORE and wife, of Fayetteville, guests at the Palmer House, New York, on the 18th, blew out the gas on retiring and were asphyxiated. Mrs. Fillmore died the next day, and her husband was not expected to recover.

STATEMENT of the New York associated banks for the week ended April 19: Loans decrease, $1,096,000; specie decrease, $2,113,000; legal tenders increase, $1,141,000; deposits decrease, $3,601,000; circulation increase, $123,000; reserve decrease, $1,049,000. The banks now hold $2,567,000 in excess of the legal requirements.

IN the United States District Court at Charleston, South Carolina, over 200 cases of violation of the election laws were recently dismissed because, as the District Attorney alleges, of the state of public sentiment.

AT the recent session of the Pennsylvania Wool Growers' Association, representing 74,000 wool growers, resolutions were passed demanding the immediate restoration of the wool tariff of 1867, and pledging themselves not to support any man who voted against such restoration.

AT Reynoldsville, Pa., on the 19th the residence of James Powers, Superintendent of Powers, Brown & Co.'s coal mines, was burned by an incendiary, the inmates barely escaping with their lives. Loss $11,000. Powers had recently received a number of anonymous letters warning him to leave, that his life and property were in danger.

LOOK out for Your Head!

No matter what parts it may finally affect, catarrh always starts in the head, and belongs to the head. There is no mystery about the origin of this direful disease. It begins in a neglected cold. One of the kind that is "sure to be better in a few days." Thousands of victims know how it is by sad experience. Ely's Cream Balm cures colds in the head and catarrh in all its stages. Not a snuff nor a liquid. Applied with the finger to the nostrils.

The True Test.

If a man is hungry within an hour more or less after a meal he is a dyspeptic, it shows his stomach is not able to dispose of what he has eaten, but to eat again, and thus impose more work, is absurdity. Take Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic which cures dyspepsia, and all stomach, liver, kidney and bladder troubles. It is a perfect tonic, appetizer, blood purifier, a sure cure for ague and malaria diseases. Price 50 cents. [illegible]

Commercial Travelers at a Wayside Inn—Something to Put in a Gripsack.

"Gentlemen, I almost envy you the positions you fill; your experience of the world; your knowledge of business; the changing sights you see, and all that you know."

This warmly expressed regret fell from the lips of an elderly pleasure tourist, last August, and was addressed to a semi-circle of commercial travelers seated on the porch of the Linden Hotel, St. Louis, Mo.

"Yes, responded a New York representative of the profession, "a drummer isn't without his pleasures, but he runs his risks too—risks outside the chances of railroad collisions and steamboat explosions."

"What risks for instance?"

"Why, for instance, I was a dyspeptic when I was then traveling for an eastern house, and is known to merchants in all parts of the country. The risk which to me amounts almost to a certainty of getting dyspepsia from perpetual change of diet and water and from having no fixed hours for eating and sleeping. I myself was an example. I say was, for I am all right now."

"No discount on your digestion?" broke in a Chicago dry goods traveler lighting his cigar afresh.

"Not a quarter per cent. But I had to give up traveling for a while. The dyspepsia ruined my paper. Finally I came across an advertisement of PARKER'S TONIC. I tried it and it fixed me up to perfection. There is nothing on earth in my opinion, equal to it as a cure for dyspepsia."

Messrs. Hiscox & Co., of New York, the proprietors, hold a letter from Mr. Franklin stating that precise fact. PARKER'S TONIC aids digestion, cures malarial fevers, heartburn, headache, coughs and colds and all chronic diseases of the liver and kidneys. Put a bottle in your valise. Prices 50c and $1. COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

IN THE MATTER of the estate of Elizabeth Norcross, deceased.

The undersigned, having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Elizabeth Norcross, late of Tecumseh, in said county, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the residence of Jacob G. Roberts, in the township of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 29th day of March, 1884, and on the 8th day of August, 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said days, and that six months from the 18th day of February, 1884, are allowed by the said court for the creditors of said estate to present said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated February 27, 1884.

JOHN MARGESON,
JOHN BENEDICT,
mar1 Commissioners.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Hiram A. Adams, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 26th day of July, 1884, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and that six months from the 26th day of January, 1884, are allowed by the said court to the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Dated March 5th, 1884.

CHARLES BURRIDGE,
JACOB VAN TYNE,
mar6 Commissioners.

ESTATE OF JOSEPH TAYLOR.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Thursday, the 28th day of February, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Joseph Taylor, late of Ravensmoor, Chester County, England, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Homer L. Stewart, alleging among other things that the property of said deceased, is in part at least, a mortgage upon real estate owned by petitioner in Lenawee county, which he has assumed to pay, and which is past due, and praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Edwin B. Wood, or some other suitable person. And it appearing to the court that some of the heirs-at-law of said deceased are residents of England in Great Britain, a foreign country, having no consul residing in this state, whereby it becomes the duty of this court to notify the consul of such foreign nation in the City of New York, at least sixty days before the day assigned for the hearing of said petition, and of the pendency thereof and the day appointed for hearing the same.

Thereupon it is ordered that Monday the 5th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, of Lenawee, for three successive weeks immediately previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF SAMUEL ARNER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday, the 1st day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Samuel Arner, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Augustus Montgomery administrator of said estate, alleging among other things that he has paid the debts of said deceased, the expenses of his last sickness and funeral, and praying for the allowance of his final account and for such further order as shall be deemed lawful and necessary, and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 28th day of April, A.D. 1884, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered: That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF CHARLES F. PATTERSON.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian on Wednesday, the 23 day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Charles F. Patterson, minor.

On reading and filing the petition of James W. Patterson guardian of said minor praying for the allowance of his sixth account as such guardian, now on file in this court.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 28th day of April, A.D. 1884 at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next-of-kin of said minor, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF JAMES MILLER.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, s.s.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 14th day of April in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of James Miller, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Thomas Miller, a son of said deceased, praying that administration of the estate of said deceased may be granted to Alexander W. Miller, or some other suitable person.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 19th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause, if any there be, why the prayer of said Petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said Petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Gen. Logan's boom resembles Hogan's balloon. The gas is almost all out.

The Morrison bill is growing in favor. That or some similar bill will pass the House.

Supposing it should be Blaine against Ben Butler. Wouldn't we have a red hot campaign then?

The House should appoint an investigating committee to examine into the status of Mr Tilden's health.

President Arthur does not talk much, but he is quietly picking up the delegates, and they all go uninstructed.

Edmunds is getting a good show of delegates, and the men who favor the Vermont statesman will be thick and thin friends in the convention.

The revenue reformers of Michigan have another convert in the person of Gov. Begole. Uncle Josiah knows on which side his bread is buttered.

It will be Blaine, Edmunds, Arthur or Lincoln on the Republican ticket. It will be Tilden, Payne, Butler or Sam Randall on the Democratic ticket.

Is there any good reason why war taxation should not be reduced? Doesn't the Morrison bill offer the most feasible plan for its reduction?

Ben Butler is ominously silent, but he keeps his oblique eye on the political weather vane. Ben is never so dangerous as when he is apparently idle.

Blaine's book is ready for delivery. It is rather a singular coincidence that it appears just at the time when delegates are being chosen to the Chicago convention.

Secretary Lincoln leads all competitors for the vice presidential nomination. He will surely draw the second prize, unless his ambition for the first prize shall prompt him to decline it.

By the way, why should not Congress be asked to lay a protective tariff on wheat? With cash wheat at 80 cents in Chicago, this infant industry certainly needs some protection.

Uncle Sam is paying off the public debt at the rate of $14,000,000 per month, and still war taxation continues to heap up still more the surplus in the treasury. Is not this policy one cause of the present business depression?

Three wicked boys went on a spree in Toledo the other day, and one of them was robbed of a large sum of money. It is a foolish thing to go on a spree at any time, but the young men should have known better than to go on a spree in Toledo.

At last accounts, one hundred and fifty members of the House had signified their intention to speak on the tariff bill. Now let them resolve to print their speeches at their own expense, vote on the bill at once, and then proceed to the important business of the session.

The Adrian Times aptly says: The effort of the ultra protection advocates to discredit the views and arguments of those opposed to them by impugning the motives of their opponents, is not calculated at all to help the cause of protection, and it is bad for those using it, as it indicates poverty of argument.

Col. Eldredge has been accused of inconsistency by reason of his vote on the wool question. We see nothing inconsistent about it. He believes in eliminating all protective features from the tariff, but if protection is to prevail, why not give the agricultural class a fair show? If iron and steel and lumber and salt are to be protected, why not protect wool and wheat and turnips and 'taters?

Monday—Samuel J. Tilden is out of the field. Tuesday—The old ticket will surely be nominated. Wednesday—The Sage of Gramercy positively declines. Thursday—It is an open secret among those best informed at Washington that Tilden will be nominated by acclamation. Friday—The talk of Sam Tilden's nomination is the merest bosh. Saturday—Tilden will soon write a letter and define his position.

A HEAVY SNOW STORM

Injures Cattle and Retards Travel in Kansas.

ATCHISON, Kan., April 22.—Snow has been falling steadily nearly all day but melted as it fell. Towards evening the snow turned to rain, which is still pouring down. Reports from Northwestern Kansas say that the heaviest snow storm of the year prevailed there Friday and Saturday last. The trains on the central branch of the Union Pacific road are blockaded by drifts at several points. It is also reported that the stock on the ranges suffered severely; sheep especially, fared badly. One man is said to have lost two hundred head. The season thus far has been most favorable to winter wheat, which promises a fine harvest. Reporters from nearly all parts of the State report heavy snow or rain storms and in some cases sleet. In some sections the water covers the flat or low ground, and farming operations are retarded a week or ten days.

Manitoba's Manifesto to the Government.

WINNIPEG, Man., April 21.—The committee appointed by the combined caucus of the Government and opposition to prepare a platform of procedure for securing recognition of the claims of the province from the Federal authorities is progressing favorably, and an amicable agreement will probably soon be arrived at. The substance of the ultimatum to be presented is a demand for control of our public lands, the management of school lands, the readjustment of the debt based on a population of 150,000, the unrestricted right to charter railways within the old portion of the province, increased representation in the Federal Parliament, and generally to place Manitoba on the same status as the other provinces. The deputation to be appointed to confer with the Federal authorities are also to be instructed to urge, not as rights which characterize the above demands, but as expedient, the extension of the boundaries to Hudson's Bay and the 102d meridian, the extensive and vigorous prosecution of railway work in the province, and a modification of the tariff, the latter especially if Manitoba is not allowed the same sources of revenue enjoyed by the other provinces. The deputation, it is expected, will leave for Ottawa next week, the memorandum in the meantime receiving the earliest consideration of the Legislature.

The Gold Excitement.

DENVER, April 22.—The excitement over the new gold discoveries at Mount Pisgah, near Pike's Peak, is becoming intense. Thousands of men are already in the camp, or on their way, and coming in all directions by hundreds. The miners' union has formed a district named "Golden Valley." Hundreds of claims were staked yesterday, and several large companies are forming here. Leading mining men are becoming convinced that the discoveries are genuine, and the most important in the history of the State. Leadville's charge of salting is believed to be groundless and malicious. The Tribune's representative telegraphs to-night: It is not strictly placer ground; it is a gold bearing gravel in gulches, in some places cemented into a hard mass, almost a rock; and in others quite free. The colors are often obtained by washing, and it bears a strong resemblance to the dry placers of New Mexico. The most of the gold is in a combination, but the combination is not uniformly chemical. The best opinion now is that the placers will prove of only secondary importance compared with the lodes sure to be developed.

Sudden Death of a Famous Clown.

DAYTON, O., April 22.—Just as Sells' Brothers show was preparing to leave for Cincinnati Saturday night Julian Martinetti, one of the clowns, dropped dead from apoplexy, caused by over exertion. He was a member of the Martinetti & Ravel Pantomime Company, and has been in the business many years. He was sixty-three years old and resided at Baltimore, to which place his remains were shipped yesterday.

Killed in a Smash Up.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 22.—A freight train on the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Gulf Railway ran into a washout forty miles west of Springfield, Mo., Friday night, almost demolishing the locomotive and nine cars, killing one, and mortally wounding another, a tramp stealing a ride in a box car, and entailing a loss to the company of from $15,000 to $20,000.

The Propaganda Property.

MONTREAL, April 22.—Mgr. Fabri, in a pastoral address to the clergy of his diocese, denounces the confiscation by the Italian Government of the real estate of the Propaganda, and makes an earnest appeal to the faithful to come to the rescue of the fund by a general subscription.

Walsh, the Wanted Witness.

MONTREAL, April 22.—It is understood that Brewster Cameron, who is here, has convinced John A. Walsh, a witness in the Pitt-Kellogg case, that he has no ground for grievance against Attorney General Brewster and Walsh has agreed to go to Washington to-day.

Heavy Washout.

TROY, N. Y., April 22.—High water in Lake Champlain caused the biggest washout ever known on the Delaware & Hudson Railway. Tracks are washed out for miles between Whitehead and Ticonderoga. No trains are running on the division.

General Badeau Non-Committal.

NEW YORK, April 22.—General Badeau arrived yesterday morning. When asked as to the cause of his resignation of the Consul Generalship at Havana, Badeau replied that he was not at liberty to state anything on the subject at present.

Killed in a Storm.

ST. LOUIS, April 22.—A waterspout and windstorm demolished the house of a farmer named Bond, near Lockwood, Dade County, Mo., Friday night, killed one of his children and injured several other members of the family.

Celebrating the Day.

RICHMOND, Va., April 22.—The anniversary ratification of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth amendment to the Federal Constitution was celebrated here yesterday by a parade of the colored military and civic organizations.

Heavy Rain in the Southwest.

KANSAS CITY, April 21.—A slight snow has been falling the greater part of the forenoon, melting on the ground. Advices denote a heavy rain-fall in the Southwest the past week.

Accepted Reduced Wages.

TORONTO, April 21.—The Grand Trunk Railway employes of Montreal and Stratford have accepted a five per cent. reduction for six months.

ON THE VERGE.

A Condemned Man Anxiously Awaiting a Reprieve.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., April 22.—A final effort was made yesterday morning for the respite of John Coyle, who is to be hanged for the murder of Emily Myers, in York County, nearly three years ago. Last week the counsel for the culprit submitted a statement to Governor Pattison from Dr. T. T. Tate, of this city, declaring the murderer to be insane. The object of the reprieve was to afford time for an examination into Coyle's mental condition by a commission to be appointed by the court. With this statement was a letter written by Coyle, who said he could not go to be hanged because of partial insanity. The Governor refused to grant the requested respite. To-day Charles K. Mills, one of the medical experts who declared Guiteau insane, and who expressed a similar opinion in the case of McGinnis, recently hanged in Philadelphia, and Dr. Ernest Goodman, of Philadelphia, visited the cell the murderer, and from his demeanor came to a conclusion identical with that of Dr. Tate. These physicians, with David McConaughy, of Gettysburgh, counsel for the condemned man, visited Harrisburg to night in the hope of persuading the Governor to reconsider his determination not to intertere with the execution of the prisoner. Coyle has a strong belief that he will be reprieved. He appears to be in an excited mood, but has not slept much the past week. The gallows is in readiness for the execution, and unless the Governor interferes he will be hanged about eleven a. m. to-morrow.

Exaggerated Reports About the Cuban Trouble.

NEW YORK, April 24.—A letter from the managing editor of the most important paper published in the West Indies, the Diario de la Marina, of Havana, says: "In regard to the situation in this island it has been exaggerated by the statements in the Havana papers. The crisis we are passing through is of consequence rather on account of the effects which it momentarily produces than on account of any far-reaching result which may possibly come about. It is really of no especial importance here, nor does the filibustering movement influence the regular transacting of business. It is hoped that in view of the measures taken by the Government affairs will promptly return to a normal state of prosperity and progress.

Chicago Markets.

CHICAGO, April 22.—The grain markets on Change opened and continued under a good demand from little shorts and better advices from the sea board and foreign markets. After this demand was satisfied, however, the inquiry was slow, and when during the last hour, the big bears led by Ream and Murray commenced pounding the market, values sold down rapidly, closing at the lowest figures of the day. Wheat lost ⅜@1 cent, corn declined ⅛@¼, oats eased off ¼, and the feeling all around was slumpy.

Hog products were quiet, the provision clique giving their attention to grain and other operators being afraid to either buy or sell the stuff. Pork fell 20@22½, lard 7½, and ribs 12 cents.

Murderous Assault.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., April 22.—A murderous assault was committed in Hubbard, five miles north of this city, Saturday evening, upon John Boyle, an employe at the blast furnace of Andrews & Hitchcock, while at work. Jack Kaleen, another employe, approached Boyle from behind and without any warning dealt him a terrible blow on the back of the head with a sledge hammer weighing ten pounds, knocking him senseless and crushing his skull. The injured man was conveyed to his home and medical attendance summoned. His injuries are regarded as serious. Kaleen, after committing the cowardly act, fled, and as yet no clue has been obtained of his whereabouts.

Starmont Drops Dead.

ALLIANCE, April 22.—Starmont, a thoroughbred stallion, owned by Professor Theodore Armstrong, of Mt. Union, and General W. T. Withers, of Lexington, Ky., dropped dead in his box at Professor Armstrong's breeding stables Monday morning. The cause was supposed to be congestion of the lungs. Starmont was sired by Almont and dammed by Starling, Starling by George Wilkes and Jessie Pepper. He was five years old and considered by turfmen one of the most promising young horses in America. An offer of $6,000 was refused for him a few days ago.

The New Pittsburgh Oil Exchange.

PITTSBURGH, April 22.—The new Petroleum Exchange opened yesterday morning with appropriate ceremonies. Addresses were made by L. H. Smith, President of the New York Exchange, Hon. W. C. Moreland and Captain J. J. Vandergrift. The new Exchange starts out auspiciously with a paid up membership of two hundred and forty-six, entirely free from debt, with $8,000 in the treasury and an annual rental from offices of over $11,000. The structure, which is handsomely decorated and one of the most elaborately finished in the country, cost $175,000.

An Unusual Flow of Immigrants to This Country.

NEW YORK, April 22.—Three thousand four hundred and sixty immigrants arrived at Castle Garden Saturday, the largest number landed this year. Among the steerage passengers were 318 Mormons. Half were English and Welsh and the other half Scandinavians. They were accompanied by seventeen Mormon missionaries returning home after a two years prospecting tour. They go to Utah to-day.

The Whisky Bill.

CINCINNATI, April 22.—A meeting of Cincinnati, Chicago, Peoria, Terre Haute and four other members of the Western Export Association was held yesterday morning. Not being a regular meeting but little more than an expression of opinion could be accomplished. A committee to confer with high wine men was appointed and adjourned to meet in the afternoon. All agree that the prospect of holding the pool together is not favorable.

Making Fast Time.

NEW ORLEANS, April 22.—The special train of the Northeastern Railroad, bringing the Knights of Pythias, made the run from Cincinnati to New Orleans in twenty-three hours and twenty minutes.

Church Burned.

EAST SAGINAW, Mich., April 22.—The Methodist Church building at Saginaw City burned yesterday morning. Loss nearly $10,000, insurance $6,000.

"I was given up by my physicians to die with dropsy, but Warner's Safe Cure restored me.
D. P. McCARTHY. Virginia, Nev. Chronicle.

"Three bottles of Warner's Safe Cure cured me of severe burning pain in the kidneys, especially at night."
Lodi, Cal. J. M. MENDELL.

"Five bottles of Warner's Safe Cure cured me of a very severe case of kidney complaint."
F. B. SEMPLE. Clerk American House. Denver, Col.

"Warner's Safe Cure saved my wife's life when best doctors and mineral springs of the country did her no good."
J. B. WOODRUFF. Winsted, Conn.

"I had enlargement of the heart, which was pronounced incurable, and I was often thought to be dying, but Warner's Safe Cure and Safe Pills restored me to health."
LAFAYETTE WALLINGFORD. East Rochester, N. H.

"Owing to the high temperature of the room in which I worked I contracted a terrible cold that produced serious kidney disorder. Warner's Safe Cure restored me to health."
Exeter, N. H. JAMES BRUCE.

"Warner's Safe Cure has saved my boy's life. Doctors pronounced his the worst case of Bright's Disease they ever saw."
E. B. BUCK. Editor Macoupin County Enquirer. Carlinville, Ills., March 1st.

"I was treated by Doctors Agnew and Webster, of New York, who pronounced me afflicted with Bright's disease. I was bloated exceedingly, but Warner's Safe Cure, I verily believe saved my life."
GEO. C. STEVENS. South Norwalk, Conn.

"I had kidney disorders, indigestion rheumatism and lumbago for three years. I grew worse and felt as though a hundred pound weight was dragging down my liver and kidneys. Warner's Safe Cure has fully restored me."
C. B. De NOYELLES, Albany, N. Y. 640 Broadway.

"Previous to a year ago I was severely afflicted with kidney difficulty. My back ached, my urine was sudsy, and I was in a bad way. I had tried various remedies, but with temporary relief; until I began the use of Warner's Safe Cure, three bottles of which, with the Safe Pills, effectually cured me, and I have not had an attack since."
HENRY HOEHM. Cleveland, O. Captain of Police.

"For years I have had excruciating pains in the small of my back and was not able to raise from bed or be in a sitting posture. The doctors claimed that I was suffering from spinal disease, and I never expected to leave my bed again. Though having no hope of recovery, Warner's Safe Cure was recommended to me, which I commenced taking, and eight bottles have made a permanent cure.
MRS. CHRISTJAHN. No. 28 Thirteenth street. Chicago, Feb. 28th.

"About two years ago I resorted to the use of Warner's Safe Cure, taking in all thirty-two bottles for kidney and uniary affections, and it has proved a complete success, and radically cured the pain in my back. A lady of this country, a confirmed invalid for three years past, with what the doctors here said was internal cancer, beyond all skill and hope, in the doctors' opinion, has been raised almost from the dead by the use of nine bottles of this excellent medicine.
J. H. Hudson. Altoona, Pa. Feb. 27th.

F. C. Barnes, who was the foreman of the cigar box factory owned by Geo. N. Stacy, left for his home in Coldwater yesterday.

Jas. Cairnes & Son have rented the front portion of the old Agricultural Works building, and will keep on sale the McCormick Harvesting and Mowing machines and a full line of agricultural implements.

The district missionary meeting at the M. E. church which began its sessions yesterday afternoon is well attended, and the meeting thus far has been very interesting. As it is impossible to print today's proceedings in this issue, we shall defer our report until next week.

OBITUARY.

Mary A. Blanford, of the township of Franklin, Mich., and widow of the late John Blanford, departed this life April 21st, 1884, aged 77 years. Her funeral services were held at her late residence, when a very large concourse of people assembled giving evidence of the high esteem in which the deceased was held. Mrs. Blanford had been a member of the Methodist Church for more than thirty years, manifesting throughout an exemplary christian character, and for unabating zeal, elevated religious life and a spotless deportment highly worthy of imitation.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., APR. 24 1884.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

The street sprinkler is putting in its work.

Dr. Geo. Ferguson has a handsome new sign.

Harry Lee of Cleveland, was at home over Sunday.

Gentle spring caught a severe cold last Monday.

To-day is "Arbor Day." Have you set out a tree?

Blissfield citizens have given their new band a $40 benefit.

Monday, the 5th of May, will be circus day. Make a note of it.

The thermometer was down to the freezing point last Monday morning.

The M. & O. road are graveling the grounds about the freight depot in this village.

We haven't heard of any boys running away from school to go swimming as yet.

The increase of the liquor bonds to $5,000 by the Common Council seems to give general satisfaction.

The street commissioner is putting in some good work cleaning up Chicago street in the business district.

C. T. Chapin, lately the owner of the Cadillac News, will open a job printing office in that city the 1st of May.

Mrs. R. C. Catlin is now living with the family of Geo Curtis, and expects to remain in Tecumseh for several weeks.

F. L. Marks and wife, of Cleveland, were in town on Friday visiting his brother Millard Marks of the firm of Marks & Russell.

Osborn & Wilson exhibited "Greasy Bill" at the state sheep shearing festival at Lansing. His fleece tipped the scales at 36½ pounds.

Fred Rosacrans will return from Watch out for the big circus on Monday, May 5th.

Why not celebrate Decoration Day in Tecumseh this year? The G. A. R., and Co. C acting together, ought to be able to get up a good old-time celebration.

Work has been commenced on the brick walls of Ab Usborne's building adjoining the HERALD office, and the store will be pushed to completion as fast as the weather will allow.

Mrs. S. R. Merritt has returned from her visit to Lockport New York, where she has been spending two several weeks with her son John A. Merritt. John's health has been quite poorly lately but he is now on the gain.

Geo. Adamson will soon move his stock of goods into the store now being vacated by C. A Keil in the corner of the Lilley House block. He intends to make the old corner store the scene of unwonted activity in the jewelry line this season.

The Junior Class banquet at the Opera House last Friday evening was a unique affair, well planned and admirably carried out. The piano fund received an addition of about fifty dollars, which will nearly liquidate the indebtedness now resting upon the piano. Prof. Hammond intends to wipe out the debt before the close of the present school year.

The Adrian and Rome Wool Growers' and Sheep Breeders Association will hold its "Opening Shearing Festival" on Wednesday, May 2nd, 1884, at the residence of Chas. W. Selleck, in Adrian township, on the town line between Adrian and Rome. Shearing to begin at 10:30 A. M. Competition open to all. All are cordially invited to be present and participate.

The first number of the Tecumseh News made its appearance last Thursday evening. It is a neat five column quarto, well printed and well edited. If the initial number is an earnest of what is to follow Bro. Field can rest assured of a good patronage. Tecumseh is continually growing in wealth population and business importance, and we see no reason why the town should not now sustain two good newspapers.

The third degree special of Tecumseh Lodge No. 69 last Friday evening was numerously attended, a number of visiting brethren being present from Clinton and Springville. Joe Smith was raised in good shape and passed the ordeal like a veteran. The Clinton Mason's have a right to expect a return of their call by the Tecumseh Lodge some day. The Clinton Lodge has the reputation of being one of the best working lodges in Southern Michigan.

The following notice is clipped from the Bay City Morning Call of April 15th: The deceased had many acquaintances in Tecumseh who will learn of her demise with sincere regret.

Mary C. Johnson, daughter of the late Judge Franklin and Adaline Johnson, died at the residence of her mother, 904 Sixth street, at 7:15 o'clock yesterday morning. Miss Johnson has for some time past been a sufferer from congestion of the heart and pneumonia. Miss Johnson's parents formerly resided at Monroe, Mich., and she leaves a mother, two sisters and a brother to mourn her loss. Brief service will be held at the house. The body will be taken to Monroe Wednesday morning for interment.

EDITOR OF THE HERALD.—The following letter was received by Rev. Mr. Conley on Wednesday morning. It speaks for itself. I give it verbatim as far as it could be read:

Bear Sir i herd sum Men say that they would far & fether you in (here is a word illegible) before long.
So look out for yourself i beseech you A. friend.

Now if this letter means anything at all it is not from a friend. It is evidently the work of a German from the formation of the letters. Following on the work of Mr. Conley before the council on Monday evening, it looks like a threat. If it is intended for such, it shows the animus of this liquor business. But if these men imagine that they can intimidate Mr. Conley, or the other men concerned, they are mistaken. We are in for the war and propose to stand fire.
GEO. W. HUDSON.

Adrian Times: Wm Robinson, the prisoner who was sentenced to hard labor at Jackson for six years, by Judge Howell, yesterday, for procuring money from a Clinton saloon keeper by false pretenses, is a very ugly villian. After the exposure of the plan to escape from the jail, in which he was to participate, he was in very bad humor. When he was being taken back to jail, after his sentence yesterday, he manifested his ill-nature a good deal, and finally, on reaching the jail, remarked that all the sheriffs in Lenawee could not put him back into the cell in which he has been kept since the attempt at jail breaking was discovered. He is a big bully, and an ugly customer to tackle, and when he braced himself and made his vicious remark, there seemed every indication of a row. Sheriff Bidwell, who had made up his mind that nothing but summary treatment would do the fellow, cooly pulled out his revolver, cocked it, and gave him an invitation to step into his cell, or the alternative of having a hole blown through his ugly carcass. He went in, at a nimble gait.

son is improving, and it is hoped he may be able to return with Fred.

There will be a donation at the parsonage on Thursday evening, May 1st, for the benefit of Rev. J. Phelps. A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend.

John I. Werner is bound not to be behind in the march of improvements and has consequently treated his residence to a new covering of paint. It looks well.

The 26th of this month is the anniversary of the foundation of Odd Fellowship in this country, the first Lodge having been instituted at Baltimore on the 26th day of April.

Everybody should attend J. W. Patterson's sale of household furniture, carpets, etc. Private sale at his residence Tuesday, April 29th. Public sale same place Wednesday, April 30.

Intelligence received here by the friends of E. H. Merritt states that his health is much impaired and he has left Big Rapids for an extended Southern trip in hopes to regain his former physical condition.

The M. & O. road have a gang of men fencing their road at the East end of the line. The fences are now completed about half way from Dundee to Britton. Good substantial board fences are being constructed.

P. C. Mills has been making some great improvements in his property at the west end of Chicago street. The old fences have been removed and the trees and shrubery nicely trimmed. The property looks almost like a new place.

The dog "pizener" is abroad. Last Friday night Matt. Root and C. A. wright both lost valuable dogs by being poisoned. Gus Wright valued his at $100. If the rascal who did the mischief is found out it will go hard with him.

Tecumseh physicians have struck hard times, that is hard times for their business. Both Dr's. Catlin and North say that not within fifteen years has there been as little sickness in this vicinity as at present. Tecumseh is a healthy town.

F. E. Badge, who has been a resident of our town about one year and engaged in the Globe Flouring Mills, goes to Jennison City, Colorado, next Wednesday, where his Brother-in-law has secured for him a good position as bookkeeper.

G. P. Sparks will soon occupy rooms in Lee's block, which have been fitted up expressly for his use. His new quarters will afford an elegant and convenient location for his business which has outgrown the narrow quarters he has been occupying.

C. A. Keil is removing his stock of goods to Toledo, where he will engage in the same business with other parties. Mr. Keil has built up a good trade here and our people will regret his departure. He formerly lived in Toledo and seeks a larger field for action.

John F. Murray, of Detroit, is in town a day or two. Mr. Murray says he is homesick to move back here, whenever he comes to Tecumseh. With our present railroad facilities this would be a convenient point for him. Let him take a printer's advice and move back at once.

COUNTY CONDENSATIONS.

Clayton is again without a hotel.

Addison bankers after a milkman.

Circuit Court is in session this week at Adrian.

The old Blissfield band will soon be re-organized.

A Morenci school teacher has been flogging a pupil and litigation is threatened.

Tank Kee will lecture on the heathen Chinee at Morenci, in the second week in May.

Morenci village will raise about one thousand dollars for corporation purposes this year.

Reports from all sections of the county are favorable for a good wheat crop this season.

pulling door bells after dark and then scampering away.

The editor of the Blissfield Advance is already receiving taters from admiring subscribers.

The new Adrian Band started for New Orleans last Monday with the Knights of Pythias.

A. D. Gilmore of Blissfie'd, wants to attend the Republican National Convention as a delegate.

Henry Jipson, of Blissfield, has sold his village residence and expects to move to Missouri soon.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. VanVleet and daughter have gone to Virginia where Mr. VanVleet thinks of purchasing a home.

The fiftieth anniversary of the settlement of Medina will be celebrated at Oak Grove Academy on the 28th of May next.

Under sheriff Hyde is the right man in the right place. Prisoners don't break jail worth a cent while he carries the keys.

North Seneca has a postmaster and a postoffice but no mail, as no one can be found to carry the mail on the terms offered.

Adrian College is prospering. The big boys have organized a base ball club, and have been reprimanded at chapel exercises.

Mr. Roberts of Dover, found a lot of counterfeit quarters and half dollars in his barn recently, and he is now trying to solve the mystery.

The old tannery of Hudson which has been unoccupied for a long time will be remodled and used for a cider mill and fruit drying factory.

One of the editors of the Evening Record lost his diary last week. A typo in the Press office found it and has been taking notes for his love letters ever since.

The April meeting of the Hillsdale and Lenawee Farmer's Union will be held at Church's Corners, Wednesday, April 30th, 1884. An interesting programme is announced.

Clinton pays fifteen cents for woodchuck scalps. A good chance for the boys of the adjoining towns to make something. Three and one-third woodchuck scalps will buy a circus ticket.

The County Treasurer is without a habitation, his corner having been torn down to give place to the new Court House. He will cash county orders now in Whaley & Hoag's shoe store.

The church bells of Morenci were rung last Sunday "on good old fashioned Lord's time," the Observer says. The religious proclivities of the Observer man stick out even in his editorial columns.

The Bohemian Oat men are still perambulating the county selling oats at $10 per bushel. When their Bohemian n(otes) fall due, the farmers who have invested will have a less exalted opinion of Bohemian oats.

Adrian Press: Channing D. Bills and Miss Nellie Faling, of Tecumseh, were married April 2d. Nellie was his principal Faling, while she won't permit her Bills to be discounted or go to protest. We presume that with them as in business circles, there will be a growing demand for small bills.

THE BRITTON SHEEP SHEARING

The fourth annual meeting of the Ridgeway Sheep Breeders' Association was held at the barn of John Britton, at Britton, on Tuesday last. The weather was very unfavorable, a cold raw wind keeping many away, and it was thought best at first not to shear any of the sheep on account of the weather, but after waiting until afternoon it was decided that a few of them should be shorn and at it they went. The attendance of visitors and members of the society was small, but the show of sheep was a grand one, and proved the fact that our Ridgeway farmers are well up in the sheep breeding business, and that they have some of the finest stock in the whole State which they are constantly improving. The whole number of sheep on the ground was seventy four.

Among the entries we noted the following:

I. N. Pilbeam of Ridgeway, showed eight yearling ewes, and seven yearling rams, of his own breeding. He now has on hand on his farm 130 head, 50 of which are registered stock. He owns the celebrated buck "Victor" bred by Q. C. Rich of Vermont, sired by "Centennial." Part of his ewes were bred by C. A. Miller of Marshall. The ewes and rams he exhibited were fine animals, square bodied and showing wonderfully fine fleeces. He has now 20 young rams on sale. His sheep sale of last year amounted to $1,188 50.

A. Linn of Ridgeway, exhibited four yearlings, 8 two year old ewes, 8 yearling rams and his four year old ram "Bonny Jo," a fine fellow and excellent stock getter.

L. V. Dibble of Ridgeway, 2 two year old rams.

Chas. Dibble of Ridgeway, 1 three year old ram.

Chas Pocklington of Ridgeway, 1 two year old ram.

G. W. Underwood of Ridgeway, 1 yearling ewe and 1 yearling ram.

Geo. L. Oliver of Ridgeway, 2 three year old rams.

Sol Smith of Ridgeway, 1 four old buck.

John Britton & Son of Ridgeway, 7 yearling ewes, 4 two year olds and 1 three year old, besides their ram "Rip VanWinkle, Jr." This is a very handsome ram and his breeding makes him a valuable aninal.

Britton & Smith of Ridgeway, 1 four year old ram.

Albert Holmes of Macon, 3 yearlings 1 four years old, 1 three years old, and 1 two year old ewe, besides 1 two year old ram.

W. J. Osborn, 3½ miles west of Tecumseh, exhibited four yearling bucks 2 yearlings, and 2 three year old ewes. He has already shorn 86 ewes which averaged 14 lbs of wool and the weight of fleeces from his rams was from 12 to 27 lbs. He now has a flock of 186 sheep, 60 of which are registered. He has about 90 yearling rams on sale at his farm. The sheep he exhibited were fine in size, style, form, etc., and we should think were as fine as could be produced in the State. His stock is ruled by the ram "Hector," whose record shows him to be a great stock sheep as well as a heavy shearer.

The Tecumseh Artist, Brown, was on the spot and succeeded in obtaining photographs of a number of the rams present.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Simeon Smith has moved in the Lambkins house.

To Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Knight a girl.

Horatio Keyser is vibrating between village and country life.

Com. Bowen is having a bridge built on the Clinton road near Peter Waldrons. Elijah Wilson does the job.

Manager Bowen went down last week to start T. I. Sutton's incubator which is run by electricity.

Beri VanNess has sold his farm to Mrs. A. Wisner and is moving in with Miss Saviers.

C. Wiley has lost five cows and Mrs. Mudgett one from some unknown disease this spring.

F. W. DePuy having rented his farm goes into the lightning rod business with J. F. Hicks.

The farmers who gave their orders to the Dayton Hedge Co., are preparing the ground for the plants.

While at Lansing last week attending the state sheep sheering Festival, J. F. N. Bowen went to Lyons and stopped over night with R. W. Hillman. He found him nicely situated on his new farm and heartily welcomes his old Tecumseh friends.

In a recent number of the Sunday Post we saw printed therein a report of the township board and Highway Commissioners showing the recipts and disbursements. Did it ever occur to our township officers that the tax payers were interested in such reports?

Adrian Press: Some one wanted the Tecumseh Herald to print some extra democratic tickets for Ridgeway, and kicked like a steer, because Stacy refused, because the democratic tickets had been ordered by one of the candidates and taken away. We think the Herald did right. If the other chap wanted a different ticket he should have furnished copy, and given it a name. No one but the regular democratic town committee had authority to print "democratic" tickets. Any other gathering or wing of democrats could have named a ticket, however, and it would have been legitimate work to print it. The kicker evidently wanted to come "sheman igan" on Santus, as was done last year.

NO SOONER, NO LATER.

The date of the Anglo American Four Combined Shows, when once fixed is never changed under any circumstances, and its railroad contracts are made months in advance of the arrival of the various advertising cars. The public is therefore warned not to be misled or confused by any future announcements, as these monster shows will positively exhibit in all its entirety, at Tecumseh, Monday, May 5.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most determined prejudices are conquered, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

Allsores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Coldness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is gained over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This Ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Don't!

DON'T Think, just because you have been suffering terribly with Rheumatism or Neuralgia, that you must always continue to suffer.

Nor think just because nobody has been able to cure you or your friends, that Neuralgia and Rheumatism are incurable.

DON'T Think, that a cure is impossible, just because the physicians have been unable to accomplish it.

Nor think that because it has not been known ever since the foundation of the world, it will not cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

DON'T Neglect the testimony of the hundreds of sufferers who have tried ATHLOPHOROS and are now sound and hearty.

Not think that because you have tried fifty other things that failed, that ATHLOPHOROS is like them.

Don't be discouraged! The very thing that will cure Rheumatism and Neuralgia is ATHLOPHOROS.

Don't be Skeptical! ATHLOPHOROS has cured others. It will Cure YOU.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

A Desolation—The Inn.

Lieutenant Ray, who was sent by the United States authorities to establish a signal station at Point Barrow, thus describes the people among whom, and the country in which, for two years, his lot was cast:

The village consists of a few scattering dwellings built in an uncouth and primitive manner, and contains about 150 people. They belonged to a tribe of Esquimaux, or, as they call themselves, Inn. The word "Esquimaux" was practically unknown to the natives, it having been applied to them by the French, when early expeditions were sent to discover the North Pole. The natives do not show a vestige of having made any attempts at civilization, although they are a quiet and inoffensive lot of people. In fact, during his entire stay of two years among them, Lieutenant Ray says he never knew one of them to quarrel with another, nor even saw a child punished. In this respect a lesson might be learned by the more pretentious people of civilized countries. They are not the fat, greasy-looking race pictured by some historians, although robust and healthy. The average weight of the men is about 158 and of the women about 130 pounds. They have a lighter complexion than the North American Indian, and dark-brown eyes. As a rule they are of low stature, not exceeding five feet and four inches in height. Men, women and children dress alike, their garb being constructed of deerskins sewed together with a thong of hide. The greatest objection to them is their uncleanly habits, none of them ever venturing to take a bath. The filth of their infancy is buried with them.

The stories told of them about eating blubber and fish fat are untrue, for do they drink oil, or eat any more than the average inhabitant of Massachusetts. They often, during the long winter, are reduced to eating raw walrus hide, but they willingly share their last mouthful with a total stranger. They are continually struggling for an existence, and live with as little comfort in life than to keep from starving to death. And yet they are seemingly happy, putting but little faith in what is told them of a better land and happier life. They are born, and reared in a life of extreme hardship, suffer untold tortures from cold and starvation, and pass away in happiness. They have little or no religion, no government, no commerce, nothing, in fact, but a miserable existence.

They have learned to use whisky and tobacco, and are very fond of both, they having been initiated into the practice of these habits of civilization by the whalers. Men, women and children chew tobacco. Lieutenant Ray says he has seen a two-months-old baby awake from its slumber, but immediately relapse upon a quid of navy-plug being placed in its mouth. An old squaw will strut about with a quid in the side of either cheek, one sight of which would bring a blush of shame to any jack-tar. After she has thoroughly extracted all the juice she sticks pieces of the weed behind her ears and dries them out for her lord and master to smoke. As a race, though, they are rapidly fading away, and in a comparatively short time will probably become extinct. In a distance of 700 miles along the northern coast there are less than 400 natives. None of these live in the interior, as there is nothing on which they can subsist, but are scattered along the shore, and spend their time in hunting and fishing. In the little village of Oogloomie there were eighteen deaths and only two births in two years, the cause of the deaths being almost entirely from pneumonia. They have no fires whatever, as there is nothing to burn but oil, and in the winter time they are forced to huddle together in order to keep warm.

The huts of the village are all built of wood and are the remains of wrecked vessels which washed ashore. In 1871 thirty-three vessels were wrecked along the coast, comprising almost the entire New Bedford whaling fleet. Last year the steamer North Star, of New Bedford, was caught in the ice and sank in twenty minutes. Fortunately it happened within sight of the station, and Lieutenant Ray and his men saved the entire crew, took them ashore, and cared for them a month, when assistance arrived. In 1879 twelve whaling vessels were sighted in the ice by the natives, but they disappeared and their crews of eighty men were never seen again. Lieutenant Ray and his command are the only party that ever passed a winter with the natives. In 1854 Captain Inglefield, of the English navy, was caught in the ice of Point Barrow while commanding the Plover on an expedition sent to search for Sir John Franklin, but he remained on board the ship.

The country is an absolute desert, without the slightest vestige of timber or undergrowth. For a distance of 200 miles from the shore the land is covered with a peculiar kind of moss, which thaws out in the summer time to the depth of about ten or twelve inches. There are no other signs of vegetation, and in the winter there is no animal life. It is one of the most barren and desolate regions on the face of the earth. It is a very healthy and pleasant climate, despite the extreme cold. The seasons are very peculiar. May 23 the sun rose and did not set again for seventy-two days, it being a delightful season of continuous sunlight. November 16, however, it set, and for a like period of seventy two days there was almost perpetual darkness.—Chicago Tribune.

—A Bridgeport (Conn.) dead-beat recently appeared at a drug store in the character of a prospective purchaser of cider barrels. After looking over about thirty he agreed on a price for the whole lot, and had them marked with his own name. It then occurred to him that he had somewhere a fine cider brandy that he would like to trade for the barrels, and to now show the compared with the druggist's and he asked for a sample. He got a large one, and drank it. He decided that his wife's better and would bring it the next day. He never brought it. He has succeeded in getting what he wanted—a free drink.—N. Y. Sun.

STRUGGLES AGAINST BAD PARENTAGE.

It is no great thing if a man who has been carefully nurtured by intelligent parents and then passed through school, college and those additional years of professional study, go directly to the front. But start a man amid every possible disadvantage, and pile in his way all possible obstacles, and then if he take his position among those whose path was smooth, he must have the elements of power. Henry Wilson was great in mastering and overcoming all disadvantageous circumstances. He began at the bottom and without any help fought his own way to the top. If there ever was a man who had a right at the start to give up his earthly existence as a failure, that was Henry Wilson. Born of a dissolute father, so that the son took another name in order to escape the disgrace, never having a dollar of his own before he was twenty-one years of age; toiling industriously in a shoemaker's shop that he might get the means of schooling and culture; loaning his money to a man who swamped it all and never returned any of it; but still toiling on and up until he came to the State Legislature, and on up till he reached the American Senate, and on till he became Vice-President. In all this there ought to be great encouragement to those who wake up later in life to find themselves unequipped. Henry Wilson did not begin his education until most of our young men think they have finished theirs. If you are twenty five or thirty, forty or fifty, it is not too late to begin. Isaac Walton at ninety years of age wrote his valuable book. Benjamin Franklin, almost an octogenarian, went into philosophic discoveries. Fontenelle's mind blossomed even in the winter of old age. Christopher Wren added to the astronomical and religious knowledge of the world at eighty years of age.—Baptist Weekly.

Mr. Gough on Silk Hats.

"It would be no violation of the commandment," said John B. Gough "if a man were to fall down and worship one of them. Why, sir, there is not in the likeness of anything in heaven, or on earth, or in the waters which are under the earth." Besides it heats the head and causes the hair to fall off. Parker's Hair Balsam will stop that and restore the original color to gray or faded hair. Not oily, not dye, beneficial, deliciously perfumed. A perfect hair dressing. 50c All druggists

Nearer to Nature.

Nature has made her laws with us, which we must obey or suffer the penalty. This penalty is often lung or throat trouble, which leads on to consumption. Every man believes consumption incurable. People have been educated to this belief which is proven incorrect by Dr. Bigelow's Positive Cure, which is nature's great helpmate, and it cures consumption and all throat and lung diseases speedily and permanently. The "Specific Cure," as Mr. White calls it, went directly to diseased parts, reduced the inflammation, assuaged the pain, and worked a rapid cure, as it invariably does.

International Throat & Lung Institute

81 Lafayette Avenue, Detroit, Mich.

This Institute was founded by Dr. M. Souvielle of Paris, ex-aide surgeon of French army, for the special treatment of Catarrh, Catarrhal Deafness, Asthma, Bronchitis, Consumption, and all diseases of the Throat and Lungs, using in the treatment of above named diseases Dr. Souvielle's new and wonderful invention, the Spirometer, an instrument which conveys medicine to all properties direct to parts affected, and which is now used in all the leading hospitals in Europe. It is only since Dr. Souvielle's invention and discovery of this new method of treating the air passages, that Throat and Lung diseases are no longer feared. Physicians and sufferers are invited to investigate this mode of treatment. If impossible to come in person, write for list of questions and International News. Thousands treated by letter. Instruments sent to any address by express, with full directions for using. Call upon or address DR. M. SOUVIELLE, 81 Lafayette Ave., Detroit, Mich.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting with the many herbs of Calcutta, he accidentally made a preparation which cured his only child of consumption. His child is now in this country and enjoying the very best of health. He has proved to the world that consumption can be positively and permanently cured. The Doctor now gives this recipe free, only asking two 2-cent stamps to pay expenses. This Herb also cures Night Sweats, Nausea at the Stomach, and will break up a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Queer Things in People's Ears.

"You would be astonished," said a skilled aurist in one of the public eye and ear infirmaries," at the large number of children who are brought to us in the course of a week to have something removed from their ears that they have foolishly stuck in them and have been unable to get out again. I have sometimes disposed of ten such cases in an afternoon, and have pulled almost everything out of the human ear that it is possible to get in there—shoe buttons, pieces of slate pencil, candies and wads of paper. Four times out of five the youngster is old enough to know better; but it is a habit that fall into, the same as biting their nails, or scratching their heads. One boy not twelve years old is almost a weekly visitor here. 'Well,' I said, as I saw him come in as usual yesterday afternoon, 'what have you got in there this time?' 'Nawthin' but a bean,' he drawled. 'O, yes, I took it out.

"But I recently met with the most remarkable case of the kind in twenty years' practice. A young woman of twenty-three came in so deaf that I could hardly make her hear by shouting through a trumpet. After removing a great quantity of wax from her ears I found something metallic.

"'What's this,' I said, 'have you been putting something in your ear?'

"'O, dear, no,' she said, 'I am not so foolish as that.'

"Imagine her surprise when I pulled out a smooth, round brass button, with quite a large shank to it. 'This seems to have been in there a great many years!' I said. To my surprise the young woman crouched in the corner in undisguised terror.

"'O, doctor,' she said, 'what is that awful noise?'

"It was nothing but a wagon rumbling by, but I instantly saw what the trouble was. Her hearing had become normal when I removed that button, and she was frightened and bewildered at the jumble of confusing sounds. The ticking of the clock, chirping of the canary, or dripping of water distressed her, and the rustle of her own silk dress made her start with fear. I sent one of the assistants home with her in a carriage, and he said that the clatter in the street so distracted her that he was compelled to hold her in her seat. About a week afterward she came in again——"

"And wanted that button put back I suppose," interrupted the reporter.

"O, no, she was brimming over with happiness, though for a day or two she was afraid to leave the house. But she told me about that button. When I was about eight years old,' she said, 'I was sent to a village church in New England with my grandmother. The sermon was always long and tiresome, and I used to amuse myself by pulling the brass buttons on my cloak. One of them came off on Sunday, and I occupied myself for a time with putting it in my ear and shaking it out again. Suddenly I felt it sink away in there and I could not get it out. I was afraid to tell my grandmother at the time, and soon afterward forgot it. At ten years of age I began to grow deaf and have been getting worse ever since, but I never once thought of that button until you removed it.'"

"Do grown people," asked the reporter, "ever come to you with things in their ears?"

"Frequently, but in most cases it is through no fault of their own. I know one man, a butcher, who comes here regularly in the summer time to have flies removed from his ears. I have taken out six at one time for him. How ever they get there I don't know. He says they fly in; but they don't fly out, I'm sure of that. A man called me out of bed one night to get a Croton bug out of his ear. Now, a water bug will never back. He must either turn around or go straight ahead. This fellow had crawled into man's ear, and, not finding room enough to turn around, went ahead. He was pawing away with his feelers on the drum, causing the poor man fearful agony."—N. Y. Times.

New Styles in Revolvers.

"This," said an expert in firearms, "is the old-style of self-cocking revolver, and this is the new." The first was a short, stout, clumsy affair of the pepper-box style in vogue thirty years ago or more. It was loaded with powder and ball, sent home with a ramrod, and the hammer, a flat one, was in view in the usual place. You see it took percussion caps, and when the owner happened to have any to fit it, and the spring was strong enough to make that cap explode, the weapon was good for five shots with five pulls of the trigger. It was a clumsy and most unreliable weapon. It was hard to hit anything smaller than a barn-door at ordinary pistol-shot distance, and when the object was hit it was not damaged much. Here is one a little more modern and a little more sure. The hammer is out of sight and the trigger is ring-shaped. This, too, was heavy, and so complicated that it was very liable to get out of order. Then came the self-cocker, which used cartridges, but the first experiments were failures, and they fell into disuse."

"What was their weak point?" asked the reporter.

"The spring. It did not hold its strength, and after a little use the pistol was apt to miss fire. That naturally drove it out of favor at once, and very properly. That weakness has been overcome, and springs are now so adjusted that the shot is sure every time. The present self-cocker is neat, handy, quick in action and a deadsure thing every time. Is it dangerous? Well, no, not more so than any other kind of a pistol; and in cases where a fraction of a second counts one of these is worth a bushel of hand-cockers. They are a little more dangerous in the hands of a nervous man who does not intend to shoot. I have known of several cases in which persons have escaped conviction for murder on the ground that in their excitement they pulled to hard on the trigger and the pistol went off by accident. But any kind of a pistol is unsafe in such hands, and when we think of the advantages which a quick, reliable weapon gives to a man in an emergency, we are bound to admire the self-cocker. Five shots in three seconds is pretty quick work, but that's what it will do, and do it every time. As a pocket pistol it is as safe to carry as any other kind.—Boston Globe.

The Great Landlord.

The third richest man in the Union is John Jacob Astor, the chief owner and heir of the Astor estate. Unlike many millionaires, Astor has both name and riches—a name linked with fabulous wealth for three succeeding generations. The estimated value of the Astor estate is from $90,000,000 to $100,000,000, a veritable mountain of gold. John Jacob and William B. are its sole owners, the former's interest said to be two-thirds.

For nearly a century the title of being "the landlords of New York" has attached itself to them. John Jacob's interest in honest rent and honest money be computed in the thousands.

Among the valuable buildings principally owned by Mr. Astor, as chief heir to the estate is the old landmark, the Astor House, which was sold to his father by his grandfather, the founder of the immense estate, for $1. Its present value is said to be $2,000,000, being assessed at $1,750,000. The Guarantee and Indemnity building, chiefly owned by Mr. Astor, was purchased a short time ago for $1,000,000, while the Astor estate pays taxes on $50,000,000 of real estate situated below Chambers Street, most of which consists of business houses on Broadway and Wall street. There is scarcely a ward, street or avenue in the city in which Mr. Astor does not own real estate, on which the total amount of taxes is over $400,000 annually.

Another point of difference between Mr. Astor and other millionaires is in his investments. In Wall street he never appears as a speculator and seldom as an investor or seller of stocks, bonds or other similar securities. Having an income of ten per cent on the gross amount invested in real estate, he chiefly buys more houses or land when opportunity for good investment offers. In an inventory made of his various properties an item of $6,000,000 in cash appeared as "money in trust companies and banks waiting investment in real estate."

Mr. Astor is a man of striking personal appearance, being over six feet in height, stout, somewhat inclined to corpulence and straight as an arrow. When on the street his quick, elastic step and smiling face, fringed with small, gray side whiskers, invariably attract attention. His dress is simple and surprisingly neat. At business or in the street he wears a black silk hat, black away or frock coat, with trousers to match, comfortable looking shoes always lightly polished, while in his hand usually swings as he walks a large, purple silk umbrella. In summer his costume is changed to a black serge coat and trousers some lighter color, while an easy straw hat rests lightly on his ivory-white hair.

Mr. Astor, though seldom speaking of himself, recently told a friend that although he had completed threescore years, he felt as well and hearty as he did at forty. Benevolence is his striking characteristic, one probably inherited from the founder of the Astor Library. Many of his charities are published, though the actual amount of good done with his ever-ready check-book is little known. In nearly all the charitable institutions of this city the names of himself or wife, and often jointly, appear as large givers. During the winter months Mr. Astor is either at his office at No. 21 West Twenty-sixth Street, or at his home at No. 358 Fifth Avenue. The house is familiar to nearly every resident of Fifth Avenue, and is conspicuous for nothing but its plainness and the spacious grounds which surround it. It is built of fine moulded brick, with trimmings of brown-stone, and has a double stairway leading to the front entrance. The interior compares favorably with any palace.

During the late illness of his wife, Mr. Astor's time was chiefly devoted to cheering her weary hours at the bedside with the same untiring affection he has shown throughout the many years of his married life. His principal recreations are visits to his elegant country seat at Rheinecliffe-on-the-Hudson and yachting. The country seat is an ancient-looking establishment, kept in the finest order, and is a reminiscence of olden time. Well shaded with trees of every kind, its immense lawns and gardens are traversed by long drives and walks.

Here, in the long days of the summer months, Mr. Astor sits on the cool piazza or under some shady trees and reads. He is having built one of the finest pleasure yachts yet launched in the waters of this country, the cost of which is placed at a trifle over $200,000. It will be completed early in the summer.—N. Y. Morning Journal.

Two Aged Southern Students.

"We knew in Granville County two aged gentlemen who were farmers and who lived half a mile or so apart. One of them, now in his grave, in his seventy-fourth year sat down and read over for mental solacement and refreshment and for use several leading Latin poets. He was the finest scholar in Shakespeare that has yet lived in the South so far as we know. He was a man of sweetest character, and wrote with considerable elegance. When John C. Taylor fell asleep one of the purest and best of North Carolinians passed to his reward. His neighbor still survives, aged eighty-one years. He, too, is a classical scholar, and reads his Horace in his old age. He is a man of very accurate reading, and is more familiar with Chaucer than any man we have known. He reads the best and only the best. It was only last year that it was our pleasure to publish a very clever contribution from his fertile pen that was as sparkling, fresh and humorous as if it had been written by some gifted man of thirty-five. It was this article that gave the finishing blow to the supposed authorship of "Cousin Sally Dillard," and that showed that Ham Jones had only revamped an old Virginian story.—Wilmington (N. C.) Star.

—One of the weather "prophets" up in New Hampshire frankly says that he sits down and thinks and then "predicts what happens to come into his mind." Some other weather-wise people are not as candid, but possibly not more scientific.—Chicago Times.

Rheumatic Syrup Co:

Gents—I feel it my duty to recommend your wonderful medicine—"Rheumatic Syrup"—to all who are suffering with rheumatism, neuralgia or kidney difficulty.

I have been a great sufferer with rheumatism, caused by kidney difficulty, and have been treated by our best physicians, but they failed to reach my case or benefit me in the least.

I saw in the Auburn papers the names of a number who had been permanently cured by the use of Rheumatic Syrup, and, being acquainted with many of them, I was induced to try it, and to my surprise I found that all pain had left me before I had finished the first bottle. I continued its use for a time, and to-day I am well as ever and feel no more pain or trouble with my kidneys. It has been several months since I discontinued its use, so I know it is a permanent cure in my case.

I can testify that Rheumatic Syrup will do all—yes, more than you claim for it. I am yours truly,

Mrs. Hattie Paddock.

New Prolific Tree Bean.

Having raised them for main crop the past season, I can conscientiously give them the following recommend: On good soil they will yield an average of about 150 pods to the tree, 6 or 7 grains to the pod, and 60 bushels to the acre if planted AS DIRECTED. They closely resemble the Navy Bean, cook in much less time than the Navy, are very white, and of excellent flavor. Having but one stalk in a hill they are much easier cultivated than five to seven stalks of any common variety, and can be left in the hill until all are fully matured, thereby avoiding liability to mould. They should be planted as soon as danger from frost is over, in rows two feet apart, and 15 or 18 inches in the row, more than one stalk in a hill will not do, and if more is planted, thin when two inches high to one plant in a hill, and they will completely cover the ground. About four quarts plants an acre. Try them and for main crop you will grow no other. Net price per quart, 25 cents.

THE BOHEMIAN OAT CRAZE

A farmer, writing to the Adrian Times, gives his views thus on the Bohemian oat craze. It appears that there is a well organized company somewhere in Ohio, who make a specialty of selling Bohemian oats for seed exclusively. The price is $10 per bushel, no more no less. They enter into a contract with the purchaser to sell for him twice the amount of his purchase of them, retaining twenty per cent. for their services. Thus the man who buys ten bushels pays $100, and they agree to sell for him twenty bushels at the same rate, making $200; but deducting 25 per cent., or $50, so the buyer gets $50 profit, besides the oats left. Now the oats are by no means a profitable crop to raise for feed like ordinary oats, as the yield is ordinarily but about 20 bushels per acre. Ten bushels costing $100 will sow five acres of land, and will produce, say, 100 bushels of oats. The twenty bushels the company sells for him brings him $50 over the cost of seed, and the balance 80 bushels will bring in the market 40 cents, making $32, plus $50, equaling $82. Ordinary oats will produce on the same ground 200 bushels, which at 40 cents, will make $80. While the cost of the seed in the first case is $100; in the latter case it is $4. It seems, then, that the profits of Bohemian oats are not so great over common oats after all.

The company obliges the buyer to enter into a contract with them that he will not sell any of the oats to other parties for less than ten dollars per bushel. The object is to form a combination to keep the price up, so long as men can be found who are willing to pay fool tax. While the bubble floats all is well, but when it bursts, as it will, somebody will get left.

ESTATE OF WILLIAM WARING.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Friday, the 18th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of William Waring, deceased

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Frederick B. Wood, administrator of said estate, praying for license to sell real estate of said deceased in said petition described, for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 19th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

NORMAN GEDDES, Judge of Probate.

We hear that Tecumseh will grant no license to saloons this year. Instead of "Zwei lager" her citizens will say "Zwei birch."

Mrs. Mary Murry, near Swift, is very low with consumption.

O. W. Heath who was connected with the card room of the woolen mill here while the mill was running, has gone to Cheboygan Falls, Wis. to take charge of the card room in a mill at that place. His family will remain here for the present.

Ellsworth Arnold who is at work in a drug store at Lyons, Ohio, was home the early part of this week.

A lady, Miss Rose, who has studied music in Detroit lately will hold a convention in this town for the little folks and others, to continue two weeks and will close the convention with a grand concert.

The Baptist Association of Washtenaw Co., to which this church belongs, will meet at Saline next Wednesday and continue in session two days. J. W. Payne, the pastor, and others not yet decided upon will be the delegates from this church.

At this season of the year most dogs are without owners, fat cattle look poor in the eyes of the farmer and real-estate is worth about 50 cents on the dollar. The Supervisor is taking the assessment.

Some grown up boys made night hideous and themselves amenable to the law last Thursday night in Bridgewater, by serenading the couple whose nuptials are chronicled above.

"When the old cat is away the kittens will play" was forcibly illustrated by the boys in John Smith and Son's store recently. They have a new force pump and after scrubbing out the store and the dirt off the windows, they turned the hose on one of the older clerks, much to his discomfiture, as he was found in an unenviable place, in a fixed position with not all of his winter clothes on.

D. Woodward has two agricultural implements that are new to this section; one is a very fine two horse corn planter, the other is a hay loader. He claims the hay loader will put all the hay on the wagon two men can take care of. John T. Clark has purchased it and will use it on his large farm this season. Mr. Woodward also manufactures a very good plow and finds a ready sale for all he can make.

Rev. Miller requests us to publish the following notice: Miss Lucia F. Kimball, of Chicago, the National Secretary of the W. C. T. U. for juvenile work, will be in Clinton over Sunday, May 4th, addressing mass meetings: Saturday evening in the M. E. church and Sunday evening in the Congregational church, and talking to the children Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Town Hall.

The band boys now have about $135 towards a new set of instruments. A set such as the boys ought to have will cost about $200. Let the citizens come forward and help raise this necessary amount. The old instruments are out of tune and practically worthless. No one except Dr. Burroughs has ever made a whistle out of a pig's tail and you can't get good music out of those old horns; but there is good timber in the band and if the boys are given a new set, they will make some good music.

Mr. Solomon Parker has gone into the gardening business quite extensively. Your correspondent called at his residence one day this week and found that gentleman and his son, Eddie, busily engaged in transplanting celery plants. The visitor made known his business and the gentlemanly proprietor kindly consented to show him around among the hot beds and admit him into the mystery of raising the largest and nicest plants possible. Mr Parker will make a specialty this season of raising celery. He will put out about two acres of ground with this plant. On the East side of the house is a room enclosed with glass on the three sides that are exposed to the sun. Here the plants are started from the seed. Here was seen growing in little boxes about 100,000 celery plants tomato, cabbage, and other plants innumerable. The owner stated that 2,000 celery plants would grow from the seed in a square foot of earth. As soon as these little plants become about an inch or such a matter in height, they are carefully taken from the boxes and transplanted into beds in the garden back of the house two inches apart, 2,000 plants here occupying about 19 square feet of surface. Mr. Parker will transplant about 50,000 plants in this way for his own use. The amount of time and labor that this will take can easily be computed. The plants will remain in these beds until later in the season when they will be again transplanted into trenches 3 feet apart, and 25,000 plants will be used on each acre of ground. Mr. Parker has also a large number of very fine tomato plants already to bud. He will set out about 400 of these plants and says he shall have this fruit all "ripe red and juicy" on the market early in July. A few of these choice plants will be spared to any that may want them. We were also shown a bed of cultivated water cress, and cabbage plants enough, it seemed, to plant this township. Mr Parker deserves success in his enterprise.

Speaking of Celery reminds us of a clip seen lately, not exactly Shakesperian in metre or merit

At a hotel table sat
Bridget bride and bridegroom Pat
While a city dweller he Helped himself to celery.

Bridget's eyes with wonder grew
Maddest whispered she confusedly
At that basin beside the way
Actin up that sweet bookay.

A special meeting of the Council was held Wednesday night to act on the bonds of the liquor dealers. The bonds of the different saloonists were accepted and Clinton will this year have three saloons. H. Lancaster at the hotel, Cris. Schmitt in connection with his bakery, and Peter Jacobs and Frank Kirchgessner have formed a co-partnership to carry on the business under the firm name of Jacobs & Kirchgessner.

H. Lancaster, the new and genial proprietor of the hotel, has been making extensive and needed improvements on his property. He has repaired the barn and thoroughly renovated, papered and partly re-furnished the house. The kitchen, under the efficient management of Mrs. Lancaster, sends forth viands that will tempt the most fastidious. We know, we have sampled them. The traveling public can be assured that they will receive as good a meal and as pleasant accommodations here as at any place on the branch.

MACON MOLECULES.

Unto Joe Darrow a son has been given.

Samuel Hatch of Detroit, was in our midst over Sunday.

Last Saturday and Sunday Rev. Mr. Maynard, of Sparta, called on his many Macon friends.

The funeral of Mrs. David Hatch took place last Sunday, at the Baptist church. Rev Mr. Maynard presided.

Last Monday Frank Thomas had three fingers of his left hand cut off by a buzz saw.

Miss Ada Linn of Ridgeway is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Remington this week.

RIDGEWAY RACKET.

Rev. Alden Wickham came out last week and remained over Sunday, preaching sabbath evening.

Warren Jones has been mumping for the last ten days. The second attack may be looked for the last of the week.

Rev. Thomas Lupton is still very low. It is only part of the time he is able to recognize his friends.

Dr. R. H. Nelson has added to the width of his lot by purchasing on the south.

Purdy Haight, our long looked for shoemaker has arrived. He will open up business in a few days.

Ask Geo. D. Arner about his fishing exploit last Tuesday. The other Geo. can tell you if the former declines.

Church Social this week Friday evening at Mrs. Gove's, one half mile east of Montgomery's corners on the Ridge. There ought to be a good turn-out.

At the next regular meeting of the Literary Society, to be held Friday evening, May 9th, the following programme will be presented, being entirely of a temperance character and promises to be one of the best entertainments yet given.

Opening Exercises.
Music.
Recitation—Miss Clara Temple.
Declamation—George Stanford.
Essay—Mrs David Coryell.
Music—Miss Ida Arner.
Recitation—Miss Blanche Campbell.
Poem—Miss Ella Cadmus.

RECESS.

Music—Miss Velina Underwood.
Debate—"Is it right, or ever expedient to tax or license the liquor traffic?" Discussion open to five minute speeches. No person to speak more than twice until all have spoken that desire. Decision by the house. Admission free. Called to order promptly at 7:30.

BROOKLYN BALLAST

Roller skates and fishing are two aids of peace for skating concentrates the mind on maintaining self equipoise and the other distracts attention from all business but your own consequently there is harmony among those who keep late hours by torchlight, but if there is a predominating ambition, it is to be chaplain of the Brooklyn house. William Hi- who presided there several years, is doing penance for a mashed finger. It has been twice amputated and a favorable result hoped for, though thus far skill has availed little toward a cure. But few are really sick, and some of the healthiest tramp specimens have pilgrimaged this way that ever renounced water. They are supposed by our Editor, to be real mumies, resuscitated by spring poetry. At any rate they belong to the genus, unwashed. No one can tell why they appear, and they fail to account for things that disappear. A good idea has blossomed right out here. A short range telephone line is established between the Townsend house and farm house, and it is expected it will prove the boss plan for folks to keep up acquaintance with home.

ADDISON ATOMS

House and yard cleaning has formed an important part of the village programme of late.

J. H. Lane and wife remove to Jackson this week where they expect to locate.

E. P. Williams and family also journey in the direction of the star. Who is next?

The friends of the Congregational persuasion here formed a local organization some weeks since and announced Sunday morning services hereafter.

No school this week on account of the measels, a large crop of which is reported by the medicine men.

Mr. M. F. Turrell has closed out his hardware business here to G. M. Lewis and proposes to travel in the south with a lung pad.

No object to explore a masonic temple in search of "more light" since the village competition in kerosene oil has reduced the price on that article to a shilling per gallon.

Spence Willey the barber is erecting a cheek-scraper just west of the creek.

Frank Smith, just entering manhood, died of consumption on Friday last. Funeral service was held at the house Sunday morning.

If the Union Light would take a little more pains to write the names of its subscribers, its rays might be more properly distributed at this point.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Last year's large hay crop is fast disappearing.

A few pieces of wheat look well while more of them look as though the bulls and bears had a mortgage on them.

A wind mill on the P. R. Adams place west of town.

L. A. Mudgett went to Addison on the M. & O. to-day.

C. W. Kimball of Adrian has been buying several clips of wool in this section.

Miss Barbara Moon of Bangor, and Miss Matt Doolittle of Wheatland Center, came down on the M. & O. and were the guests of H. A. Welch last week.

W. B. Keyser does not own eight shares in the C. T. Line for nothing as he has become father to a fine boy—the rest of us live in hope. You can approach Wes. by telegraph and in no other way.

Rev. J. H. Maynard of Sparta Center, Kent Co., was summoned to attend the funeral of Mrs. David Hatch of Macon, where he formerly resided, and while here he stopped with his daughter, Mrs. Kate Welch.

Dr. North was called by telegraph at 3 o'clock the other night, and was on hand four miles in the country in just 36 minutes.

We are in receipt of a copy of the Academy News, published by the Michigan Military Academy at Orchard Lake. It is a handsome paper of 16 pages, full of excellent reading matter.

Give Your Children Something to Do.

A good many people practice what has been called the "repressive method" in their homes. They wish their children to be good and obedient, and they seem to fancy that the way to make them so is to restrain them from everything. Here is a little boy, for example, in a pleasant home. He is as full of life as he can be. He is constantly on the lookout for something to do. He skips about the room in childish glee, but his mother says: "Now Johnnie don't run about the room so." Then he begins to sing, but his mother says: "Oh, now Johnnie, don't sing, you make so much noise." Then he gets into the rocking chair and begins to rock. Again his mother comes in with the inevitable, "Now Johnnie, don't be so noisy." Then Johnnie wishes to go up stairs to play but he pleads in vain. Then he asks to go out of doors but is refused. And Johnnie begins to wonder what there is for a little fellow like him to do.

Now we might as well understand that we cannot properly train children by simply putting upon them a lot of restraints. They are brim-full of life. They must do something. They long for nothing so much as to be busy. They will sing and run and jump and play all day long without apparent fatigue. You cannot repress all this life; it must flow out somewhere. If you do not give it proper scope it will burst out and work ruin most surely. Then give your children something to do. Find something which they can do without harm to themselves and with just as little annoyance to you as possible, and then let them do it. Have a room if you can, where they can go and be free to play or sing or turn summersaults as they may choose. Put on their old clothes and let them have a good free time in the back yard occasionally. When they cannot do this, let them play in your home. Bear with the noise and the confusion. Remember that your home is for your children and not for company. But be sure that the sports and plays of your children are innocent. Let it never be said that your children took their first lessons in wrong doing under the roof of father and mother.

A Stranger Coming.

We had really believed that every strange freak of nature conceivable had already frequently become known to the public and for once, at least, the world had settled down to stern uniformity, but the still unexplored jungles of the exclusive Pacific Isles occasionally yield up a treasure that startles science as well as nature. Wild men and women, deformities, &c., have frequently been unearthed to civilization in the past, but we doubt if anything ever so remarkable ever made its appearance before as the Spotted Leopard Man, whose skin is haircloth like a leopard, and dotted with spots of purest white. His appetite is carniverous, and it is said he drinks freely of boiling blood. He is stronger than a dozen common men and easily dislocates a railroad car from its trucks. He is certainly a strange freak, and one that puzzles our learned professors. The Anglo American Four Combined Shows are the first to secure him, and will exhibit at Tecumseh Monday, May 5.

Frank Leslie's Sunday Magazine.

The May number contains some particularly notable articles, and is altogether most interesting and edifying. The editor, T. De Witt Talmage, D. D., has two articles, "The Artic Martyrs" and "The Great Freshets" which are of profound interest and admirably illustrated. "Cathedral of our Saviour, Moscow," "Love and Life in Norway," "A Summer Holiday Abroad," "The Pianoforte, Ancient and Modern," etc. are prominent features of the number. They are serial and short stories, essays, sketches, etc., by Rev. E. Barrass, Miss G. A. Davis, Alfreton Henvey, T. I. Meade, J. Alex. Patten and other celebrated writers; poems of great merit; the Home Pulpit, with sermon by Dr Talmage, and miscellaneous articles, etc., entertaining and replete with information. Single copy, 25 cents, or $2.50 a year, postpaid. MRS. FRANK LESLIE, Publisher, 53, 55 and 57 Park Place, N. Y.

The Carman Family gave one of the most profitable and entertaining concerts last January in the Baptist Church, ever given in Tecumseh. It is confidently expected that the entertainment to be given, at the same place under the direction of Miss Sarah Rounds, on the 9th inst., will fully equal it.

The people of South Macon are cordially invited to meet at the Reformed Church on Wednesday May 7, at 1 o'clock P. M. for the purpose of building fence, setting shade trees &c. The ladies are expected to provide picnic supper. By order of Consistory.

AN OLD, OLD STORY.

A casual meeting—one of merest chance;
An introduction—bows, a smile, a dance.
'Twas thus we met; and little dreamed I then
He would be more to me than other men.
Of course I thought him handsome, bright and gay.

[illegible]
Veiled,
Was subtle and sleeping, all its secrets sealed.
To meet so coldly seemed a mystery now;
To part so gayly—ah, I wonder how?

To clasp his hand, to hear upon his arm
Yet no soft fluttcrings fill me with alarm;
To stand beside him, close beside his heart,
Nor dream that of my own it formed a part—
'Twas all so natural! Oh, we little know
What fate was shaping, out betwixt us two;
What each to each, what heart to heart might be,
What I should be to him—what he to me.

* * * * * * *

A moment when I first had dared to feel
Emotions which my pride would fain conceal,
When sudden thoughts across my mind were cast,
And sudden flutterings made my heart beat fast;
When fancies strange as sweet, and sweet as strange,
Sought shy admittance, through my heart to range.
O timid hopes, soft doubts and tender fear!
O coy concealment from the one most dear!
O burning blushes that unbidden rise!
O faltering tongue, and traitorous tell-tale eyes!
O sweet anxiety, and pleasing pain,
To love, to love; and not to love in vain!
To watch his eyes, and half in wonder see
'Twas always brightest when it met his one;
To mark, when by my side, his tender tone,
His hand's soft pressure when it held my own;
O thus to watch, and wait for him to tell
What my heart whispered that it knew full well!

* * * * * * *

A summer evening, calm, and bright and fair.
A moonlit garden, he beside me there;
My trembling hand above my heart was pressed,
To calm its thrills of happy, sweet unrest.
I longed so much his tale of love to hear,
Yet when he spoke was filled with fluttering fear
A fear lest I might all unworthy prove
Of his affection true, of his deep love;
And something of my fears he seemed to know,
His manly voice had grown so soft and low.
Ah! what a tale he whispered in my ear,
So hard to answer, but how sweet to hear!
I could not answer; all my heart seemed filled
With language, but my recreant tongue was stilled.
And oh! so tender was his melting mood!
He clasped my hand—the clasp I understood;
He sought my eyes—but oh! I dared not raise
Those little tell tales to receive his gaze.
"One little word," he said, with fond caress,
I spoke that word, that little word was—
"Yes!"

* * * * * * *

A morning when the sunshine seemed to be
The fairest thing on this fair earth to me,
For—so at least old ballads and stories run—
The bride is blessed whom it shines upon.
Assembled friends with presents rich and rare,
A laughing group of girlish bridesmaids fair;
A father—mother, clasping to their heart
The darling child with whom they fear to part,
The daughter who, like timid bird caressed,
Prepares to flutter from the parent nest.
And dearer, dearest to that blushing bride
Is he whose place till death is by her side.
Ah, ever side by side, and hand in hand,
And heart to heart, henceforth those twain must stand.
Then many a fond caress mid tearful smiles;
Bells pealing, holy altar, flower-strewn aisles;
A wreath—a snowy robe—a bridal veil—
A happy bride, who tells this "old, old tale."

THE NEWS FROM PETERSHAM.

Mrs. Peak had been to Petersham herself to spend Thanksgiving with her niece, and brought the first account of old Mr. Johnson's illness.

Mrs. Jesse Johnson, his daughter-in-law, had come in for a few minutes Thursday afternoon, and had said it was the first time since she could remember that the old gentleman had not been in his seat in church on Thanksgiving Day. And they all felt as if it were a great break.

"He would insist upon setting at the table," said Mrs. Jesse, "but he looked too feeble to be out of his bed. These bad colds take hold of a man of his years——"

After the visitor had gone Mrs. Peak and her niece Martha had talked a good deal about the changes in the family which would be sure to come when Mr. Johnson died.

"I know that Jesse's folks are depending upon getting a lift," said Martha. "Mis' Jesse has hinted as much to me more than once, for she says Jesse's got more than he can carry in his business, and everything would be easy if he only had a little more capital. Truth is, I have an idea that he's teased a good share away from his father now, and the old gentleman isn't so ready as he used to be to further his projects. And there's William, his other son, I know it to be a fact that he is intending to go out West when his father's taken away. He has had a notion of it for a good while; his wife's sister's folks are all out there and doing well."

"They'll be very much missed as a family," said Mrs. Peak; "how Petersham has changed from what it was when I was a girl!"

When she went home the next day she was quite downhearted, and told Asa Fales, who happened to be in at the depot when the train came in and offered to carry her home, that old Mr. Daniel Johnson was breaking up—at least, so his family seemed to think.

Asa Fales was deeply concerned; the two villages were only a few miles apart, and he had been a Petersham boy. It was old Mr. Johnson to whom he owed his rise in the world, and he remembered that he might never have owned this flourishing country store if it had not been for this kind friend's assistance.

Besides, he had been confident of Mr. Johnson's support if he could make up his mind to buy a large tract of woodland which would pay well for being cleared the very next winter. He was already indebted to him, however, and it would be a very different thing if he were the debtor of the eager heirs.

So with all this in his mind he questioned Mrs. Peak, anxiously, and they concluded that Mr. Johnson's end was not far distant.

"Of course he made a great effort to get to the table on account of its being Thanksgiving," said Asa, sorrowfully, "but I'm afraid he'll give right up now. I'd ride over to see him to-morrow, but I can't get away. 'Tis right in my busy time; I'm buying up a great deal of wood this fall, and some of 'em are bringing it in now on wheels instead of waiting for snow."

"The snow does keep off late this year," said Mrs. Peak. "Here it's the first o' December, and there's only been one flurry that was hardly more than a hoar-frost."

They had reached the little gray house behind the lilac-bushes, where Mrs. Peak lived alone, and as she unlocked its side door and went in, it seemed strangely cold and lonely.

"I must look about for a lively kitten," she said to herself; "they're a sight of company, and what trouble it gave would be no harm. I declare it makes me feel lonesome; all the folks I have always been used to knowing seem to be dying off. I always set a good deal by Daniel Johnson."

Two neighbors looked up the road a little later than this through their kitchen windows, and seeing a light in Mrs. Peak's kitchen also, said to themselves that she might be lonely that evening without anybody to speak to, and they would step over and hear the news. They met at the door, each with a shawl over her head and her knitting-work in her hands—and were welcomed most heartily.

Mrs. West, who was very fond of talking, began at once to describe her experiences Thanksgiving morning, when she found that the cats had stolen into the pantry during the night, and mangled the turkey so that it was only fit to be thrown away. It was too late to get another, except a rack of bones fit only for a lantern, that had been left at Fales' store.

"I didn't know what in the world I would do. There was all the folks coming; his sister and all the child'n, and my brother and his wife, and we three at home are middlin' hearty—but there, we made out with the chicken-pie and a spare rib I put right in. It so happened I had one that was thawed. An' I took those cats and soused 'em well in a tub o' water, after I'd give 'em as good a beatin as I knew how. And after a while they stole in half froze, and set by the stove meek as Moses with their paws tucked underneath 'em, and when I'd look at 'em they'd mew at me both together 'thout making a sound. For all I was so worked up, I had to laugh."

They all laughed again at the cats, while Mrs. Peak acknowledged that she had just been thinking of getting a kitten, but such accounts as this were discouraging—and Mrs. West promptly offered her own virtuous pussies, which amused the little company very much.

"You haven't told us yet whether you heard anything over at Petersham," said Mrs. Rogers, the other guest, at which Mrs. Peak's face grew long.

"I had a beautiful visit with Martha," she answered, "but I've been feeling anxious to hear again from old Mr. Daniel Johnson. Jesse's wife came in and said he seemed very feeble. 'He didn't make no effort to get out to meetin' Thanksgivin' Day, and Martha said she'd noticed he looked pale and kind o' wizened up two or three weeks ago.'"

"I suppose the cold weather pinched him up," suggested Mrs. West. "Well, he'll be a great loss."

"I heard from him direct this morning," continued Mrs. Peak, mournfully. "I called to Jesse's oldest boy as he went by, and he said his grandfather wasn't any better. I asked if he was a-bed, and he said 'no.' He's got a sight of resolution; I shouldn't wonder if he didn't take his bed at all."

"I don't see how they'll pay their minister the salary they give him now, when they lose Mr. Johnson," said Mrs. Rogers. "He's always ready to give, and he does what he can for his folks I shouldn't wonder if he hadn't but a little property left, after all he's had to do, and being out o' business for some years now."

"He's kept his money a-movin'," observed Mrs. West. "There aint no such business-man about here, but there's been plenty o' hands reached out to take what they could get. Well, 'tis all over now, he won't last a great while if he's as feeble as you say. His father went just the same way, only kept the house a week, and his bed the last day."

"I should have gone right over to see him myself yesterday," said the hostess, "but it kept raining steady all day, same's it did here, I suppose."

"They'll be likely to have his funeral from the meeting-house, won't they?" asked Mrs. Rogers, solemnly; but nobody could answer her question.

Next day being Sunday, and most of the congregation coming from the scattered farms, there was the usual exchange of greetings and inquiries for news. And in this way the sad story of Mr. Johnson's last illness was spread far and wide before night. And in passing from one to another, the report became every hour more serious. At last some one ventured to say that, judging from what she had just heard, the poor man could not now be living. And the listener felt justified in announcing that Mrs. Smith thought there was no doubt that he was dead.

Late on Sunday night Mrs. West brought the news to Mrs. Peak.

"He heard it from some one who stopped at Asa Fale's, but there weren't no particulars," and Mrs. Peak said one had no idea Mr. Johnson would go so soon. It was a great shock to her, in as much as she had not known of his illness.

"Death is always sudden at the last," said Mrs. West. "I suppose you will go over to the funeral?—it seems a pity you should have come home Saturday, don't it?"

"I shall get ready to go by the first train," answered the old lady, crying a little. "I declare I wish I'd gone there before I come away. It ain't that I think of the expense of going to Petersham twice, for that's nothing at such a time as this, but I can't feel reconciled to not seeing him again. He was a most amiable Christian man; there won't be many dry eyes in Petersham the day he's buried. I've known him ever since I've known anybody."

So by the earliest train next day Mrs. Peak went back to Petersham. Her countenance wore a solemn expression She felt herself to be one of the chief mourners, though her place in the procession would probably not be far from the least afflicted.

As she stepped down from the car, she pulled a very long face, and was surprised to see no signs of the calamity which had befallen the village. She meditated upon the way the world moves on though its best men die—and took her way, to save time, through the back streets to her niece Martha's.

"Well, Martha," she said, sadly, "I'm sure I didn't think I should be back again so soon when I left you. When do they bury?"

"Who?" asked Martha, much amazed. She was busy washing, and was not in the least prepared for her aunt's appearance. She was used to making careful arrangements when she expected guests—being, as her friends said, very set in her ways—and if there was anything she disliked it was a lack of ceremony, even from her nearest relatives.

"I haven't heard of any death," she assured her aunt, who was apparently much astonished.

"Somebody told the Wests last night that Mr. Daniel Johnson had passed away, and Mis' West had come right out to tell me," she explained at last.

Martha began to laugh. "He was out to meeting last night as sure as the world," she said. "He's had a bad cold—you know he's always been subject to fall colds—but he's about again. I heard Jesse's wife fussin' at him about doin' up his throat when we were comin' out o' the meetin'-house last night."

"She was dreadful down-hearted about him, I'm sure, when she come in Thanksgiving night," ventured Mrs. Peak, in self-defense.

"Now, Aunt Peak," said Martha, "haven't you seen enough of Lydia Johnson by this time to know that she always thinks everything and everybody is going to rack and ruin? She was cheerful about the old gentleman to what she is sometimes. To be sure we all know he's getting along in years."

"Seems to me I do rec'lect she is apt to look on the dark side," reflected Mrs. Peak. "But now, Marthy, don't speak to any one of what my errand was in coming over. I've got a little shopping any way that I forgot last week, and folks will think we're dreadful hungry for news over our way."

"It does look like it," chuckled Martha. "But do stop to dinner, aunt, now' you're over—it's coming winter and you may not get started again. 'Tis a pity there aint something else for you to go to—I s'pose you've heard that story about the old ladies that set out for a funeral and found they'd missed the day, and asked the folks if they didn't know of a funeral they could go to?"

"Marthy," said her Aunt Peak, "I should think you had no feelin's. It wasn't my fault as I know of that the story got about. I did speak of it to one or two that his son's wife appeared concerned—and when word come that he was gone I only thought she had good reason to be anxious; and he was an old friend, and a leader in church interests, and I thought, natural enough, I'd come right over."

"Don't take it hard of me, joking with you," said Martha, "but it is kind of amusing when you come to look at it and see how stories get made up an' set going out of nothing. Every one o' 'em thinks they tell the truth, and first thing you know there's a lie traveling about fast as lightning," and she turned to her neglected washing, as if no time must be lost.

"I can't get back before two. I'm sorry I happened to trouble you on an inconvenien day, I'm sure," said Mrs. Peak, humbly. "I'll step down the street for awhile and do a few errands, and you mustn't let me put you out. Just a cup of tea and a taste of bread and butter I'll be all I ask for," and Martha nodded and told her aunt not to worry, and to have as good a time as she could.

The old lady's pride had met with a sad downfall—she did not know how to face the people at home. But luckily she was saved the first acknowledgment, as Asa Fales had reached Petersham before her and had found Mr. Daniel Johnson briskly at work by the garden trellis covering his grape-vines.

He had prudently avoided any reference to the next world, and, indeed, had learned the falseness of the story from a Petersham man whom he had met on the road. So he entered at once upon the project of buying the pine woods between Gaytown and Hollis, and found to his great satisfaction that his old friend would be glad to join him if the affair could be well arranged.

Mrs. Peak herself met Mr. Johnson, and could hardly look him in the face when she asked for his health. And when the neighbors came in one after another that evening after she was again comfortably established at home, she said: "You may laugh at me all you have a mind to, but I don't mean to need another lesson like this—I think it's a good deal better to mind what we've got to do instead of livin' on what folks have got to say; but it's hard to teach an old dog new tricks, and I suppose I shall always like to hear what news there is a-goin'."—S. O. Jewett, in Youth's Companion.

A Salesman's Lot Is Not a Happy One.

"Yes, sir," said a salesman yesterday, "I pity any man who has to stand behind a counter and sell goods. I pity him, sir, from the bottom of my heart for he deserves pity."

"Why?"

"Oh, these exasperating women! They'll come in and make you throw down your whole stock, pull and haul and criticise, and then wind up by getting a lot of samples for a sick friend. You're boiling with rage, but you dassent show it—got to look pleased and swallow your rage every time it boils up. I believe I'll die of apoplexy if I stay much longer in the business."

"Still, I must say that ours is a first-rate firm to work for. If we don't sell to every prospective customer they don't care. They expect us to show goods, and if the people don't buy it's all right. 'S mighty different from some firms in Detroit, I tell you, where a man's got to sell goods or get the bounce."

"How long are you on duty?"

"From eight in the morning to six at night, with an hour and a half for dinner."

"How do the women clerks get on with women customers?"

"So so, but it's a hard dose on 'em. You see, they know how it is themselves, and how they do hate 'em. Women are natural born hypocrites, and so you'd think to look at the two kinds—those before and those behind the counter that they were different gangs of angels each trying to beat the other in amiability, when all the time they are deadly poison to each other."—Detroit Free Press.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. It is not light or red hair may be darkened, but hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It gives a healthy vigor to the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents scalp diseases, such as dandruff, and gives coolness, comfort, and health to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair-Dressing, the Vigor is unequalled, it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and easy to arrange, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. F. BUTCHER writes from Kirby, O., Aug. 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the Mechanics' Union Laundry, Boston, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use prevents the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The Vigor is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not withstanding my knowledge, this the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 9, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which Father Time produceth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain a youthful appearance—a matter of some moment to me, as I am a minister, orator, actor, and in fact, every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PUTNAM, writing from Ashfield, Franklin County, Mass., April 12, 1881, says: "Two years ago about two thirds of my hair came out. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I began to use but one bottle of the Vigor, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In 1875, thirteen men comprised the entire working force used in the manufacture of the James Boss' Gold Watch Case. Now over five hundred are employed, and the number is constantly increasing. The reason of this increase is this: In the James Boss' Gold Watch Case all the metal in sight and subject to wear is solid gold, while the remainder, which only lends strength to the case, is of stronger metal than gold, giving gold where gold is needed, and strong, elastic metal where strength and elasticity are needed, a combination producing a watch case better than solid gold and at ONE-HALF the cost.

Over 200,000 of these cases have been sold, and every jeweler in the country can testify to their quality and merit.

LUDINGTON, MICH., Dec. 3, 1882.

E. W. Marsh of the Democrat, bought a Jas. Boss' Gold Watch case 18 years ago, and carried it until a short time ago, when I purchased it, and sold it to a customer. The case showed no signs of wear, except that natural to any case, and I am satisfied can be safely guaranteed for at least ten years more. I have sold the James Boss Gold Watch Case for many years, and the parties who bought the first ones are carrying them to-day, as well satisfied as though they had bought a solid gold case costing twice the money. I regard them as the only cases of this kind a jeweler should sell who cares for the trade his customers, the worth of their money or values his reputation.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, and gives full vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had been taking it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. R. SMITH,

CONGRESS.

AMONG the memorials presented in the Senate on the 23d, were joint resolutions memorializing the passage of the pending bill providing for the establishment of a National experimental station in connection with the agricultural colleges; also a resolution of the Ohio Legislature recommending the passage of the pending bill relating to the poisoning of expressmen of the late war. Bills were passed: Providing for the Government control of the Sault Ste Marie Falls Canal in Michigan; amending the Revised Statutes in relation to timber depredations; defining the title and duties of certain officers of the medical department of the army. The bill providing for the extirpation of pleuro-pneumonia and other contagious diseases among domestic animals was taken up, pending debate on which the Senate went into executive session and soon adjourned. In the House the Kansas contested election case of Wood vs. Peters was taken up, and the majority resolution declaring in favor of the sitting member, Peters, was adopted. Mr. Payson, from the Committee on Public Lands reported a bill to prevent the unlawful occupancy of public lands; placed on calendar. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the Naval Appropriation bill. Without action, the committee rose and the House took a recess. The evening session was occupied in debate on the tariff bill. Adjourned.

THE Chair laid before the Senate on the 24th a communication from the Attorney General asking that immediate provision be made by a joint resolution for the payment of jurors and witnesses for the United States Courts. The sum recommended is $60,000. A number of bills were reported favorably and placed on the calendar. A joint resolution providing that the two Houses will attend the ceremony of the unveiling of the statue of Chief Justice Marshall on May 10, and appropriating $15,000 for the occasion, bills were passed providing for the disposal of the abandoned military reservations, and amending the Revised Statutes relating to trespassers on Indian lands. Consideration of the pleuro-pneumonia bill was resumed, but without action the Senate went into executive session and soon adjourned. In the House Mr. Mayburry from the Judiary Committee, reported adversely on the Woman's Suffrage Constitutional Amendment; Mr. Reed presented a minority report; both were placed on the calendar. The House went into Committee of the Whole, for the consideration of Senate amendments to the Naval Appropriation bill. The amendment appropriating $400,000 to complete the ordnance for the outfit of the new cruisers was agreed to; the remainder of the amendments were non-concurred in. The committee rose, and the House agreed to the report—yeas 136, nays 96. Adjourned.

THE Chair laid before the Senate on the 26th a message from the House non-concurring in the Senate amendments to the Naval Appropriation bill. The Senate agreed to insist on its amendment and a committee of conference was appointed. The bill to establish and maintain a bureau of labor statistics was reported favorably and placed on calendar. Mr. Sherman reported favorably the resolution providing for the deposit in the Smithsonian institution of the silk flag presented to the Senate by Joseph Newman, of California, being the first American flag made of American silk; agreed to. A message was received from the House announcing non-concurrence in the Senate amendments to the Postoffice Appropriation bill. The Senate insisted on its amendments and a committee or conference was appointed. Adjourned until the 28th. In the House the morning hour was dispensed with and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar. The bill for the relief of Myra Clark Gaines was discussed and laid aside with favorable recommendations. It authorizes the issue of patents for so much of the 38,457 acres claimed by Mrs. Gaines as has not been disposed of by the United States, and provides that she shall be paid at the rate of $1.25 per acre for such as has been disposed of. Fifteen pension bills were passed by the House at the evening session. Adjourned.

IN the House on the 26th the Speaker announced the appointment of conference committees as follows: On the Naval Appropriation bill, Hutchins, Randall and Calkins; on the Postoffice Appropriation bill, Townshend, Holman and Horr. The House then proceeded to the consideration of the special order, being the bill to remove certain burdens of the American merchant marine and encourage America's foreign carrying trade. Several amendments were offered and agreed to, the most important being that of Mr. Cox, providing that iron or steel built steamships of not less than 4,000 tons measurement may be imported free of duty, and that such ships shall be admitted to American registry provided they be the exclusive property of citizens of the United States, and provided that they shall be excluded from the coastwise trade. Adjourned. The Senate was not in session.

DOMESTIC.

THE American Oak Leather Tannery at Cincinnati, the largest tannery in the world, was destroyed by fire on the 24th, entailing a loss of $400,000, and throwing four hundred men out of employment. There were forty-five thousand hides in the factory. Insurance $300,000.

JOHN H. DEANE, a wealthy New York lawyer, assigned on the 24th, giving preferences amounting to over $500,000. Liabilities are said to amount to over $1,000,000. The failure was due to extensive real estate operations, and the shrinkage in that property.

JOHN McELMOYLE and George Gilpin, neighbors, of Gloucester, N. Y., have disputed for years over some property. On the 23d Gilpin shot McElmoyle and then himself. Both may die.

AT Macedonia, O., on the 22d, during the absence of R. East's family, their house took fire and burned, together with $3,000 or $4,000 in Government bonds.

ON the 24th David M. Pelton, President of the Cleveland (O.) Pump Manufacturing Company, was caught by a circular saw in his factory in Cleveland and literally cut in twain. Death was instantaneous.

THE greatest labor demonstration ever seen in Buffalo occurred on the 23d. Over 5,000 people marched in procession, embodying all classes of mechanics. Fully 6,000 people were present in Music Hall, where they were addressed by Hon. M. A. Foran, of Cleveland, O., and others. Resolutions protesting against the action of the transportation lines in Buffalo in driving citizen longshoremen from the docks and wharves and substituting Italian pauper labor, and assuring the longshoremen of the assistance and sympathy of organized labor, were adopted.

WHILE blasting rocks at Morgantown, W. Va., on the 24th, Amos Seldomrick was instantly killed and Robert Howe fatally injured by a premature explosion.

A MEETING of the leading oil producing firms and companies of the entire oil region was held on the 22d in Buffalo. A proposal for curtailing the production when necessary, it is thought, will be adopted at the next meeting. The movement is in the direction of higher priced oil.

FIRES in Connecticut on the 23d destroyed the Washington Flannel Mill at South Coventry, insured for $135,000; and the cotton mills of the Providence Company at Fitchville; loss over $100,000.

CHARLES W. RUGG, the Long Island assassin, was on the 25th found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Maybee and her daughter at Oyster Bay. A motion for a new trial was denied.

THE trial of Frank James at Huntsville, Ala., for complicity in the Mussel Shoals robbery in 1881, ended on the 25th with a verdict of "not guilty." The verdict was greeted with cheers. James was immediately arrested by the Sheriff of Cooper County, Mo.

THERE was a sudden upward tendency in the wheat market at New York on the 25th, prices advancing 2½ cents on May and June. The transactions were heavy and several failures occurred. The advance in prices was the largest in a single day for many years.

[illegible] a local politician of some note, was convicted on the 25th of fraud for trying to extort $2,000 from the St. Louis Brewers' Association and the jury assessed a punishment at two years in the penitentiary.

THE House Committee on Military Affairs will ask for a special committee to investigate the management of the Soldiers' Home at Dayton, Ohio. General Patrick, Governor of the Home, has been charged with overbearing and inhuman treatment of the inmates.

FAILURES reported for the week ended April 25 were: In the United States 168, Canada 21, total 184; compared with 176 the previous week.

A MOB of between forty and fifty men visited the jail at Mt. Sterling, Ky., on the 25th, intent on hanging a prisoner named William Osborn, sentenced to five years for murder. They battered down the doors, but met with such determined resistance from the jailer and two sons, who were well armed, that they left without accomplishing their design.

IN reply to a resolution of the Senate requesting information as to the probable European requirements of grain products from the United States the present year, the Secretary of State says the most liberal allowance for the wheat output necessary to the world's consumption should be that the United States should be drawn upon the present year for 177,000,000 bushels, in round numbers, against 149,000,000 bushels from all other wheat-growing countries. It thus appears that the United States, instead of being controlled by, should be able to control foreign markets.

GEORGE ROFF, convicted in Kansas City of embezzling money from a registered letter, has been pardoned by the President.

SAMUEL KUPPERSCHMEID, a German from Cleveland, O., suicided at Baltimore, Md., on the 25th by leaping from Fayette Street bridge, a distance of thirty feet, into Jones' Falls. He was drowned in two feet of mud and water. Deceased was on his way to Germany and had $100 sewed in his underclothing.

MONTFORD KEIFER, eighteen years of age, son of Rev. Izaiah N. Keifer, pastor of the Lutheran Church at Wooster, O., and a student of Wooster University, committed suicide near Massillon, O., on the 25th by shooting. He was said to have been the brightest scholar in his class, but too close application to study had unsettled his mind.

REPRESENTATIVE STEWART, of Texas, has been directed by the House Committee on Foreign Affairs to prepare a bill providing for the appointment of three commissioners to visit Mexico, Central and South America, and secure information relative to the increasing commercial interests between these countries and the United States. The bill is to contain an appropriation of $70,000.

A MAN named John Brady walked off the west end of the viaduct at Cleveland, O., on the night of the 26th, while the draw was open. He fell a distance of eighty feet into the river, from whence he was soon after rescued without any injury save a thorough drenching.

A COLLISION occurred near Harmarville, Pa., on the West Pennsylvania Railroad, about midnight of the 27th, between a passenger and freight train, by which the firemen and engineers of the two trains were severely hurt, two probably fatally. The trains were running about twenty miles an hour and came together on a short curve. The engines were entirely demolished and cars damaged. None of the passengers were injured.

FOLLOWING is the statement of the New York associated banks for the week ended April 26: Loans decrease, $3,900,000; specie decrease, $2,535,000; legal tenders increase, $1,144,000; deposits decrease, $4,977,000; circulation increase, $39,000; reserve decrease, $146,000. The banks now hold $2,419,000 in excess of legal requirements.

THE Knights of Labor have filed a petition with the President, requesting that he shall not appoint to the Comptroller of the Currency any man whose appointment is urged by the National Banks, and suggesting the name of Mr. James Gilfillan as a suitable one to be selected.

ADVICES from Western Texas state that large numbers of cattle are suffering and dying for want of water and grass, the drouth having been very severe in that section. Myriads of caterpillars have also appeared and are destroying all kinds of vegetation.

A BOILER explosion in the saw mill of J. R. Lamb, at Liberty Center, O., on the 26th, killed Wallace Hackett, engineer, and William Howe, the head sawyer.

AT Easton, Pa., on the 26th, Amelia Bargets cut the throats of her two children, aged respectively five months and two years, with a razor, and then gave an alarm. As the neighbors rushed in she drew a razor across her own throat, and threw herself beside her children. All three were mortally wounded.

WILLIAM J. PHILLIPS, of the New York Produce Exchange, who recently failed, has absconded. He had forged warehouse receipts for large quantities of flour and done other fraudulent acts.

LUKE PHIPPS, charged with shooting his wife on a ferry boat between Detroit and Windsor last August was convicted of murder at Sandwich, Ont., on the 26th, and sentenced to be hanged June 17.

THE official report of the investigation into the loss of the steamer Steinmann censures Captain Schooneboven for making no observations on the day of the disaster, and for his imprudence in attempting to enter the port of Halifax under the circumstances. The report adds: "It was clearly his duty to haul off shore until able to verify his position and obtain a pilot. To these circumstances can be attributed the loss of a fine ship and the lives of one hundred and twenty-four persons."

PERSONAL AND POLITICAL.

THE Virginia Republican State Convention on the 24th made Colonel William Lumb permanent chairman, and elected William Mahone, William H. Pleasants (colored), S. M. Yost and Frank H. Blair delegates-at-large to Chicago. The delegates were instructed to vote as a unit on all questions in the convention.

THE Connecticut Republican State Convention met at Hartford on the 23d. Hon. Samuel Fessenden was made permanent chairman. The following were elected as delegates-at-large to the Chicago Convention: John L. Houston, Samuel E. Merwin, Jr., Augustus Brandegee and Frederick Mills.

THE following officers were elected at the thirteenth session of the Supreme Lodge of the World, Knights of Pythias, recently held at New Orleans: Supreme Chancellor, John Van Valkenburg, of Fort Madison, Iowa; Supreme Vice-Chancellor, Howard Douglas, of Ohio; Supreme Keeper of Records and Seals, Judge R. E. Cowen, of Missouri; Supreme Master-at-Arms, George B. Shaw, of Wisconsin; Past Supreme Chancellor, John R. Linton, of Jonnstown, Pa.

[illegible] the Louisiana election indicate 50,000 majority for the Democratic State ticket and the adoption of all the constitutional amendments.

HUGH GAFFNEY, a famous horse jockey and trainer, died at Chicago on the 23th.

THE Michigan Republican State Convention on the 24th selected Hon. M. C. Burch as permanent chairman, and chose R. G. Horr, Julius C. Burrows, William F. Swift and Dr. S. C. Watson (colored) delegates-at-large to the Chicago Convention.

AT the Iowa Democratic State Convention on the 24th J. B. Hill was made permanent chairman. L. G. Kinne, H. H. Trimble, E. H. Thayer and D. M. Harris were chosen delegates-at-large to the National Convention.

THE leaders of the tariff discussion in the House contemplate closing the general debate May 6.

THE State Convention of Massachusetts Greenbackers at Lynn on the 26th ratified the Chicago platform of 1880, and favored the nomination of Ben Butler for President.

THOMAS GAFF, of Aurora, Ind., one of the largest distillers of the country, died suddenly in Cincinnati on the 26th.

FOREIGN.

SIR EDWARD WATKIN, M. P., has offered a reward of £1,000 toward the rescue of General Gordon. He asks the London papers to open a fund for this purpose, when, he says, "£20,000 would be collected in a few hours."

THERE was a revolt on the 23d in the prison at Garsten, Austria, in which are confined a number of educated persons convicted of minor offenses. The outbreak was suppressed by the military after much bloodshed. Thirty prisoners were wounded, seven seriously.

IT was reported at Shanghai on the 23d that the Viceroy of Yaunan had committed suicide.

THIRTY-FIVE cane fields, four huts and many head of cattle belonging to the Congress plantations, in the province of Puerto Principe, Havana, were destroyed by fire on the 23d.

EIGHT THOUSAND emigrants sailed from Liverpool for America during the three days ended the 25th, a majority of them going to Manitoba, although many were booked for Canada and for the northwest States.

IN the budget submitted to the House of Commons on the 25th two important propositions were put forward, first, to degrade the gold standard by increased alloy, and second, to reduce the tax on tobacco.

A FIRE on the 26th on the premises of William Whitely, a dealer in general merchandise in West Bourne Grove, London, destroyed one building and damaged four others. Loss, £250,000.

IT is said that James O'Kelly, M. P., who went to the Soudan as correspondent of the London Daily News after the death of Edmund O'Donovan, has been taken into custody by the Egyptian authorities. Suspicious documents were found in his possession, among them letters from Frenchmen to the Mahdi.

THE Mayor of Vienna has received from an unknown donor 100,000 florins, with sealed instructions, which are not to be opened for six years.

LATER.

BY the breaking of a railroad bridge near Cuidad-Real, Spain, on the 28th ult., a train of passenger cars were precipitated into the river. Thirty-eight persons were killed and many others seriously wounded. One of the supports of the bridge was afterward found to be cut, showing that the disaster was the result of malicious work.

THE W. H. Lytle Post G. A. R., of Fort Scott, Kan., have shipped a car of corn to R. E. Lee, Camp Richmond, Va., to aid in building a home for disabled Confederate soldiers at that place. The corn was donated by the members of Lytle Post and the citizens generally, and was shipped on the 28th ult.

FIVE prisoners in the county jail at Beaver, Pa., made a break for liberty on the 27th ult., and succeeded in escaping by knocking the jailer down. Two of them were recaptured, but the others are still at large.

BY the falling of a portion of the new cavalry barracks at Portsmouth, England, on the 28th ult., a large number of convicts who were working on the building were buried in the ruins. Several were killed and thirty more or less injured.

CHARLES H. RUGG, the negro who was convicted of murdering Mrs. Maybee and daughter at Oyster Bay, L. I., has been sentenced to be hung June 6.

A FIRE at Glens Falls on the 28th ult. destroyed Little's Opera House, the Music Hall Building, Presbyterian Church, fifteen stores and thirty offices. Loss estimated at over $150,000.

GENERAL EMERSON OPDYCKE, formerly of Warren, O., died at New York on the 26th ult. from the effects of a bullet wound accidentally received while he was cleaning a pistol.

IT is now said the river and harbor appropriation bill will aggregate at least $13,000,000.

IN the Senate on the 28th ult. Mr. Collum, from the Committee on Railroads, reported the original bill to establish a commission to regulate interstate commerce. The bill is intended as a substitute for several bills relating to the same subject heretofore introduced. The other bills were indefinitely postponed and the bill reported placed on the calendar. A bill was passed to consolidate the Bureau of Military Justice and the Corps of Judge Advocates of the Army. The bill to establish a Bureau of Animal Industry was taken up and an amendment offered by Mr. Plumb, making the amount appropriated for the purposes of the bill $150,000, was agreed to. Without concluding consideration of the bill the Senate adjourned. The House passed the joint resolution for the appointment of Messrs. William H. Franklin, John Cadwalader and W. Hyde to fill the vacancies in the board of managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteers. The bill passed for the sale of a portion of the Fort Hayes military reservation in Kansas. Several bills were introduced and referred, after which the House went into Committee of the Whole for the consideration of business relating to the District of Columbia. When the committee rose a recess was taken until evening, and debate on the tariff bill was resumed. Adjourned.

The great political parties are now marshalling their forces for the presidential campaign. Delegates are being chosen and the great chiefs are intently watching their interests as convention after convention manifests its preferences. It is a great pity that the personal of the candidates are so prominent and prominent so far in the background that Mr. Public Weal would be lost in the quarrels. Mere politicians were sought down with a sense of responsibility in the support of great national interests. When personal considerations are made the desire to further some great end, then and not until then is a prospect that the right man will be found to head the ticket. But when it is a mere conflict between men, and the people are the prize, for which the contest is waged, the chances are against the people.

In regard to the local option question, whether under the supreme court decision villages could arbitrarily report bonds and thereby acquire local option, Hon. B. F. Graves, ex-chief justice, writes: "A village under charter adopted a vote of merchants to compel a board to act on the bond, it turned out the board had acted upon it that the process of the application. The supreme court held that on the board's refusing to grant petitioners leave to bond, information in the nature of quo warranto would lie to compel the board to do so. It was not supposed that any person would dispute that proposition, but it was argued that village authorities have a discretion to refuse to grant a license that is good faith. Another point was that village authorities might use their opinion of the policy. * * * There was no doubt of the ruling that the board was authorized to obtain the effect of local option by an arbitrary decision."

Under the direction of the State board of agriculture Dr. Kedzie has obtained from Japan 100 lbs. of sorghum seed early enough for grain to be distributed in small packets to those who desire to test the sugar producing and forage properties of sorghum. Only a few specimens can be sent into any one neighborhood but parties who are supplied with the seed in order of their application, until the stock on hand is exhausted. The directions for planting are as follows: Each package of seed will be sufficient for from one-quarter to one-third of an acre. Prepare the ground the same as for Indian corn. Plant when the ground is warm enough to secure rapid germination, and cultivate in all respects the same as Indian corn. Be sure to keep it free from weeds during its early growth, as it is then a weak plant and easily crowded out by the weeds. Try the growth, especially on sandy soils. At the end of the season report the results to Dr. Kedzie at the agricultural college.—Lansing Republican.

The severe thunder storm generally purifies the atmosphere. The Cincinnati riots have had a similar effect upon the moral atmosphere. They have aroused the legislature, and those who are responsible for the execution of the laws. The courts in Cincinnati have acted with a promptness and decision in dealing with crimes, which presents a marked contrast to the dilatoriness of the past. The legislature of Ohio has promptly inaugurated some very important reform measures. It has repealed the law exempting members of military companies from jury service. This is on the right line. The trouble has been to get good men to serve on our juries. They would get excused on one ground or another and leave only a class for service who had nothing else to do. If we would have our best citizens serve on juries we must not permit them to get excused so easily. The legislature has also reduced the criminal's right of peremptory challenge from 23 to 6. This also strikes at an evil. The prisoner, in the past, could drive all the staunch business men from the panel, by peremptory challenge. We are pleased to note also that a law has been passed, permitting men who have read of the case, to serve on the jury. Put this together with the law repealing some of the exemptions from jury service, and it begins to look as though they may secure good intelligent men to serve on their juries down in Ohio. This will go far toward assuring the prompt punishment of crime in that State. Now let Michigan follow suit.

AFTER THE STORM.

Wrecked Buildings Heaped Up in the Path of Last Sunday's Cyclone.

More Than Fifty Persons Killed and Injured—Not a House Left Standing on the Principal Street of Jamestown, Ohio.

LATER PARTICULARS.

DAYTON, O., April 28.—The cyclone that [illegible] the central and southern portion of the country on the past two [illegible] Tuesday, left desolation and death in its path. The first planet to the southward of Dayton was reached about eight and half-past eight on Sunday, yet details are meagre owing to the path south of Xenia, in many places to have been the most of all these cyclones, but has fortunately been out of their destructive path. The track over which the cyclone passed presents a frightful scene of destruction and death. Farm houses, barns and fences are piled in confused heaps of ruin with uprooted forests and the mutilated bodies of cattle. The hurricane was accompanied by flaming sky and rain. At Beavertown pieces of ice from two to four inches in diameter fell, from the cyclone doing great damage to windows in the town.

It was noticed that during the storm warm and cold winds alternated the cold from the north, and the warm rain, an evidence of the fact that the cyclone was formed by cold north and warm south winds. Reports of the are even more serious. At Alexander a frame barn blown bodily down from the north, while another of brick gray-stone was blown from the south, the two meeting on Mr. Hardy's farm. At Clay there was a great volume of winds poured down from their center and whirling and twisting started eastward, burning fences and trees in every direction.

It had scarcely gone 100 yards when it struck Mr. Hardy's tenant-house and [illegible] them all. At this place the beds were strewn with counter from barns, sheds and stables that had been torn to pieces by the terrible winds. All the farms along the track of the storm, which is estimated to have been about a quarter of a mile wide, were strewn with boards from sheds and houses along the way. The presented saddens every poor. The farm of Frank Bryner, next in its path, was the scene of great destruction. A fence a quarter of a mile along the road was lifted bodily into the road and a small strip of woods was blown down. One hundred yards west of this two tobacco sheds, one 100 feet long and other 50 feet and a big barn were totally destroyed entailing a loss of $1,000.

Mr. Bryner, who witnessed the destruction of his property says the cyclone came with a roar like a hundred [illegible] at enormous speed. The great tongue reaching from the back part of the house above was like a great [illegible] into the earth, and where the funnel touched the earth clouds of black smoke rolled up to the heavens. As it struck the shed a shriek would like that of a saw striking a piece of lumber resounded. In an instant the air was filled with the debris which had scarcely fallen when all was quiet again and the sun shining. The could be heard dying away as it cut through the country.

The next farm, that of Hugh Legler, was also severely dealt with by the storm. A new two-story house and two tobacco sheds were destroyed. As the cyclone crossed the Miami River near Carrollton an eye-witness says the water was carried fifty feet high. A strange freak of the cyclone at Jamestown was the destruction of four churches. All the houses on both sides of Xenia Avenue, the main street of the place, are totally destroyed. There is that can be occupied. More than one-half of the town is wrecked. The large warehouse of the Wickershams is a total wreck, and the Baptist Church is also gone, lying in a heap of debris on the site where it stood. The public school building is a total wreck and the Presbyterian Methodist and Christian Churches are all demolished and will have to be rebuilt.

NOT A HOUSE ON THE STREET

Near Carrollton the tobacco shed and fencing on the farm of J. Guibart, east of the river, and the tobacco sheds of Mr. Yordy, E. Squires, J. Lowry, Mat Dodds, Mr. Leasch, J. Zimmerman and J. P. Kimmel were BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Near Charles Wheatley's the cyclone picked up a young bull and carried him several hundred yards. The bull bellowed furiously while on his aerial journey. At Charles Wheatley's a barn was blown down, and his tobacco shed badly damaged. On the farm of S. and C. Michaels the tobacco shed and stable are a total wreck, and the dwelling house is badly damaged. At M. H. Young's an unoccupied tenant house was blown down and his sugar grove badly damaged. On the farm of William Neble very serious damage was done. On the farm of Edward Wheatley nearly all the farm buildings are blown down. No lives are reported lost, but a number are seriously injured.

The village of Woodburn is a total wreck. Not a house is left standing. At Jamestown it is estimated that upward of more or less. The following is a list of those dangerously injured:

FIFTY PEOPLE WERE INJURED

John Walker, leg and arm broken.
Mrs. Watson, hip broken.
Mrs. Tim Christopher, internal injuries and badly bruised.
James Christopher (child), badly bruised.
Mr. Reybourn, internally injured and bruised.
Elmer Reybourn, both legs broken.
Edward Wallace, both legs and one arm broken.
Barnie Rodgers, badly cut and bruised about the head.
William Heavy, skull fractured.
Emma Williams, (colored) badly bruised.

A relief committee has been organized in Jamestown, of which Mr. W. A. Paxson is chairman. He sent the following call for relief to Mayor Betteion, of Dayton, to-day:

"To the Mayor of Dayton:

"More than one-half of our town was totally destroyed by the terrible cyclone of the 27th inst. Hundreds of our citizens are in destitute circumstances and in need of relief. Any assistance will be gratefully received.

"W. A. PAXSON."

In accordance with this request Mayor Betteion has issued a call for a meeting of citizens at City Hall to take steps toward giving assistance.

THE SCENE AT JAMESTOWN.

XENIA, O., April 28.—The scene at Jamestown is even worse than expected. The force of the wind was terrific. Houses not entirely demolished were torn in two and lifted from their foundations. The damage is estimated from $150,000 to $200,000. The principal losses are the Methodist Church, $10,000; Christian Church, $5,000; the fair ground, $5,000; A. L. Wickersham, $5,000; Eliza M. Sowsey, $5,000; Mrs. S. Adams, $4,000; fire engine, $5,000; Baptist Church, $3,000.

The individual losses number 136. In many cases the house and its entire contents are all gone. Furniture and bedding were blown into the tree tops a mile distance from the houses. The damage in the country was very great, but particulars are not yet known. The roads are impassable in the direction of the storm. Much live stock was killed. Barns, sheds, fences and trees were swept away. A meeting was held here tonight to organize for the relief of the suffering.

The first house struck by the cyclone was that of Rev. William Stewart. It was a light frame, and was literally torn to pieces and distributed on farms near. Stewart was in the house and is thought to be fatally injured. The city building was blown over upon the bakery of A. B. Smith, crushing it and burying nine persons in the ruins. Four of them, Al. Harbert, George Ballard, Elmore Johnson and Edward Wilson, were seriously injured. There are about thirty-five or forty other persons injured, though not seriously.

The three persons killed at Mr. Jenkins' house were in the act of entering the cellar where others of the family had gone when they were caught against the wall by the falling frame of the house and crushed to death. They are Miss Jenkins, Miss Jones, who was visiting her aunt Mrs. Jenkins and Mrs. Carpenter, who was making a call when the storm came on.

Hiram Dell was killed while running from his father's house. Miss Bobeler was killed by a falling timber. The cyclone entered the town from the west, followed the main street called Xenia Avenue and was about a hundred yards in width. Debris from the houses was strewn for a long distance east of the town.

Four Bribers Indicted, One of Them an American.

TORONTO, April 29.—The Grand Jury found true bills against Bunting, Wilkinson, Meek and Kirkland, charged with conspiracy to bribe members of the Legislature. Bunting is proprietor of the Mail, and his indictment is a severe set-back to the paper. These cases were brought out March 17 last when two members of the Legislature, R. McKim and William Balfour, announced that Wilkinson had paid them $1,000 and $800 for their votes. Other members implicated Kirkland, Meek and Bunting, and their arrests followed. Kirkland is an Wisconsin man, and was in Toronto scheming to get control of some valuable timber land on the boundary between Minnesota and Canada. Wilkinson was a political wire-puller and had a remarkable faculty of obtaining official appointments for his friends.

Insane From a Desire to Marry.

BUFFALO, April 28.—John W. Brayley, of Evanston, Ill., who arrived in this city a few days ago, was arrested Sunday for an attempt at suicide. Brayley showed evident signs of lunacy and was gradually growing worse. He has been taken to the State Insane Asylum a raving maniac. In his rational moments he said that some weeks ago he left his home, having been refused the consent of the parents of a young lady of Evanston to wed her. His uncle purchased him a ticket to Philadelphia, where he had friends, hoping to cure him of his infatuation. While being taken to the asylum he piteously moaned, "O, where is she?" The physicians consider his case incurable.

Incendiary Fire at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, April 29.—Just before two o'clock yesterday morning a fire broke out in the three-story brick building at the corner of Jefferson avenue and market street, occupied on the ground floor by S. H. Geisel as a grocery and on the upper stories as tenements. The fire spread rapidly, cutting off the stairway and great excitement and terror prevailed among the people in the building, but all were finally rescued by the firemen from windows by means of ladders, nine being seriously injured, though several were slightly burned and nearly suffocated by the smoke. The fire is the work of an incendiary, but the loss is not great.

Easton Turns State's Evidence.

DALLAS, Tex., April 28.—Edward D. Easton, one of the alleged cotton swindlers in jail at Dallas, has agreed to turn State's evidence. For this Easton only gets two years in the penitentiary in the event that Baum and Lobenstein are convicted on the same charge. If they are acquitted charges against Easton are to be dismissed. Easton is to testify to all he knows about the swindle. The prosecution entertains no doubt of the conviction of Baum and Lobenstein.

Michigan Items.

DETROIT, April 28.—Simon Moore, aged twenty-five, a deaf mute from Dublin, Ont., was killed by the cars at Flint yesterday morning. He was walking on the track.

J. H. Smith, of Pinconning, was killed yesterday morning while unloading logs at St. Helen, this State.

R. C. Montgomery, the widely known vessel owner and manager, of this city, died Monday morning of hemorrhage of the lungs.

A False Claim Allowed.

BUFFALO, April 28.—Considerable excitement was caused here on Sunday by the publication of the fact that a claim of about $2,800 had been paid by Ex-Surrogate Zebular Ferris to one Richard Colville in August, 1882, recorded as a brother of of James Colville, deceased, late of Brant, this county. Letters from relatives of James Colville, living at Dundee, Scotland, state that the existence of Richard Colville is unknown to them.

Sensible Chest Protector.

GARELLO, N. C., April 29.—Two prominent colored politicians, Isaac Tiggen and James Porter Spicers, were arrested when about to engage in a duel. Tiggen had on two overcoats and a sheet iron plate fifteen inches square as a chest protector to keep out the cold, as he explained. Bad blood grew out of differences as to Presidential candidates.

Punished for Protecting Her Character.

CHICAGO, April 29.—Sadie Reigh, a young woman who pleaded guilty to having shot and killed Patrick Kingsley, head waiter at the Briggs House for defaming her character, was sentenced to a year and a half in the penitentiary this morning.

The Mississippi Overflow.

NEW ORLEANS, April 28.—The water from Davis Crevasse, nineteen miles above, now covers all that portion of Gretna south of the Morgan railroad track. The water is coming up to within half a dozen squares of the river.

Stock Brokers Fail.

NEW YORK, April 28.—Owens & Mercer, stock brokers, are unable to meet their engagements. Liabilities small.

"THESE ARE MY JEWELS."

That is what Cornelia said of her Gracchi boys, at a sort of Roman tea party, where her associates were boasting of their jewels of the mines about 2,000 years ago.

When a Grecian mob wished to get rid of Socrates, the best and purest man they ever had, long centuries ago, they condemned him to die, under the false charge of "corrupting the youth." Remember, that these were not only heathen, but heathen long centuries ago. Yet Protestant Christian parents, in charity, we hope, to others, seem to have forgotten that it is no sought to be a sense the corrupt the youth.

"Cast not your pearls before swine," saith the proverb of Holy Writ, and yet is not this just what the fathers and mothers of Michigan are doing every day? Who that has a human heart could fail to have had that heart stirred within him while listening to the assertions and developments made at the public meeting recently called at the Central M. E. church for the formation of a citizens' league to enforce our liquor laws and while not only the principal speaker, Mr. Paxton of Chicago, but also Superintendent Howell of our city schools besought the league also to embrace the saving of the children from the temptations of intemperance not only, but of vile literature and vile associations as well?

Fathers and mothers of Lansing, where are your jewels? Where are your boys and girls at night, and who are their associates? You do not know, and you do not seem to care. You send them, perhaps, to the Sunday school, and seem to think that that will answer every purpose. Did you hear Mr. Paxton tell how many Sunday school boys and girls he found enticed into the saloons, on their way home from the Sabbath schools. No, this is not enough.

Thanks, grateful thanks to the noble army of Sunday school teachers, who without hope of reward in this world, care so tenderly for the children committed to their charge, but parents cannot thus throw off from themselves the responsibilities thrown upon them by the Infinite Father, who has made them the especial guardians of those children committed to their care to train and fit for usefulness in life and happiness in the life to come.

Fashion, love of pleasure, and love of gain, are the Molochs before whose hideous image and into whose insatiable maw they are content to throw these priceless treasures, with all their sweet tender sensibilities, palpitating hearts, and boundless capabilities. They cannot consent to sacrifice themselves to the less showy, and therefore less attractive duties and pursuits of looking after and caring for the little ones at home. And it is only when it is too late, that with broken hearts and heaven beseeching lamentations, they awaken to the natural, nay, the almost certain results of their suicidal neglect.—Lansing Republican.

BEAUTIFUL SPRING TIME.

"The time of the singing of the birds has come" once more. How pleasant it seems! How we rejoice in the warm sun and balmy air! But while its light and warmth are around us and the birds are singing and flowers are springing, and field and forest are putting on their beautiful robes, let us ask how it is in our hearts. Is it spring time there? This spring sunshine comes creeping into many unhappy homes, homes in which the "winter of discontent" and unhappiness has not been made summer for many a day. Dear friends, with this returning spring let the spring-time of happiness return to your home. Bring in again the warm sunshine of love, plant the flowers of tender affection, sow the seed of kind words and deeds. It is not too late to banish the winter. Your home may be made a little paradise if all its inmates but set themselves about the task.

While the cold blasts of winter continue, we do not expect opening flowers and balmy breezes. But strange to say, in many homes where the cold cutting blasts of ill-will and jealousy blow, where unkind words freeze up every bud of tender affection, the inmates seem to expect the spring-time and wonder that it does not come. How foolish! We cannot have the spring time in the home, we cannot expect home to blossom and flourish like a paradise without the light and warmth of love.

The following is from the California Advocate: "There was not a murder in Wyoming Territory last year, and they have Woman's Suffrage. It is not only an exceptional case in the United States but it is remarkable. Courts of Wyoming are uncommonly prompt in punishing crime. In early times in Laramie and other places the people had to hang a few desperadoes, but after things became steady and women voted, they execute the laws with exceptional care." Let those who expect to bring the millennium by dallying with crime and pitying criminals, answer such arguments as this if they can. The only thing which can check crime is promptness in executing every penalty against it. Where this is done it will decrease.

DR. GEO. FERGUSON

Late of Coldwater, this state,

Takes pleasure in announcing to the citizens of Tecumseh and vicinity that he has purchased the Drug and Grocery Business of J. W. Patterson at the old Patterson store in this Village.

The Doctor is a physician and druggist and is every way competent and reliable in his line of business. The stock is being thoroughly sifted, and every article not actually prime is thrown out.

We have a large and fine line of wall paper, which we invite the people to see for themselves before purchasing elsewhere. We do not expect to sell all the goods sold in our line in the village, but by fair and honorable dealing hope to secure your share of trade.

Ab. Osborne's new building, east of the HERALD office is rushing right along.

John Davis, Esq., and wife of Monroe, Mich., are visiting here with his neice, Mrs. Snedecor.

Tecumseh will celebrate Decoration Day. That is determined upon. Committees will be appointed and all necessary arrangements made next week.

B. L. Baxter is expected home tomorrow. He has business at Ridgeway and Toledo, and will return to Lansing probably about the middle of next week.

The township board held a meeting last evening and made the following appointments: Census Enumerator—F. B. Wood. Health Officer—Dr. L. G. North. Board of Review—Horatio Keyser, E. A. Tribou.

Dr. O. Q. Jones has bought the Geo. Wilson house on Oneida street, between Chicago and Logan, and has taken possession. He will receive professional calls there from persons living in that quarter of the village. The Doctor can now rejoice in having a home of his own.

The time is not far distant when the alleys and back yards should be renovated. The old tin cans, and boots, chicken skeletons, disjoined or otherwise, remains of cats, and the posthumous relics of dogs, old leaves, straw, dry grass, and other remains of like character should be raked away or destroyed by fire. Clean up is the word.

Of Miss Sarah Round's Readings in Detroit, the Evening News says: The young lady's voice is clear, resonant and powerful, and the manner in which she reads Poe's "Bells" did great credit to her as a most accomplished professional." The full program of Miss Sarah Rounds' Readings and Concert will be given next week.

A correspondent offers this: As spring draws on apace, street corners and dry goods boxes in front of stores are becoming the popular resort of a class of men the world would be better off without. The man of action and industrious citizen will often wonder what such fellows were created for. The only solution we can give is that they eat as much as anybody and thus prevent an over-production of provisions.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD,

TECUMSEH, MICH., MAY 1, 1884.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL

It warms up very slowly.

The paper mill is running again at full blast.

Lots of new side-walk building in the village this spring.

Remember the donation for the benefit of Rev. J. Phelps at the parsonage this evening.

The military boys' entertainment takes place at the opera house on the evenings of May 12 and 13.

Those persons who are not already subscribers to our new Directory can obtain a copy for one dollar.

A few copies of the Tecumseh Directory are on sale at the HERALD counting room at one dollar each.

DeWitt Tallman, of Adrian, does not entirely forget his Tecumseh friends. We received a pleasant call from him on Tuesday. He is as good natured as ever and his residence in Adrian seems to do him no harm.

There is to be a new bridge across the river Raisin at Palmyra and Elijah Wilson has the contract of driving the spiles and building the foundation. Wonder how they found out where to find the best spile driver?

L. F. Wheeler will be in town a few days before going east to work for a large Chicago house at a popular summer resort making views. The people of Tecumseh and vicinity wishing any views taken while he is at home should be prompt in giving orders.

The residents of Pennington's Corners get their mail about two days behind time. The best arrangement for the Macon mail would be a daily mail between that village and Tecumseh, coming to Tecumseh in the morning and returning in the afternoon.

The present High School graduating class consists of six members: Frank Lamkins, May Farley, Mable Guiwitz, Ernest Shepard, Edgar Ide and Will Hastings. They are all excellent pupils. The graduating exercises next June will be fully up to the usual standard.

Mrs. H. E. Stout has received a large and magnificent assortment of new spring goods which she has displayed to the best advantage at her new millinery rooms over Anderson's store. She invites her friends to call and inspect her stock before purchasing, as she is prepared to give unusual bargains this spring.

Number four of the "Social Reformer" was issued from the HERALD job rooms last Tuesday. The paper is a great improvement over its predecessors and looks as "neat as a pin," and the reading matter contained therein is sound and practical. Bro. Hudson is becoming a first-class editor. The present number of the paper will bear the most critical inspection.

Jas. Montague has bought a lot 100 by 50 feet between Lee's corner block and Bird & Havens' livery, and is erecting a two story building thereon, to be occupied by W. N. Snedicor.—It will be fitted up expressly for Mr. Snedicor's use for a bakery and agricultural implement house, he having taken a long lease of the property.—The new building will be exactly what Mr. Snedicor wants for his business.

J. B. Swan returned from Florida last Saturday, looking as bronzed and hearty as though he had taken a trip round the world. He now has two thousand trees on his orange plantation, and is highly satisfied with his Florida investment. It will not only afford him a good winter home but will also, unless appearances are deceiving, be a good financial speculation. There is quite a Michigan colony now where he is located.

C. S. Mail: "Mr. F. B. Deuel is now foreman of the mechanical department of the Sparta SENTINEL. Though having served but a partial apprenticeship at the trade, Mr. Deuel, by hard work and perseverance, has gained in the "art preservative" a knowledge to be envied by many of our "master printers." He succeeds Mr. E. Sliter." We are glad to hear of Finley's prosperity. We know that he has the timber of making a good printer.

G. P. Sparks has moved his stock of musical merchandise and sewing machines and can now be found in his new quarters in Lee's block. He has elegant rooms there, large and conveniently arranged. The people of this section now have what has long been needed, a first-class musical house, and we believe they will respond to Mr. Sparks' enterprise by giving him a good trade. It will no longer be necessary to go abroad for musical instruments.

Orange Judd, Editor of the American Agriculturist for some thirty years, but unconnected with its business management for a year or two past, has lately retired from its editorial department and located in the West. He desires to gather a complete "Postal Card Album" of his old readers and friends, and requests them all to send him now a postal giving their present location and address, naming also, when convenient, the years in which they were his subscribers. Mr. Judd's address is Chicago, Illinois.

The big circus will arrive next Monday.

Gainsley & Co. have put a new floor in their store.

Dr. Geo. Ferguson is treating the interior of his store to a new coat of paint.

A new sidewalk has been laid on the East side of Pearl street adjoining the agricultural works.

Gainsley & Co., have a new hard wood floor in their store, which greatly improves its appearance.

[illegible] Burridge formerly of this village is one of the recently elected trustees of Dundee. He will make a good officer.

We should never be afraid to do that which is for our good or for the good of others, even though we may be ridiculed for it.

A full grown John Chinaman was in town yesterday searching for rooms in which to start a laundry. We have not learned whether he succeeded in finding any.

Dundee Reporter: Dundee having elected a temperance ticket Monday Capt. Nel. White proposes to bring to town his seeding machine and scatter grass seed over the streets.

A letter written last Tuesday from New York states that Seaton Anderson is improving daily and will soon be able to sit up. Fred Rosacrans arrived home to day noon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Hand passed the forty-seventh anniversary of their marriage last Sunday. They have been residents of Tecumseh since 1839. May they live to enjoy many more anniversaries.

At the close of service last Sunday evening Rev. C. E. Conley announced that next Lord's day would be the first Sunday of the seventh year of his pastorate, and on that day he would preach an anniversary sermon.

Geo. Adamson has moved into his new quarters on the old Keil corner and will occupy the West side of the store with a magnificent stock of jewelry, watches, etc. He is having another large wall show case constructed which will fill out his space finely. Call and see him, look over his goods and buy.

Mr. Wm. VanCamp has severed his connection with the McConnell Dry Goods House and again takes a position behind the counter at James A. Eaton & Co's. His friends from this section who always trade with "Van" will please bear in mind his change of location, and give him a call when visiting Adrian.

Mr. F. W. Keip, of Toledo, has opened a book and news store in the corner store of the Lilley House block, and will occupy the East side of that store. In addition to books, etc., he will carry a large stock of wall paper. Mr. Keip comes to us well recommended and we have no doubt he will secure a good trade.

Street Commissioner Jordan set at work the other day to find some suspected leaks in the water works. One was found in the hydrant at the M.E. church corner and one in the small pipe leading to the cellar of the HERALD building. Both leaks were mended and no further trouble is apprehended.

John A. Heck left Tecumseh for New York last Tuesday morning and on Saturday next he will sail for Liverpool. He is taking the trip mostly for business purposes to make arrangements for a more extended sale of Heck's celebrated roller flour across the big water. May he have a pleasant voyage and a successful business trip.

Rev. C. W. Knickerbacker, of Wayne, Mich., one of the pioneer Universalist ministers of this state, died last Saturday of heart disease.—The deceased had preached in nearly all the churches of his denomination in Michigan and was known and respected throughout the state. Rev. Dr. Hanson, of Chicago, conducted the funeral services.

James Glasgow's little girl has been suffering for several months with acute rheumatism. A few weeks ago Dr. H. W. Catlin took charge of the case and by skillful treatment and close attention has effected almost a complete cure. Mr. Glasgow feels himself under special obligations to Dr. Catlin for his successful treatment of the case.

Dr. Higgins, the well-known principal of Polypathic school of medicine, Indianapolis, visits Tecumseh on his regular circuit from Friday, May 2d, till Monday, May 5th, and can be consulted at the Lilley House. His unqualified success in the treatment of chronic diseases is too well known in Lenawee county to need mention here. See his announcement elsewhere.

H. E. Stout and Henry Heesen have been admitted to the firm of H. Brewer & Co. C. J. Brewer has been compelled to relinquish his duties in the shop by reason of poor health, and H. W. Conkling expects to take an extended trip west this summer. The admission of Stout and Heesen to a business interest is not only a wise move under the present circumstances but is a fitting recognition of their long and faithful service in the shop.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

The Adrian District Association of the W. F. M. S. held its semi-annual session with the Methodist Episcopal church in Tecumseh on Wednesday and Thursday Apr. 23 and 24. Mrs. E. J. Benson of Adrian, President, Miss Franc Baker of Adrian, Secretary. The exercises began on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A large number were present from other portions of the district. The president led the opening exercises. Mrs N. R. Merritt of Tecumseh read an address of welcome, and Mrs. Cushman of Manchester responded. After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting and the appointment of committees, Mrs. A. Gillett of Grass Lake read an essay. Reports from delegates followed. In the evening, devotions were led by Rev. McMahon of Palmyra, Mrs. Rev. W. J. Campbell sang a solo very beautifully. Miss Franc Baker of the editorial staff of the UNION LIGHT gave a lecture entitled, "Sketches of Michigan Methodist Missionary Women." She labored under great disadvantages as she should have had a stereopticon to give her photographic views, but had to get along with a small magic lantern. But in spite of all she held her audience interested to the close, and gave such a sketch of our missionary women as made us all feel proud of them.

On Thursday morning devotional services were conducted by Mrs. J. Atkinson, of Adrian. Mrs. Town, of Rollin, led an interesting meeting entitled "Missionary Reminiscences." This consisted of individual experiences in the work of organizing and carrying on the different auxiliary societies. Fraternal delegates were next received; Mrs. Rev. W. H. Babbitt and Mrs. E. B. Wood from the Presbyterian missionary societies, and Mrs. Jas. Heck of the Baptist missionary society, of Tecumseh, gave interesting addresses. Mrs. A. C. Stalker, of Ann Arbor, then read an able essay. Subject: "Christ as a Factor in Society."

In the afternoon Mrs. Rev. G. W. Hudson, of Tecumseh, led the devotional exercises. Miss Minnie Miller, of Adrian, gave an interesting recitation. Mrs. W. B. Mumford, formerly of Tecumseh, now of Adrian, sang "If I were a voice," very beautifully, Miss Mary Norton, of Hudson, read an essay, Miss Whedon, of Ann Arbor, gave another recitation and Mrs. F. D. York, of Dearborn, Conference Secretary of the W. F. M. S., gave a thrilling address.

In the evening Rev. Pierce, of Sharon led the devotions. Rev. Oldham, of Detroit, who was born and raised in India as was his father before him, but of English parentage, and who has lived in India until within four or five years, gave a very interesting missionary address. He showed the difficulties of the work. These are 1st. the dissolute lives of Europeans, 2d. the the haughtiness of the English, 3d. the the growing national spirit among the educated. Next he showed what is being done, and made the astounding statement that if we reckon all the Christian workers of every description and creed in India, we have just one to 50,000 of her people. With such scarcity of workers he showed that much has been accomplished. Mr. Oldham intends to return to India in October, and devote his life to missionary work.

We feel that the sessions of the association were very profitable, and shall be glad to meet these workers for God and humanity in the future again.

MR. CHAPMAN'S RETURN.

The really surprising success of our amateur dramatic talent in the recent production of "Driven from Home" has prompted Company C. of M. S. T. to engage Mr. Harry C. Chapman, to whose admirable direction a great deal of the recent success is due, to return. The result of this engagement will be seen on the evenings of May 12th and 13th, when the weird, wonderfully sympathetic English drama, entitled "Michael Earle, the Maniac Lover, or, the Fayre Lass of Litchfield" will be presented by a caste most of whom have already demonstrated their ability, and Mr. Chapman has certainly shown his power of bringing that talent into prominence and giving us as good an evening entertainment as we are in the habit of witnessing from our allotment of professionals.

In the selection of "Michael Earle" the Guards and Mr. Chapman have shown considerable judgment. It is one of those many charming sermons one often hears from the stage, one of those plays one never forgets, and has a moral evident to all. The comedy element is very amusing and is carried through the play by several characters.

The caste is complete and in daily rehearsal, and Mr. Chapman is confident of once more giving our amusement seekers a representation worthy of their patronage and commendation.

Popular prices will prevail.

By request of many citizens, "Driven from Home" will be repeated with the original caste, May 13th.

Hudson will celebrate decoration day with Gen. Geo. Spaulding of Monroe as orator.

THE NORTH PINE WOODS.

MR. EDITOR:—Having just returned from a brief business trip into Wexford and Missaukee Counties, I have thought that perhaps a few minutes of the trip might prove of interest to your readers.

If any one supposes that Michigan is about to run out of pine lumber, they ought to see the miles of logs in all the northern streams almost, and the miles of uncut forests, on every side of you as you go in almost any direction from the county seat of Wexford county.

My destiny was Lake City the county seat of Missaukee county—about 15 miles north east of Cadillac.

I went there from Grand Rapids to Cadillac by the G. R. & Ind. R. R. and then in an open wagon, over hills and through pine forests, often snow and ice in the pine groves on each side of me, and not unfrequently in the road itself. Some four miles from Lake City we struck a sort of frozen marsh and the horses were seldom out of the water after that until about three quarters of a mile from Lake City.

When I left Lake City last Wednesday morning, Muskrat Lake on the east shore of which it lies, was still frozen over. We took a more southern route to Cadillac to avoid the marsh, making the distance about 18 miles, part of the time in heavy pine woods, ice and snow all around—part of the trees in pine barren from which the pine had been cut, leaving the land clean but utterly worthless, and sometimes up and down hills, such as Michiganders never see in the South part of the Peninsula.

For pine lumber, the uncut portion is still valuable, assessed according to stumpage at from $20 to $30 per acre, for farming purposes the land even the best of it, the rolling beach and maple land is almost worthless, at least it would be to me. I would rather have four acres of the poorest land in Lenawee county, than forty acres of the best land I saw up there.

They can only raise the small six weeks corn, must plant after the middle of June to avoid the June frosts and ripen and gather it before the 10th of September, or in all probability it is gone up. White beans will not ripen in the brief space of time allowed to them, three-fourths of them or more, almost uniformly sucumbing to the early Sept. frosts. Hay, so I am told, runs about one-half ton to the acre, and corn 10 to 20 bushels, if it is fortunate enough to escape the frosts at both ends of the season.

The soil, which I measured in several places runs from one-half to three-fourth of an inch deep, the yellow or white sand ad libitum. Potatoes and turnips do well as they always do in northern latitudes.

Lumbering is the only business that pays, and that does pay. Wages now, driving logs on nearly all the small streams $2 per day and board. Narrow guage railroads, or logging railways are laid with iron rails and run by steam, abound, but it seems to me that when the lumbering is done, the men must move out or starve.

In the town of Deerfield, about two or three miles from the village of Deerfield, Lenawee county, is a settlement which par-excellence is called the "black north"—and it is really a curiosity that the two adjoining towns and counties—Cypress in the north of Wexford Co., and Colwell in the north of Missaukee Co. near Manetou on the Grand Rapids and Indiana R. R., is a settlement of nearly 30 families composed almost entirely of emigrants from the "black north" of Deerfield. It is called the Carpenter settlement mostly it is laid upon a birch and maple ridge, and upon one main road east and west.

And by the way, the land we are told, as you get nearer to Lake Michigan, feeling the influence of that large body of water in delaying and modifying the early fall frosts, is made more productive and much more reliable for a crop, and the houses and farm improvements are much better and built more as if with an intent to stay rather than as for a temporary accommodation. As a summer resort the whole country with its noble pine forests and its clean sandy lakes, is beautiful, but as a winter residence inhospitable and destitute.

It is simply lumber, logs and lumber and nothing else—unless it is rowdyism and whiskey. The lumbermen constituting the great working classes get good wages all winter and while driving logs in the spring, but too many of them when their winter's work is done like the sailors of the sea coast, dissipate the most of their hard earned wages, on the road to lock-ups and jails in Grand Traverse, Big Rapids, Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Flint, Bay City, Detroit and Chicago.

By request I addressed a crowded house at Lake City, on temperance. I left the next morning, and their not knowing my exact destination, I have no means of telling you how the shot told, but presume I had better not lecture on temperance there again this summer.

Lansing, April 28th, 84. B.

The Farmers of Macon will hold a Sheep Shearing Festival at Wm. Osgood's on Tuesday May 6th. All are cordially invited to attend.

CARD OF THANKS.

We tender to the many kind friends our heartfelt thanks for the great kindness they administered to us while under the darkest shadow that ever fell upon our lives in the loss of our darling boy.

JOHN R. CLARK,
ELEANOR H. CLARK.

Lines to Willie.

This world of ours is not complete,
Without the childrens' song and noise;
For there's no sound that's half as sweet
As the music of their cheery voice.

Then God bless well in the best of ways,
That when their days of youth are flown;
They may bless your life in after years,
When you are apt to think your joys are gone.

Those earlier days when age creeps on,
To cripple and cram the bending form,
A loving daughter and a tender son
May steer you in the eddying storm.

After that the light will come
In glorious sheen from the land of light;
To shimmer with gold your pathway home,
Far from the murky touch of night.

Then in the long sometime of rolling years,
When cycles are but a round of joy;
Happy we'll be if in those spheres
We can live again with our darling boy.

Our Tecumseh Directory is completed and is now ready for delivery. We have been subjected to unforeseen delays in the prosecution of the work and it is short of our ideal of what a directory ought to be, but we believe it will be a convenience to all, that it will be found useful in many ways, and that it is a good investment for the subscribers. The books will be delivered as rapidly as possible to those entitled to them. We wish to extend our thanks to all who have kindly favored us with their patronage and aid in the work. A few extra copies are on hand which will be sold for one dollar per copy.

NO SOONER, NO LATER.

The date of the Anglo American Four Combined Shows, when once fixed is never changed under any circumstances, and its railroad contracts are made months in advance of the arrival of the various advertising cars. The public is therefore warned not to be misled or confused by any future announcements, as these monster shows will positively exhibit in all its entirety, at Tecumseh, Monday, May 5.

—Notice. David Jones has moved his renovating establishment to the store lately occupied by Peter Welling, on Railroad street, and will be pleased to have his friends call and see him. D. JONES.

—Please call and look at our goods. Bureaus for $5.00. Trunks for $1.00. Sewing Machines for $18.00. Spring Couches for $5.50. Baby Cabs, $2.50. Camp Rockers, with arms, $3.00. Pillow Sham Holders, $1.00. New style curtain fixtures, a splendid kind for 15 cts. including cord, at Slayton & Kinney's, Tecumseh.

—We are bound to suit all; S. W. Temple sells the Ohio and Grand Rapids Plaster at the same price.

—Pictures taken in one second, by the new instantaneous process, at Brown's Art Gallery.

—Mrs. B. Jones, at her rooms over Adamson's jewelry store, has the most complete stock of Hair Goods ever brought to Tecumseh. Call and examine goods and learn prices.

—Clawson wheat has neither taste or flavor. Heck Bros. do not use it to make their flour.

Coincident Thoughts.

We noticed recently a newspaper article that questioned Lincoln's title to the now familiar phrase from his famous Gettysburg speech, describing our Government as a "Government of the people, by the people, for the people." The article was a piece of hypercriticism. And, curiously enough, the criticism itself lacked originality. For Bartlett, in his famous "Familiar Quotations," had years before noticed the similarity of the phrase to expressions used by Webster and Parker in speeches delivered by them respectively [illegible] Lincoln's critics not shaken thereby. He gave the idea and expression a place and setting which made it famous. Emerson somewhere says "our best thoughts are borrowed from others," and he also says that "thought is the property of him who can entertain it, and of him who can adequately place it." Lincoln so entertained and placed this thought as to make it his property. He gave it its force and currency.

Literature abounds in such coincidences. Any one curious in such matters can readily satisfy their curiosity by reference to any good book of "quotions." We call attention to several not heretofore noticed, so far as we know. Grant is the author of some famous and current sayings. "Let no guilty man escape," is one of them. This phrase is a part of an endorsement upon a letter concerning the whisky-ring prosecutions, made by him officially, while President. It is characteristic of the man, and undoubtedly original with him. At the same time the phrase is to be found in Ben Johnson's "Cataline," as follows:

The gods
Grow angry with your patience. 'Tis their care
And must be yours, that guilty men escape not.
As crimes do grow, justice must rouse itself."
—Act III.

Webster's beautiful figure in describing the power of England, in his speech of May 7, 1834, as "a power which has dotted over the surface of the whole globe with her possessions and military posts, whose morning drum-beat, following the sun and keeping company with the hours, circles the earth with one continuous and unbroken strain of the martial airs of England," is familiar to every school-boy. Bartlett notices the fact that so long ago as 1648, it was said both of the Hollanders and Spaniards that "the sun never sets upon their dominions;" and that Schiller in Don Karlos says, "the sun in my dominion never sets;" and that Walter Scott in his "Napoleon," says, "the sun never sets on the immense empire of Charles V." Yet, no one would seriously question Webster's originality. It has occurred to us as not improbable that Webster's description of England's "military posts, whose morning drum-beat circles the earth," may have suggested Emerson's splended couplet—

"Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world."

Stranger than all, however, if it be a mere coincidence, is the coincidence in the language employed by Lord Mansfield, in his noted opinion in the case of Somerset vs. Stewart, and the language employed by the poet Cowper in the "Task" on slavery: Lord Mansfield in his opinion on the case said: "The air of England has long been too pure for a slave, and every man is free who breathes it. Every man who comes into England is entitled to the protection of English law, whatever may be the color of his skin." (June 22, 1872.) Cowper says ("The Task," Book II):

"We have slaves at home—then why abroad:
And they themselves once ferried over the waves
That part us are emancipate and loosed.
Slaves cannot breathe in England; if their lungs
Receive our air, that moment they are free,
They touch our country, and their shackles fall."

—Indianapolis Journal.

Mr. Smith's Stove-pipe.

Once upon a time there lived a certain man and wife, and their name—well, I think it must have been Smith, Mr. and Mrs. John Smith. One chilly day in October Mrs. Smith said to her husband: "John, I really think we must have the stove up in the sitting room." And Mr. Smith from behind his newspaper answered "Well." Three hundred and forty-six times did Mr. and Mrs. Smith repeat this conversation, and the three hundred and forty-seventh time Mr. Smith added: "I'll get Brown to help me about it some day."

It is uncertain how long the matter would have rested thus, had not Mrs. Smith crossed the street and asked neighbor Brown to come over and help her husband set up a stove, and as she was not his wife he politely consented and came at once.

With a great deal of grunting, puffing and banging, accompanied by some words not usually mentioned in polite society, the two men at last got the stove down from the attic. Mrs. Smith had placed the zinc in its proper position, and they put the stove way to one side of it, but of course that didn't matter.

Then they proceeded to put up the stove-pipe. Mr. Smith pushed the knee into the chimney, and Mr. Brown fitted the upright part to the stove. The next thing was to get the two pieces to come together. They pushed and pulled, they yanked and wrenched, they rubbed off the blacking onto their hands, they uttered remarks, wise and otherwise.

Presently it occurred to Mr. Smith that a hammer was just the thing that was needed, and he went for one. Mr. Brown improved the opportunity to wipe the perspiration from his noble brow, totally oblivious of the fact that he thereby ornamented his sevre countenance with several landscapes done in stove blacking. The hammer didn't seem to be just the thing that was needed, after all. Mr. Smith pounded until he had spoiled the shape of the stove-pipe, and still the pesky thing wouldn't go in, so he became exasperated and threw away the hammer. It fell on Mr. Brown's toe, and that worthy man ejaculated well, it's no matter what he ejaculated. Mr. Smith replied to his ejaculation, and then Mr. Brown went home.

Why continue the tale? Everybody knows that Mr. Smith, after making a great deal of commotion, finally succeeded in getting the pipe into place, that he was perfectly savage to everybody for the rest of the day, and that the next time he and Brown met on the street both were looking intently the other way.

But there is more to tell. It came to pass in the course of the winter that the pipe needed cleaning out. Mrs. Smith dreaded the ordeal, both for her own sake and her husband's. It happened that the kitchen was presided over by that rarest of treasures, a good-natured and competent hired girl. This divinity proposed that they dispense with Mr. Smith's help in clearing out the pipe, and Mrs. Smith, with a sigh of relief, consented. They carefully pulled the pipe apart, and, holding the [illegible] lest the soot might fall on the carpet, carried it into the yard.

After they had swept out the pipe and carried it back they attempted to put it up. That must have been an unusually obstinate pipe, for it steadily refused to go together. The minds of Mrs. Smith and her housemaid were sufficiently broad to grasp this fact after a few trials; therefore they did not waste their strength in vain attempts, but rested, and in an exceedingly unmasculine way held a consultation. The girl went for a hammer, and brought also a bit of board. She placed this on top of the pipe, raised her hammer, Mrs. Smith held the pipe in place below, two slight raps, and lo, it was done.

See what a woman can do. This story is true, with the exception of the names and a few other unimportant items. I say, and will maintain it, that as a general thing a woman has more brains and patience and less stupidity than a man. I challenge any one to prove the contrary.—N. E. Homestead.

Nose-ology in a Sleeper.

Did you ever notice what a variety of notes the snorers have in a sleeping car? If you cannot sleep, and will but seek amusement instead of discomfort, you will find an analysis of this tone-language very entertaining. It has more variations of time, tone, melody and harmony than a sonata or symphony. I amused myself very satisfactorily in taking to pieces and individualizing the discordant harmonies which issued from the noses of our unconscious fellow-travelers during some of the stops when the noise of the train ceased, and the pattering staccato of the rain accompanied, without drowning, the nasal chorus.

An upper berth passenger, who must have been a person of spare habit, with a high, sharp nose; gave whistling and cheerful little cricket-on-the-hearth notes, like "peep! peep! peep!" From the under berth, and probably a more expansive and belligerent organ, came a vicious, syncopated, slow accompaniment of "snork! snork! snork!" A deep, mellow, long-drawn "whoome—whoome!" from the next section harmonized and consolidated the peep and snork, and was in turn punctuated in the upper berth by a nervous and quick "ex-ij-jy, ex-ij-jy, ex-ij-jy," repeated with pertinacious and disconcerting energy. Somewhere near, and combining with these, came a laborious, long drawn, struggling, force pump note, calculated to awaken the liveliest apprehensions of premature suffocation, like "un-mee-ee-ze! un-mee-ee-ze!" indefinitely repeated, mingled with obligato passages of fugitive clutching after the departing breath, still further vivified to the horrified sense of the listener by another performer in the nasal overture, who, at frequent intervals, interjected despairing catches of "spip-pip-pip-um-m-m-mop-buzzzzh!" interspersed with "slit-slit-slit — boom, boom — beeze, beeze! scatter-whucky!"

At a longer pause than usual—probably at Dayton, as I heard them testing the car wheels—the cessation of all ordinary motion and the substitution of the pounding of the wheels seemed to awaken the desire for original and startling effects among the orchestra. Among the more feeble efforts of the performers already mentioned there arose the mighty diapason of a snorer of the largest tonnage and bottom, whom I had seen (not without apprehension) stowed in an upper berth through the united exertions of himself, the conductor and the porter, with the assistance of a step ladder, which creaked and trembled under the burden. I had been listening in an excited state for the note of that thundering pedal bass, and now it burst forth in all its grandeur, scattering the elements and silencing the whole orchestra as if a Javan earthquake had lit among them. The upheaval was beyond the power of language or letters, but this may give some faint idea of the event: "Whoome! um-mee-ee-eeze! Osh-osh-osh-kosh-kosh! gubble-gubble-gubble! rip! snip-pip! szyshss——SNORK!"—General Comly, in Toledo Telegram.

Why Lasker Never Married.

In 1866, Lasker, then in the flower of his youth, and already celebrated as an orator, became acquainted with Miss Russack, the neice of one of Bismarck's warmest friends. Lasker fell in love with her, and his passion was reciprocated. Miss Russack bade her lover to demand her hand of the uncle, who filled for her the place of father. The uncle refused point-blank, saying he would never consent to give his neice in marriage to a man who was the leader of the opposition to his friend Bismarck—Bismarck, whom he held to be one of the greatest of European statesmen. Franziska—such was the fair girl's name—then declared to her uncle that she would renounce her whole fortune in his favor, provided he would allow her to marry. But old Russack was immovable in his resolution. However, returning one day from a visit to his old friend Bismarck, he sent for the young lawyer, and said to him: "I am willing to grant you my niece's hand on one condition, namely, that you pledge yourself to abandon politics altogether and confine yourself, hereafter to your profession of lawyer." Lasker, after a brief interview with the young girl, refused. "We shall wait," he said, "until your niece shall have attained her majority." He did not dare to add—"or until your death." The uncle left Berlin, taking with him his neice Franziska, who died abroad six months later, after having refused the most brilliant offers of marriage approved by her uncle, who even offered to add his own fortune to her own as a dowry. This is why Edward Lasker never married.—Paris Paper.

Extreme Tired Feeling.

A lady tells us "the first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good her food does not distress her now, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." A second bottle effected a cure. No other preparation contains such a concentration of vitalizing, enriching, purifying and invogorating properties as Hood's Sarsaparilla.

The thousands who suffered with Rheumatism and Neuralgia had a hard time of it till the discovery of ATHLOPHOROS. Now they needn't suffer if they don't want to. S. R. Denner, D. D., Third Congregational Church, New Haven, writes thus: "Have long been a victim of Rheumatism. During a recent attack I commenced to take Athlophoros on Friday. Sun- I was in my pulpit. Monday I went to Boston well, and have remained so: You have indeed found a specific."

The Great American Chorus.

Sneezing, snuffling and coughing! This is the music all over the land just now. And will be until June. "I've got such an awful cold in my head." Cure it with Ely's Cream Balm or it may end in the toughest form of Catarrh. Maybe you have the catarrh now. Nothing is more nauseous and dreadful. This remedy masters it as no other did. Not a snuff nor a liquid. Applied by the finger to the nostrils. Pleasant, certain, radical.

for Infants and Children.

Castoria promotes Digestion and overcomes Flatulency, Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, and Feverishness. It insures health and natural sleep, without morphine.

"Castoria is so well adapted to Children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me." H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 82 Portland Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

What gives our Children rosy cheeks,
What cures their fevers, makes them sleep?
'Tis Castoria.

When babies fret and cry by turns,
What cures their colic, kills their worms?
But Castoria.

What quickly cures Constipation,
Sour Stomach, Colds, Indigestion?
But Castoria.

Farewell then to Morphine Syrups,

FOSTER, MILBURN & CO., Proprietors, Buffalo, New York.

The tide of immigration setting toward our shores is subject to fluctuations, but there exists no reason to anticipate that during the life of the present generation it will fail to reach the average height of the past ten years. Immigration, therefore, continues to be one of the great economic questions of this country, and it involves a political problem of the highest importance that of naturalization. That our naturalization laws are defective in many respects is notorious, and the demand for their revision will no doubt acquire added force from the publication of an article by Justice William Strong upon this subject in the North American Review for May. In the same number of the Review, Edwin P. Whipple offers a candid judgment of Matthew Arnold as a thinker and as a man of letters. Richard A. Proctor, under the title of "A Zone of Worlds," writes of the vast multitude of the "planetoids" or "asteroids." In "The Railway and the State," Garret L. Lansing essays to prove that the multiplication and extension of railroad lines, and the establishment of new rates of transportation, are accomplished rather than helped by government interference. Prof. Henry F. Osborn, of Princeton College, has a highly interesting article on "Methods of Memory." Helen Hendrick Jackson contributes an essay on "The Mountain of Song." Finally, there is a joint discussion of Washington's Farewell Address by William Godwin Moody and Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, of Harvard University.

Frank Leslie's Popular Monthly.

The contents of the May number are as usual, extremely varied, and in a literary and artistic point of view, in its comprehensiveness and cheapness this magazine is far ahead of its contemporaries. "Latest Auto-vation—Moscow." "The Origin of New York Churches." "The Adventures of Basil A. Mum, Detective." "Morocco and the Moors," etc. Lady Blanche Murphy, Etta W. Pierce, Harry Moore, Fanny Driscoll, Annie Thomas and others contribute delightful serials, short stories, adventures, etc., and the poems are by Charles Mackay, Wade Robinson, R. H. Shepherd, etc. Prof. W. F. Barrett has an admirable article entitled "Geysers," with eleven fine illustrations. The miscellany is large, most interesting and instructive. There are 128 quarto pages, more than 100 illustrations, and a beautiful colored plate frontispiece, "By the Soft Sea Waves." 35 cents a copy; $2.50 a year, post-paid. MRS. FRANK LESLIE, Publisher, 53, 55, and 57 Park Place, New York.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.

VILLAGE OF TECUMSEH,
COUNCIL ROOM, MARCH 31, 1884.

At this called session Council convened at the regular hour.

Present: Messrs. Root, Hewson, Sparks, Adams, Marsden, Bills and the Recorder.

The object of the meeting was then stated to be the consideration of a communication from the M. & O. R. R. regarding Cummins street. The communication was read and discussed, but being signed by no one as agent of the R. R., was not acted upon.

Moved that the Council reconsider the action upon the liquor bonds. The same were taken up and after considering the sufficiency of the sureties thereon, the following bonds were accepted: W. J. Arnold, I. P. Keyser, James Montague and Albert Osborne, Zack S. Snell and Frank Wallinger.

The druggist's bonds were then considered and accepted as follows: Walde & Doty, Baker & Hall, Marks & Russell, C. A. Wright & Co.

Moved that the Council adjourn.

JOHN L. SCHOOLCRAFT, Recorder.

—YOUR—

Disease Has Become Chronic

And Nothing More Can Be Done in Your Case.

Such is too often the answer of the "regular" practitioner to the patient who has expended the best previous years of his life under his hands, and often has it been said that too many are inclined to the belief that whatever disease may not be cured, medicine are dragging of a miserable existence, a burden to themselves and others.

The Polypathic School of Medicine

Has become famous from the fact that its practitioners have other qualifications than a mere acquaintance with a variety of drugs, and have a knowledge of the human system, and the laws governing health and disease.

MEDICAL WONDERS OF THE CENTURY

Unequaled skill, scientific methods, extraordinary experience, referring from the most famous institutions of the old world, the most modern and approved appliances, these are what have made the success of the School of Medicine almost unknown in the treatment of Chronic Diseases of all Kinds.

Catarrh, Rheumatism, Epilepsy, Neuralgia, Lung and Throat Diseases, Diseases of Men, Tumors, Inner Diseases of Women and Children, etc., etc., are treated with a success that is marvelous.

Incurable Cases Not Taken

Spring Without Blossoms.

Late in Life to Look for Joy—Yet Never too Late to Mend.

Readers of Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables" will recall the pathos with which poor Clifford Pyncheon, who had been unjustly imprisoned since his early manhood, said, after his release: "My life is gone, and where is my happiness? Oh! give me my happiness." But that could be done only in part, as gleams of warm sunshine occasionally fall across the gloom of a New England autumn day.

In a letter to Messrs. Hiscox & Co., Mr. L. H. Titus, of Pennington, N. J., says: I have suffered untold misery from childhood from chronic disease of the bowels and diarrhœa, accompanied by pain. I sought relief at the hands of physicians of every school, and used every patent and domestic remedy under the sun. I have at last found in PARKER'S TONICA a complete specific, preventive and cure. As your invaluable medicine, which did for me what nothing else could do, is entitled to the credit of my getting back my happy days, I cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge the fact."

Mr. E. S. Wells, who needs no introduction to the people of Jersey City, adds: "The testimonial of Mr. Tuttle is genuine and voluntary; only he does not adequately portray the suffering he has endured for many years. He is my brother-in-law, and I know the case well. He is now perfectly free from his old troubles, and enjoys health and life, ascribing it all to PARKER'S TONICA.

Unequaled as an invigorant, stimulates all the organs; cures ailments of the liver, kidneys, and all diseases of the blood.

ESTATE OF JOHN P. SILVERS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office, in the city of Adrian, on Tuesday the 29th day of April, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of John P. Silvers, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of David H. Silvers, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, alleging that he has paid the debts of said deceased, the funeral expenses and expenses of administration of said estate and praying for the allowance of his final account, and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the heirs at law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition, and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

We here that people on the ridge patronized the circus in Tecumseh Monday quite liberally.

Mrs. A. B. Van DeMark has had a very severe attact of erysipelas in the face the past week. She is now improving.

The Tecumseh News will feel the loss of its correspondent in this place, Dr. W. W. Burchard.

W. C. Rogers has purchased in Cambridge a very pretty pair of small ponies and will put them on the road.

Miss Ella Bartlett has been visiting her cousins, Dr. G. W. Stevens and wife, in Jonesville the past week.

The late rains have improved the looks of wheat very much in this section.

G. W. Kishpaugh who is attending the Medical department in the University at Ann Arbor, was home over Sunday.

There will be a meeting of the Royal Templars next Monday evening. A full attendance is requested.

Miss Augusta Brute has recently painted a very fine landscape piece and has sold it to the board of public schools in Hancock this state.

Chas. Bancroft and wife, of Norvell, were visiting friends in this town over Sunday.

Born.—Unto Mr. & Mrs. Lane, a girl: weight 11 pounds.

Some of the side-walks in this town are in very bad shape and ought to be repaired this summer.

Clinton parties have speared several fine messes of fish in the surrounding lakes and ponds this season.

Brown reports business booming in the harvester line. He sells the champion.

Supervisor Marstellar has about completed the assessment, the value of property in this township will be about the same as last year.

Mrs. Wilder Bancroft, of Norvell, has been visiting her daughter Mrs. McMaster the past week.

J. S. Kies has now about 6 acres into small fruit—grapes, blackberries, and raspberries.

Plowing match last Saturday on Dwight Kies' farm in Manchester. The Gale Sulky and Cassady plows were represented.

Dr. W. W. Burchard, editor of the Clinton Department of the Tecumseh News, died very suddenly Tuesday morning about 4 o'clock. He was a young man and almost a stranger in Clinton, having come here from the state of New York but a few weeks ago. Nothing was supposed to be the matter with him except a slight indisposition caused by the change in climate. He was in and around his brother's drug store Monday evening until nearly 10 o'clock, conversing freely with those there. About 10 o'clock he left the store, went home to his brother's house, conversed a short time with his brother, Dr. J. W. Burchard, read the day's paper a few moments and then retired. About 4 o'clock Tuesday morning Dr. J. W. Burchard hearing a slight disturbance in the house, called, but receiving no reply again went to sleep. A few moments after one of the ladies in the house called the Dr. telling him that his brother had fallen in the hall and had fainted. The Dr. arose immediately and found him there and that life was already extinct. It seems that the deceased had arisen about 4 o'clock, went to the kitchen for a drink and in returning to his bed-room fell dead in the hall between the kitchen and dining-room. No autopsy was held, but it is supposed that the cause of his death was heart disease. The remains were taken East Tuesday afternoon.

A wet Sunday in Clinton is not very inspiring to the ministers, as it usually gives slim congregations. Some of the churches closed their doors and held no service in the evening, but the Methodist church was alive to its business, and was rewarded with a fair congregation for a wet night.

The Third Quarterly meeting of the Clinton and Macon charge, will be held in the M. E. church, Clinton, May 17 and 18. After the sermon on Saturday afternoon, the quarterly conference will be held.

Providence permitting, or as the fathers used to write it, (Deo volente.) God willing, the second Sunday in the beautiful month of June, will be observed by the families of the M. E. congregation in Clinton as children's day. Not as a day for mere entertainment, or ceremony, but in the use of such religious exercises, as shall impress upon the minds, the importance of thorough education as the road to greater usefullness. The Centenary program prepared by Rev. D. P. Kidder, of New York, will be used. A collection is taken up at the morning service, recommended by the discipline, to aid the Sunday School fund of the Board of Education in its work of educating young men for missionary work both Home, and Foreign. Last year the Detroit Conference collected on children's day $946.65 and the Michigan Conference $841.54.

A large crowd in town Saturday afternoon and evening and merchants report business good on that day.

One of H. Lancaster's valuable horses has been quite sick.

B. J. Mensing, a young man from Toledo, has taken Frank Wallinger's place in the hotel as clerk. The good wishes of many friends here follow Frank to Tecumseh.

The side walk on the West side of Jackson street the entire length is in bad condition and needs repairing.

Miss Anna Mc Master had quite a severe accident Sunday morning. She was exercising a little on roller skates in the house and fell, breaking her arm twice between the wrist and elbow. Miss Anna should study the 4th commandment.

The Council met last Monday night: No business of importance was transacted. The bad condition of some of our side-walks was talked over, and we hope some action will be taken and the walks improved.

Mrs. Mary Murry who has been sick with the consumption the past year, and whose low state was noticed last week, died Saturday evening. Services were held last Tuesday morning at the Catholic Church, Father Slane of Hillsdale officiating. Relatives from Grand Rapids and Kalamazoo were here to attend the Funeral. The lady was 37 years old, had many friends in this section and leaves a husband and a bright little boy 3 years old to mourn her loss.

Miss Rose has been having a song convention for the little ones the past two weeks at the Town Hall. The aim of the convention has been the culture of the voices of the little ones and a drill in solo and character singing. Miss Rose will give two concerts Friday and Saturday evenings this week. One hundred little voices will be the chorus, and solos, pantomines, and character songs will fill up and make an entertaining evening's program. Wherever Miss Rose has held conventions and given concerts the press speaks very highly of her, and judging from the rehearsals, the public can be assured that the concerts will be good, and that the children will sing to the best advantage under her efficient direction and leadership.

BRITTON BUZZINGS.

Britton's been too busy to buzz.

Joe Exeiby has moved into his new house.

We now have a shoe maker and he is busy too.

Material it now being delivered on the ground for three new store buildings. Two of them will be of brick.

That pile of timber east of Rauch's store will soon take the shape of a cabinet shop.

The lumber being delivered on the west side of the street, north of the M. & O. track, is for a dwelling house soon to go up.

At least two dwellings have been built and are now occupied since we last appeared in this column. One by O. Henderson in the 3rd. ward, and one by Mr. Hunter in the 1st.

John Britton has moved into his house, recently occupied by Charlie Miller, and Will Britton now lives in the big house.

B. A. Beal has an agricultural implement shed south side Chicago St., well stocked and is booming the plow 'biz' just now.

Thieves broke into George Bellows' house a week ago last Sunday while the family were absent, and helped themselves to several articles of wearing apparel and a good dinner.

The scarcity of houses to rent compelled the Wabash Section foreman to go a mile out of town to get a place to live. This ought not to be.

One of the Western Fence Co's. trains is now side tracked here, and we shall soon see the M. & O. track enclosed with a substantial board fence—none of your wire concerns.

Esquire Bellows is still in poor health, and as he is unable to work, we understand he has been committing the marriage ceremony to memory, and working in some flourishes for which there will be no extra charge. Now Labe, Charley and Will you better fix things up at once and see what a double-back-action knot Ben can tie. Might take the whole lot at a discount.

It is say that Detroit parties are after the corner now peopled by the post office, for a hotel and restaurant; and it is to be hoped that this long needed establishment will soon be in full blast, as there is not a day but there are people seeking hotel accommodations and the necessity is becoming greater every day. Don't want any of your one horse board shanty affairs; we want a neat first class house, and just as sure as the world it will be a paying investment to the right man.

The stave yard of Geo. B. Smith & Co., had a narrow escape from fire a few days ago. Caught from a locomotive and was discovered just in time.

Now Mr. Editor, we don't want to take up too much of your valuable space, and are afraid of those big shears, but the fact is Britton is booming right along and full of interest and it wont be many years before Britton will take its place among the towns of Lenawee County. There are a number of items which we shall have to let lay over, but will try and give your readers at least a short letter next week, if we don't get mumps.

HOLLOWAY HAPPENINGS.

The chuck of the corn planter is already heard in the land.

Mr. N. Spencer and wife returned from Ann Arbor Monday, where they spent the Sabbath with their friends.

A lucky farmer he, who has hay to sell—ten dollars per ton in the barn and still they cry for more.

It was a bad day for woodchucks and a good one for the boys, when, at the town meeting, they voted a 15 cent bounty on the ground hog's scalp. Spen. Lester carries five trophies in his belt.

Our base ball nine starts their season's record to the tune of 9 to 3 they played last Saturday at the Raisin Valley with the Adrian College nine and beat them with the above score. They will play again two weeks from that day.

We are convinced that it requires time to learn how to run a patent road scraper as well as how to manipulate a twinebinder, judging from the condition of a newly made piece west of the church. A bad road is better than none; but that is worst of all which has no sod foot path left along the sides.

Hoxsie & Son are about to put into their shop a new boiler and engine of larger working capacity which will much improve their facilities for work. They are now engaged on a large double-cylinder engine. Last week they sold three of their new clay crushers which are used in crushing the stones and pulverizing the clay preparatory to making it into brick and tile.

MACON MOLECULES.

Last Sunday evening the Union Sunday School intended to hold its first concert. On account of inclement weather it was postponed one week.

Miss Addie Crittenden recently passed a very creditable examination before the County Board of Examiners. Her standing would do honor to many experienced teachers. Miss Crittenden is a pupil of the "Corners" School.

Milan Sage has just burned his first tile for this season. His new kiln is ready for use.

A few Maconites made excuses to visit Tecumseh last Monday "to see the elephant" of course. Sold again.

We are glad to report Frank Thomas' hand as improving rapidly.

One of those events that make life happy occurred last Saturday afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Osgood. That day was the 25th anniversary of their married life, and accordingly was properly observed.—A large number of friends were present and brought with them many valuable presents. May Mr. and Mrs. Osgood see many more anniversaries.

TIPTON TATTLE.

Manning DeLong having purchased a farm near Byron, Shiawassee Co. has moved thereon, and on leaving, his wife received a vote of thanks from the congregation for her valuable services in the Methodist choir.

Rev. Wm. Clayson will fill the M. E. Church pulpit next Sabbath, in the absence of the pastor.

Mr. Pangburn, the new blacksmith, is having a very brisk run of custom work.

The Methodist Sunday School will re-organize next Sabbath by the election of officers.

John Conlin, the New Store keeper is driving a flourishing business.

The Congregational parsonage is nearing completion and will be a credit to the society.

Edward Conlin has gone to Iowa to canvass the State as a book agent.

Abram DeLong is building an addition to his house.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

Little that can interest the public has transpired here during the past week, except a generous rain that has renovated wheat fields and stopped mourning from green spots left. Two Restaurants will be started here; one of them by uncle Calvin Edwards, who seems determined to be useful to the world while he stays. As there are two or three others, and two hotels, none need go hungry, if provided with nickels.

The proprietorship of the Brooklyn house has been confered on J. Ray, and anxiety stopped. Mrs. Edwin Butterfield has removed to Jackson, and other ladies are sighing for change, have sent their parlor furniture to the door-yard and camp out in the summer kitchens, thus demonstrating that even with the weakest, if there is a will, there is a way.

ONSTED ODDS.

Perhaps some of your readers may not know where Onsted is. It is the name of a post office and a prospective village at Cambridge Station on M. & O. R. R., twelve miles west of Tecumseh.

At present our village consists of a depot, water tank and engine house, one store, one blacksmith shop, four or five dwelling houses, a lumber yard, and some half dozen cellars.

Dr. G. Ross, of Rome Center, has just finished his new barn and is now impatiently waiting for his carpenters to come and build his office, when he will come here to commence business.

Jerome Snow, with two assistants, are building the cellar wall for Mr. Glenn's store.

Several masons are also at work laying the foundation for Ed. Harris' house.

Among the applicants for census enumerator in this township, Cambridge, probably none were more surprised than the lucky man, Joseph H. Clayson. There were ten candidates. All were so worthy of the position that the township board were obliged to meet twice before they could make a choice.

Woodchuck hunters will find Tibbs & Avery's store a good place to dispose of the scalps of that animal.

RIDGEWAY RACKET.

Eddie Helm is still very sick.

Dr. Reynolds was called in council with Dr. Loree this week in the case of Louisa Smith who is still very sick.

Aunt Lydia Miller has been indisposed for the past two weeks and last Tuesday became it sane under the delusion that every body especially her best friends were determined to poison her. She is now with relatives in Macon.

The church social met at the home of Charles Gove last Friday evening and enjoyed a very pleasant time. Mr. and Mrs. Gove have not been in this vicinity long, but a short acquaintance proves them to be a valuable addition to our society.

The Literary Society promises one of its best entertainments this week Friday evening. The discussion will be upon the question "Is it right or ever expedient to tax or license the liquor traffic.

It is now time that our much talked of grist mill began to show up. Those who have made such positive representation during the past six months will be apt to be asked to explain ere long.

REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS.

Following are the real estate transfers in this county, as recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds, for the week ending April 30.

SONNET OF BONNET.

THE BONNET.

I'm a charming Easter bonnet,
And I flourish in the spring,
When, with many a doleful sonnet,
Poets of my coming sing.
I'm as neat as a daisy,
I make all the girls gaspy,
And the ladies oohless I'm a cute little thing.

SHE WHO WEARS IT.

What a fortune pressure bonnet,
With its pretty bows and bows,
I have set my heart upon it,
For it handsome as a rose.
It makes me look pitiful,
But my "hub" will be convinced
When he gazes upon the big bill I expose.

HE WHO PAYS FOR IT.

Fifty dollars for a bonnet!
Well, that really knocks me flat,
For the fluffy stuff that's on it
Is enough to scare a cat.
No wonder there's swearing
When women are wearing
A postage-stamp head gear and call it a hat.

WATER IN THE DESERT.

The Most Priceless Treasure of Life to the Arab—Some of the Desperate Struggles for Its Possession—Fighting for the Wells in the Soudan.

The Soudan campaign, from first to last, has been a comment on the vast value of water in the East. One of the most terrible episodes ever recorded in history is the flight of the Torgote Tartars from the Russian frontiers to those of China, about a century ago. Throughout this awful journey across the pathless, waterless desert the Bashkirs and Khirghises followed on the heels of the flying Kalmucks, and the continuous trail of corpses told a fearful story of the unceasing conflict and perpetual massacre. The desperate persistence of the escaping hosts in pushing on was equaled by the frenzied cruelty of those who pursued them, until the ranks of carnage and death so that erected was such that it seemed as if a nation of madmen were flying before a nation of fiends. But the horrible climax was only reached at the end of their two thousand miles of this hideous pilgrimage, when, after a loss of four hundred thousand of their number, the Kalmucks, mad from thirst, came in sight of the lake of Tengis. Hundreds of the pursuers and pursued had already lost their reason from their dreadful sufferings. Thousands were being borne along upon camels and horses, helplessly exhausted by two days' want of water. But as soon as the lake came in view the Bashkirs and Kalmucks alike seemed to forget their pitiless hatreds, and the vast hosts, reduced now to about two hundred thousand, rushed in a body with frantic eagerness to the anticipated solace. In DeQuincey's terrible pages the story is told with consummate tragic force. The Chinese Emperor, happening with a force of cavalry to be at the city sped, saw what was happening, and sent out his soldiers to protect his retreating subjects. But there was time enough before the succor came to accomplish some of the most terrible conflicts ever recorded against man.

In the general rush toward the saving water all discipline and command were lost. All attempts to preserve a rear-guard neglected, the wild Bashkirs rode in among the encumbered people and slaughtered them in wholesale and almost without resistance. Screams and lamentations shrill pierced the progress of the massacre, but none heeded, none pitied, all alike, with faces blackened by the heat and with tongues drooping from the mouth, continued with maniacal haste toward the lake. The Bashkir was affected by the same misery as the wretched Kalmuck, and into the lake the whole vast body of enemies rushed, forgetful of all things but of almighty thirst. The absorption of their thoughts in one maddening appetite lasted for a single half hour, but in the next arose a final scene of parting vengeance. Far and wide the waters of the solitary lake were instantly dyed red with blood. Here rode a party of savage Bashkirs hewing off heads as fast as the swaths fall before the mower's scythe; there stood unarmed Kalmucks in a death grapple with their detested foes, both up to the middle in water. Every moment the lake grew more polluted, and yet every moment fresh hosts came up to the water and rushed in, not able to resist their frantic thirst, and swallowing large draughts, visibly contaminated, with slaughter. Wherever the lake was shallow enough to allow of men raising their heads above the surface there, for scores of acres, were to be seen all forms of ghastly fear, of agonizing struggle, of spasms of death, and the fear of death, revenge and the lunacy of revenge—until the martial spectators, of whom there were not a few, averted their eyes with horror as they rode down to the lake to the rescue of the hapless fugitives.

This, undoubtedly, is one of the most striking instances of catastrophe arising from the absence of water in the desert ever chronicled, but who can not recall, from numerous works of travel, or, indeed, from history, numerous other illustrations of the same fierce peril of thirst? Annals of exploration abound with disasters from this cause, and every desert bears witness against itself in the warning skeletons of man and beast which lie scattered up and down its surface. All the poetry of the nations who live upon the frontiers of these pitiless wastes gathers round the spring and well. Their daily existence, the affairs of tribes, the history of races, are determined by the position and abundance of the local water supply. It is for the possession of the oases and the life-giving trickle of water in the midst of it that the present fights of the pastoral nomads are fought. Their religious writings and precepts of their holy writ are replete with injunction and mandate on the subject of water, its use and abuse, and among the supreme delights of Paradise is the luxury of unstinted springs of cold water. Nor is there any room for wonder that this should be so. We ourselves can not have failed to note how in the recent campaigns in Egypt everything hinged upon the water supply. The army moved in detachments so as to best economize it; camps were pitched so as to utilize it to the utmost; the hours of battle were arranged in obedience to its inexorable and all-important demands. It was at the wells of Teb and of Tamai that the Arabs fought their fiercest. To abandon the spring is significant of loss of country. A civilized race would rally for its last struggle round its capital; the Arab reserves his most desperate courage for the conflict round water. It is to him the central blessing of life; and in all his imagination he can find no other simile for earthly beauty or heavenly bliss than the precious fluid of which nature has been so ruthlessly sparing. The sand is the Arab's ocean, the oases are his ports, and, with all the accuracy of ships' courses, they steer their way over the trackless wastes. To be betrayed from the straight line by a mirage, or driven from it by the attacks of enemies, or delayed upon the road by short supplies, may, as in the case of a vessel, at times compel the voyager to make for some other port than that for which he had started. But the oasis of the stars are always there, and for the rest what matter compass does the Bedouin ask than his camel's amazing power of scent? The dromedary's nose is a needle that never needs readjustment. No accidental attractions make it unfaithful to its duty. A fearful peril attaches, nevertheless, to any deviation from the shortest route; for even these hardened children of the desert find the passage from one spring to another as much as their powers of endurance can bear, and are accustomed to time them so exactly that exhaustion arrives at their journey's end with water-bottle and strength alike exhausted. Nor is it easy in the wide range of human emotions to imagine any more stirring pleasure than the first glimpse upon the horizon of the patch of palms which tells of a spring at their feet, nor any longing more intense than the eagerness with which the solitary traveler presses forward toward the friendly encampment, which his keen sight discovers clustering around the oasis. After days of solitude and utter isolation traveling perpetually in the center of an unbroken circle of glistering sand, the relief of green palm-fronds, of human voices, of rest, must be such a rapture as almost to indemnify the Arab for all the drawbacks of his hard life; and no wonder that the word "water" is the darling of all his language. For it is a veritable miracle-worker. Our soldiers in Egypt were astonished, when tramping along the apparently hopeless desert, to see how luxuriant crops and gardens alternated with bare sand, how a mere rill of water turned the wilderness into a farmstead and charmed up to the surface of the soil all the latent magic of its fertility. In the Saharas of the earth, whether in the Eastern hemisphere or the West, water is indeed a magician, as wonderful in the suddenness and completeness of its work as any genii of lamp and ring. It has the potency of the philosopher's stone, and is striven for as the sum of all that is to be desired. Industry without it is a parasite, a cripple. With it, it possesses a talisman that transfigures everything, makes man a giant, and blesses every wing of his hand. Speaking of parts of Western America, a recent writer says: "Water here is everything that is precious. Without it the sage brush laughs at man, and the horn of the jack rabbit is exalted against him. With it, corn expels the weed, and the long-eared rodent is plowed out of possession. Without it grease wood and gophers divide the wilderness between them. With it, homesteads spring up and gather the orchards about them. Without it, the silence of the level desert is broken only by the coyote. With it come the laughter of running brooks, the hum of busy markets, and the cheery voices of the mill-wheels by the stream. Without it, the world seems a dreary failure. With it, it brightens into infinite possibilities. No wonder then that men here prize it, exhausted ingenuity in obtaining it, fought about it. I wonder they do not worship it. Men have worshiped trees, wind and sun with no greater cause." Change the phrases here and there, and the passage might stand for Asia, for nothing is so striking in many parts of the East, notably Arabia and the eastern provinces of Africa, as the supreme importance of water. It determines localities, regulates their proportions, and controls their prosperity. Just as in the far West men buy and sell water claims, as if they were mines in full work, and appraise each other's estates not by the stock that grazes upon them, or the harvests gathered from them, but by the water-rights that go with them, so in these oriental countries of desert and torrid sun clans measure their wealth by the flow of water within their boundaries, and the importance of all grounds by the amount of irrigating power involved in the issue. Every stream might be a Pactolus, so precious is it; every pool a Bethesda, so great its virtues. To compass the wonder-working thing, all energies, whether of individual or of community, are fiercely employed; and prized above all that Arabs possess is the tribal right to access to a given spring, or the privilege of encampment by a special well. In war it attains, if possible, to a still greater preciousness, for it is then the one absolute essential of the campaign. Our troops, as we have noted, marched in obedience to the dictates of this supreme necessity. Thus, rather than waste a single draught, the cavalry on the night before the fight at Tamai, risked separation from the infantry. Then, also, in Hicks Pasha's disaster, the Arabs, knowing the point toward which all the enemy's desires would be directed, easily planned their destruction. An army, beguiled from the path that led to the widely separated wells of the Soudan, would need to meet no foe to find its doom, for thirst is the swiftest of tortures, and swifter than the onrush of Arab spearmen.—London Telegraph.

—"I'm the biggest fool in town," said a disconsolate man. Very naturally some one asked him why. "Some time ago I borrowed ten dollars from a fellow, and since then have been putting myself to great inconvenience in shunning him. To-day I found that the man I had been shunning was not the man I owed and that the genuine article had left town. I despise to be troubled unnecessarily."—Arkansaw Traveler.

A Woman Lawyer.

She came with a whirr, a snap, consciousness and self-assertion that at once was a sort of challenge to battle. O, woman, woman! Don't you know that the day you succeed in making a soldier of yourself you will have to fight for every inch of ground you get instead of having the whole earth given you, as it is now?

She ran around among the chairs and tables and, men like, a little speckled hen that had lost her last little chicken.

Then she fluttered down beside the clerk, slammed down some books and saying, "I am here to make a speech this morning," proceeded to unroll papers and write furiously.

The committee was not yet in session and I, in conversation with a member, incidentally remarked that we had in early days coined gold in Oregon. She shot up, and not even deigning to look on me, she shouted, "And that on the face of the Constitution, which says: 'No State shall coin money or issue bills of credit.'" Then the head dropped, the deft hand flew and the pen rattled over the paper.

The chairman called to order, the lady lawyer was at once on her feet, and, shouting out her purpose to be heard on the momentous Mormon question, on motion of some one, fifteen minutes were allowed for her speech. Catching up her books, bag and manuscript, hastening to the far end of the room, she took position just under the fox and rattlesnake, and, laying down the papers, she crossed her pretty hands and looked at us tranquilly, triumphantly, a long time under her gold-rimmed glasses. This woman, famous in the annals of this city, standing there with folded hands, under the ferocious fox of Oregon, had it all her own way at once. She was pretty to begin with. No bangs, no frizzes, no foolishness at all in her dress or address. Her heavy gray hair was combed back in the old, chaste fashion, and showed a splendid brow and fine, earnest face. All leaned forward and listened eagerly as she began, and as she went on for the first few minutes. Her English, her articulation, her elocution all seemed perfect. I doubt if any man in Congress could use better language or use it with more grace and precision. For the first fifteen minutes no man moved or spoke, but at twenty minutes she began to fail, flounder about, to blunder. She had forgotten her piece. And then, poor dear, she had undertaken to settle the whole stupendous Mormon question, the morality and immorality of it; to expound the Constitution, compare Congress to King George, all in fifteen minutes! No wonder she got beyond her depth. Men got impatient; they began to talk; some giggled as she soared and soared to her final appeal, and got so high that she melted the wax of her wings and fell to the ground there under the gentle rattlesnake and the ferocious fox of the far-off Oregon. Evidently the old member, who had muttered something not complimentary as she first entered, was, like myself, thinking of Rome; for, as she gathered up her papers after forty minutes of able defense of the Mormons, and fluttered to her seat, he settled back and said to himself, "Great Cæsar."

As a faithful chronicler of unique things here at our country's capital, I am free to admit that there are many men, myself among the number, who could not have made to save their lives, such a speech. The only real trouble about it all was in not knowing when to stop. At the end of the twenty-five minutes the chairman had to call her to order. She, woman-like, wanted to have the last word. She was allowed five minutes' more, and took fifteen minutes to end.—Joaquin Miller, in Washington Post.

The Successful Book Agent.

"Why, howdo do, Jinks? How spruce you are looking. What business are you in now?" said a retired book agent.

"Same old business—selling books," said Jinks.

"What! still a book agent?"

"Yes."

"And alive?"

"I seem to be."

"Well, I can't understand it. Since I got out of the hospital I have given up books."

"I keep on and am making $20,000 a year."

"How do you manage to escape death?"

"Easy enough. I first introduce myself as an agent of Mr. O'Donovan Rossa and ask for a subscription to the dynamite fund."

"People refuse, of course?"

"Certainly. Then I take out of my pocket a can of brickdust, labeled in big letters 'Dynamite,' and begin to expatiate on its merits."

"Yes."

"They beg me to handle it carefully and put it away. Then I place it in my coat-tail pocket."

"O! ho!"

"After that I open my samples and talk book to them until they buy, and they don't dare to kick me."—Philadelphia Call.

—A prominent preacher of Hartford, Conn., is afflicted with the hallucination that he is followed by a specter in black. According to his story it is always with him. Several years ago he moved to San Francisco with the hope of eluding the "ghost," but it was of no use. The object in black followed him during the day and stood by his bedside during the night. Finally he returned to Hartford with the same hope, but the specter still clung to him and has done so ever since. The curious phase of the whole thing is that recently his wife, mother and brother have seen the phantom, but only when he was present.—Hartford Post.

—A learned doctor speaking on heart troubles says: "Persons often trouble themselves uselessly about having disease of the heart or lungs, because they have pain thereabouts. These are good signs, generally, as showing that the pains are external to these organs, for there can be no pain where there are no nerves. The fact is, the most certainly fatal affections of these organs give no note of warning by pain until within the last brief hours of life.—N. Y. Sun.

SCROFULA

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, purifies and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial poisoning, and proves itself a thorough master of all scrofulous complaints.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores, chiefly on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen, and painful, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me."

"Yours respectfully, MRS. ANNA O'BRIAN."

"No. 5 Spring St., New York, June 4, 1882.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, Miss Dorothy, of the correspondence bureau, writes, June 7, 1882:

"Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the last three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

ERADICATES and EXPELS the poison of the scrofulous and hereditary taints, renews and strengthens the vital force, and greatly lessens the liability to disease. Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and a thousand complaints that result from impure blood, are speedily cured by its use.

It is compounded with the most scientific skill, from the best materials that combine medicinal strength, and great potency over diseases.

How Watch Cases are Made.

Imitation always follows a successful article, and imitation is one of the best proofs of real honest merit; and thus it is that the James Boss' Gold Watch Case has its imitators. Buyers can always tell the genuine by the trade-mark of a crown, from which is suspended a pair of scales. Be sure BOTH crown and TRADE MARK scales are stamped in the cap of the watch case. Jewelers are very cautious about endorsing an article unless they not only know that it is good, but that the character of the manufacturers is such that the quality of the goods will be kept fully up to standard.

WE DO NOT CLAIM

that HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA will cure everything, but the fact that on the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system, and that disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause, we are naturally led to the conclusion that a remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use; hence the field of its usefulness is quite an extended one, and we are warranted in recommending it for all derangements of the system which are caused by an unnatural state of the blood.

Why Suffer with Salt-Rheum?

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO., Lowell, Mass.

Gentlemen—I was a great sufferer from Salt-Rheum on my limbs, for a dozen years previous to the summer of 1876, at which time I was cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. The skin would become dry, chap, crack open, bleed and itch intensely, so that I could not help scratching, which of course made them worse. At the time I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla (in the summer of 1876) they were so bad that they discharged, and I was obliged to keep them bandaged with linen cloths. The skin was drawn so tight by the heat of the disease that if I stooped over they would crack open and actually bring tears into my eyes. The first bottle benefited me so much that I continued taking it till I was cured. I used one box of Hood's Olive Ointment, to relieve the itching. Hoping many others may learn the value of Hood's Sarsaparilla and receive as much benefit as I have, I am,

Very truly yours,
MRS. S. S. MOODY,

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Gathered from All Quarters.

CONGRESSIONAL.

SENATE, April 30.—[illegible] relating to the Washington monument decoration ceremonies was passed; it appropriates $25,000 to defray the expenses of the celebration. Bills were passed authorizing the Oregon Pacific Railroad to construct one or more bridges across the Willamette River between Salem and the head-of-navigation of the river in Oregon; also to accept and ratify the agreement with the confederated tribes of Flathead, Kootenay and Pend d'Oreilles Indians for a portion of their reservation in Montana required for the Northern Pacific road. The lands surrendered comprise 1,430 acres, for which the Indians receive $16,000, besides $7,625 compensation for damages to improvements. The bill to remove certain burdens on the American merchant marine and encourage the American foreign carrying trade was taken up, pending debate on which the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE.—A joint resolution was passed authorizing the Secretary of War to loan tents, etc., to the soldiers' reunions and grant condemned cannon for monumental purposes on proper application. The morning hour was dispensed with, and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the tariff bill, debate on which continued throughout the day and at the evening session. Adjourned.

SENATE, May 1.—The bill to release the members of the original Fitz-John Porter court martial from their obligation of secrecy so far as relates to the votes of the members, was, on motion of Mr. Garland, indefinitely postponed. A bill to amend the act of 1883, relating to spurious and adulterated teas was reported favorably and placed on calendar. The Chair laid before the Senate the untinished business, being the shipping bill; debate on the bill was continued up to the hour of adjournment.

HOUSE.—The morning hour was dispensed with. It was agreed that all general debate on the tariff bill should close on Tuesday, May 6. Mr. McKinley gave notice that at the close of the general debate he should move to strike out the enacting clause. The House then went into Committee of the Whole on the tariff bill, and pending discussion on the measure the committee rose and the House adjourned.

SENATE, May 2.—Mr. Garland, from the Committee on Territories, reported adversely the House bill requiring Governors of Territories to be for two years residents of the Territories in which they may be appointed; placed on calendar. The Chair laid before the Senate a telegraphic communication from Mr. Wicker, late Collector at Key West, Fla., asking that a full investigation be made into his conduct in connection with his official duties. Mr. Van Wyck offered a resolution, which was agreed to, calling on the Secretary of the Interior for information in regard to the entries of public lands by certain English firms and corporations, which entries, by reports in the general land office are alleged to be fraudulent. The shipping bill was then taken up. Pending debate on the amendment of Mr. Vest, permitting the admission to American registry of ships bought abroad, and the admission of free building materials, the Senate went into executive session, and when the doors reopened adjourned until the 5th.

HOUSE.—The morning hour was dispensed with, and the House in Committee of the Whole resumed consideration of the tariff bill, which occupied the day. At the evening session thirteen pension bills were passed. Adjourned.

SENATE, May 3.—The Senate was not in session.

HOUSE.—On motion, the order for an evening session was vacated and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the bill amending the Chinese Immigration Act. After a lengthy and animated debate, the bill was read by sections for amendments, several of which were offered and voted down. The committee rose and the bill passed—yeas 184, nays 13—and the House adjourned.

WASHINGTON.

It is estimated that the decrease in the public debt for April is $5,250,000.

THE House sub-Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads, considering the contract system of telegraphy, have decided to make twenty-five cents the maximum price for twenty words throughout the United States.

THE estimates for the army appropriation bill for the ensuing year were $26,369,103. Amount appropriated $24,250,450, which is $422,850 less than the last appropriation.

THE question whether the Secretary of the Interior has the legal right to entertain and decide patent appeal cases is now awaiting argument and decision before the Supreme Court. The point involved is of the highest importance to hundreds of inventors.

JUDGE WYLIE, of the United States District Court at Washington, on the 1st sustained the motion to exclude the testimony of Price in the Kellogg case, holding that the offense was barred by the statute of limitations. The jury gave a verdict of not guilty.

THE decrease in the public debt during April was $5,252,075; decrease since June 30, 1883, $87,060,474; cash in the Treasury $399,753,2 6; gold certificates, $101,116,20; silver certificates, $116,374,231; certificates of deposit, $15,025,000; refunding certificates, $2,28,450; legal tenders, $346,681,0; fractional currency, $8,985,10.

THE House Committee on Military Affairs have agreed to favorably report the bill providing for the erection of a Soldiers' Home in Michigan, to cost $250,000.

THE total interest-bearing debt of the United States amounts to $1,256,572,350.

THE statue of F. A. Muhlenburg, first Speaker of the House of Representatives, serving from 1789 to 1791, contributed by the State of Pennsylvania, was received at Washington on the 31 and placed in the statuary hall at the Capitol.

THREE PER CENTS amounting to $19,000,000, has been called by the Secretary of the Treasury, embracing the following original numbers: Fifty dollars No. 404 to No. 442, both inclusive; $100, No. 3,388 to No. 3,849, both inclusive and No. 9,474 to No. 9,478, both inclusive; $500, No. 1,586 to No. 1,737, both inclusive; $1,000, No. 13,356 to 14,471, and No. 22,695 to 22,732, both inclusive; $10,000, No. 22,076 to No. 22,953, both inclusive. The bonds will be paid June 20, and the interest will cease on that day.

THE EAST.

BROWNLOW HILL, Scott Hill and Charles Spurlock, the murderers of Alvin Woods and his father, A. J. Woods, at St. Albans, W. Va., recently, were captured in the mountains of Kanawha County, on the 30th ult. The two Hills were subsequently taken from the guard at the hotel by a mob of 500 men and hanged. Previous to the hanging they confessed to the murder of the Woods family, and also to that of Ex-Sheriff Adkins, of Boone County. Spurlock, who was taken to the Charlestown jail, also made a confession, substantially the same as that of his comrades. He says that he and the Hills have been operating for two years, and during that time have killed four men and wounded several.

GEORGE W. TRABUE, General Superintendent of the Southern division of the Western Union Telegraph Company, died at New York on the 1st.

WILLIAM PITT PALMER, the poet author, died in Brooklyn, N. Y., on the 2d, aged eighty.

AN active movement is on foot to effect a consolidation of the National Federation of Trades. Politics are to be entirely eliminated from the organization.

MRS. EMMA BICKEL, on trial at Philadelphia for the murder of William Menow, has been acquitted on the ground of insanity.

A NEW labor organization called the Workingmen's Protective Association in the Connellsville (Pa.) coke regions has been organized with headquarters at Scottdale. It comprises the majority of the laborers of the coke regions, and its object is to protect its members against imported contract laborers, and to sustain the wages against any reduction that may be offered by the operators.

A. BLANEY, chairman of the Natick (Mass.) Selectmen and a legislator, has been held in $2,000 for trial for ballot stuffing.

A VIOLENT wind storm visited Rochester, N. Y., on the 2d, the gale reaching a velocity of seventy-five miles per hour. Several blocks were unroofed, houses blown over, trees torn up by the roots and plate-glass fronts of stores entirely destroyed by the wind. A number of persons on the streets were seriously injured, some probably fatally.

Two laborers were killed and four seriously injured in New York, on the 2d, by the fall of part of the roof of the old theater, corner of Broadway and Fourth Street.

THE steamer B. S. Ford, of the Chester River Steamboat Line, was totally destroyed by fire while lying at her wharf at Chestertown, Md., on the 4th. The passengers and crew had barely time to escape, many of the former losing their clothing.

THE boilers of the Whitney Marble Works at Gouverneur, N. Y., exploded on the 3d, killing five men and fatally injuring two.

FIVE buildings of the Chateauguay Iron Company at Bradley's Pond, near Troy, N. Y., burned on the 3d. It is reported that a man, woman and two children perished.

JUDGE THAYER, of the Philadelphia Common Pleas Court, delivered an opinion on the 3d, admitting Mrs. Carrie B. Kilgore to practice as an attorney in that court. Judge Arnold dissents from the opinion of his colleagues, Thayer and Elcock. The court took the ground that its action was sustained by the common law of right, which the Legislature had not interfered with by statute.

STATEMENT of the New York associated banks for the week ending May 3: Loans decrease, $1,355,000; specie decrease, $2,218,000; legal tenders decrease, $12,000; deposits decrease, $833,000; circulation decrease, $76,000; reserve decrease, $1,613,000. The banks now hold $86,000 in excess of legal requirements.

THE result of the six-day go-as-you-please walking match at Madison Square Garden, New York, which ended at 8:45 p. m. on the 3d, was a victory for Fitzgerald, who made 610 miles, beating all previous records. Following was the score at the finish: Fitzgerald 610, Rowell 602, Panchot, 563, Noremac 546½, Herty 539½, Vint 430, and Elson 525½ miles.

A FIRE at Williamstown, Otsego County, N. Y., on the 4th, destroyed the Selden House, postoffice, several business blocks, and a number of residences. Loss $75,000.

AT New York on the 4th John Wentz dissolved Paris green in four tumblers, and giving one to each of his three children, aged twelve, ten and eight years, ordered them to drink it. The children ran away and Wentz, who drank it, was soon taken violently sick and died during the night.

WEST AND SOUTH.

AT a fire in Englewood, near Chicago, on the night of the 29th ult., the Sherwood House, a frame structure, burned so rapidly that the guests had to leap from the upper windows in their night clothes. There was, however, no loss of life. A livery stable with twelve horses was consumed. Loss $20,000.

ALLEN INGALLS, one of the burkers who murdered the Taylor family at Avondale, near Cincinnati, February 15, and sold them to a medical college, committed suicide by hanging in the county jail on the morning of the 30th ult., having used for the purpose a piece of cloth torn from his blanket.

STATE Conventions were held by the Republicans in twelve States on the 30th ult., seven of which—Iowa, Nevada, California, Maine, Oregon, Wisconsin and Virginia—instructed for Blaine for President; Massachusetts and Vermont declared for Edmunds, while New Hampshire, Wisconsin and Florida were divided. The Massachusetts Democratic State Convention on the same day endorsed Butler for President, as also did the Greenbackers of Michigan. The Maine Greenback Convention sent uninstructed delegates.

STATE Conventions were held by the Republicans on the 1st in Kentucky, Maryland, Minnesota, Georgia, Colorado, Florida, Texas, North Carolina, Oregon and Nebraska, and in the Territories of Wyoming, Washington and Utah. A large share of the conventions, especially in the Territories and the South, were carried for Arthur, while Maryland, Colorado and Minnesota enrolled themselves for Blaine.

CHARLES S. STURGIS, a Chicago drug clerk, put up morphine instead of quinine, as called for in a prescription, resulting in the death of Mrs. Laura Williams. He was arrested.

ON the 1st, at Roland, Story County, Ia., a man whose name was not learned, attacked his wife with an ax. She called for help, when the brother of the husband interfered to protect her. At this the husband seized his brother and threw him into a deep well. As he did so he either lost his footing or sprang into the well intentionally himself. When the neighbors, attracted by the outcry, arrived on the scene they found the two men at the bottom of the well both dead, while the woman was unconscious. She will probably die of her wounds.

A REDUCTION of twenty to thirty per cent. on rates to prominent points South and West was ordered by the Western Union Telegraph Company on the 1st. All night messages to points as far west as Kansas City will be forwarded at fifteen cents for ten words, and one cent for each additional word. There will be no change in the tariff on eastern messages.

A BOMB containing six pounds of giant powder, with an ignited fuse, was thrown upon the porch of the Crawford House at Colorado Springs, Col., on the 1st, shattering the doors and windows of the hotel and neighborhood. No clue to the perpetrator.

WILLIAM McHUGH, who murdered his wife July 23, 1881, and who had been thrice convicted of the crime but escaped via legal technicalities, was hanged in Cincinnati on the 2d.

A CYCLONE struck the town of Del Rio, Texas, on the 2d, destroying the new Episcopal Church and a number of other buildings. Five persons were severely injured, and one, Charles Schnack, killed.

TWENTY-SIX horses, a number of vehicles and a quantity of hay, were destroyed in a fire in Owsley & Bro.'s livery stable in Kansas City on the 1st.

ASTOR'S new steam yacht, the Nour Mahal, was launched at Wilmington, Del., on the 3d. She is said to be the largest pleasure vessel ever launched in America, and the largest yacht afloat.

A SALE of 914 head of short horn and other high grade cattle and horses was made on the 3d by J. B. Guntry, of Pettis county, Mo., for the aggregate of $34,000. Coppinger and Warner, of Gunnison, Col., were the purchasers.

CAPTAIN H. WARD DART, formerly of Jamestown, New York, was drowned recently near Spokane Falls, Washington Territory. By a singular coincidence the young man's sister was drowned in Chautauqua Lake outlet, eighteen months ago.

THE house of John Duffy, near Independence, Ia., burned on the 3d, and a thirteen-year-old daughter perished in the flames. Both parents were also badly injured, and another child is not expected to recover.

FOREIGN.

FROSTS have blasted the hopes of English fruit growers, and it is probable there will not be more than half a crop this year.

MICHAEL ARTHUR BASS, the great English brewer, died on the 30th ult.

THE troop ship Crocodile has been released from quarantine and entered the Portsmouth harbor. After leaving Bombay eight soldiers were stricken with cholera; six died. The progress of the epidemic was rapid.

THE walls of the burned mercantile house of William Whitely at London fell on the 1st, and fifty men who were engaged in making repairs on the building were buried in the ruins. Several were killed and many severely injured.

THE gold and silver medals provided by the Prince of Wales, for distinction in the classics, the highest gift in the Queen's College University, Kingston, Ontario, were carried off by Miss E. F. Fitzgerald.

A PARISIAN named Victor Martin will leave Paris on the 11th and attempt to walk to Rome and back in fifty days. As the distance by roads is 3,460 miles he will have to make about seventy miles per day.

THE Egyptian Government has offered a Soudanese chief £5,000 to bring General Gordon from Khartoum.

A SANITARY cordon has been established around Bedra, in the Province of Bagdad, where a cubonic plague is raging.

IN the 1,000 guinea race at London on the 2d, six horses ran. Busybody won, Queen Adelaide second, Whitlock third.

EMPRESS ANNA, widow of Emperor Ferdinand IV. of Austria, and aunt of the present Emperor, is dead, aged eighty.

REPORTS from Port Au Prince say that the English schooner Grapple was burned by the natives at Cay Island, $10,000 worth of property confiscated and the crew murdered. A war vessel has been sent there.

THE Oriental Bank of London has suspended payment.

SECRETARY CHANDLER received the following telegram from Lieutenant Emery, commander of the Greely relief steamer Bear, under date of St. Johns, N. F., May 3:—"The ice conditions are considered favorable. The Dundee whalers, Narwhal and Esquimaux, left this week. The Polaria and Arctic sail in a few days, all bound for the North water. The early departure is due to the Greely reward, which they hope to secure."

THE ship Alantine, of Drammen, Norway, was wrecked recently in a northeast gale and sleet storm five miles east of Wolf Island station, Magdalen Islands. She broke up immediately. The second mate is the only survivor.

LATER NEWS.

THE National Convention of Underwriters will be held at Pittsburgh May 28 and 29. Over two hundred delegates are expected to be present, representing all the large cities of the country.

THE College Hospital at Peoria, Ill., was struck by lightning during a heavy storm on the 5th. The building was considerable damaged and the inmates seriously shocked. Lucy Taylor, the matron, so severely that doubts were entertained of her recovery.

A CYCLONE struck the cities of Davenport, Ia., and Rock Island, Ill., on the 5th, doing considerable damage. At Davenport one person was killed and a number of others badly injured, and several buildings leveled. All the buildings on the fair grounds at Rock Island were leveled and fences blown away; three houses were demolished and four persons reported more or less seriously hurt.

THE National Anti-Monopoly Convention is announced to be held at the Briggs House, Chicago, May 14.

AS the Chicago & Eastern Illinois suburban train was leaving South Englewood for Chicago on the morning of the 5th—a dense fog prevailing—a heavy locomotive of the Grand Trunk road, which leaves the city on the same track, plunged into the rear train, splitting the last car and telescoping the other two, piping the passengers in the broken timbers and flooding the interior with steam from the engine boiler. Henry Wilson, engineer of the passenger train, and W. Cockie, of Englewood, were probably fatally injured, and about twenty others seriously hurt.

DURING a violent hail and rain storm at Little Rock, Ark., on the 5th a shed at the old fair ground fell on a large number of convicts employed in brick making. One guard was killed, another seriously wounded, and several convicts injured by falling timbers.

MOSES FRALEY, the St. Louis grain and stock operator, whose suspension was recently announced, has notified his creditors that he is prepared to settle all his accounts by paying 100 cents on the dollar.

BILLS were reported favorably in the Senate on the 5th: Granting a pension to the widow of General Judson Fitzpatrick; to adopt international regulations to prevent collisions at sea; the agricultural appropriation bill with amendments. A bill by Mr. Van Wyck, to restrict aliens and foreign companies and corporations in the ownership of public land and of any land in Territories, was referred to Committee on Public Lands. The shipping bill was then taken up, and pending discussion the Senate went into executive session and soon adjourned. In the House a bill was introduced to exclude the public lands of Kansas from the operation of laws relating to mineral lands; referred. The Virginia contested election case of O'Ferrell vs. Paul was called up and after a long debate the resolution seating O'Ferrell was adopted by a strict party vote. Mr. Laird introduced a bill for the issue of patents for lands to any Pacific railroad which shall complete its road within thirty days from the passage of the act; referred. At the evening session debate on the tariff bill was continued. Adjourned.

Spring Without Blossoms.

Late in Life to Look for Joy—Yet Never too Late to Mend.

Readers of Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables" will recall the pathos with which poor Clifford Pyncheon, who had been unjustly imprisoned since his early manhood, said, after his release: "My life is gone, and where is my happiness? Oh! give me my happiness." But that could be done only in part, as gleams of warm sunshine occasionally fall across the gloom of a New England autumn day.

This reads to Messrs. Hobson & Co., Mr. I. H. Titus, of Pennington, N. J., says: I have suffered untold misery from childhood from chronic disease of the bowels and diarrhœa, accompanied by pain. I sought relief at the hands of physicians of every school, and used every patent and domestic remedy under the sun. I have at last found in PARKER'S TONIC a complete specific, preventive and cure. As you an invaluable medicine, which did for me what nothing else could do, is entitled to the credit of my getting back my happy days, I cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge the fact.

Mr. E. S. Wells, who needs no introduction to the people of Jersey City, adds: "The testimonial of Mr. Titus is genuine and voluntary; only he does not adequately portray the suffering he has endured for many years. He is my brother-in-law, and I know the case well. He is now perfectly free from his old troubles, and enjoys health and life, ascribing it all to PARKER'S TONIC.

Unequalled as an invigorant, stimulant and energizer, it cures diseases of the liver, kidneys, and all diseases of the blood.

FACTS ABOUT FLORIDA.

The following letter was written by Dr. S. S. Sargent of Rushville, Ind. to Mr. Swan, formerly of this place, while Dr. Sargent during his sojourn in Florida last winter, and regards this letter as the best description of the "Land of Flowers" he has seen in print. We are indebted to Mr. Swan for a copy of the letter.

In a recent number of your paper I see an article from Oregon. If any one will take the pains to look at the map of the United States, and cast their eye diagonally along a line running from Oregon at one extreme end of the same to Florida at the other end, there will be a scope of country traversed, which for diversity of soil and climate cannot be equalled in any part of the known world. This intervening country will produce successfully, any and all of the products which are very common to a temperate and semi-tropical climate. Oregon may have attractions which are excellent of both climate and productions, but the other extreme of this line can boast truly of those that are equal if not superior in its products as well as climate. If one will take another look at the map, at the southeast he will see a long arm that reaches out into the waters, and this neck of land is the peninsula of semi-tropical Florida, a section of our country which is not well known by the average citizen of the North, or West. Until late years it was, and still by many, considered as a land of swamps, alligators, poisonous insects, infested with sickly and deadly fevers, and all of those evils which beset the human race in distant and far off lands, of which we have but slatted knowledge. I, myself, had no knowledge of Florida, until I came here, in fact, was prejudiced against the country, because my ideas and information were at fault, crude and very unsatisfactory. Instead of the low, flat, swampy country, which I had pictured, I found this section, west Orange county, a high, rolling piney, wooded country, where sickness was the exception and good health the rule, clear water lakes abound and the water is excellent, the soil is sandy, but will produce with excellent results, any of the citrous family, as oranges, lemons, etc. The vegetation is peculiar here, being a rich deep green, with thick and flat foliage, which shines like as if it had been varnished by some northern carriage painter. The soil on first glance would seem to be barren of results, but on a closer investigation it will be seen to produce with abundance any and all of those products that are adapted to a semi-tropical and more northern climate.

The orange culture here is in its infancy, but is destined to grow and increase year by year, until the most available lands of Florida will be one continuous and highly productive and remunerative land of groves. The primitive forests are being cleared up with a dispatch not equalled by the early pioneer days of Rush county. On every hand the energy and pluck of some Northern man is marked and decisive. Where but a few weeks ago the original wood land was untouched, now there is an orange grove, every stump and root having been cleared away, the ground is as clean as a new made garden. Five to ten acres are sufficient for one man to own in Florida, as the products from this properly tilled will bring more than the best one hundred acres in Indiana. An orange grove of five hundred trees in full bearing will net the owner from two to five thousand dollars, and they are a never failing crop if rightly looked after. The vegetable garden here is another industry that is very renumerative, if well understood. My friend, Capt. J. P. Wofford, who lives on lake Eustis, has some forty acres in vegetables, and is now shipping tomatoes north, which net him from four to eight dollars per bushel. This is but an example of what every one can do here, with an intelligent understanding of what he wishes to accomplish. The day will soon come when portions of Florida will be the most desirable and richest part of our country with its beautiful groves and magnificent homes near the clear water lakes.

The climate of this distant land to the south, will interest many who are tired of a colder and less congenial country. In this respect, no place in the United States is the climate so equal and free from sudden and extreme changes during all parts of the year. The winters, here, are extremely and pleasantly mild. Frost is an unusual thing, and long, continuous, rainy, cold and disagreeable spells are unknown. Every day is a luxury in this respect, and those who suffer from the cold blasts of a northern latitude, would do well to test a six months residence in this land, where every hour is filled with hope and contentment, which is the offspring of bright days and sunny skies. None can appreciate a winter residence in Florida or comprehend or understand the difference between the climate and that of Central Indiana, until one winter is spent here amid the semi-tropical scenes, land, sunshine and bright days which are almost universal. The immigration to this sunny land is increasing rapidly every year. From the North every State and territory in the union is represented, but in this part of Orange county, Massachusetts, Pennsylvania and Ohio seem to lead, with New York next, while Indiana is well represented. Other Western States have many who are seeking a more mild country. If the winters are so mild here, it often puzzles those of the North about the summer heat, which, if in proportion to the mild winter, would be so hot that no white man could live here. This would seem to be true to the casual observer but when it is understood and appreciated that Florida is a peninsula, an arm, so to speak, that reaches out into the sea, and this salt water, with constant breezes that play back and forth from other land or the ocean. It will not be so difficult to understand that the summer heat here is not so hot and oppressive as that country north of us for many hundred miles. While the thermometer is up in the nineties, the shade is delightfully pleasant. The gentle breezes wafting across the peninsula, make this climate more bearable at ninety than up in Indiana at eighty, with its oppressive and stilled atmosphere. It is true we have a longer heated term in Florida, but the nights are so pleasant and sleep so refreshing, that one gets up in the morning feeling renewed, and always ready and anxious for the duties of the day.

During my extensive wanderings [illegible] last five years, I have never seen a country which has the attractions both for residence and a place for investments as here in Orange county. One can live and make a livelihood and be more comfortable with less irritation and worry than in any part of this broad land of ours. All nature conspires to fill one with contentment and satisfaction. Money is not picked from off the bushes or dug out of the same without some effort. Yet with a medium amount of judgement, investments can be made that will pay exceedingly well, and many have made money here rapidly during the last five years. This is a new country, comparatively, but railroads and telegraph lines are multiplying with rapid stride. A trip to Florida will soon be one of the luxuries of a northern home, and from it will grow up a young empire here that will give new life and health to many who are now sufferers from those diseases which a colder climate increases. This is a land of many new varied and peculiar scenes. A trip up the St. Johns river, in one of the beautiful steamers, would be a new and strange world to many. On either side is the palm, palmetto, and hanging moss, that impresses the new comer with some degree of awe as well as pleasure. Then when he takes a ride in the cars from this placid stream to the great lake regions, which are composed of lake Eustis, Dora, Harris and Griffin, he sees a sight which utterly paralyzes his former opinion of Florida, and from a "Doubting Thomas" he is changed, as it were, in the twinkling of eye, to an admiring and happily disappointed man. Let those who have an eye to business, pleasure and health move southward to a sunny and productive climate, rather than to the barren and uncertain plains of the West. No land or no people are more open or generous than those of the South. Let those who would come, first spy the land that they may not be disappointed when they come to occupy the country. The children of Israel first spied the Promised Land and afterwards moved in and took possession. Let a word to the wise be sufficient.

DR. S. S. SARGENT.

THE LEWIS AND HIS LAMB. By Pansy. Price 25cts. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. This capital story was one of the first from Pansy's prolific pen, and so bright was it, so pure, and so healthy in tone, that it sprang at once into popularity, and since that time it has been in steady demand. It was an excellent idea on the part of the publishers to begin their new series of cheap editions of good books with one which is so widely and favorably known. It is a book powerful for good, and one that no boy could read without feeling its influence. The story itself is deeply interesting, the style is fascinating, and the lesson it teaches is skillfully mingled with the incident. By this reduction in the price it will find a multitude of new readers, and particularly among those who need its teachings most.

A TEMPERANCE CALL.

The Prohibitionists of Battle Creek, to all the Prohibitionists of the State, greeting:

In view of the great and growing evil of intemperance, and the alarming power of the rumsellers; in view of the failure of all other means of controlling this evil and the manifest disposition of the temperance people to try prohibition, we invite the friends of prohibition through the state to meet with us in council, at the state convention, called the Union Prohibition party, to be held in this city Wednesday, May 14th. Cheap rates of fare may be expected, and reduced expenses for accommodation will be arranged.

BY ORDER OF COMMITTEE.

Morenci Observer: Arrangements are nearly completed for the Teacher's Normal School to be held in our village during the months of July and August. The object of this school, as we learn, is to give the teachers and those who contemplate teaching, an opportunity of reviewing, those branches already gone over and taking up any new branches upon which the pupils may wish to prepare for a third, second or first grade certificate. The class in Physiology will be taught by one of the best read physicians in this part of the State, and we can say equally as much in regard to the other teachers.

Wauseon, Ohio, Republican, April 19th: "Reuben Turner, ex-County Treasurer and treasurer of the Bohemian Oats Association, has published a card declaring the oats business a fraud, and offers to repay any who have suffered through his influence."

The date for the presentation of Michael Erle has been changed to Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 13th and 14th.

FOREST FIRES.

Citizens Burned Out Without any Shelter.

HOUTZDALE, Pa., May 6.—A large number of people visited the ruins at Brisbin Sunday. Rain dispelled the fears of a renewal of the fire. A strong appeal has been made for immediate aid. Hundreds are compelled to sleep in their clothes, having no bed covers or bedding. Money is needed to provide shelter. The citizens of Houtzdale and neighboring towns are doing their best, but with the population suddenly doubled by the refugees from Brisbin they are unable to do all that is necessary and are compelled to appeal to charity.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., May 5.—The bridge over the Schuylkill River at Roger's Ford burned Sunday. Loss $8,000.

PORT JERVIS, N. Y., May 5.—The village of Gilman's Depot is deserted. Nothing remains but smouldering feed in the barns. The residents are compelled to sleep in barns. Many spent the night in a mill, sleeping on the sawdust. They have lost everything.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., May 5.—There is a fire in the woods of Dartmouth burning from 100 to 200 acres.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., May 5.—The Pebbley Beach House burned. Loss, $18,000.

FREEHOLD, N. J., May 5.—It is estimated that 1,000 acres have burned here. The damages are $50,000.

[illegible] fires on Long Island were extinguished by rain.

ST. JOHN, Que., May 5.—Blackburn & Rowe's stone and china ware factory burned. Insured for $13,000.

Try Chloroform.

MACON, Ga., May 6.—Mr. J. D. Christian and Miss S. A. Lochlin, of Madison, were to marry last Sunday. That morning Christian received a letter from the lady stating that she had fled; that, as the marriage approached, her dread of the developments of the married state drove her into such cowardice that she could not meet it. She enclosed five dollars to pay Christian's trouble in getting the license. He went in pursuit and found her Wednesday in Oconee County. She fell on his neck with wild kisses and declared that she would never leave him. A second attempt at marriage was made that evening, but, at the last moment, she swooned away with apprehension, and the ceremony was again postponed.

Death of May Thorne.

BLOOMINGTON, Ill., May 6.—News was received here Saturday of the death of Mrs. Joseph Kane, in Texas. She was known to the dramatic world as "May Thorne," and was a reader, elocutionist, and singer. Kane was her third husband. Her second husband, from whom she obtained a divorce recently, was Billy Arlington, the minstrel, with whom she at one time performed throughout the Western States. She was a native of Bloomington, and her maiden name was May Musson.

Negro Lynched.

WALTON, Ky., May 5.—About one o'clock yesterday morning twenty masked men went and demanded the keys of the jailer in Burlington, the county seat of Boone County. They then went and broke open the jail, took out Charles Dickerson, a negro, who was arrested last March for burglary, and escaped, but was arrested a week ago in the act of burglary. The mob took him two miles from Burlington and lynched him by hanging.

Indians on Trial.

MILES CITY, May 5.—In the trial of Black Wolf, the Cheyenne chief, and accessories for the burning of the Anderson ranch, Black Wolf was found not guilty. Howling Wolf, White Bear and two others pleaded guilty amidst a scene of excitement, as it is understood that they did this to save others equally as guilty as they. Each will be sentenced to five years.

A Satisfactory Sale.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 5.—The annual sale of the Tennessee Jersey Breeders' Association at Belle Mead Saturday, was the largest ever held in the South. The best butter strains were represented. The total amount the sales are $18,575. The average was forty-three females, $382; average of five bulls $429, which are considered very satisfactory.

A Base Ball Player Who Must Not Play.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—In the Circuit Court yesterday a temporary restraining order was issued forbidding Tony Mullane to play with the Toledo club. The order was asked for by President Lucas, of the Union club, on the ground that Mullane had broken a contract with that club. The case will be argued on its merits soon.

Reception to a Sir Knight.

MICHIGAN CITY, May 6.—The Michigan City Commandery of Knights Templar Saturday evening extended to Grand Commander Walter Vail, of the Grand Commandery of Indiana, a reception and banquet in honor of his elevated position. A large number of local Knights were in attendance.

The Underwriters' Convention.

PITTSBURGH, May 3.—The National Convention of Underwriters will be held here May 28 and 29. Over 200 delegates are expected to be present from New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Cleveland and all the large cities of the country.

Murdered by the Natives.

BOSTON, May 5.—Reports from Port Au Prince say that the English schooner Grapple was burned by the natives at Cay Island, $10,000 worth of property confiscated and the crew murdered. A war vessel has been sent there.

A Murderer Suicides.

HARRISONVILLE, Mo., May 5.—James Maxwell, a young druggist, arrested Friday night for the murder of his brother-in-law, Newton Safron, was found dead in his cell yesterday morning, having taken poison which was concealed in tobacco on his person.

A Monster Yacht.

WILMIMGTON, Del., May 5.—Astor's new steam yacht, the Nour Mahal, was launched yesterday. She is said to be the largest pleasure vessel ever launched in America, and the largest yacht afloat.

Charged With Malfeasance.

NEW YORK, May 6.—Judge Wallace, in the United States District Court, orders Shipping Commissioner Duncan to show cause why he should not be removed for malfeasance in office.

Cheap Freights on Sugar.

BOSTON, May 6.—All rail lines having reduced the freight on sugar to Chicago and Milwaukee to fifteen cents, the lake and rail routes yesterday lowered the rate to twelve cents between Boston and the above points.

A RAILROAD DISASTER.

A Locomotive Plunges Into the Rear of a Suburban Passenger Train Near Chicago.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 5.—A dense fog prevailed over the southern part of the city yesterday morning. A Chicago and Eastern Illinois suburban train left Auburn with passengers coming into the city to business. A stop was made at South Englewood. Just as it was pulling out a heavy locomotive of the Grand Trunk road, which leaves the city over the same tracks, plunges into the rear of the passenger train, splitting the last car and telescoping the other two, pinning the passengers in broken timbers and flooding the interior with steam from the engine boiler. Two persons were probably fatally and about twenty others seriously injured.

Following is a list of the injured:

Henry Wilson, engineer of the passenger train, cut about the breast and face and two ribs broken.

John Carroll, Englewood, ribs broken.

P. J. Murphy, Englewood, badly cut about head and body.

Man named Williams, leg broken.

J. Cahill, Englewood, body crushed.

W. Cockle, Englewood, both legs broken and one eye destroyed.

A. G. Massey, Englewood, head and body injured.

A. J. Hewett, head cut.

[illegible]

J. McCarthy, internal injuries.

F. Wilson, internal injuries.

M. McGrath, leg crushed.

Nine others were injured, but were removed before their names were learned. It is thought that Wilson and Cockle will die. Engineer Terwilliger, of the Grand Trunk engine, was arrested and locked up in the town of Lake police station, but subsequently released on bonds. He claims that the accident was due to the fog; that he did not see the lights of the train in time to avert the catastrophe.

Attempted Assassination.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 6.—An attempted assassination occurred at the residence of Jacob Good, residing between Morgantown and Newmiddletown, five miles south of this city, about midnight Saturday night. Good occupied a bedroom on the first floor of his home and was awakened by the sound of crashing glass, and found a bullet lodged in his shoulder. An alarm was given, but the assassin, whoever he was, made good his escape. Shortly after the shot was fired two farmers met a stranger riding on horseback, who passed them at a rapid gait, coming from the direction of Good's house, and it is supposed the unknown horseman fired the shot.

Losses by the Forest Fires.

PITTSBURGH, May 6.—Ralph Bagley, President of the Arthur Lumber Company, of this city, returned from the scene of the conflagration in Elk County yesterday morning and reports the devastation great. He estimates the loss in Elk County alone at over a million dollars. The heaviest losers are the mill owners. Hall & Kauff, of Pine Run, lose $50,000, and Dr. L. M. Ott, of Williamsport, $60,000. The mill of William Goetz, of Swiss Mount, is entirely destroyed, together with a number of buildings and a large stock of lumber. Goetz has been missing since Thursday and it is believed he perished.

They Came, They Saw, but he Conquered.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—A dispatch from Montzerrat, Mo., says a party of white men went to the house of Joseph Hughes, a negro, living two miles from town, Saturday night, with the avowed intention of horsewhipping him for an alleged insult offered by him to a white woman a few days ago. Hughes made a desperate resistance and with an ax inflicted mortal wounds upon Charles Miller and a man named Long. The remainder of the party retired and Hughes surrendered to the authorities.

Indignant Farmers.

WINNIPEG, Man., May 5.—The High Bluff branch of the Farmers' Union, one of the most influential, passed a resolution setting forth that the "Dominion Government having denied us our just rights and treated the moderate requests of our Legislature with contempt, the residents of Manitoba imperatively demand that we shall not remain a party of the Dominion confederation. We hereby call upon the provincial Legislature to claim the right of Manitoba to manage her own affairs and to become an independent British colony."

The Bond Call.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 5.—Following are the original numbers of three per cents. called to-day: Fifty dollars, Nos. 404 to 442, both inclusive; $100, Nos. 3,388 to 3,840, both inclusive, and Nos. 9,474 to 9,478, both inclusive; $500, Nos. 1,586 to 1,737, both inclusive, and Nos. 3,982 to 3,986, both inclusive; $1,000, Nos. 13,356 to 14,471, both inclusive, and Nos. 22,695 to 22,732, both inclusive; $10,000, Nos. 22,076 to 22,953, both inclusive. Total, $10,000,000. The bonds are to be paid June 20, and the interest will cease on that day.

A Murderer Gives Himself Up.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Frank Langston, son of the United States Minister to Hayti, who shot and killed one colored man and wounded another in this city about two months ago, and who has since been absent, was surrendered to the authorities yesterday by his father. Langston disappeared on the night of the shooting, and has been living with his brother in Louisville, Ky., since that time. He came in on a western train yesterday morning, and when father and son met there was a most affecting scene.

Base Ball.

BOSTON, May 6.—The Clevelands lost their second game with the Bostons yesterday—9 to 3.

At Philadelphia—The Chicagos, 12; Philadelphia, 7.

At Providence—Buffalos, 2; Providence, 5.

At New York—Detroits, 1; New Yorks, 3.

Farley Paying Dollar for Dollar.

ST. LOUIS, May 6.—To-day Moses Farley notified all his Chicago creditors that he was prepared to settle all his accounts by paying 100 cents on the dollar and asked them to send their statements, as he wants to clear off his indebtedness.

A Bigamist at Large.

PETERSBURGH, Va., May 6.—S. L. Harley, a bigamist, escaped from the Jail of Nottoway Court House Saturday night and is still at large. The Sheriff has telegraphed to the principal points.

Anti-Monopolists.

NEW YORK, May 6.—John F. Henry announces the National Anti-Monopoly Convention at Briggs House, Chicago, May 14.

Elijah Wilson has finished his job of stump blasting for N. M. Sutton and is now rooting out a lot of stumps for Israel Schreder.

Ames Stocking, who has been spending several months with his son William, arrived home last Saturday, and will remain in Tecumseh for a while.

Geo. Adamson, our enterprising jeweler, is now firmly located on the "old corner," and has a word to say to the readers of the HERALD this week.

Fred W. Keip, our new book-seller, has an announcement in another column to which we invite attention. Mr. Keip has a large and well assorted stock of goods, and we believe he will secure a good trade.

Mrs. Isaac Collins of Macon, has just received ten life sized portraits of herself and husband. These, together with the portraits furnished Z. Cook, Edmund Hall, Mr. Lilley and many others of our citizens are increasing the popularity of C. A. Thatcher's work. Any one desiring pictures will do well to await his return in July.

STUMP BLASTING!

Last Friday we drove with N. M. Sutton up to his farm to see Elijah Wilson go through the stump blasting process. In one field of the old Patterson farm was an oak grove, which was cut down two or three years ago leaving a number of immense oak stumps, some of which were six to seven feet in diameter. These stumps are all being cleared out with powder. Two or three holes are bored into the root of the stump with an auger, the powder inserted, and a slow match applied. We witnessed the operation at a safe distance on one of the "old settlers." As soon as the match was struck the workmen made tracks for a safe place several rods away. It was the first time we ever saw Elijah Wilson make "double quick" time. When the explosion came that stump was blown to "Ballyhack" in short order. It was shivered into more than twenty pieces, some of them being thrown at least twenty rods away. The victim we saw laid low was the butt of a huge red oak cut a year ago last winter. Mr. Wilson says he will clear the entire field of stumps as thoroughly as though they had been rotting in the soil for twenty years. The "Miner's Friend" was the powder used on this occasion.

Mrs. C. V. Hicks, nee Jennie Rosacrans, of Oscoda, is passing a few days with her Tecumseh acquaintances.

Rev. R. Wooden, of Cambridge, favored us with a call last Saturday.—He comes to Tecumseh now over the M. & O.

Have you seen Ed. DePuy's new peanut roaster? It runs by steam and turns out the roasted peanuts to perfection.

Gus Wright's new house on the corner of Evans and Pottawatamie Sts. is pushing along. It will be an ornament to that part of the village.

The Readings and Concert at the Baptist church to-morrow evening will be a first-class entertainment and ought to receive a good patronage.

See Slayton & Kinney's new advertisement. They propose to close out $5,000 worth of furniture, trunks and sewing machines at reduced prices and give presents, ranging from $5.00 to $12.50 each.

H. C. Conkling will sell at the residence of the late S. G. Conkling next Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, a quantity of household furniture. H. W. Stevens, Auctioneer. This will be a good chance for bargains.

The Allen examination at Jackson has ended in the discharge of the accused. That side show is now over. The case against Dan Holcomb seems to grow more and more serious, as additional evidence is brought out.

The three card monte man did a thriving business here on Monday.—Several "lambs" were shorn and some men risked their money who should have known better. But there will be no danger of their taking the bait again.

We have received from Chas. S. Fee, Gen. Passenger Agent of the Northern Pacific Railroad, a pamphlet entitled 'The Wonderland of the World.' It is descriptive of the famous Yellowstone Park and other points of interest on the line of the Northern Pacific. The opening of this route will rapidly develope a marvelous country for pleasure seekers and permanent settlers and people who wish to inform themselves about this section should send for a copy. Address, Chas. S. Fee, St. Paul, Minn.

Lenawee county made a good showing at the state sheep shearing festival at Lansing. The second heaviest fleece shorn was from a ram owned by Osborne & Wilson, of Tecumseh. The Michigan Farmer says: "Osborne & Wilson, Tecumseh, Lenawee Co., had the famous New York ram Greasy Bill, of which they are part owners. We have before referred to this sheep. He is an extraordinary animal both from his heavy shearing record and his wonderful constitution. His shering record is as follows: First fleece, 22½ lbs; Second fleece 33¾ lbs; Third fleece, 36lbs. 7 oz. He had a hard season, and it is a wonder he did so well." The heaviest fleece sheared from a ewe taken from a 3 year old owned by W. H. Burton of Addison, and weighed 22 pounds, being 5½ pounds heavier than any other ewe fleece at the festival.

Baker & Hall's soda fountain has commenced gushing for the summer of 1884.

We have a few extra copies of the Tecumseh Directory for sale at one dollar each.

Jim Cole, the "boss butcher," had the first cucumbers of the season on sale Saturday last.

We are under obligations to Congressman Eldredge for several "pub. docs" recently sent us.

Ed. E. J. Leahy, wife and daughter, and Miss Knittel, of Monroe, were the guests of Henry Smith over Sunday.

Remember the change in date of the Michael Erle play. It will be presented on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 13th and 14th.

The regular meeting of Tecumseh Lodge, No. 69, F. & A. M., takes place to morrow evening. Work in third degree. Let there be a full attendance.

County Clerk Hunter passed last Sabbath with his Tecumseh friends. He returned on the morning train Monday, and before doing so invested in a copy of our new Directory.

We intended to be present at the sheep shearing in Macon last Tuesday but the storm at noon disarranged our plans and hence we have no report of the meeting in to-day's paper.

L. F. Wheeler expects to go to the Catskills this summer to take views for B. L. Rider, one of the leading photograph artists of Chicago. Upon his return in September he will probably work in Rider's gallery.

Wm. DeMott is continually enlarging the list of policy holders in the old Northwestern Mutual Life. Several endowment policies which he issued fifteen years ago will fall in this summer. These endowment policies are becoming very popular.

Tecumseh is becoming more and more metropolitan every day. A Chinaman has rented the building belonging to G. W. Grillith, on Pearl street, near his blacksmith shop and will open a laundry there. He rejoices in the poetical name of Tang Lee.

Mrs. Leroy Dibble, of Alba, Mich., has been sojourning among her acquaintances in Franklin for a week or two. Mr. Dibble is running a general store at Alba and is one of the leading business men of that thriving village. Mrs. Dibble returned home last Tuesday.

Last Thursday night Tecumseh was visited with a big blow. Several signs were torn down, while barrels, boxes and other movable articles were promiscuously scattered around. A part of the east wall of Anderson's dry goods store was blown down but no serious damage was done.

The Mich. Elastic Paint & Roofing Co., are doing some large jobs of roof-painting now, having just finished the Quaker mill and other buildings for W. Comfort, are working on the Globe mill and other buildings for Wm. Hayden. Business men appreciate the benefit derived by having their roofs painted.

N. M. Sutton is making extensive improvements upon his Patterson farm south of the village. He is building a large amount of new fence and opening a lane across the entire farm from the railroad to the Adrian road opposite his homestead farm. The stumps in the south-west corner field are being blasted and taking out.

Dr. E. Hause returned from Florida last Friday and will remain here during the summer. He still claims Tecumseh as home, although he has invested all his means in Florida and will make that state a permanent winter residence. The Doctor is highly elated with his business success there thus far and that latitude evidently agrees with both his pocket and his health.

P. B. Swick has obtained the letters patent for his new tug strap. It is a genuine patent with the red ribbon and big seal attached, dated April 29, 1884. Mr. Swick has undoubtedly got a good invention and we hope he has "struck it rich." He will perfect arrangements as rapidly as possible to manufacture the strap and place it on the market or sell territorial rights.

Adrian Press: El. Gray, who run over from the bogs of Ireland to his home in Tecumseh, last week, will soon return. He has a position at Sligo, as general agent for American flour, and disposed of many car loads. He possibly will establish a branch importing house, though that is not yet decided upon, for the shipment of Irish whiskey. He brought over samples, which have wonderfully pleased several parties, and they are considering the question of a regular supply. El. says it will make a man fight or be funny in ten minutes, and after testing it at the republican state convention, Lucius Lilley of Tecumseh, and Jo. Bennett, of this city, determined to order each a barrel, it having no tendency to arouse their combativeness, but imparts to them a spirit of such pleasant hilarity and grim humor that they regard it very favorably. At least this is Gray's version of it, but it is more than likely he is trying to guy somebody, as American whiskey ought to equal any made in the whole world.

COUNTY CONDENSATIONS.

Ogden Center has got the mumps.

Morenci is going to have a bicycle club.

Circuit Court is in session this week at Adrian.

The Deerfield Catholic church has a new pastor.

Medina will purchase four town road scrapers.

The Adrian Band took the cake at New Orleans.

Straw hats are beginning to make their appearance.

The G. A. R. of Morenci will celebrate Decoration day.

The new roller mill at Weston has commenced operations.

These frosty nights and summer days are bad for the wheat.

The Seneca cheese factory is now making ten cheese per day.

The Weston doctors report it "distressingly" healthy in that locality.

The Hudson Gazette man has been feasting on fresh North river shad.

John Kinsel of Adrian will make candy with a gas engine this summer.

Agricultural implement dealers are preparing for a lively trade this season.

The I. O. O. F. band of Blissfield will give a grand concert at an early day.

The Deerfield Good Templars Lodge will meet hereafter on Monday evenings.

The Morenci Common Council are in a muddle over special sidewalk taxes.

The Democratic county convention will be held at Adrian, on Saturday, June 7th.

The German laborers imported by some Morenci citizens are beginning to arrive.

Frank Sutton, an old Morenci boy, owns an interest in the Marine City Reporter.

Morenci has a new band of eleven members with eleven brand new instruments.

Scarlet fever is raging to such an extent in Riga thatth e schools have been closed.

Geo. W. Larwill of the Adrian Times has been appointed Circuit Court stenographer.

The Adrian band since their return from New Orleans have received a purse of $350 from admiring friends.

The "corner drug store" of Adrian is likely to take a prominent part in Lenawee county politics this season.

Dr. McFarland, dentist, of Blissfield, has discovered a new and improved "anaesthetic" which renders tooth-pulling a painless process.

W. A. Underwood of Adrian was chosen one of the delegates from this district to the June Convention at Chicago. He is understood to be for Blaine.

Alderman B. S. Barnes, of Adrian, is building a new furniture factory which will be the best equipped establishment of the kind in Southern Michigan.

A roof has been put over the Adrian water works well and the grounds nicely graded. The supply of water is insufficient, but that is a matter of small consequence.

Arrangements have been made for a special excursion from Adrian to Portland, Oregon, and return via the Northern Pacific R. R. May 21st. For particulars address J. H. Blain, Adrian, Michigan.

The Blissfield Advance came out last week with a new spring dress. We are glad to notice this evidence of prosperity on the part of our Blissfield neighbor. Bro. Samsen runs a good paper and his patrons appreciate it.

Morenci Observer: The Bohemian oat men took their departure from this village last Tuesday morning, promising to be back again to attend to their "patients" in July. They succeeded in doing a snug amount of business in this region.

Since the last job of safe-cracking at North Adams, the business men of that town have very little faith in these inventions as a protection against burglars. One merchant has placed on his safe the following label: "Please don't bu'st it; here is the combination—20, 50, 100."

Hudson Gazette: The sporting fraternity are exercising great vigilance these days to prevent illegal fishing and hunting. A sharp watch is kept upon fishing parties at the numerous lakes in this vicinity, and there is an evident intention to enforce the laws pertaining to these sports.

Hudson Gazette: The town has got back to old time. We are a little out of cog with the P. O. and R. R., but a great deal more in harmony with the habits and ideas of our people generally. Those who labor ten hours or from sun to sun, prefer something like an even start with Old Sol.

Deerfield Record:—Geo. Stone has just run off his second grist of chickens from his patent incubator, which resulted far more successfully than the first. From 204 eggs 172 lively chicks were hatched, or about 84 per cent., which is better than the average number hatched by hens. Mr. Stone has about 450 chicks.

HECK BROS'. ROLLER MILL.

A MODEL FLOURING MILL OF MODERN STYLE, RUN BY A MODEL FIRM.

The Growth and Present Condition of one of Tecumseh's Leading Industries.

One of the most flourishing among the many business interests of Tecumseh at the present time is Heck Brothers' Roller Mill. The "Old Red Mill" as it was known for many years, was the first mill erected in the village. The original mill was built near the present site in the spring of 1828, two years after the first settlement.—French burrs were too costly then and two stones were procured from a large boulder which was found about one mile east of there. The proprietors of the new mill, Wing, Evans & Brown, completed their work on the third of July. On the morning of the 4th Jesse Osborn cut some ripe wheat on his place in the west part of the village, threshed it with a flail, took it to the new mill, where it was turned into flour, and Mrs. Gen. Brown made a batch of biscuit from this flour the same afternoon. The first 4th of July celebration ever held in Tecumseh was on that day. In the summer of 1832 a larger mill was built, having five run of stone, and which was styled the "Red Mill." It was the best flouring mill in the interior of the territory at that time, and farmers brought their grists to its hopper from as far west as Sturgis prairie. The property passed through various hands until February, 1867, when it was destroyed by fire. In June, 1868, Hamilton Brothers bought the property and erected the present building. The sad death of Geo. W. Hamilton, by drowning, made a change necessary, and the present firm came into possession on the 8th of January, 1876.—James H. and William C. Heck have been practical millers for thirty years. They take charge of the mill itself. John A., the third partner has the general business supervision. The firm is an exceedingly strong one, and the business under their control has become very profitable.

The building is forty by sixty-five feet in size, with a full basement story and three floors above. The power is furnished by three large turbine water wheels, one of which runs the rolls, one the machinery, and the third the burr which is used for a feed run.—There are fourteen sets of rolls and the mill is equipped with all the improved machinery and latest inventions applicable to the milling business. The aim of the firm is to keep "up with the times" and adopt every improvement in milling as soon as it appears. The feed burr is enclosed in a separate room by which all the dust arising therefrom is kept from the rest of the machinery. The rolls were put in about one year ago, and since then the mill has been running almost continuously. The present capacity is from two hundred to two hundred and fifty barrels per day. Last summer the "farmers' exchange" system was adopted, by which flour is given in exchange for wheat. Their home trade has more than doubled under this system, and their local custom, including Tecumseh and other towns in this vicinity, aggregated 5,000 barrels during the first four months of this year. They have controlled for some time a large export trade which is constantly increasing. Since the first season of their ownership of this property they have shipped flour quite extensively into many towns of New England—and in 1878 they made their first shipment of flour to Ireland, and since that period scarcely a month has elapsed that has not seen a shipment of "Heck Bros." flour cross the Atlantic. On Saturday last John A. Heck sailed from New York, his destination being Sligo and other Irish cities. He will personally interview his customers on the "old sod" and endeavor to perfect some arrangement for a more regular system of purchases. One embarrassment connected with the export trade is its fluctuating character. Some weeks not an order is booked. Again orders come pouring in which cannot possibly be filled. An arrangement which would enable the miller to furnish a definite number of barrels each week would be a convenience to both purchaser and seller. We confidently believe that Mr. Heck will be successful in his mission.

Three things are necessary to make good flour:—First, Good practical millers. Secondly, Good milling machinery. Thirdly, Good wheat. The first two requisites must be supplied by the miller, the third by the wheat raiser. Eight or ten years ago Michigan flour was a drug in the market. Minnesota flour commanded from ten to twenty per cent. more in Eastern markets than Michigan flour would sell for. Our mills were inferior and the quality of wheat grown here was inferior also. Clawson and other grades of white wheat injured the milling business. Our Michigan farmers are now waking up to this fact. They must grow strong red wheat, if they would furnish our home mills with flour of a grade to compete with Northwest and foreign flour.—Lancaster, Egyptian and Morgan wheat not only make a better but even a whiter flour than Clawson wheat. The "Heck Bros." furnish the first two requisites to the manufacture of good flour; now let our farmers furnish the third. In conclusion we can only wish that this enterprising firm may continue their business for many years to come.

TECUMSEH AMATEURS.

"Micheal Erle" is in constant rehearsal, each member of the company is working hard and consequently everything points towards the production at the Opera House next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, being a most successful affair. The company, with a true eye to business, will give an exhibition drill in front of the Opera House each evening, which will no doubt attract large crowds. The castle of characters is one that will give this play a rendition of which the Tecumseh audiences can well be proud. Mr. Chapman is loud in his praise of the people under his coaching and promises much. Each evening's entertainment is to conclude with one of the funniest of comedies entitled "The Marble Statue" or "The Secret Marriage" which is a guarantee of considerable mirth. Popular prices are the rule and as this is our last edition previous to the production, we wish the boys their deserved success and hope to be able next week to record such.

Five Hundred Riddles.

We have just received a handsome little book with the above title, which contains the material for much fun and home amusment in the way of Riddles, Conundrums, Enigmas, and Hints for Acting Charades. If parents desire to have their children amused, and also amuse themselves, they can not do better than to send for this book. It contains 120 pages, with handsome paper cover, and will be sent by mail, post-paid, to any address, upon receipt of 15 cents, by J. S. OGILVIE & Co., Publishers, 31 Rose Street, New York.

L. B. Ayres has purchased a lot between Lon Chapman's and W. F. Kennedy's, on Pearl street, and has begun the erection of a fine two story house thereon.

The Common Council had a meeting last evening and transacted considerable business. The official proceedings will appear next week.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is now entirely free from all impurities, and is the most wonderful curative agent ever discovered. Its wonderful healing qualities are due to the fact that it is a perfect Magnet, and will draw out the poisonous matter from any wound or inflammation, however deep-seated, and heal the wound from the bottom, leaving no scar. It is also the best remedy for Piles, Burns, Scalds, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Sore Throat, Sore Breast, Sore Eyes, Sore Feet, Chilblains, Corns, Bunions, Ulcers, Tumors, Cancers, Salt Rheum, Scald Head, Fever Sores, Erysipelas, Scrofula, Old Ulcers, Boils, Felons, Tetter, Ringworm, Pimples, Blotches, Chapped Hands, Chilblains, Frost Bites, Chapped Nipples, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Piles, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Diphtheria, Quinsy, Croup, Sciatica, Lumbago, Affection of the Spine, Diseases of the Joints, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means a controlling power is placed over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of our human frame, reaches bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament, is carried out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it copes readily with internal as well as external diseases.

WHAT IT CURES.

All sores, of all kinds, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Scalds, Tumors, Stiffness, Rheumatism, Chronic Pains, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Piles, Diphtheria, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Diseases of the Joints, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with Inflammation.

Over 40 Years.

This ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that as we have no space here to insert any of the numerous certificates of cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this notice who have ever used this Ointment, to frankly state their experience with it to inquiring friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 and 40 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Right to the point

The Rev. J. E. Searles, of New York, is one of the most widely-known and highly esteemed of Methodist ministers.

Mr. Searles says: "I am impressed that it is a duty I owe to those afflicted with Rheumatism or Neuralgia, to say that it gently has been discovered that a [illegible] afflicted with Rheumatism, and suffered at several times, at times for weeks together, so severely that it was thought to have taken the form of inflammatory rheumatism, I was induced to try Athlophoros. To my surprise I discovered a decided improvement in my condition after using the first bottle, and a permanent cure. He has since repeated it to many others with the same result. I have also commended it to a number of Methodist ministers with the same result, and I believe it will prove a great blessing to the ministry. Attributing the cure to God, I feel it my duty to make this statement. Yours, J. E. SEARLES, Pastor of Grace M. E. Church, New Haven, Conn., who was suffering severely with chronic rheumatism." I will gladly do this with words as strong as you wish, if thereby I can be the means of relieving others suffering with the same disease.

What Mr. Corbit Says:

New Haven, July 24, 1882.

"Mr. Searles, Dear Sir:—I write to say for the benefit of those who are suffering with Inflammatory Rheumatism that your medicine is invaluable. I suffered for six months the most excruciating torture, lost 25 pounds of flesh, and was laid out of my house for a month. I tried a dozen remedies, and was only relieved by it. If there is a specific for disease of any kind, yours most certainly is for Inflammatory Rheumatism in its severest form. Yours respectfully, WM. F. CORBIT, Pastor Grace St. M. E. Church, New Haven, Conn."

Such is ATHLOPHOROS—a thorough and efficient cure for the worst cases of Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it express paid, on receipt of regular price—one dollar per bottle. We prefer that you buy it of your druggist, but if he hasn't it do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

ATHLOPHOROS CO., 112 WALL ST., NEW YORK.

WORDS FAIL.

"Words fail to express my gratitude," says Mr. SILAS CARTER, of Nashville, Tenn., "for the benefits derived from

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Having been afflicted with Scrofula, my system was full of humors. It appeared in Blotches, Ulcers, and Matted Sores. My mother urged me to make use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and I am glad to say that a few bottles of this medicine wrought a complete cure. My health has been good ever since, and I attribute my present vigorous condition to the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. And I can recommend it to all who may be afflicted with any form of blood disease."

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

—The Roman Catholic clergy no longer oppose cremation, which is becoming very common in Italy.—Chicago Tribune.

—It is said that eight sons of the late President Nathan Lord were graduated from Dartmouth college during his incumbency of the office. Only one, Colonel Nathan Lord, Jr., now survives.

—An industrial school for colored youth, similar to one at Hampton, Va., is to be established near Jacksonville, Fla. Prominent gentlemen are interested in the scheme.—N. Y. Herald.

—The Wesleyan Christian Temperance Union of Ontario has proposed for the entire Dominion a temperance text-book in the schools, and some of the that there will be grabbing.

—Two years ago a Presbyterian Church consisting of one family was organized at Maysville, Kan. It now has sixty members on its roll, of whom twenty-one have been added since last October.—Christian Union.

—The free church experiment is being tried pretty widely by the episcopal churches of Boston. Of the twenty-two churches and chapels in that city, thirteen are "free," and in the diocese [illegible] are "free." Through new buildings converted or opened during the past year, all but one are "free."—Boston Journal.

—If you ask me why it is that after 1,800 years four parts out of five of the whole globe are without the knowledge of Jesus Christ, and why Christianity is yet a matter of debate, it is because men have stifled the emphasis of the Gospel. They have put for the Gospel things that are not the Gospel, and have never yet, as it were, understood what was the real force of the Gospel of Jesus Christ.—Henry Ward Beecher.

—The Christian at Work asks the question "Why do females preponderate in the membership of our churches? Out of 52,000 members of the Congregational denomination, 35,000 or 68 per cent. are females, leaving only 17 per cent. males. What is the reason of all this? The Congregational denomination is the only one that tabulates its membership by sexes, but we suppose a like proportion to exist in the other non-Episcopal churches. What is the reason? Do not men become religious as readily as women?—then why? Or does the church not adapt its work as well to men as to women?"

—The "Baptist Handbook for 1884" has recently been published. Among the features of general interest is a summary of statistics of Baptist Churches throughout the world. Since 1878, the first year in which such a summary was compiled, there has been a very marked progress. There were in 1882 31,296 churches, as against 28,501 in 1878; 19,338 ministers and missionaries, as against 17,085; and 2,000,000 members, as against 1,600,000. The net gain from [illegible] churches, ministers and members, fewer than [illegible] in the other years. The demand for the Baptist Year Book is now so great that it is selling at a premium of 50 per cent. for [illegible]. There are 1,800 Sunday-schools [illegible] and 1,600,000 scholars. The papers and tracts and the evangelists reach the figures [illegible]. Arranged under the four grand divisions, the membership is as follows: England, 2,[illegible]; Wales, 78,748; Scotland, [illegible]; Ireland, 1,514.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—An overflowing ball at Norwich, N. Y., awaited John B. Gough one evening, while hundreds of people unable to gain admittance, were turned from the door. People came many miles to hear him, one man driving over one hundred miles on wretched roads for that purpose only. Then, John B. Gough didn't come.—Buffalo Express.

—"Why, Mr. Jenkins, I thought you were in the hospital," exclaimed a pretty Washington girl to her caller. "In the hospital?" he queried, with genuine State Department inflection. "What made you think that?" "Why, papa said at breakfast this morning that he never saw a man shoot off his mouth like you did yesterday."—Washington Post.

—A Connecticut Yankee has invented an air-gun which he claims will throw cannon balls ten miles. It strikes us that his air gun is an infringement on a Western cyclone. If the Western papers don't exaggerate, the latter will throw a two-story house twenty-four miles, and the roof of a barn still farther; and the cyclone "scatters" more than the Yankee's invention, too.—Buffalo Express.

It was in the editorial room of the London Times: "Do you think my foot will have to be amputated, doctor?" asked the editor-in-chief, faintly. "I am afraid so," replied the physician; "it is very badly hurt, but I may be able to save it. How did you manage to crush your foot in this way?" "The boy dropped the proof of one of my editorials on it."—Philadelphia Call.

A lady asked a learned professor, if he understood Chinese. He did. "Well, what is 'mouth' in Chinese?" "Mouth is k'ou." We do not as a rule allow ourselves to use our editorial column to speak of any remedy we advertise but we feel warranted in saying a word for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sarsaparilla has been known as a remedial agent for centuries, and is recognized by all schools of practice as a valuable blood purifier. It is put up in forms of almost infinite variety, but Messrs. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., who are thoroughly reliable pharmacists, have hit upon a remedy of unusual value. Certainly they have vouchers of cures which we know to be most extraordinary.

Mary Tourdinah, a young lady suffering under mental aberration, was found in the swamp near Charlotte on Wednesday, nearly nude. She is in a precarious condition.

A Ghost.

Judge Andrew Mansette, one of the best known jurists in Arkansas, after an adjournment of the Historical Society, the other night, related the following story to a party of friends who lingered in the chamber of odd old manuscripts:

While a young man, I was not looked upon as one of those hard-working, plodding boys who never fail to make a reputation in youth and lose it in manhood. The fact is I was rather wild, and, by certain people whose lives were spent in the straight jacket of narrow-minded opinion, not regarded as particularly top hint. One, or two of our most prominent arm-rs went so far as to say that I sometimes drank too much, but what quantity in those days was regarded as too much, I was not at that time, and never did I now, ask to determine.

One day I went to town, a little village in the northern part of the State, and yielding to the allurements of metropolitan life, I remained until late in the evening. Night came on shortly after I started home, and with the darkness, a heavy rain. About half way between town and my father's house, stood an old log church, small enough in the day, to say nothing of a night like this, but it afforded the only means of shelter from the downpour of rain. I stopped, dismounted and stood in the doorway, holding my bridle reins. I cast my eye around rather nervously and attempted to penetrate the deep gloom of the interior, for although I was not afraid, yet I felt that strange, unspeakable dread which occasions often cause to settle upon the most courageous of men. After awhile, just a vivid flash of lightning lit up the place, I looked around again, standing near the pulpit, with long hair dishevelled with ghastly face and strange eyes, stood a woman, dressed in robes of flowing white. I was startled, but a moment afterward, when total darkness came again, I persuaded myself that it must have been only a fancy, still I kept my eyes turned back, in dreadful fascination. Another flash. The figure, with arms outstretched, with face of deathly pallor, and with hair streaming in tangled masses, approached slowly down the aisle. I knew that if I ran away and ever told my experience, people would laugh at me, and though by this time I was somewhat frightened, yet I was determined to wait awhile longer and be fully convinced. It was some time before there was another flash, but I stood, gazing intently. The church was again lit with a dazzling glare, and the woman was in a few feet from where I stood, just in the act of throwing her arms around me. My horse snorted and pulled me from the doorway. There was no longer any mistake, and, though this may have been a fancy, my hair pushed my hat off. Anyway, the hat fell, and too terrified to regain it, I sprang upon my horse and dashed away, letting the animal out, as the saying is. How I dashed over logs and among trees without being killed is a wonder, but realizing the road the horse seemed to fly. About three miles from the church lived old Mr. Gantling, with whom I was acquainted, and reaching his house, I dismounted, hitched my horse and almost burst into the room. The old gentleman had not gone to bed, and seeing me in a heated and doubtless noticing myright, he started up and exclaimed:

"Why, Andrew, what in the world is the matter?"

"I've seen a ghost."

"What," with surprise, for he knew that I was not given to superstition. "Have seen a ghost?"

"Yes, sir; at the old church." I then related my experience, during which recital the family gathered around me.

"That was certainly very strange," said the old man when I had finished, "but are you certain that it was not a fancy?"

"I would bet my life on its being a fact. It was a ghost just as sure as you live."

"Well, let's put up your horse. Stay all night, and in the morning, we'll go and investigate."

I couldn't sleep. Every time I succeeded in persuading myself into a doze, that face, with it's startling eyes, unearthly expression and deathly complexion, came up before me. No one ever welcomed the sunlight more than I did that morning, and yet I dreaded to go back to the church.

After breakfast, partaken of heartily by every one but me, the old gentleman and I mounted our horses and proceeded toward the church. I must have presented a comical appearance, for I wore a child's hat above an agitated expression. My hat had not fallen off where I thought it had, or perhaps the wind might have blown it, but we found it in the road, almost covered with the damp earth, which the heavy rain had beaten around it. Just before reaching the church, we met a man who lived in the neighborhood. He seemed greatly distressed. Turning to my companion he said:

"Have you seen anything of my poor, demented daughter? She left home several days ago, although we watched her closely, and has not been heard of since. I could never give my consent for her to be taken to an asylum."

A flash of intelligence, instead of a flash of lightning, now appeared, and Mr. Gantling, turning to me remarked:

"Andrew, she is the ghost you saw in the church last night."

We proceeded to the church, and there behind the pulpit, knelt the poor girl. She had gone crazy on the subject of religion. If my fright had not been thus explained, no reasoning, even unto this day, could have convinced me that I had not seen a ghost.—Arkansas Traveler.

—A new plan of dividing the year is proposed by Dr. Théodore Simon, of Auburn, N. Y., who says it should begin with March 1, the beginning of spring. This, he argues, would bring our artificial "civic" year, so called, into harmony with the year of nature. It would begin its "March" with the awakening of plant life; September, October, November and December would, in reality, be the seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth months; and the year would come to a close with February, which would become with more reason what its meaning indicates—a time for expiation.

A Tragic Event.

A Father's Despair and Self-Inflicted Death. His Son's Final Rescue, Too Late to Save His Parent.

The graphic occurrence that is described below is one of the most remarkable episodes in the domestic history of America. It is absolute truth which can readily be verified.

The inhabitants of the pleasant town of Courtland, N. Y., were shocked one morning by the announcement that Mr. Clinton Rindge, one of their most prominent citizens, had committed suicide. The news spread rapidly and aroused the entire neighborhood where Mr. Rindge was so well and favorably known. At first it seemed impossible that any one so quiet and domestic could do so rash a deed, and the inquiry was heard on every side as to the cause. The facts as developed on investigation proved to be as follows:

Mr. Rindge was domestic in his tastes and took the greatest enjoyment in the society of his children and pride in their development. And indeed he had good reason to be proud for they gave promise of long lives of success and usefulness. But an evil day came. His youngest son, William, began to show signs of an early decay. He felt unusually tired each day, and would sometimes sleep the entire afternoon if permitted to do so. His head pained him, not acutely, but with a dull, heavy feeling. There was a sinking sensation at the pit of his stomach. He lost all relish for food and much of his interest for things about him. He tried manfully to overcome these feelings, but they seemed stronger than his will. He began to loose flesh rapidly. The father became alarmed and consulted physicians as to the cause of his son's illness, but they were unable to explain. Finally severe sores broke out on his arms and he was taken to Buffalo where a painful operation was performed resulting in the loss of much blood but affording little relief. The young man returned home and a council of physicians was called. After an exhaustive examination they declared there was no hope of final recovery and that he must die within a very few days. To describe the agony which this announcement caused the father would be impossible. His mind failed to grasp its full meaning at first; then finally seemed to comprehend it, but the load was too great. In an agony of frenzy he seized a knife and took his own life, preferring death rather than to survive his idolized son. At that time William Rindge was too weak to know what was transpiring. His face had turned black, his breath ceased entirely at times, and his friends waited for his death believing that the fiend Bright's disease of the kidneys, from which he was suffering, could not be removed. In this supreme moment William's sister came forward and declared she would make a final attempt to save her brother. The doctors interposed assuring her it was useless and she would only hasten the end by the means she proposed to employ. But she was firm, and putting all back, approached her brother's side and administered a remedy which she fortunately had on hand. Within an hour he seemed more easy, and before the day was over he showed signs of decided improvement. These favorable signs continued, and to-day William B. Rindge is well, having been virtually raised from the dead through the marvelous power of Warner's Safe Cure, as can be readily verified by any citizen of Courtland.

Any one who reflects upon the facts above described must have a feeling of sadness. The father, dead by his own hand, supposing his son's recovery to be impossible; the son restored to health to mourn the loss of his father and the agonized relatives with a memory of sadness to forever darken their lives. Had Clinton Rindge known that his son could recover he would to-day be alive and happy, but the facts which turned his brain and caused him to commit suicide were such as any one would accept as true.

However sad this case may be, the truth remains that thousands of people are at this moment in as great actual peril as William Rindge and in as great danger of causing misery if not death to their friends. Liver and kidney diseases are become the most common and most dangerous of any or all modern complaints. They are the most deceptive in their beginnings and horrible in their final stages. They are far more deceptive than Consumption, and can rarely be detected even by skillful physicians unless a microscopic analysis be resorted to, and few doctors understand how to do this. Their slightest approach, or possibility of approach should strike terror to the one who is threatened as well as to all his or her friends. These diseases have no distinct symptoms, but come in the form of lassitude, loss of appetite, aching muscles and joints, dull head aches, pains in the back, stomach and chest, sour stomach, recurring signs of colds, irregular pulsations of the heart, and frequent dizziness. If neglected, these symptoms are certain to run into chronic kidney and liver or Bright's disease, from which there is sure to be a great amount of agony and only one means of escape, which is by the use of Warner's Safe Cure. The importance of taking this great remedy upon the slightest appearance of any of the above symptoms cannot be too strongly impressed upon the minds of all our readers who desire to escape death and pain and prolong life with all its pleasures and blessings.

HUMAN BLOOD.—On the purity and vitality of the blood depend the vigor and health of the whole system. Disease of various kinds is often only the sign that nature is trying to remove the disturbing cause. A remedy that gives life and vigor to the blood, eradicates scrofula and other impurities from it, as Hood's Sarsaparilla undoubtedly does, must be the means of preventing many diseases that would occur without its use. Sold by dealers.

THE FRENCH METROPOLIS.

We are permitted to take the following extracts from a letter written by Miss Lizzie Hayden to her friends at home

PARIS, April 8, 1884

The weather has been somewhat rainy since we reached Paris. Although we have been here one week to-night we have not seen many of the sights. I know you all at home are just as ignorant as I am about the French names for the public places. To-day we visited the Notre Dame and Sainte Chapelle, the former ranks as the finest French cathedral, its exterior is perfectly very artistic but looks rather cheap, the towers are not completed which gives it a heavy look. The main beauty of the interior lies in the stained glass windows. The supporting pillars are huge and numerous. The ceiling is vaulted and without decoration. There was a funeral service while we were there so we could not see quite as much as we desired, and we were also disappointed about seeing the coronation robes of Napoleon First, they showed us some which they declared to be the same, but they are not a bit like the pictures we have seen, and both uncle and aunt are certain they are not the robes they saw twelve years ago.

Sant Chapelle, but as a monument to the memory, and for the relics of Saint Louis, is a gorgeous little chapel. The sides and end are entirely of stained glass, dados and frescoes glitter with gold and are colored very brilliantly. Its many decorations are more like a theatre than a church. This chapel is the one that stood unharmed amidst the flames that destroyed all the surrounding buildings. They were in ruins twelve years ago when work was begun but have all been rebuilt and enclose the little church like protecting walls. One day we drove about the city by the government buildings, and where the Tuileries used to stand stood the Champ Elysees, prolonged like chanse-bosie a promenade and drive extending from the gardens of the Tuileries to the Triumphal Arch, a distance of about two and three-quarter miles. Passing the arch we turned toward the Bois de Boulogne or park. It resembles an American forest only it is kept in perfect order and no fallen trees or rotten stumps to be seen. It has the prettiest artificial lake, a grotto with waterfall, and all the usual adornments of a park. In extent it greatly surpasses Central Park of New York.

The Louvre is the gallery of art and pictures. The Madeleine, Chaise and Bois Marche are similar to Wacks only far more extensive.

The Colonne Vendome is a monument by a Napoleon made of the cannon of the Austrians and Russians, to commemorate some victory. It is down on the [illegible] and protected again and restored.

The Legislative [illegible] are the Madeleine [illegible] Greek temple.

Last Sunday in the afternoon I went to a place called [illegible] they used to attend when [illegible] in Paris last. It was very pleasant to hear the familiar hymns and prayers and I could almost fancy [illegible] when they sang "Nearer my God to Thee" and "Softly now the light of day" it brought such associations so strongly.

Michael Bernays, a Spaniard, accompanied Henry Hayden and party as courier through Spain and France. If any one anticipates taking a trip through these countries they cannot do better than to communicate with him at Gibraltar, Spain.

HOW TO HELP OUR CHILDREN.

You have seen the tender little vine putting forth its branches at the foot of the majestic tree. It seems to look longingly up to the boughs of that tree, as if it would twine its arms about them. That is where its nature fits it to dwell, but between it and them there is a wide space, how is it to get up there? If left to conquer the space alone it will stretch its arms in vain, it will fall down exhausted and basely fasten itself upon the weeds and blades of grass within its reach. But bend down a bough of that tree within its reach and see how quickly it will fasten upon it and climb up to the proudest heights of that tree.

So with our children. They are not men and women, they are only children, but their nature fits them to rest among the thoughts of men and women to a great extent, if only they can be lifted up to them. If left to conquer the intervening space, they will fall back exhausted and basely fasten upon the noxious weeds within their reach. What they need is a bough bent down within their reach, upon which they may fasten themselves and climb up to the proud height of manly and womanly thought.

The lesson is manifest. We ought to mingle more with our children. We ought to try to enter more fully into their feelings and thoughts. In this way we can get hold of them and lift them up gradually to our level. If Paul could become "all things to all men in order to save some," surely we can get down to the level of our children occasionally in order to lift them up, without any sacrifice of proper dignity. The trouble is that we have too little to do with our children. We do not interest ourselves in their thoughts and feelings. We shove them from us when they come to us with their questions and their troubles, just as though such things were beneath our notice. The result is that our children are left to mingle only with children, think the thoughts of children, and do whatever foolish thing the young dead lion to do. Then we wonder why they grow up to be school boys and school girls, they take no interest in our affairs, despise good literature and good society, and good religion, and good political entertainments, and prize nothing but childish nonsense! Can we wonder that they have no aspirations to great deeds and noble thoughts? We are only reaping the harvest which we have sown. If we would have it otherwise, we must go down to the level of children thought and feeling and help them up to our level.

Cover Your Heads!

One week ago we opened our new Hat and Cap Department, and although we felt sure of the support of the public in our new venture we were not prepared to see our sales for the week fully double our expectations. Everyone should see our celebrated $1 Hat, which is sold by other dealers at $1.50. This Hat we make our specialty. We purchase such large quantities to supply our different stores that we can well afford to sell them at $1, and still have a fair profit. Our $1.50 Stiff Hats in all the latest shapes, other dealers price $2. Our $2 and $2.50 Hats from the best makers, and our $3, $3.50 and $4 and upwards are all fine imported English Stiff and Soft Hats. Every line we sell at 50 cents less than elsewhere in the city.

Confirmation Suits!

We are showing a Large Stock of Suits for boys to wear when taking their first communion. We are offering special bargains in Boys' Dark Suits in all prices. The assortment of styles and patterns is the most varied and extensive we have had for years. Intending purchasers will save themselves time and trouble by coming direct to our store, for they not only have the advantage of our large stock to select from, but will find our prices lower, our goods better made and trimmed, and our styles newer than you can find elsewhere.

JERSEY SUITS!

We have just received a large consignment of imported English Jersey Suits for boys and children. They are durable and stylish. Every mother is invited to call and inspect them.

ESTATE OF JOHN W. HOUSE.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee—ss.

At a session of the Probate court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Friday, the 2d day of May in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of John W. House deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Robert B. House, administrator of said estate, alleging that he has paid the funeral expenses and debts of said deceased and the expenses of administration thus far incurred and praying for the allowance of his final account, for an assignment and distribution of the residue of said estate to and amongst the persons entitled thereto and for his discharge.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 26 day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition and that the heirs-at-law of said deceased and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof, by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

ESTATE OF MONAGHAN MINORS.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, holden at the Probate Office in the city of Adrian, on Monday, the 5th day May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of George A. Monaghan and Laurence C. Monaghan, minors.

On reading and filing the petition duly verified of Robert B. House, guardian of said minors, praying for license to sell the real estate of said minors, described in said petition, for reasons therein set forth.

Thereupon it is ordered, That Monday, the 9th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next-of-kin of said minors, and all other persons interested in said estate, are required to appear at a session of said Court, then to be holden at the Probate office, in the City of Adrian, and show cause if any there be, why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered That said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said County of Lenawee for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

C. C. Dell, of Battle Creek, is in town.

Clinton wants a Dentist.

Mr. Coddling has moved his family into Elroy Zimmerman's house.

The band consider their new instruments a very fine set.

Mrs. Sterling, who has been visiting Mrs. D. H. Silvers, returned to Detroit Saturday morning.

A Sunday school has been started in the Lancaster school house east of town.

Rev. Kerridge will deliver an address next Sunday evening at his church, on John Knox and the Covenanters.

The Presbyterian social was held at Mrs. Romeroy's Wednesday night.

It is surmised that one of John T. Clark's blooded cattle got loose recently; at least one of his hired men is around with a piece of beefsteak bound over his left eye.

Clinton has no Dr. of Dental Surgery and yet there are some teeth in this community that need repairing.

Bob, Coddling and his brother Wig, have been at work in the Cotton Mill at Jonesville for a few months past. They have, however, recently returned to this town and report that the mill is about to shut down at that place.

We wish that any one that knows of an item of news interesting to the public would mention the matter to the correspondent of this paper.—There will be better local newspapers in this country, when the community finds out that the average local newspaper reporter is not a mind-reader and that he sometimes even misses a dog-fight, especially when out of town.

Charles Parker has been taking baths in Ypsilanti lately for rheumatism and returned to Detroit last Monday, much improved in health and appearance.

Bean & Underwood, of Adrian, were in town last Saturday.

E. VanDeMark says that he set out a bed of asparagus this spring, and that in just 23 days after the roots were put in the ground he cut a large mess from the bed. The writer of this item owns the same surname as the above gentleman and is bound to say that there was never a liar detected in the entire family.

Harrison Johnson was stricken with paralysis last Sunday afternoon. His speech was taken from him; but he is now reported as improving.

Rev. Joseph St. John has been attending an episcopal convention at Hudson, this week.

The band boys have purchased a fine new set of instruments of the Detroit Music Co. We anticipate some good music in the near future.

Rev. E. W. Miller, of the Congregational church is taking a two weeks vacation and is rusticating among the woodchucks in the northern part of the state. Rev. Miller is like Ezekiel Webster—Daniel's elder brother—and and is death on woodchucks. We do not suppose, however, that Mr. Miller will bring any scalps of those harmless animals back with him and claim the bounty this township pays for them.

The ladies social of the Methodist Episcopal church will be held next week at the residence of Mr. Charles Gadd, north of this town.

Frank Scovell and wife, formerly of this place, but who are now living in South Bend, Indiana, are in town visiting for a few weeks. Mr. Scovell has a position in a woolen mill at that place.

Miss Chase, a teacher in Kalamazoo College and formerly a teacher in the schools here has been in town lately in the interest of the college at Kalamazoo.

The Rev. Mr. Bunnell, from the state of New York has been visiting former parishoners in Newberg and preached in the Baptist church here last Sunday morning.

Mr. Marcroft who worked in the woolen mill here while that white elephant breathed, has lately been in a mill at Worcester Mass., but is now in town spending a few weeks with his family.

Frank Butterfield, of Whitmore lake is visiting Dr. Tuttle.

Dr. J. W. Burchard returned from Dalton, New York, Wednesday noon. Mrs. Burchard remained at Dalton and the Dr. will return there the last of this week or the first of next and will bring his wife and mother back with him. His mother intends to make Clinton her future home.

Al. Van Geisen is in Ann Arbor as a Washtenaw juror for this present term of Court.

The woolen mill has declared a dividend this week of 15 per cent. This makes 4 per cent. dividend declared by this prosperous institution during the last 6 months; and still the wheels stand still.

Dr. J. C. Burroughs, the inventor and proprietor of the well known Hoof and Healing Ointment, has recently compounded another horse medicine that he claims will be a bonanza for horses and for the Dr's pocket. The medicine he calls a Heave Tonic, and reports some very stubborn cases of heaves as cured with it. We wish the Dr. success with it and that his face may become as familiar as Lydia E. Pinkham's.

The concert given last Friday and Saturday evenings by the children under the direction of Miss Rose gave general satisfaction. The choruses showed that they had been well drilled and some of the solos and duetts were rendered in a manner worthy of older singers.

In the "Clinton Clippings" of last week, the HERALD readers were told not by your regular correspondent however that on the previous Sunday evening some of our churches closed their doors on account of the rain. It may be a healthful rebuke to overweening self-puffery to let it be known that on the evening in question more than one of our Clinton churches "was alive to its business and was rewarded with a fair congregation for a wet night." For aught I know it may be true of all our churches that they were open and were rewarded with fair congregations for such a night. J. W. PAYNE, Baptist. Pastor.

MACON MOLECULES.

Addie Crittenden commenced teaching in the Henry district Monday. We bespeak for this district a number one school.

The concert Sunday evening was very good. The program, which consisted largely of songs and readings, was well carried out.

Lyman Thomas is home again, looking hale and hearty.

Wm. Morgan has been on the sick list for the past few days. He is improving, however.

Thomas Quarton came over from Oakland Saturday, and stayed over Sunday. He seems to be well pleased with his new farm.

Quarterly meeting next Sunday. The services will be held at Clinton.

RIDGEWAY RACKET.

On Friday evening, May 23d., the Ridgeway Literary will hold the last regular meeting of the present term. A special effort has been made by the committee to have the following program presented in as brief and entertaining a manner as possible:

Music—Society.
Devotional Exercises.
Music—Miss Ida Arner.
Recitation—Miss Lena Swick.
Reading—T. H. Temple.
Music—Juveniles.
Recitation—Miss Nettie Wilson.
Declamation—(sequel to the above recitation)—Will Allen.
Song—J. DeWitt Arner.
Recitation—Luella Wilson.
Essay—Mrs. W. M. Campbell.
Music—Juveniles.
Poem—Frank Temple.
Paper—The Salmander, a combination of the interests of the Enterprise, Journal of Truth, Recorder and Independent.
Music—Combined Orchestra.

As the society will probably be adjourned during the busy season, this is the last meeting that will be held during the summer, therefore a cordial invitation is extended to all to come to the closing exercises of one of the best Literary Societies Ridgeway has ever had.

Admission Free.
Meeting to begin at 7:30, sharp.

BY ORDER OF COM.

SPRINGVILLE SNUFF.

Farmers are very busy getting ready for planting.

George Daniels has lost one of his most valuable horses.

Anson Ayers is repairing his house.

C. E. Jessup took in about 25 wood chuck scalps last week at 20cts. each.

Mrs. O'Brien, of Grand Rapids, was visiting relatives here last week.

Rev. Wm. Clayson officiated as minister of the Gospel at the M. E. church last sabbath.

Mrs. John Brimly has been very sick, but is able to be seen out again.

Mr. James Mullen is troubled with the asthma to such an extent, that he is unable to lie down, and is therefore confined to his chair.

ONSTED ODDS.

The wet weather lately makes us long for the time when our village can boast of sidewalks.

William Onsted is building a new board fence on the south side of the new street north of his residence.

J. Hand, with four or five men, is building a barn for Frank Sheeler, two miles north-west of here.

Several coats of paint on D. A. Skinner's house has added much to its appearance.

Carpenters at work at three places and masons at three places, encourages us to think that we shall soon have a village.

A number of people in this vicinity are suffering with the mumps. W. B. Raymond, our station agent, being one of the number got excused and went to his home in Tecumseh, last Saturday.

Charlie Kimball of Adrian, was in this section last week buying wool. We hear that several parties sold their unwashed wool to him for eighteen cents per pound.

Two young men from Erie County, Penn., have been here prospecting with a view of buying a lot on which to build a store. They have not purchased, but intend to return after looking at some other places.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

On Saturday last, the Manchester Band discoursed music for Brooklynites, and the people at the race ground. They were not afraid of giving away good tunes; and serenaded Frank FitzGerald, a former Manchester boy who seems to hold a place in the esteem of people there, as well as here. Their uniforms would make even plain people look well. The race ground is at present one of the chief attractions for horse fanciers, but the horses have a sorry time of it. Farmers drive beautiful teams here, to bestow surplus admiration on those belonging to jockeys. The Grecian bend attained by the overchecks fills a long felt want between beast and bungle. Jerry VanGeison was winner and is correspondingly happy. Trade waits while farmers plant corn, but building goes on as rapidly as rain allows.

Aunt Chloe Ambler is sick, past recovery. She is one of the pioneers who have lived through Brooklyn's vicissitudes and changes for the better, and prepared herself for the last great change by living a good life.

SILVER WEDDING.

Saturday afternoon, May 3rd, 1884, witnessed a pleasant gathering at the house of Wm. Osgood, in Macon. Mr. Osgood and his wife had traveled down the pathway of life together, and having reached the twenty-fifth station of their journey, their friends assembled to help them celebrate the happy event. A large and joyful company was received and highly entertained. Every one present both old and young seemed to enjoy themselves. After supper was served the company departed with many congratulations for the future; wishing they might live to attend the golden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Osgood. The gifts were numerous and elegant, a list of which is given below:

Silver cake basket—Mr. and Mrs. Mort Gooding, Miss Addie Gooding Mr. and Mrs. James Clarkson.

Gold-lined goblets—Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smalley and D. C. Smalley, Bay City.

Silver sugar bowl—Mr. and Mrs. Richard Clarkson and Susie Osgood

Pickle castor—Mr. and Mrs. John C. Mills.

Butter dish—Dr. and Mrs. Geo Howell.

Fruit knives—Mr. and Mrs. Peter Knight.

Two dollars and a half in silver—Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Osgood, Morenci.

Camp chair—Edd H. Osgood.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Horatio Keyser is moving to Milburn Keyser's farm this week.

School closed in Newburg part of last week on account of the teacher having the mumps.

The genial L. S. Ticket agent, N. S. Satterthwaite, drives a bran new rig throughout. He purchased the horse of Frank Silvers, and the buggy is a Columbus.

W. B. Keyser is building new fences and surveying his farm out and when done will have one of the best laid out farms in this section.

E. C. Coryell is preparing to move his barns down near his new house, which he built last summer, and when done he will have the finest set of buildings on the road. He is also setting out 100 rods of hedge fence.

THE SULTAN'S CHILDREN OF THE DESSERT

A Horse-Racing Hippodrome—Circus in Three Rings—Vast Menagerie—A Wonderful White Elephant—A Gala Day—Grand and Gorgeous Parade. Ho! For Forepaugh's Great Show!

We clip from a neighboring paper the following unqualified endorsement of Adam and his great show: "Mr. Adam Forepaugh is entitled to the credit due a man who has succeeded in organizing and carrying forward a scheme which, beside affording rational enjoyment to the public, really supplies a need. There are thousands, hundreds of thousands, of people who never see anything in the shape of amusement in the form of a spectacle, until the circus comes around on its annual tour. It is an event in their lives. To provide these people with innocent enjoyment and brilliant spectacle; to attract them by devices depicting historical scenes or characters; to show them what may be accomplished by the horse with careful and skillful training; to collect, from all quarters of the globe, animals the mere sight of which is more impressive and interesting than any work on natural history that is to be found in any library; to lay both sea and land under tribute in the aim to make this feature an attraction in itself, requires a judgment, an outlay and a degree of energy that entitles its possessor to our respect. In this way, Mr. Forepaugh is contributing his full share to the enjoyment and instruction of his fellows. His street parade is a glimpse of Paradise to many who are unable to penetrate the mysteries of his great tent, and the marvels disclosed under his canvas excite the wonder of millions of children. It is no easy matter to satisfy the craving of adults, to whom the clowns, the elephants, and monkeys are an old story, by producing novelties and yet retain those perpetual fountains of joy, the clown, the ring-master, the monkey, the bears, elephants—the jests and pranks that surprise children and their elders into laughter. The gilded chariots, the spic and span new costumes, the mighty elephants, the groups of figures illustrating historical incidents, combine to make the finest street parade ever witnessed in this city, while the performances under the canvas are of a very superior order. Then there is the wonderful white elephant, a troupe of Moslem Mamelukes, quarter of a hundred trained elephants, a great circus in three rings, a mammoth menagerie, museum and hippodrome, &c. Nothing like it has hitherto been seen in this State, and take it all in all, Mr. Forepaugh is entitled to the credit of presiding over the best show that has ever visited us. It will exhibit at Adrian, May 20; Coldwater, May 21; Three Rivers, May 26th; Allegan, May 27; Kalamazoo, May 28; Battle Creek, May 29; Jackson, May 30; Ann Arbor, May 31; Detroit, June 2; Port Huron, June 3; Pontiac, June 4; Flint, June 5; Bay City, June 6; East Saginaw, June 7; Lansing, June 9; Ionia, June 10; Grand Rapids, June 11; Big Rapids, June 12; Muskegan, June 13; St. Joseph, June 14.

THE CAMBRIDGE SHEEP SHEARING.

The sheep breeder's association of Cambridge held their regular annual meeting at C. W. Greenlee's residence on Thursday May 1st. The attendance was not as large as usual owing to the rain in the forenoon, but there was a good show of sheep, and at least one hundred persons present to see the show. The interest in sheep-breeding is on the increase in this town and farmers are improving their flocks every year. We present below the entries made and also a record of the shearing.

LIST OF ENTRIES.

F. P. Sheeler, 3 two year old ewes.

V. C. Rich 1 ewe lamb, 3 one year old rams, 2 two year old rams, 1 four year old ram. Rip Van Winkle, as good a sheep as on the ground and far superior to many.

F. I. Kinney, 5 rams 1 three year old, 3 two years old and 1 yearling, 16 ewes, 2 three year old, 6 two year old and 9 yearlings.

Will Osborne, 1 ewe three years old 2 rams one year old, 1 yearling ewe, 2 two year old ewes.

William Wimple, 1 ram four years old, 4 rams two years old, 3 yearling rams, 5 two year old ewes, 1 three year old ewe.

Mr. Merryweather Gives a Few Points on Policy.

"Singular, the ign ran e of some folks about the policy racket," said Mr. Merryweather, who had just come down stairs from his semi-daily interview with Police a r and his tame tiger in the Wesson building, at Griswold and Congress streets.

"Well now," said a customer, whose Mr. Merryweather was getting ready to shine. "I'm one of the unearned. Can I you give me a point or two?"

"Of course I can; but don't you know [illegible]

"Not the first letter of the alphabet [illegible]

"[illegible]

"[illegible] there was so much [illegible] world, but I'll [illegible] a point, and I'll give you a [illegible]

"[illegible]

"[illegible] common in Detroit [illegible] and some of [illegible] The fellows that run [illegible] twenty per cent. of all they get out of the suckers. They have rooms [illegible] town and you can't hardly [illegible] the city that don't write up policy books.

"And what is a policy book?"

It was with a [illegible] Dresson I [illegible] Mr. Merryweather replied.

"Why, a book [illegible] a sort of [illegible] pay [illegible] they write the figures on with a [illegible] between the sheets to make two copies with the help of some black stuff. One sheet goes out to the main office and the other is why the book writer [illegible] percentage. But I was agoing to tell you about the game. You see, at the office where the drawings are they put numbers from one to eighty in the wheel, and twelve of them numbers is drawn out. Now suppose you've got a saddle—"

"What's that?"

"What's what—a saddle?"

"Yes."

"Well, you play three numbers to come out of the wheel, but only two of 'em comes out. That's a saddle, and pays a dividend of $15 for fifteen cents. Fellers play saddles more to enter out than to win, big money, because two numbers is of course more apt to come out than three.

"Now three numbers is a gig. You know there's twelve numbers drawn out an' you add three of 'em your gig takes $200 for $1, or $10 for five cents. That's the lowest ante you can put up—five cents.

"Then there's a horse—that's four numbers—and if you bet 'em you get $5 for $1.

"And there's a capital. That's two out of the first three numbers. If you play them numbers and number five and the [illegible] comes out in the next three that shows up you get $20 for five cents.

"That's all I've learned about policy. I'm not sure that I'd play it myself, though. If I did, I'd make a [illegible] bet on the gig myself and in the end bet on the horse and capital. Do you remember [illegible] Hogan? Why, he struck policy once for $300, and he thought it was too good. [illegible] and [illegible] he played it [illegible] and lost the [illegible] —Detroit Free Press.

A Theatrical Agent's Luck.

Two years ago when Billy Deutsch was so much at baccarat, Gambetta came up in the way of conversation only. Deutsch was trying to manage Billy Hope on a trip, came to Paris and said he would quit gambling when he had won twenty francs. It was nothing for him to win a hundred [illegible] francs every night. He lost sometimes, but not often, but one evening he dropped the money inside of ten minutes. At that time he had exactly five sous in the world, and with this capital he entered the Imperial Club down yonder by the Champs Elysees. A young Viscount opened an unlimited bank at baccarat, and Billy Deutsch won 20,000 francs on the turn. The Viscount dealt a card to the right, then one to the left, then one to himself, then another to the right, another to the left and another to himself. "I give," said the Viscount, as he glanced at his two. The player on the right had a ten and two spot. "Give me a card," he said. The banker dealt him an eight-spot. That made him nothing, for ten and two and eight added up are twenty, and it is the last figure which counts. The player on the left of the dealer was Deutsch; he had a face card and a seven-spot, and when he Viscount declared that he would give, Deutsch said "No." His face-card counted for 10, which added to the seven-spot made 17, and as I said just now, it is the last figure which counts. The object of each player is to get nine, or as near that as possible, for nine is the number which "sweeps the deck." Generally a player who has five will not call for a third card; one who calls for another when he had six would be suspected of wrong doing; it is $10 against $1 that seven will win. The viscount had a face-card and a four-spot. Inasmuch as Deutsch would not take another card the viscount naturally supposed that the player had two or better, hence he was obliged to draw or lose outright. He dealt himself a four-spot, and with his eight, beat Billy's seven, thus winning 20,000 francs from the latter. But Deutsch made this loss good later on. Inside of two months he had won 1,200,000 francs. He ran over to New York, had a good time with the boys, then came back to Paris and in less than five weeks had lost every cent he had in the world. He has not yet turned Trappist, and I don't suppose he ever will, for he happens to be a Hebrew.—Paris Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

Goliath at Home.

The home is the clime where the man is great. There he is King, or royal consort anyhow. If he isn't Governor, he is Lieutenant-Governor. He is always sure of some place in the administration. Outside, the world, which is pretty full of great men all the time, may not be particularly impressed with his greatness. It may even ignore him at times, and occasionally sit down upon him. But at home he is always sure of a sympathetic, appreciative and responsive audience. If he happens to be the cleanest, [illegible] there passes current for profound wisdom; his prosiness is looked upon as wisdom; his jokes are always brilliant; [illegible] Nor [illegible] It is true, he sometimes finds jokes are frequently so fearfully and wonderfully made that they cannot be properly understood without [illegible] and of a grandsire, but if he [illegible] the place, the laugh will surely come. A man's jokes and stories are like a pair of skates. He never thinks of them until he wants to use them, and then half the time he doesn't know where they are. But the home audience always knows his stories, whether he remembers half or none of them, and the one he forgets entirely is usually the most highly appreciated. He is a small, rather pleasant tyrant, who is loved for his harmless despotism which pleases him and hurts no one else.

And how comforting to man is the assurance that home is the only place in the world that will remember him when he goeth to his long home and the mourners go about the streets. When we have strutted our brief hour and gone off the stage, little enough the world will miss us. The day we die will be as full of life and song and laughter as was the day when we were born. There is a little widening circle of ripples about the grave when the clod sinks out of sight and when the circling ripples reach the shore they are not felt nor seen; the lake is placid, beautiful, pitiless. Even while the mourners go about the streets, as the slow-moving procession winds up the sorrowful way, sunlight will crown the hills and sparkle on the river, and dance with gleaming feet on solemn crag and whispering tree; the song of birds will glorify the long, bright summer days with sylvan melody; starlight and whip-po'-will, silvery dew drop and chirping katydid, tremulous moonbeam, flickering shadow and murmuring fountain will fill the sleep nights with enchantment; dimpling meadow and golden field and nodding forest will woo the sunshine and defy the storm; other ambitions will tread along the ragged paths where we have walked with bleeding feet; conquest and defeat will crown and dethrone other lives, and on the wreck-strewn shores of Time the drifting sands will cover our names and hide them from the eyes and memories of men. The bells that toll at the funeral will chime at the wedding; we beat the drum, that it speaks mournfully to the grave, and rattling quick-step turtles our merry feet back to the noisy camp; we fade like a shadow and continue not; and as it happeneth to the fool, so it happeneth even to me; and why then was I more wise? For there is no remembrance of the wise more than the fool forever, seeing that which now is in the days to come shall all be forgotten. And how dieth the wise man? As the fool. There is a little while, and the tired hands and busy brain at rest at last forever, the waile face feels not the scorching tears that fall upon it like summer rain drops; fears not the heart-breaking moans nor the pitiful sobs that mourn above the sleeper, and then——

Lo, out in the quiet graveyard where we lie at rest, lovers will come in the days of June, and sit on our lonely graves and wear off the grass, and contract bad poetry and worse rheumatism, while they burden the haunted air with sickly confectionery.

But at home, how will our names be blessed. Our vices, and thank Heaven none of us has one, will be forgotten; our virtues will be magnified and exaggerated until in multiplying they will be multiplied as the stars of heaven and as the sand which is upon the sea shore. At home, greater and greater will we grow from generation to generation, until as time rolls on, the path of our family record will shine more and more unto the perfect day, when the living generation will point with pride to you and me as great great great grandfathers.—R. J. Burdette, in Burlington Hawkeye.

An Astonished Cat.

Gautier, the French writer, had a cat which slept on his bed nights, on the arm of his chair daytimes, followed him when he walked, and always kept him company at meals. One day a friend left his parrot in Gautier's charge during his absence. The poor bird sat disconsolate on the top of his stand, while the cat stared at the strange sight. Gautier followed her thought and read there clearly:

"It must be green chicken."

Thereupon she jumped from his writing table, crouched flat, with head low, back stretched out at full length, and eyes fixed immovable on the bird. Parrot followed all the movements, raised his feathers, sharpened his bill, stretched out his claws and evidently prepared for war. The cat lay still, but Gautier read again in her eyes:

"No doubt, though green, the chicken must be good to eat."

Suddenly her back was arched, and with one superb bound she was on the perch, when the parrot screamed out:

"Have your breakfast, Jack?"

Pussy was almost frightened out of her wits. She cast an anxious glance at her master, leaped down and hid under the bed, from which no threat or caress could bring her out for the day.—Our Dumb Animals.

—One of the most interesting of the specimens of counterfeit notes in the possession of the chief of the secret service division is a twenty-dollar bill of good appearance, accurate in size and perfect in general effect when viewed at a short distance. A very close inspection of the note reveals the fact that every line in vignette, lathe work, seal, lettering and border, is the stroke of a pen or paint-brush, and the note is entirely produced by hand.—Boston Herald.

HAIR RENEWER

Was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its original color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have yet equaled the elegance and perfection of the hair and scalp. Having been known for years, it is now in every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to the fact that it does what it claims to do, and what other hair preparations do not. It restores the hair to its youthful color by supplying the coloring matter which is lacking in the hair. It prevents the hair from falling out, stops its premature decay, and stimulates the growth of new hair. It contains no poisonous or injurious drugs, and is the most elegant hair dressing in use. It gives the hair a soft, glossy appearance, and does not soil the most delicate head dress. It is not a dye, but a hair food, and will not stain the skin. It is not sticky or greasy, but a most elegant and agreeable dressing for the hair. It is warranted to do all that is claimed for it, and to be free from all injurious properties. Price, $1 per bottle, or six bottles for $5, delivered to express office. Sold by druggists and dealers in medicines everywhere.

How Watch Cases are Made.

The many great improvements introduced in the manufacture of the Jas. Boss' Gold Watch Case, have led to similar improvements in the making of silver cases.

Under the old methods, each part of a silver case was made of several pieces of metal soldered together, requiring a great amount of cutting and soldering, which softened the metal and gave it the pliability of lead rather than the elasticity of silver.

Under the improved methods, each part of the Keystone Silver Watch Case is made of one solid piece of metal hammered into shape. The advantages are readily apparent, for every one knows that hammering hardens the metal while soldering softens it.

To test the superiority of the Keystone Silver Watch Case, take one of 3 oz. weight, press it squarely in the center when closed, and it will not give, while a case of same weight of any other make will give enough to break the crystal. The Keystone Silver Watch Case is made only with silver cap and gold joints.

Send 3 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

SCROFULA.

A remedy that can destroy the germs of scrofula, and when once settled has the power to root it out, must be appreciated by those afflicted. The remarkable cures of young children and the more wonderful cures of those of middle age and late in life, as illustrated by our printed testimonials, prove Hood's SARSAPARILLA to be a reliable remedy containing remedial agents which do positively cure scrofula and eradicate it from the blood.

WARNER, N. H., Jan. 21, 1879.

Messrs. C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.: Gentlemen—For ten years previous to the early part of 1877 I had been a constant sufferer from scrofulous ulcers or sores, which had greatly reduced me to a helpless condition, as described in my letter to you in September of that year. The continued excellent health which enables me to keep house for my aged father and to enjoy life, keeps alive my intense personal interest in Hood's SARSAPARILLA, and I cannot refrain from expressing my gratitude for the permanent cure this wonderful medicine effected in my case nearly two years ago, while living in Lowell, when all my physicians gave me up as being in an incurable condition. One thing before I close. I have recommended your Sarsaparilla to hundreds, and I think more than a thousand cases, and my faith in its invincibility in curing scrofula has become absolute by the wonderful cures it has effected aside from my own. I trust you will not be slow in making the merits of Hood's SARSAPARILLA known everywhere, for it is a duty you owe to mankind. With best wishes I remain very truly yours,

CONGRESS.

BILLS were introduced and referred in the Senate on the 5th: To promote Ulysses S. Grant, late General of the Army of the United States, upon the retired list of the army; to provide for the adjustment of the accounts of laborers, workmen and mechanics, arising under the eight-hour law; to declare a forfeiture of the lands granted the New Orleans, Baton Rouge & Vicksburg railroad. The Senate resumed consideration of the shipping bill, but, without action, adjourned. In the House, Mr. Rosecrans, from the Military Committee, reported a resolution directing the committee to investigate the present management of soldiers' homes; placed on calendar. Bills were introduced and referred: Authorizing the appointment of three commissioners to visit the principal countries of South and Central America and Mexico, for the purpose of collecting information looking to the extension of American trade and commerce; to establish a branch soldiers' home in Michigan; granting the right of way through the Indian Territory to the Kansas Central Railway Company. The Senate amendment to the House bill repealing the ironclad oath was concurred in. The bill for the relief of Fitz-John Porter, with the Senate amendments, was taken from the Speaker's table, and on motion of Mr. Slocum the Senate amendments were non-concurred in. The Senate amendments to the bill establishing a bureau of animal industry were non-concurred in. Adjourned.

MESSAGES from the House were received in the Senate on the 8th announcing non-concurrence in the Senate amendments to the pleuro-pneumonia bill, and the Fitz-John Porter bill; committees of conference were appointed. The House bill granting pensions to soldiers of the Mexican war was reported favorably with an amendment and placed on calendar. The shipping bill was taken up. Several amendments were rejected, and its consideration completed in Committee of the Whole. The House bill was then taken from the table, and with but slight debate amended to correspond with the bill just agreed to, and passed. Pending discussion on a motion for the appointment of a committee of conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses, the Senate adjourned. The House passed the Senate joint resolution in regard to the ceremonies to be authorized for the completion of the Washington monument. Bills were reported and referred to the Committee of the Whole, providing for the revision, improvement and amendment of the laws relating to patents, and authorizing the appointment of a Missouri River commission. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the State of the Union. The bill appropriating $1,000,000 for the celebration of the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition at New Orleans was taken up. After an amendment had been agreed to, providing that the sum appropriated shall not be paid until $500,000 had been contributed to the Exposition, the committee rose and the bill passed—yeas 132, nays 87. Adjourned.

THE Chair laid before the Senate on the 9th a resolution by Mr. Van Wyck, directing the Secretary of the Treasury to withhold the patents for lands on the Puyallup branch of the Northern Pacific Railroad until Congress decides the question of forfeiture of such lands; placed on calendar. The Senate then took up the Indian Appropriation bill and Mr. Dawes explained its provisions. Pending debate on an amendment offered by Mr. Hawley, making the amount appropriated for education in Alaska $25,000 instead of $15,000 as allowed by the House, the Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned. The House passed the bill granting an additional pension to the widow of General Francis P. Blair. It grants her $5,000 for her husband's services in organizing troops and increases her pension to $50 a month. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the private calendar. Bills for the relief of certain citizens of Henderson, Tenn., for property destroyed and assessments made during the war, were debated at length, but without action the committee rose. The Speaker laid before the House a communication from the Secretary of War recommending an additional appropriation of $500,000 for the relief of sufferers by the flood in the lower Mississippi Valley. The evening session was occupied in the consideration of pension bills. Adjourned until the 12th.

IN the Senate on the 10th the Chair appointed Messrs. Miller, of California, and Pendleton as visitors to the next annual examination of the Naval Academy. The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the Pension bill, pending debate on which the proceedings were suspended to permit the attendance of the Senators at the inveiling of the statue to Chief Justice Marshall. On the return of the Senators to the Chamber the Senate adjourned. The House was not in session.

THE Garfield Monument Association at Cleveland, O., have received forty-three designs for the Garfield monument, of which eleven are models and thirty-three drawings. These designs are from France, Italy, Germany, England and the United States. Each design has a motto or mark to identify the artist and his work, and is accompanied by a sealed envelope bearing a similar motto or mark and containing the artist's name. The designs will therefore be examined and passed upon without knowing the name of the artist who made it. Arrangements for their examination are now being made by the trustees, and it is not expected a decision will be reached for several weeks.

BY the explosion of a locomotive in the round house of the Missouri Pacific Railroad at Parsons, Kan., on the 9th, two men were blown through the roof and instantly killed, another fatally injured and several severely hurt. A portion of the building was demolished.

AT the convention of Southern Baptists at Baltimore on the 9th, George W. Norton, of Kentucky, was re-elected Treasurer, and Nimrod Long, of Kentucky, was re-elected Auditor. Dr. Burrows offered a resolution to raise $100,000 to relieve religious destitution among the whites of the South.

THE Cincinnati Price Current publishes a statement of the condition of winter wheat as follows: Ohio 87, Indiana 90, Illinois 75, Missouri 100, Kansas 105, Michigan 90, Kentucky 95, Tennessee 100, West Virginia 95; average condition of the entire winter crop 96, against 82 last year. The season is backward but the growth is now progressing favorably. Spring seeding is nearly completed in Dakota and Northern Minnesota under favorable conditions, and further south wheat has made a promising start in growth. The area is somewhat increased. The winter wheat crop is estimated at 350,000,000 bushels against a production of 294,400,000 bushels last year, and the spring growth outlook is 135,000,000 bushels against 125,000,000 bushels last year.

Spring Without Blossoms.

Late in Life to Look for Joy—Yet Never too Late to Mend.

Readers of Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables" will recall the pathos with which poor Clifford Pyncheon, who had been unjustly imprisoned since his early manhood, said, after his release: "My life is gone, and where is my happiness? Oh! give me my happiness." But that could be alone only in part, as gleams of warm sunshine occasionally fall across the gloom of a New England autumn day.

In a letter to Messrs. Hiscox & Co., Mr. E. H. Titus, of Pennington, N. J., says: "I have suffered untold misery from chills and from chronic disease of the bowels and diarrhœa, accompanied by pain. I sought relief at the hands of physicians of every school, and used every patent and doctor's remedy under the sun. I have at last found in PARKER'S TONIC a complete specific, preventive and cure. All your invaluable medicine, which did for me what nothing else could do, is entitled to the credit of my getting back my happy days, cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge the fact."

Mr. E. S. Welsh, who needs no introduction to the people of Jersey City, adds: "The testimonial of Mr. Titus is genuine and voluntary; only he does not adequately portray the suffering he has endured for many years. He is my brother-in-law, and I know the case well. He is now perfectly free from his old troubles, and enjoys health and life, ascribing it all to PARKER'S TONIC."

COMPANY C'S BENEFIT.

The Dramatic Entertainment given by Company C. was greeted with a full house on Tuesday evening and deserved a better house last evening. Both plays were good ones and they were very creditably presented. When a play is cast well, the battle is half won, and Mr. Chapman showed excellent judgment in casting the characters. When all performed their parts so well, it might seem invidious to single out any one for special praise but we cannot refrain from saying a good word in behalf of the ladies. The characters assumed by them were very finely presented. Michael Erle carried the leading role in the first play admirably, as he always does. The Marble Statue was one of the best after pieces ever put on the boards in this village, and every part from Old Squintum to Jake was acted in a manner worthy of professionals. The play abounds in comical situations. Mr. Chapman and the members of Co. C. have every reason to feel gratified at the successful character of the entertainment. In the matter of finances we hope the boys will do better next time.

The 24th annual convention of the Mich. State Sunday School Association will be held in Ionia, Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday, June 17th, 18th and 19th. A very interesting program has been arranged, and the aid of several well known S. S. workers secured. A full attendance of S. S. workers from every part of the state is earnestly desired, and a cordial invitation is extended to all.

The dismissal of Miss Emma Hall from the Industrial Home at Adrian is causing considerable comment. Her administration of the institution has been very successful so far as the public could judge, and the public are entitled to know the real reasons which controlled the action of the Board in asking for her resignation. Four other teachers in the Home have resigned. The summary action of the Board needs explanation.

Misses Howell, Hardy & Todd of Adrian, accompanied by C. T. Geddes and W. W. Todd came over to Tecumseh last Saturday in the saddle. It was a pleasant ride and the young ladies were not at all fatigued by the journey. They halted at the Lilley House for dinner. Mr. and Miss Todd returned the same afternoon but owing to the threatened rain the remainder of the party stopped over night and rode home the next morning.

The present village council is taking hold of the work with energy, business tact and success. The finances of the corporation are on a sound basis, and the ordinary expenses for the current year will not be large. Why would'nt it be a good time to inaugurate and carry through some improvement of a permanent character? How much would it cost to lay a good block pavement on Chicago street between Pearl and Ottawa? This would certainly be a most desirable improvement, and if it did not entail too heavy an outlay, it would be a feasible one too.

Tuesday morning's Jackson Patriot says: "The case against Henry Holcomb was called at 2 P. M., Monday, in Justice Hunt's office, but was continued to Thursday next, at the same time. The prosecuting attorney stated that he was not in health to proceed to trial at once, and that there were some minor matters that had not yet been arranged. Mr. Richard Montgomery, of Montgomery Bros., attorneys, of Lansing, appeared for the defence and concurred in the postponement. As a matter of professional courtesy, Mr. Hewlett himself looked up the proofs in the case, some of them unsigned, and furnished them to Mr. Montgomery, who returned to Lansing at 4:10 in the afternoon."

The Morenci fire company will soon have new uniforms.

The click of the lawn mower is now heard on the lawn.

There are seven combination gas machines now in use in Hudson.

Cambridge pays a bounty of twenty cents each on woodchuck scalps.

S. W. Cadman of Raisin drew the Organ at De Puy's candy store. His No was 75.

Round trip tickets over the Lake Shore to Adrian on Tuesday next will cost but 50cts.

Dr. M. H. Snyder, of Marshall, spent a short time with his brother Dr. B. F. Snyder, of this village, last week.

Tong Lee's new laundry on Pearl street is now in full operation and he is prepared to washee for Melican man cheap.

Baker & Hall are touching up the front of their store with a fresh coat of paint, that it may harmonize with the new plate glass windows.

L. F. Wheeler has taken two fine landscape views for B. J. Bidwell, one of his residence and one of his business block. They are both beauties.

A. S. Hayden, accompanied by Messrs. Kelly, Vescelius and Whitmarsh, of Milan, visited Tecumseh Lodge, No. 69, F. & A. M., last Friday evening.

Special meeting of Tecumseh Lodge, No. 69, F. & A. M., on Friday evening May 23d. Work in the 3d. degree. Let there be a full attendance of the members.

E. C. Smith and wife, of Toledo, spent Sunday in Tecumseh as the guests of C. M. Burlingame. Ed is still gathering in freight for the Canada Southern.

Tong Lee has given us a copy of the Chinese newspaper which he takes. It is about half the size of the HERALD, resembles the out side of a tea chest in appearance and costs only $5.00 per year.

E. G. Wilson, W. J. Holdridge, and C. B. Luce of Raisin, were appointed a committee to purchase a road machine. After examining several kinds they decided in favor of the Pennock and bought one of that make.

The Wood mower is becoming as popular wherever tried as the Wood binder has. It is cheap, durable and does its work well in heavy and lodged grass. Met Conklin is selling a large number of these mowers this season.

P. S. McKinnon, who fills the position of book-keeper for H. Brewer & Co., has purchased a type-writer and will soon write his business letters in the modern style. Mr. McKinnon fits his new position admirably and has proven himself to be a valuable acquisition to the firm.

The annual report of the village treasurer is printed in to-days paper, from which it will be seen that the village finances are in a sound condition. Not a dollar of indebtedness and several hundred dollars in the treasury. Would it not be a good time now to pave Chicago street from Pearl to Ottawa?

The Readings by Miss Sarah Young at the Baptist church last Friday evening was a success in every respect except financially. Good judges pronounced it to be one of the best entertainments of the kind ever given in this village. It is to be regretted that the committee did not realize a good profit from the venture.

Mr. B. J. Collar's music business is having a very gratifying boom at present. Among his sales this week is an Upright Grand, of the Sohmer make, to Mr. Ira Z. Mason, on College avenue, Adrian, a Square Grand to Mr. H. N. Swartz, of Canandaigua and a Square Grand to Mr. Beardsell, proprietor of Devil's Lake landing, for his Summer House.

The Manchester Enterprise says: Our street commissioner has been doing some fine work on the streets the past week with a patent road machine. Several streets have been turnpiked and put in first-class condition with it. More work has been done already than could have been accomplished in a whole season with plow and scraper, and it has been better done. Such a machine should be owned by the township, as with it the roads throughout the country could be put in splendid shape, and at one quarter the expense of the present way.

John N. Foster, Superintendent of the State Public School at Coldwater, gave us a call last week. He is spending two or three months this summer in traveling about among the former inmates of the school and upon the parents and friends of the present inmates. He came to Tecumseh for that purpose and went from here to Palmyra and Grange, on a similar errand. The School has lately adopted the plan of securing good homes for the inmates of the institution as rapidly as possible, and thus the membership there is kept at a minimum and there is always room for new comers. Families without children, who may wish to adopt a child, will find it to their advantage to correspond with Supt. Foster on the subject. Their wants can soon be supplied from the State School.

The arrangements are progressing favorably for a fine celebration here on Decoration day. The Manchester band and a drum corps have been procured, and Rev G. W. Hudson, of this village will deliver the address. The full program of exercises will appear next week.

If the young girls who are in the habit of flirting with strangers on the streets, could only hear the remarks these wolves make when in conversation with each other, we are of the opinion that some of them would hang their heads in shame. This will apply to every town in the state.—Detroit Journal.

EDITOR HERALD:—I notice, your Holloway Correspondent claims the victory over the College nine in the game played here on May 3d. The game played was the result of a challenge from the College boys to the Seminary boys, and was played by past and present students of the Seminary; with one exception, four of the players belong to the Holloway nine, and made five of the nine talleys, and were without exception good players, thus helping us to win a victory that would have been doubtful without their aid. But the game as played does not belong to the Holloway nine.
Respectfully, FAIR PLAY.

A CORRECTION.

A letter received from Matthew Boyd, of Mancelona, Mich., takes exceptions to the communication of "B" in the HERALD of May 1st., wherein "B" speaks disparagingly of Northern Michigan. Mr. Boyd has lived in Northern Michigan several months and speaks very highly of the prospects in that section. He claims that they have just as good farming land as any in Lenawee County, and that all the staple crops such as corn, oats, wheat, hay, etc., yeild just as well as in Southern Michigan. Mr. Boyd was quite indignant over the statements made by "B" in his communication and asks that they be corrected. As we have no personal knowledge of the facts, one way or the other, we deem it but just that both sides should have the chance to present their case.

MARRIAGE BELLS.

Tecumseh society has been exercised over two matrimonial events during the past week.

On Thursday evening the 8th inst. Mr. Arthur E. Kennedy and Miss Emma A. Satterthwaite were married at the residence of the bride, by Rev. J. Phelps. People have indulged in surmises for some months, but the exact date had been kept a profound secret, and Dame Rumer was cheated out of her usual preliminary gossip on such occasions. No invitations were issued to the wedding, but "at home" cards were transmitted to their friends after the event. The bride and groom both have a large circle of friends here, where they have resided from childhood, who will unite with us in extending our warmest congratulations, and a hearty wish that their matrimonial voyage, so quietly and auspiciously begun, may be a long and happy one.

Last evening Mr. T. D. McKinney was united in marriage with Miss Vesta Freeman at the residence of the bride's mother. The knot was tied by Rev. Mr. Phelps in his happiest manner, and a large and brilliant party of friends enjoyed the occasion. Many handsome bridal gifts were bestowed, which evidenced the esteem in which the bride is held by all who know her. And she has chosen well. The groom is a favorite among our young men and has gained a good place in his chosen occupation. May their future life be as bright as their present prospects are, is the wish of all their friends.

FARMERS' SOCIAL CLUB.

Friday afternoon, April 25th, the Farmers' Social Club met at the residence of Jacob Everhart. It being a very busy time the attendance was not large, but fair. The business of the meeting was carried out in proper order. The reading by R. B. Gillespie was a good selection, and well read. The essay by Mrs. J. W. Gillespie was one that had been read previously before a small meeting of the club and contained so many good points, that it was deemed well worthy of a second reading. The music was a good selection and well rendered by Miss Anna Everhart. The first part of the Question, "does it pay to harrow wheat in the spring" did not elicit very much interest as none of the members had had much experience in harrowing wheat. The latter part of the question, "what are the most profitable crops to raise a spring crops" elicited considerable interest; but most of the members were of the opinion that corn and oats were the most profitable, and all things considered corn must take the lead. After partaking of an excellent repast the club adjourned to meet at the residence of F. C. Rector, Friday afternoon, May 23d, at 2 P. M., sharp. All are cordially invited. Program for the May meeting is as follows:
Instrumental music—Eva Rector.
Essay—Mrs. F. V. Horton.
Select reading—Emma Schreder.
Vocal music—Minnie Rector, Lizzie Henderson.
Question—What state of maturity is the best time to cut hay for the best results.
F. V. HORTON, Sec'y.

THE OLD GLOBE MILLS.

THE GROWTH AND PRESENT CONDITION OF WILLIAM HAYDEN'S SPLENDID MILL PROPERTY.

How Modern Flour is Made and the Business of a Modern Flouring Mill.

Located on Chicago turnpike near the eastern boundaries of the corporation, is the old Globe Mill property owned and controlled by our enterprising townsman, William Hayden. The inception of this enterprise was due to Stillman Blanchard one of Tecumseh's pioneers, who in the summer of 1836, associated with himself Messrs. Russell & Gardner of Troy, N. Y., purchased six hundred acres of land, sufficient to control the necessary water privileges, and erected the building. The mill was finished in 1839, and cost with real estate, about forty thousand dollars. It proved an unfortunate investment, however, for its projectors, who lost nearly all their property in the venture. In 1847 it passed into the hands of Baylis & Newkirk who ran the mill until 1857. In 1858 Mr. Hayden, the present proprietor bought the property at a bargain, and immediately placed it on a sound financial basis. Mr. Hayden belonged to the original "Forty-niners" who went overland to California in that year. Upon his return he bought an interest in a mill at Jackson with H. A. Hayden, which he sold to purchase this property in 1858. His practical experience in milling at Jackson gave him a good training for the business and he entered upon his new field here fully equipped for the successful career which has awaited him. The theory upon which he has built up the business has been, 1st. To make a first-class mill. 2d, To employ first-class assistants, and keep them.

The water power is one of the best in Southern Michigan. The volume of water is abundant and it has sixteen feet fall. There are three water wheels, one immense overshot, one American turbine, and one Leffel turbine, and the machinery is so arranged as to be run by any one or two of these wheels, should the third one be temporarily disabled from any cause.

The building itself is a massive frame structure with a heavy stone foundation. It is fifty by seventy feet in size with a full basement story and five floors above. The office rooms are in a separate addition at the east end of the building. As fast as new milling machinery appears in the market, it has been utilized in the mill, and Mr. Hayden has always led the van in the introduction of all modern improvements. He was the second miller in Michigan to adopt the Stevens roller process. The mill at present is furnished with the best bolts, cleaners, purifiers, burrs, rolls, etc., which this country can produce. There are seven set of double and two set of single rolls. Besides these are four of the old style burrs which are used for the reduction of middlings. The rollers convert about sixty per cent. of the wheat into flour directly. Then the reduction of the middlings produces the patent process flour, which is the ne plus ultra of good milling. Herein is demonstrated the difference between strong red wheat and white wheat. The best grade of Minnesota red wheat will produce over thirty per cent. of patent flour. Clawson will produce about fifteen per cent. of patent.—The two latest inventions introduced are a weigher which is attached to the first set of rolls, and a tallying device attached to the packer. The wheat is weighed when first taken in, then weighed again as it passes thro' the weigher into the rolls, then the flour is measured exactly when conveyed into the packer. Thus it can be ascertained to the fraction of a pound the exact amount of flour which any particular variety of wheat will produce. By this process the miller can tell the exact value of any particular kind of wheat, by the price which the flour will bring in the market. Strong red wheat flour will command $2.00 per barrel more in the Irish market than flour made from Clawson wheat. One of the special "tricks of the trade" and the one requiring the most practical skill is the mixing of red and white wheat in the same lot of flour. Mr. Hayden is continually experimenting in this direction, and some of his most popular brands of flour have been obtained from mixing Minnesota red with Michigan white. In addition to the wheat which is bought at home, large quantities, to the amount of several hundred car loads yearly, are imported from other sections of Michigan and from the western states. The capacity of the mill is now over three hundred barrels per day. Two thousand barrels are frequently turned out between Monday morning and Saturday night.

A word in regard to the employees in the mill. The policy of the proprietor in employing none but first-class men and keeping them has been a wise one. Mr. Jeremiah Root, the business manager and bookkeeper, has filled his present position nearly twenty years, and has been frequently rewarded with an increase of salary. The entire business of the institution moves along like clock work, guided by his methodical hand. The head miller, Geo. S. Wilson, has been 'boss' of the workmen nearly sixteen years and the names of many of the subordinate workmen have graced the pay rolls for more than fifteen years. To the skill and fidelity of his employees, the proprietor attributes, in no small degree, his business success. About twenty hands are constantly employed.

The first year of Mr. Hayden's ownership he shipped out 7000 barrels of flour and bought 5000 bushels of wheat in addition to what was purchased at home. His trade for several years embraced the local sales proper, and shipments to different towns in New York and New England. In 1878 he shipped his first consignment of flour across the Atlantic. For the past five years a large portion of the mill's product has been sold to one firm, J. & E. J. Tighe of Sligo, Ireland. In addition to the flour sold in this vicinity, that firm took the following number of barrels in the first four months of this year:

Jan.—eighteen shipments	5090	barrels.
Feb.—eight "	2355	"
March—twenty-one "	5995	"
April—seventeen "	5136	"

This sketch, although imperfect will give our readers some idea of the mill's workings and capacity. May the burrs and rolls continue to go round each week from Monday morning till Saturday night, and may the shadow of the old "Globe Mill" never grow less.

The Mich. and Ohio R. R. will sell round trip tickets from the following named stations, on Monday May 19th, to those wishing to go to Toledo to attend the Great Forepaugh Show. Fun for the Boys.

At the conclusion of the morning services at the Cathedral Sunday, in Cleveland, a gentleman faultlessly attired in broadcloth and wearing a carefully-brushed silk hat emerged from the church, and, crossing the street to where a number of newsboys and bootblacks were assembled, employed one of the young arabs to black his boots. When the job was accomplished he reached in his pocket and threw the boy a quarter. A newsboy, noticing the gentleman's generosity, ran up and asked him to buy a paper.

"How much do you want for the whole bundle?" asked the stranger, favoring the young merchant with a patronizing smile, and thrusting his hand down into his pocket. The boy hesitated, and shifted uneasily from one foot to the other. "Here," said the gentleman, pulling out a handful of small silver coins, "take this and give me your papers." The exchange was quickly made, and the man started down the street with the papers under his arm. He had gone but a few steps, however, when he returned and gave the papers back to the boy. By this time quite a crowd of street urchins had gathered around the two fortunate objects of the gentleman's generosity, and were regarding him with wide-open eyes.

"I was a bootblack once myself, boys," said he, as he beamed down beneficently upon the ragged coated juveniles, "and I know what a hard time you have to get along. I was a bootblack in New York when I was a boy, and got my first start while handling the brush. Now I'm rich and I like to help the poor boys along. Wait here a moment." With that he went into a neighboring cigar store and had several large bills changed into dimes and quarters. Returning with his pockets bulging with their loads of coin, he squared himself before the crowd, which had by this time augmented by the arrival of more newsboys and bootblacks, and exclaimed: "Now, I want to give you all a chance, so stand off a short distance and when I throw the money out why grab for it." The boys did as directed, and the benevolent individual tossed a handful of coin, quarters and dimes, in and about them. Instantly there was a frantic scramble for the money in which several toughs of the spring-bottom-pants-and-short-hair variety joined, and in fact gathered up a good share of the free lucre. The performance was repeated again and again until about fifty dollars worth of change was exhausted. Then, with a parting smile, in which generosity and good-nature mingled, he turned and disappeared down the street. One of the boys collected enough of the coin to aggregate five dollars, and the others gathered in smaller amounts, ranging from four dollars down. The hoodlums did not leave the field to the boys after the first distribution, but remained and took part in all the subsequent scrambles, the gentleman making no objection. The munificent individual was a rich New Yorker and was stopping at one of the principal hotels.—Cleveland Herald.

A Dramatic Incident at Sontay.

The Saigonnais narrates a rather dramatic incident which occurred at the capture of Sontay, and brought the resistance of the besieged to an end. The French Admiral, we are told, had taken his stand on some breast-works which had been thrown up near the fortifications, and was personally directing the operations of the attacking forces. In the very heat of the engagement the fire from the town suddenly slackened and soon ceased altogether. The Viceroy of Yun-Nan, it appears, had always believed Sontay to be an impregnable fortress, and when he heard that the French were marching upon it he set out for the place himself, as he wished to be present to witness their defeat, which he regarded as inevitable. Accompanied by the First Lieutenant, or aid-de-camp, of the Chief of the Black Flags, he went from rank to rank encouraging the soldiers, and at length he found himself facing the French Admiral, who in his exposed position, not quite two hundred yards off, presented an inviting target to the enemy. "You have them before you," said the Viceroy, turning to the young officer, "the chief of these bands of barbarians who have sworn to destroy us. You pass for being a skilled marksman; here is an opportunity of proving yourself deserving of your reputation."

The officer put his rifle to his shoulder and took a steady aim at the Admiral; but before he could pull the trigger he fell mortally wounded on the body of the Viceroy, who was shot through the heart almost at the same moment. The news of their death spread immediately through the ranks; the Black Flags fled for refuge to the citadel; and in less than an hour afterward the French flag was floating over Sontay.—St. James' Gazette.

That Boy.

Almost every father knows about the inquisitive boy, and frequently has occasions to wish his boys were girls. A North Hill farmer began shaving himself in the presence of his four-year-old hopeful. The boy commenced and kept on with a result somewhat as follows:

"What are you doing, papa?"

"Shaving."

"What you shaving for?"

"To get my face clean."

"Why don't you wash your face to get clean? 'At's the way I do."

"I shave to get the hair off."

"What hair?"

"The hair that grows on my face."

"What hair that grows on your face?"

"My whiskers."

"What are whiskers, Papa?"

"Hair that grows on the face."

"What does the whisker hair grow on the face for?"

"I don't know."

"Why don't you know why whisker hairs grow on the face?"

"Because——"

The interview come to a sudden termination. A long gash and flowing blood was the cause, with the sudden departure of Young America in his mother's arms as an incident.—Philadelphia Call.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

—Nearly one-fifth of all the children in Providence, R. I., of school age, did not attend school a single day during the year 1883.

—Alfred Smith, of Newport, has presented to the Channing Church in that city, as a memorial to his wife, the estate No. 29 Key Street, to be used as a parsonage. It is worth about $20,000.—N. Y. Times.

—In Denmark, Bishop Martensen recently examined and ordained two young Esquimaux, who will engage in missionary work in Greenland under the auspices of the State Church of Denmark.

—To the question: "Why did Satan make his approach to Eve and not to Adam?" a religious paper answers: "It may have been because Satan knew that the influence of Eve would be his best help in conquering Adam. Wives are apt to be the most potent pleaders with their husbands.

—It is gratifying to know that the Presbyterian hospital of Philadelphia did not lose anything by its refusal to accept $2,500 from the proceeds of a charity ball. The manager of the institution stood for a principle. Their church pronounced dancing wrong, and they would not accept money that had any suspicion of illegitimacy about it; and an admirer of this spirit has sent the hospital a check for $3,000 to make up the loss.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—The public schools, let it be remembered, send very few out of the large number of criminals in our penitentiaries. Most of them have no education. Very few have had a thorough public school education. The average statistics of the United States show that out of the small per cent. of the people unable to read and write come about one-third of the criminals, and of the remaining two thirds only one in a hundred had been educated in the higher branches.—Journal of Education.

—"In the Cabinet circle all religions meet," says the Washington correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. "The President is a High-Church Episcopalian, although his father was a Baptist preacher, and his sisters are all members of that church. Secretary Folger is a Presbyterian, and sits with the pastor's family in the New York Avenue Church, where Secretary Frelinghuysen and his family, and Postmaster-General Gresham and his family also attend. Secretary Lincoln, like his father, is a Presbyterian, but his wife is from a strong Methodist family, and they generally attend that church. Secretary Chandler and his family go to the Unitarian Church, and are of the advanced and liberal thinkers of that body. Attorney-General Brewster and his wife always worship at the Epiphany, the largest and most fashionable of the Low-Church Episcopal congregations. Secretary Teller and his wife are very devout Methodists."

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—"I could make a fortune if I had a little capital," say numerous young men, but it never occurs to them to go to work and earn the aforesaid capital.

—An Austin man, who has just got out a book of poems, met Gilhooly and the following proceedings were had: "Did you read my new book?" "O, yes, I read it all in the parlor." "My dear sir, I assure you that I laid it aside with a great deal of pleasure."—Texas Siftings.

—W. H. Vanderbilt says he never picks up a newspaper that he doesn't see something disagreeable in it about himself. Lend us a half-dollar, old fellow. There's nothing disagreeable about that. We might have asked for a dollar and a half, but this paper is dissimilar, so to speak.—Merchant Traveller.

—On the wedding tour: "Don't sit so near the window, darling that we may have the carriage all to ourselves, for there is somebody sure to get in if he sees your pretty face." Thirty years later: "Move up to the window, old woman, so we can have the compartment to ourselves; you will frighten all the other passengers away, you know."—Detroit Post.

—A clergyman's daughter, looking over the MSS. left by her father in his study, chanced upon the following sentence: "I love to look upon a young man. There is a hidden potency concealed within his breast which charms and pains me." She sat down and blushingly added: "Them's my sentiments exactly, papa—all but the pains."—Exchange.

—"Statistics show that there are at least 11,000 men who can neither play foot-ball nor assist an objectionable visitor to alight from the front stoop," said a sad-eyed Brooklyn bachelor.

"What is the matter with them?" asked his friend.

"They are one-legged," was the cheerful reply.—N. Y. Journal.

—Is your sister at home?" asked a St Louis young gentleman of the little brother who answered the bell.

"Yes, she's home," said the boy; "we're goin' to have cocoanut pies for dinner to-morrow, and she's out in the kitchen helpin' mother make 'em."

"Indeed," replied the young man, evidently very much pleased, "and what part of the pie does your sister make?"

"She cracks the cocoanuts with her teeth."—Philadelphia Call.

The work of transcribing the records for the new county of Arenac is almost completed.

A quiet agent, with only one mission to fulfill, came into the hands of Mr. Albert Chandler, of Crumpton, Queen Ann Co., Md. He gave it to his father-in-law, Mr. Goodwin, who was suffering with severe Rheumatism. After a trial he wrote: "It is having a wonderful effect in his case. He regards his possession of it as providential. His wonderful change has astonished the community." The remedy is Athlophoros, a natural antidote for the poison and acid in the blood, whose presence is the precursor and cause of Rheumatic and Neuralgic pains and inflammations.

"Oh! if I had only known that in time." Known what? Known that a simple cold in the head may develop into chronic Catarrh. Well, it is not too late, for Ely's Cream Balm will cure catarrh after the sufferer's life has become a burden to him, and he a nuisance to his friends. It is the only radical and thoroughly scientific catarrh cure known. Not a snuff. Not a liquid. Applied to the nostrils with the finger. Price fifty cents.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Mat Lancaster, of Brooklyn, stopped with his father, H. Lancaster, over Sunday.

John Nestelle, of Manchester, called on friends in this town last Saturday.

A large number of Clinton people saw the white elephant.

A good many farmers took advantage of the $1 a bushel that was paid for wheat last week, and a considerable amount of that cereal was marketed in this place.

Miss Lucia Kimball will talk temperance in the Baptist church one week from next Sunday.

The Episcopal society is preparing a play, Boots at the Swan's, and intend to present it at one of their socials to be held in the Town Hall in the near future.

Dr. F. B. Adam, who practiced medicine in this town last year, and who now hails from Ann Arbor, called on his Clinton friends last Sunday.

A. G. Burton is making a fine looking roller and land crusher which seems to take very well among the farmers.

Among the mean excuses that men will make to go to a circus, the meanest one is to lay it on to children and say they went to please them.

Children's day will be appropriately observed by the Congregationalists in this place.

D. Keyes and Solomon Brown went to Adrian yesterday morning.

Rev. Kerridge will talk temperance at his church next Sunday evening, taking as a subject, "What the Bible says about Sobriety."

Our people talk of showing their patriotism by holding the largest 4th of July celebration this town has ever had.

Mr. J. D. Kishpaugh visited his brother Peter last Sunday. Mr. Kishpaugh resides in Raisin.

The band boys will try and raise money for uniforms some time this summer.

Harrison Johnson, whose paralytic stroke was reported in these columns last week, is reported as not having made much improvement since his attack.

Thomas Roper has secured the services of a new barber, who comes from Ypsilanti.

A three horse load, tandem style, drove down from Milan to attend the special meeting of the F. & A. M. last Friday night.

The Methodist church has dispensed with congregational singing, and the people now listen to a new choir.

Dr. J. W. Burchard has returned east for his wife and mother.

Chris Schmitt is repairing and improving the inside of his bakery.

Last Saturday was George Lazell's 55th anniversary in Clinton. This town 55 years ago, he says, contained but 3 or 4 buildings, a few inhabitants, a justice of the peace, and the beautiful farming country surrounding it was a wilderness.

Mrs. Chas. Stoner and her son Eddie, came from Livingston county to visit Ed. Powell in Bridgewater, a few weeks ago, and shortly after arriving here, Eddie was taken sick. After a short but severe illness he died on the 17th inst. and was buried in Clinton the 18th, the funeral services being held at the residence of Mr. Powell.

J. J. White is a model gardener, as well as tailor. One day this week he displayed a bunch of pie-plant, several stalks of which measured over 30 inches.

John Boyce died at his residence in the eastern part of this township last Friday. Funeral services were held at the house last Sunday morning. Mr. Boyce was 89 years old.

Among our citizens who had business in Adrian Tuesday, we noticed E. W. Freese, E. R. Smith, Wm. Silvers, E. Van De Mark, J. B. Hause, Cassius Fisk and Dr. J. W. Burchard.

Rev. Kerridge addressed a large audience at his church last Sunday evening, on John Knox and the Covenanters.

We hear that the council are talking of using a little of the money derived from the saloon licenses in building a sidewalk on Coman street to the cemetery.

Clinton Lodge F. & A. M. held a special meeting last Friday night. We hear that this lodge is considered a fine working one, and at this special meeting, guests to the number of about 60 were present from Manchester, Tecumseh, Brooklyn, Milan, Petersburg and Adrian. They were treated to a bachelors' banquet some time during the evening, expressed themselves as very much pleased with the manner in which they were entertained, and will come again when invited.

The Episcopal social will be held this (Thursday) evening at the residence of B. O. Randall. Ice cream will lead the bill of fare.

The ladies' Baptist social for the election of officers was held last Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Geo. C. Calhoun.

Clinton claims to be one of the best egg markets in this county. Two cents more a dozen have been paid here some days this week, than they were worth in Detroit.

The National Societies of the Baptist denomination are holding their annual session in Detroit. The meetings began Wednesday. Mr. Payne is in attendance.

MACON MOLECULES.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester Coller spent Sunday in Milan, with their son, Jesse.

Rev. Mr. Kerridge gave a lecture Sunday afternoon on "John Knox and the covenanters."

Rev. Mr. Ready, of Hillsdale college, preached at the Baptist church Sunday, morning and evening.

The ladies of the M. E. church met at Henry Miller's last Friday P. M. to form a Ladies' Aid Society. The society was duly organized with an executive committee of five and Miss Estelle Miller as secretary. The society will hold a session every two weeks.

John Henry a much respected citizen of Macon died last week Thursday. The funeral took place at the late residence of the deceased last Sunday.

We have a shoemaker now—a Mr. Parker, from Adrian. We welcome Mr. Parker to our hamlet and trust that he will get many "bad soles to cobble."

What strange notions some Ridgeway people must have! Can't a young lady from that neighborhood visit Macon without being saluted on her return with "Wish you much joy?"—We will say for the benefit of the curious of that vicinity that hymen has not of late played any of his tricks in our midst.

RIDGEWAY RACKET.

The old cottage house on North st. has taken a location next Dr. Nelson's lot and will be made into a public hall.

The genial face of Samuel Sharp is again to be seen at the P. O. If permanent arrangements could be made for him to remain the public would be much better accommodated at the post office.

Rev. G. W. Hudson, of Tecumseh, will exchange pulpits with our minister next Sunday morning.

The next meeting of the Literary Society will be held Friday evening. The committee have arranged one of the best programs that can be produced, leaving out the debate which usually protracts the meetings to an unsatisfactory length.

Rev. D. R. Shire, of Hudson, will address the friends of temperance reform in the lecture room of the M. E. church next Wednesday evening.—His purpose will be first to work up the interest of the Alliance of which he will fully explain the workings and present objects, collect dues, &c., and second, organize, if thought best, a Union club in the interest of legal prohibition. All who desire to understand the present status of the temperance question should be present.

ONSTED ODDS.

Corn planting is nearly over and we are now ready for some warmer weather.

Carpenters commenced work on a house for Wm. Onsted, on Monday last.

Quite a number from this place took advantage of the reduced rates, last Monday, and went to Toledo.

Philo Lonsburg, of Reed City, formerly a resident of this township, has been visiting friends here.

Chauncy Cooper has been making repairs on his house. Frank Jenkins, a painter from Tipton, is there putting on the finishing touches.

FLASHES BY C. T. LINE.

Geo. Bangs went to Detroit yesterday and will return Thursday.

One year ago to-day occurred the big snow storm long to be remembered.

Manager Bowen now sends sun time over the line at 8 o'clock P. M., an arrangement which is quite convenient for most of the operators.

David Carson has gone to work for Passmore, in the hotel.

Atwater Mangas has a new swarm of bees out already this spring, something unusual.

S. P. Sheldon, who has been wrestling with the mumps and fever, is able to be out again.

N. M. Sutton has planted 75 acres of corn with a check row planter.

Asher Wilson has 11 acres of potatoes planted and 15,000 cabbage for the early market. He is to the front as boss gardener.

John Burtless, of Franklin, took the M. & O. Monday for Battle Creek. He goes to negotiate for a new threshing separator. John proposes to have a threshing out-fit second to none.

Monday evening, C. T. Line operators were startled by fire! fire! fire! coming over the line. On further inquiry it proved a false alarm, it being reported that Chaplin's rake factory had taken fire.

Meterological report from observations taken at Tecumseh station, by L. G. North M. D., for the week ending Tuesday morning May 20th, 1884

Maximum thermometer, Monday 79°
Minimum thermometer, Tuesday 38°
Rain .80 inches.
Prevailing winds, S. W.
Barometric range, .47 inches.
Maximum Barometer, Friday, 29.20 inches.
Minimum Barometer, Monday, 28.73 inches.

The low barometer occurred Monday morning, preceding the rain. It should be remembered that a meterological day begins and ends at 7 A. M.

TIPTON TATTLE.

At the re-organization of the M. E. Sunday School the following named persons were elected:

Supt.—Abram DeLong
Asst. Supt.—Mrs. Julia Fridd.
Secretary—William Smith.
Treasurer—Mrs. Hattie Hanford.
Librarian—Chas. Kemp.
Organist—Mrs. Josie Kemp,
Choister—John W. VanVolkenburg.

Rev. Van Anthrop of Morenci preached in the Congregational church last Sabbath evening, but according to rumor Rev. Mr. Brown of Kalamazoo is soon to fill its regular pastorate.

Mr. Camburn at the age of nearly 90 years is often seen walking on the streets. He seems to think that his growing infirmities result largely from the fact that he ceased work.

Several cases of mumps in this vicinity are being administered among the juveniles with a full allowance of severity.

Mr. Knight having lingered on the sick list for some weeks is evidently improving.

Mr. Billington's new building is about finished.

Mr. Hanford is repairing his barn.

Fruit trees are splendidly flowered.

The funeral services of Pliny Stout were held in the M. E. church by the pastor last sabbath. The deceased came to his death by a rupture caused by a sudden strain to save himself when falling a few days before. Pliny was only twenty years of age, possessed an amiable disposition, cultivated commendable habits and adorned himself with a most excellent character. He met death without a fear regarding his future, for he was ready for the final hour. The congregation at the funeral was the largest seen in this village for a long time.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

Befuddling the understanding is a game which has been played successfully the entire week, and was nicely illustrated Saturday evening at Union Hall, by Harvey the magician. Notwithstanding his explanations, first illusions melted into others, and swallowing cages full of birds or transforming water into wine, appeared as reasonable to the eyes as a self multiplying story of Crouch vineyard to the public ear. In his hands seeming-and being were affiliated sufficiently to produce evanishment of imagination, and if he had been entrusted with that blue box of papers they would have slipped so deftly into the vacuums of no-where that no process of canning could hive them either for burial or resurrection. Just as he is, he isn't; and could be a friend of priceless value to heroes at the great farm.

Mrs. Ambler died early Sunday morning. She has lived near seventy-seven years, and most of that time has been connected with the Baptist church. She will be missed by ministers and missionaries, as well as her family and neighbors. Whoever came to lend a helping hand, in the name of humanity, was ever made welcome to her home, and memory of church and ministers remained after all else faded.

The Clinton Blue Lodge entertained a large number of visiting brethren from Tecumseh, Milan, Manchester and Brooklyn last Friday evening. Five Masters were in attendance and one hundred and twenty brothers. After the third degree meeting was concluded, a bountiful repast was served in the dining room. The Clinton Masons never do anything by halves. The entire affair did credit to the entertainers and was heartily enjoyed by the entertained.

THE SALOON BOND QUESTION.

So much has been said and written concerning the action of the Village Council in regard to the acceptance of the liquor bonds, that as a member of the council, I beg leave through your columns to make a brief statement of my action in the matter, and the motive that actuated me in so doing. In this article I shall notice particularly the editorial contained in the last issue of "The Baptist Home" bearing on this subject.

I claim to be a temperance man. I hate the liquor traffic in all its horrid details, from the bottom of my heart, and believe it to be the curse of the world; the source of nearly all the crime and poverty in the land. I would strike as hard blows, at the right place, the source of the evil, for its abolition, as any man living. But I have ceased to revile and ostracize men engaged in selling liquor made legal by the government. My action in this matter was based on equal justice to all men, on the broad platform of humanitarianism. I believe we are wholly creatures of education and circumstances, and should exercise the broadest charity toward each other. If charity was extended to the erring by those claiming to be gospel temperance people, to the extent it was by Him whom they call Master and profess to follow, and strike at the fountain head of intemperance, instead of at the men appointed to carry it on, their influence would be more widely felt and the cause of temperance would receive an impetus. I believe there are but few men found among the liquor dealers, if treated as men, and uniformly approached in a spirit of kindness and reasoned with as men, not brutes, but what would acknowledge the evil of their business, and in time would fall into the temperance ranks and work might and main for its abolition. But with their business persistently assailed, and the government receiving one of its chief sources of revenue from it, they array themselves against you, just as you would do under similar circumstances. This man is just as much your brother, if there is any truth in Christianity, as the man sanctified and washed in the blood of the lamb, and you should be more solicitous about his welfare, particuly as regards the future. Just so long as you stand rapped up in robes of self-rightousness and say "stand back thou unholy one," you may expect a determined opposition to temperance and the movement retarded. Treat him like a brother and you will heap coals of fire on his head.

I believe that every member of the council acted out his honest convictions, uninfluenced, basing their action on the principle that this traffic is legalized by the government, and no council in equity, has a right to reject bonds presented to them with unexceptionable security. There was but one disenting vote, cast by Mr. Adams. He voted his honest sentiment, the same as the rest of us did. I respect him for it. I respect every man's opinion, no matter how differing from mine, if he is honest in it. It is said in this article that the bonds were acted upon at a special meeting called for another purpose entirely, which is true. They were presented at this special meeting and disposed of, the same as any other business would have been had it been brought before us. It was certainly a more fitting occasion for action than at the regular meeting when you had made every preparation to storm the fort, and force the council to carry out your ideas.

I will state here that I voted for the rejection of the bonds at this regular meeting and offered the resolution for an indefinite postponement for the very purpose of having more time to think about it. It is further said that one of the opposition members was absent not having received notice through the P. O., inferring that the transaction was underhanded and preconcerted. This member was Mr. Bresie, who called on me the day following and expressed his regrets and disappointment at not being present, and seemed to think something was wrong that he did not get a notice. But he said emphatically that if he had been there he would have voted with us, and heartily endorsed the action of the council. Again, that our action was based on the supposition that the closing of the saloons would be detrimental to the business interests. This I deny so far as I am concerned. I do not believe it would have effected business at all. If I had believed it right to vote for the rejection of the bonds I would have done so if it had knocked business into a cocked hat. I wouldn't give a picayune for a man, afraid to act out and speak his honest convictions on any subject when occasion calls for it, regardless of his business.

The council are determined to prosecute any saloon-keeper that violates the law, if sufficient evidence can be obtained to make out a case. We have performed out duty towards them conscientiously, and we expect and demand that they conduct their business strictly within the bounds of the law.

THE SLUGGARD SLUGGED.

[illegible]

ON A RUNAWAY TRAIN.

Probably no occupation is subject to greater perils, no life more filled with incidents natural in a moments time to develop the dangerous and thrilling experiences than that of a locomotive engineer, and no death is so sudden, or it may be, even, so protracted and horrible in suffering, as that which often falls to the lot of these heroes of the throttle and the lever.

The incident which I am about to relate will serve to illustrate some of the dangers to which I have referred.

It was a sultry day, and tired of my long ride westward, and the heat and confinement of the cars, I took the opportunity, while the train waited for connections, to walk along the road to refresh myself. As I was strolling by the engine, an unusually fine one, I stopped to admire it, and presently began a conversation with the engineer, who seemed good-humored and friendly, and whom I perceived to be a very intelligent man. Seeing my interest in his engine, he presently invited me to take a seat in the cab; and during the half hour we were compelled to wait at the station he gave me many practical points of his vocation, concluding with the following narrative of an experience, without a parallel, so far as I know, in the annals of life on the rail. He said:

"In the summer of '72 I was promoted to passenger engine 49, the same we are in now. It was, and is still, one of the finest and fastest engines on the line. The road had then been built only two or six years, but was already doing a large freight and passenger business.

"The division that I ran over was a long one—a hundred and twenty miles. The 'crews' called it the 'ridge,' because it was up grade from both ends to nearly the middle. The grade was pretty heavy for a part of the way, so when there happened to be a long train an extra engine, called a 'helper,' was ordered out to help the regular engine up the grade. At the top was a lake and a sidetrack where helpers usually took a breather. It was the duty of 49 to take the westbound express over this division.

"One evening there happened to be several coaches of excursionists beside the regular train, and consequently an extra engine, but not the regular 'helper,' as it happened, had been ordered up to help me over the grade. I felt rather uneasy when I saw 'No. 14' back down and couple on in front of me.

"No. 14 was a very good engine, as good as any on the road for power, weight and speed, but she was in charge of an engineer whom I distrusted, Dick Rogers, a large, heavy, but fast and headstrong man, much too fond of liquor. He went on his 'sprees' when off duty, and so had been allowed to keep his place; but it was whispered among the 'boys,' that he had had touches of tremens already.

"You can never quite trust a man with an appetite for liquor; put that down in black and white.

"I became more uneasy when I mounted Dick's engine to talk with him a minute and compare watches, for I detected the smell of whisky in his breath, and saw that his face was red and his eyes bloodshot.

"At length 'All aboard!' was given, the gong struck, and we pulled out. Sidetracks, streets, houses and signal-lights were soon passed. As we got out on the main line, we quickened speed and soon were going up the grade at a rate of about thirty miles an hour.

"The westbound express made but two stops in the entire distance to the 'summit.' We made these all right and on time. Everything was working as well as usual. It had grown dark and as the forward engine prevented my seeing the track ahead, I leaned back after a time on my cushion. My own son, Johnny, was firing for me, then.

"Poor boy! He was only nineteen. I didn't want him to go on the road, but he begged so hard, that I took him on to fire for me. Well, I sat watching him as he now and then replenished the fire, and listening to the drum-like sound of the exhaust. You know that noise; so unvaried and continuous tends to quiet and benumb the senses. I must have sat so for a minute or two.

"Suddenly, Johnny called out to me, 'Aint you running faster than usual, father?' he shouted.

"I started and looked out. The engine was swaying violently; and though I could see but little in the darkness, I knew that we were on the level stretch and getting near the side track, at the summit where No. 14 was to unhook from us.

"What did Dick mean by not slowing up? I at once shut off steam and then sprang on the air brake.

"There was a rapid slackening of speed for a few moments—then a sharp snap and a shrill hiss!

"The rubber hose had burst; the vacuum brakes were useless! and, the speed at once quickening again, we went tearing past the side track and entered on the long stretch of down-grade beyond, where with the patent brake burst, the efforts of both engines would be needed to stop or hold the train.

"Angry and astonished that Rogers could be so utterly careless, I ran to Johnny set the tender brakes, and opened the front window of the cab, to shout to the secondary man ahead. Meanwhile the train-men of color, or some one else, was pulling furiously at the bell cord from the top of the cab. The signals I had ordered the train [illegible] by the sound of the bell, were given [illegible] the engine was blowing [illegible] pressure of steam. Every [illegible] obeyed, at the sound in [illegible].

"All the time we were [illegible] behind Dick's locomotive, [illegible] a wild angle rose from the front engine. [illegible] we were [illegible] through the tries, and I felt we were going faster than ever. I blew again—louder and longer than before. This time it was answered, by three shrieks from the miner whistle, followed by a number of the most awful oaths that ever came out of a human throat!

"I knew then what was the cause of the reckless speed. Rogers was drunk, crazy drunk, and was running away with [illegible]. And we were powerless to stop him.

"What a situation! Yet this was not the worst. As we had not stopped at the summit, we were now running ahead of orders and ahead of time, and were liable to run into a train coming up the line. It was of no use to reverse my engine against the whole force of the train, and that of the other engine besides. Once more I blew the signal for 'down brakes.'

"Just then a light shone ahead. It was the lamp of the station where we usually passed an up-freight. The head-light of the freight was not there! For an instant I felt faint and sick. I saw the terrible danger from which it seemed there could be no escape. The freight usually reached the station before we did, but we were so much ahead of time that it had not yet arrived. Yet it could not be very far away, and with our heavy train running at lightning speed, crowded with passengers as it was, a collision must occur.

"For an instant I felt paralyzed. Then it occurred to me that perhaps the freight might be a little behind time, and possibly had not yet passed the next station below. That was our only chance for life. With trembling hands I tore a leaf out of my memorandum book and wrote:

"'For Heaven's sake, clear the line! We've lost control of the train.—Williams.'

"Wadding this up with a lump of coal in my handkerchief, I left just time to throw it as we swept by the telegraph office at the station. By good luck it hit the door, and I saw the door open as we rushed out of sight. If the freight had not yet passed the next station below, it could be ordered to the side track there and so clear the road for us.

"Just then, through the open window, I saw Rogers' fireman a slight little fellow—coming along the running board beside the boiler of our engine.

"'For God's sake!' he cried, though I could scarcely hear him above the roar—'Stop her! stop her! Rogers is blind drunk! He'll kill us all!'

"I saw now that our only chance for life was to board Rogers' engine, overpower him and get control of it. It was a life and death business. But one man had better risk than a whole train full.

"By this time the conductor and brakeman had come to ward, but were so excited and alarmed that they were good for nothing to help me. They clung to the platform rail on the express car, behind the tender, and shouted 'Stop her! stop her!'

"'Boys,' I said, to Johnny and Jim (Rogers' fireman), we must get aboard that other engine and knock Rogers down. Take the coal sledges and come after me.'

"The prospect of a hand-to-hand conflict with a madman was a terrible one. But I dared not stop to think of my own chances. The heavy bar which reached from my own engine to the other was about six feet long, and the only way to cross over was to get astride the bar and slide along on it. I led the way, first throwing my wrench over on the tender, then I cautiously got down on the bar and began to work my way across. It was a desperate act. The suck and rush of air behind the tender, and the tremendous swaying and jerking nearly threw me off several times. But I kept a tight grip on the bar and got across, climbed upon the tender and made my way over the coal.

"There stood Rogers, steadying himself, as the locomotive leaped and bounded on, with his back to me. He had not seen me; and I determined to wait an instant till he opened the fire-door again, then knock him down and tie him—for I was no match for him physically. I heard nothing of Johnny or Jim, but dared not turn to look for them.

"Suddenly, as I stood there poising myself to spring on Rogers, we swept like lightning round a curve and mercifully heaven! less than a mile down the track gleamed the headlight of the freight!

"Rogers saw it, too, and the awful danger broke through the crazing spell of the liquor. With a strange, scared cry he settled back upon his cushion, limp and helpless.

"But I scarcely noticed him. There was not a moment—even for disabling him. With one bound I was in the cab and blew the whistle, then threw back the reversing lever. The shock of the reverse steam almost lifted the engine from the track and me, from my seat. The big drivers spinning around on the rails looked like circles of living fire, and enveloped the engine in a perfect shower of sparks! Nobly now did old 14 struggle and groan as if herself conscious of the terrible danger.

"'Twas vain! As well might we have tried to stop an avalanche or oppose a flood. Nearer and nearer we came to that dreaded light.

"Onward we drove, and in another moment I saw that to stop was impossible, that the collision would come. Instinctively I closed the throttle and turned to jump. Then I thought of those I was leaving to their awful fate. If I stuck to my post, I could perhaps lessen the shock and save many lives—even if I lost my own. Better one home should be desolate than a score, and again I threw back the reversing lever, bracing myself to meet the shock, when, suddenly, I saw the freight headlight dart—dart to one side!

"Could it be?

"Yes, praised be God for His mercy to us that night, the freight was going on the side-track at that station, and getting the danger, its engineer had barely time to pull up and get by track of the main line when, with diminished speed, we passed by.

"To stop the train and pull Rogers off his engine was the work of a few minutes. The shock which I feared would kill him, had sobered him. When I descended to the cab, I found a sorry, shaken wretch, whose whole energy was spent in long repentance.

"Of the terrible blow was said not a word, for, like a Journal correspondent, in trying to escape the consuming fire, to help his comrades, Rogers had died afraid of. I know in a moment that he must have been crazed. For we were running seventy miles an hour. I was obliged to go on. But two hours later the station-men found him, seven miles back, lying mangled and dead at the foot of some rocks a few yards from the track.—N. Y. Sun.

[illegible]

I agree that the tax of carrying clothes about the waist is utterly unjustifiable, and that the parts that should bear the burden are the shoulders and none other. In this regard women ought to be placed under just the same favorable conditions for movement of the body as men, and the greatest emancipation that women will ever have achieved will have arrived when she has discovered and carried out this practical improvement.

In saying this I do not for a moment wish to suggest that the outward appearance of the feminine dress should be like that of the masculine dress. To the woman, the flowing robe which even trespass a little on the ground, is most graceful, and is signally characteristic of feminine beauty. I would therefore that it should remain in all its gracefulness, but in so far as everything else is concerned, for every circumstance in which health is involved, for warmth, for freedom of movement, for mode by which the dress is carried from the shoulders, I would say: Let the women have all the advantages which now belong to the men.

For any one who will for a moment think candidly must admit that the dress of men, however bad it may be in taste, or in whatever bad taste it may have been conceived, is, in respect to health, infinitely superior to that of women. In the dress of the man every part of the body is equally covered. The middle of the body is not enveloped in a number of close layers, while the lower limbs are left without close clothing altogether. The center of the body is not weighed with a weight which almost drags down the lower limbs and back. The chest is not exposed to every wind that blows, and the feet are not bewildered with heavy garments which they have to kick forward or drag from behind with every advancing step. The body is clothed equally. The clothing is borne by the shoulders; it gives free motion to breathing; it gives freedom of motion to the circulation; it makes no undue pressure on the digestive organs; it leaves the limbs free; it is easily put on and off; and it allows of ready change in vicissitudes of weather. These are the advantages of modern style for the man, and all I claim is that they should, by faithful copy, be extended to the woman, with the one exception of the graceful outer gown or robe, as a supplement to her own superior grace and beauty.

It is told of the late eminent surgeon Mr. Cline, the teacher of Sir Astley Cooper, that when he was consulted by a lady on the question how she should prevent a girl from growing up missmarrers, he replied: "Let her have no stays and let her run about like the boys." I gladly re-echo this wise advice of the great surgeon; and I would venture to add to it another suggestion. I would say to the mothers of England: Let your girls dress like your boys, make no difference whatever in respect to them—give them knickerbockers, if you like—with these exceptions that the undergarments be of a little lighter material, and that they be supplemented by an outer gown or robe which shall take the place of the outer coat of the boys, and shall make them look distinctively what they are—girls clothed cap a pie, and well clothed from head to foot.—London Lancet.

Charles O'Conor.

Charles O'Conor was in this city recently and his vanity was mightily tickled by the frequent remark from his friends of "Why, how hale and hearty you look, Mr. O'Conor." The distinguished old lawyer does certainly appear like a man who has taken a new lease of life, and he is delighted when people tell him so. Mr. O'Conor would like to live forever, and if he knew where he could find the fountain of perpetual youth he would go to the ends of the earth for it if necessary. Some years ago Mr. O'Conor was engaged in an important law suit in which many very old people appeared as witnesses. He was struck by the fact that some of these were ninety odd years of age, and that these who owned to sixty and seventy thought themselves yet young. Future inquiry brought out the fact that they were mostly all from Nantucket. He made himself a promise that if ever he could get away from his practice and settle down to the serious business of prolonging his life he would go to Nantucket. Accordingly in Nantucket he now lives, so admirably preserved in the flying brine of that saline atmosphere that his life is likely to be indefinitely continued. Wherever he goes, Nantucket as a place of residence has a boom.—N. Y. Times.

—Ex-President Hayes is said to have a more elaborate set of scrap books, classified and indexed, than any other public man in the country. He began the collection of scraps when he was a young lawyer in Cincinnati. When he was President he kept one of his clerks constantly busy cutting and pasting slips from the newspapers.

—A man named Limberger has turned up at Rochester, N. Y., who claims that he hasn't a cent to his name.—Yonkers Statesman.

A MARVELOUS STORY

TOLD IN TWO LETTERS.

FROM THE SON: "28 Cedar St., New York, Oct. 20, 1882.

"Gentlemen: My father, resides at Glover, Vt. He has been a great sufferer from Scrofula, and the inclosed letter will tell you what a marvelous effect has had in his case. I think his blood must have cleansed, the tumor in his neck completely gone, and he is enjoying the fruits of a vegetable cure on the scrofula, now about two years since. Such a cure, which appeared at that time, is gratefully owned by me to every ingredient in your medicine. I assure you I am very respectfully, and do not fear to join with the legion of those who enjoy as good health as he has. You could easily name fifty persons who would testify to the facts in his case.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Yours truly, W. M. PHILLIPS."

FROM THE FATHER: "It is both a pleasure and a duty for me to state to you the benefit I have derived from the use of

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Six months ago I was completely covered with a terrible humor and scrofulous sores. The humor caused an incessant and intolerable itching, and the skin cracked so as to cause the blood to flow in many places whenever I moved. My sufferings were great, and my life a burden. I commenced the use of the SARSAPARILLA in April last, and have used it regularly since that time. My condition began to improve at once. The sores have all healed, and I feel perfectly well in every respect—being now able to do a good day's work, although 72 years of age. Many inquire what has wrought such a cure in my case, and I tell them, as I have here tried to tell you, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Glover, Vt., Oct. 21, 1882. Yours gratefully,

HIRAM PHILLIPS."

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

How Watch Cases are Made.

In buying a silver watch case great care should be taken to secure one that is solid silver throughout. The cap of most cheap silver cases, is made of a composition known as allata, which is a very poor substitute for silver, as it turns black in a short time. The backs of such cases are made much thinner than those of an all silver case, being robbed in order to make the cap thicker and get in as much as possible of the cheap metal. Another important point in a silver case is the joints or hinges, which should be made of gold. Those of most cheap cases are made of silver, which is not a suitable metal for that purpose. In a brief period it warps, tends and spreads apart, allowing the backs to become loose upon the case and admitting the dust and dirt that accumulate in the pocket. The Keystone Silver Watch Cases are only made with silver caps and gold joints.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Feb. 1, 1883.

In our long and varied experience in handling watches, we cannot but acknowledge, and we do it most cheerfully, that the Keystone Solid Silver Watch Cases are the best made to our knowledge. Having no soldering they remain hinge-tight, harder and stiffer than they would be were they heated for soldering, and have more resisting power against pressure than any other cases in the market. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Is designed to meet the wants of a large portion of our people who are either too poor to employ a physician, or are too far removed to easily call one, and a still larger class who are not sick enough to require medical advice, and yet are out of sorts and need a medicine to build them up, give them an appetite, purify their blood, and oil up the machinery of their bodies so it will do its duty willingly. Nor other article takes hold of the system and hits exactly the spot like

It works like magic, reaching every part of the human body through the blood, giving to all renewed life and energy.

My friend, you need not take our word. Ask your neighbor, who has just taken one bottle. He will tell you that it's the best dollar I ever invested.

LEBANON, N. H., Feb. 19, 1879.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Dear Sirs—Although greatly prejudiced against patent medicines in general, I was induced, from the excellent reports I had heard of your Sarsaparilla, to try a bottle, last December, for dyspepsia and general prostration, and I have received very gratifying results from its use. I am now using the second bottle, and consider it a very valuable remedy for indigestion and its attendant troubles.

Yours truly,
F. C. CHURCHILL,
(Firm of Carter & Churchill.)

CONGRESS.

MR. CALL introduced a bill in the Senate on the 14th authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to overrule and reverse the decisions of the inferior officers of the Treasury Department in respect to all matters of accounts; referred to the Judiciary Committee. The Senate took up the bill providing for the establishment of a bureau of labor statistics, and Mr. Blair urged its passage. Pending debate the Senate adjourned. In the House a memorial was presented from the Women's Silk Culture Association for the establishment of a silk culture bureau; referred. Mr. Bland, from the Committee on Coinage, Weights and Measures, reported a bill to establish a mint at St. Louis; referred to Committee of the Whole. The House went into Committee of the Whole on the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill. After debate the bill was read by paragraphs for amendments. Mr. Robinson, of New York, moved to abolish the office of Minister to Great Britain. The motion was lost, and the committee rose. Adjourned.

MR. MORGAN offered a resolution in the Senate on the 15th, directing the Committee on Finance to examine into the causes of the failures of such of the National Banks in the city of New York as have suspended business in May, 1884, and report whether the said failures have to any and what extent resulted from a violation of the laws regarding their conduct, or from giving certificates upon drafts, or by their accepting drafts upon other commercial paper drawn upon them directly or indirectly in evasion or in violation of the laws, and whether any National bank in New York has been engaged since July 12, 1882, in violation or evasion of the laws regulating their conduct, and that the committee have leave to sit during the session and have leave to visit New York and for persons of papers and examine witnesses under oath. A bill by Mr. McCullom to put speculation on the part of officials in National Banking Association was referred to the Committee on Finance. The bill to aid the World's Industrial and Cotton Centennial Exposition at New Orleans was debated at length, but without action. The Senate adjourned until the 19th. In the House the morning hour was dispensed with and the House went into Committee of the Whole on the diplomatic consular appropriation bill. Upon reaching a vote upon an amendment to the bill, a point of no quorum was raised, and the committee therefore rose. The Senate amendments to the bill for the World's Centennial and Cotton Exposition were concurred in. Adjourned.

THE House in Committee of the Whole on the 16th considered the consular diplomatic appropriation bill. The amendment offered by Mr. Cannon appropriating $110,000 for contingent expenses of the United States Consuls, was lost. After debate the bill was laid aside with favorable recommendation and the committee proceeded to the consideration of the army appropriation bill. The committee rose and reported the bill to the House but no further action was taken. At the evening session the House passed thirty-two pension bills and adjourned. The Senate was not in session.

BILLS were passed in the House on the 17th: Extending until December 31, 1885, the duration of the Court of Commissioners of the Alabama claims; to change the Eastern and Southern Judicial Districts of Texas and to attach part of the Indian Territory to those districts; for the appointment of two additional justices of the Supreme Court of Dakota. The Senate amendment to the Indian appropriation bill was non-concurred in. Pending discussion of the bill to amend the act dividing the State of Missouri into two judicial districts, the House adjourned....The Senate was not in session.

LATER.

THE National mass meeting of wool growers of the United States met at Chicago on the 19th. Twenty-one States and Territories were represented by 134 delegates, fifty of whom were from Ohio and thirty-eight from Pennsylvania. Columbus Delano, of Ohio, was made President, and R. T. McCully, of Missouri, Secretary. Resolutions were adopted denouncing the act of Congress of March, 1883, reducing the duties on foreign wools, and demanding the restoration of the wool tariff of 1867.

A DISPATCH of the 19th from Constantinople says that a terrible conflagration had visited Bei Bagar, a city of Asia Minor, destroying 950 dwellings, 544 warehouse shops, eleven mosques, fifteen schools of the Khans and 146 other buildings. Eleven persons perished.

NEAR Harrodsburg, Ky., on the 19th, a party of eighteen boys after playing a game of base ball started out in search of wild parsnips, but got hold of deadly hemlock instead. The boys ate freely, and all were taken violently ill. Two died almost instantly, five are in a critical condition and not expected to live, and the others are suffering more or less from the poison.

THE Cincinnati Lead Pipe and Sheet Company's Works burned on the 19th. Loss $50,000. Mrs. Leeds, rooming in the fourth story, was fatally burned; William E. Cook was also severely burned.

THE Erie County Savings Bank, of Erie, Pa., suspended on the 19th. Capital $150,000; liabilities $300,000. The failure is said to be due to oil speculations by the President, who has left the city.

THE Chair laid before the Senate on the 19th the resolution offered by Mr. Morgan, directing the Committee on Finance to examine the causes of the recent failures of National banks, and whether such failures are due to violations and evasions of law on the part of officers or directors of the banks; referred to Committee on Finance. Bills were reported favorably and placed on calendar. To limit the time within which prosecution shall be instituted against persons charged with violation of the internal revenue laws; increasing the pensions of soldiers and sailors who lost an arm or leg, and for other disabilities contracted while in the service. A current resolution was agreed to, accepting a portrait in mosaic of the late President Garfield, the work of Dr. Salvatta, of Venice, Italy. A message from the House announcing non-concurrence in the Indian appropriation bill was received, and a committee of conference appointed. The bill for creation of a bureau of labor statistics was taken up, pending debate on which the Senate went into executive session and soon adjourned. In the House the contested election case of Wallace vs. McKinley was postponed, and the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill was taken up and passed—yeas 137, nays 85. The army and District of Columbia appropriation bills passed without opposition. A motion to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution making the Senate bankruptcy bill the special order for June 10, was lost. Adjourned.

Spring Without Blossoms.

Late in Life to Look for Joy—Yet Never too Late to Mend.

Readers of Hawthorne's "House of Seven Gables" will recall the pathos with which poor Clifford Pyncheon, who had been unjustly imprisoned since his early manhood, said, after his release: "My life is gone, and where is my happiness? Oh! give me my happiness." But that could be done only in part, as gleams of warm sunshine occasionally fall across the gloom of a New England autumn day.

In a letter to Messrs. Hiscox & Co., Mr. L. H. Titus, of Pennington, N. J., says: "I have suffered untold misery from childhood from chronic disease of the bowels and kidneys, accompanied by pain. I sought relief at the hands of physicians of every school, and used every patent and domestic remedy under the sun. I have at last found in PARKER'S TONIC a complete specific, preventive and cure. As your invaluable medicine, which did for me what nothing else could do, is entitled to the credit of my getting back my happy days, I cheerfully and gratefully acknowledge the fact."

Mr. E. S. Wells, who needs no introduction to the people of Jersey City, adds: "The testimonial of Mr. Titus is genuine and voluntary; only he does not adequately portray the suffering he has endured for many years. He is my brother-in-law, and I know the case well. He is now perfectly free from his old troubles, and enjoys health and life, ascribing it all to PARKER'S TONIC.

Unequalled as an invigorant; stimulates all the organs; cures ailments of the liver, kidneys, and all diseases of the blood.

Traverse City will have a new grain elevator this season.

Senator Logan has been invited to make a speech at the Paris fair.

The Michigan & Ohio railroad company [illegible] is making an effort to reach Grand Rapids either along the line of the G. R. & I. from Monteith, or direct from Allegan. The company is seriously thinking of making a direct line from that city to Muskegon and probably will if it can be reached by them.

A self-styled "rescued man" thus recommends a cure for drunkenness: "I was one of those unfortunates given to strong drink. When I left it off I could neither eat, work nor sleep. A man of experience advised me to make a decoction of ground quassia, a half ounce steeped in a pint of vinegar, and to puff about a small teaspoonful of it in a little water and drink it down every time the liquor thirst came on me violent. I found it satisfied the cravings, and it suffused a feeling of stamina and strength. I continued this cure and persevered till the thirst was conquered." Mechanics' Worker Sentinel.

The North American Review opens with an article on "Harboring Conspiracy," by Prof. Henry Wade Rogers, who examines, in the light of international law, the diplomatic history of the United States and the national constitution, the question as to how far our government may or must go in suppressing plots against governments with which we are at peace. Henry D. Lloyd, in the same number of the Review shows how every branch of production is coming under the control of "Lords of Industry," corporations and monopolies. Elizabeth Stuart Phelps has an article marked by rare philosophic force upon the "Struggle for Immortality." Other articles of not less importance are "Sociological Fallacies," by Prof. W. G. Sumner; "The Rise and Fall of Authority," by President J. G. Welling; "Walt Whitman," by Walter Kennedy; and a symposium of "Expert Testimony," by Rossiter Johnson, Dr. W. W. Goldsby, T. The "Prairie Farmer" Becoming.

The old Friends of The Prairie Farmer, and many farmers all over the West and East, too, will be glad to learn of the good fortune that has come to this time honored Journal, which for nearly half a century 42 years, has been doing good service to and for the agricultural interests of our country. The number of May 3d announces that, henceforth, The Prairie Farmer will be under the Editorial Direction and Business Management of Mr. Orange Judd, who, after more than a quarter century of service at the head of the American Agriculturist, has left his former field to other hands and removed to near Chicago, thousand miles nearer to hundreds of thousands of his older enterprising readers who have preceded him to the West. The number before us gives evidence of the vigor and experience he brings to his new field of work. All who want specimens of the paper as it is, and is to be, and to enjoy its advantages, can have The Prairie Farmer, weekly, from May 1st, up to 1885, by sending a single dollar to Prairie Farmer Publishing Company, 150 Monroe St., Chicago, Ill.

THE PEOPLE'S CYCLOPEDIA.

Letters of Recommendation from a few of Tecumseh's Literary men.

From Prof. D. A. Hammond, Supt. of schools, Tecumseh. "I have only been able to examine The People's Cyclopedia cursorily, but I like it and cheerfully recommend it. I consider it a solid, excellent work, sufficiently full for most purposes, and yet at so low a price as to place it within the reach of all the people. Having the Britannica, I still feel the need of a more concise work, and gladly avail myself of the opportunity of supplying that need.

From Rev. Geo. W. Hudson, Pastor M. E. Church, Tecumseh. "I have examined at considerable length the People's Cyclopedia edited by W. H. DePuy and have no hesitation in pronouncing it the most convenient work of its class in the English language. It gives just the information most needed by business and professional men and in such form as to be always ready to hand. Then the work is fresh, being up to date in every particular. Its inexpensive form, too, puts it within the reach of every intelligent family.

If you are in search of knowledge and want it in the most convenient and available form and at the lowest price, don't fail to examine the People's Cyclopedia of Universal Knowledge. We can give no better idea of the great value of this work than by quoting the opinions of some of Michigan's best scholars and educators.

WOOL GROWERS.

The Convention of the National Wool Grower's Association Meet at Chicago.

Hon. Columbus Delano, of Ohio, Made Chairman—The Opening Address—The Restoration of the Tariff of 1867 Demanded.

THE PROCEEDINGS.

CHICAGO, Ill., May 20.—The Wool-growers' Convention to an emphatic success although in its first day's session it has only [illegible] to be desired. The delegations from Ohio are in a majority, and the representatives from that state have strongly shaped the business of the meeting. They have [illegible] that there should be some organization which can work together for the purpose of protection. Among the most prominent wool-growers from Ohio who took part in today's proceedings were: J. L. Higman, of East Liverpool; C. Carter, of Moxahala; Columbus Delano, of Mt. Vernon; Henry Weber, T. E. Skinner, of Redfield; W. N. Cowden, of Quaker City; D. F. McKee, of Brookfield, secretary of the Mahoning Valley Association; A. E. Lee, of Youngstown; S. Harper, of North Benton; W. E. Bundy, of Barnesville; W. P. King, of Pulaski; S. E. Kimball, of [illegible]; W. Sewart, of Springfield; [illegible] Hoge, of Cambridge; John Row, of Salem, member of the State Board of Agriculture; A. R. Campbell, T. S. Gardner, C. Bowman and John Row, of Salem; E. W. Lee, of Carrollton; J. C. Stevens, of Kenton, Vice President of the State Association; W. W. Cowden, S. S. Harper, R. H. Wise, J. B. Copper, J. T. Roberts, James Calvin, [illegible] Carter, S. W. Thomas, F. A. Atkins, J. B. Gibbs, D. Yeager, M. J. Lawrence, S. Harper, J. B. Hoge and James Stitt.

D. Harnsty, of Ohio, was a member of the committee on permanent organization. S. E. Stevens, of the same State, was a member of the committee on order of business. W. W. Cowden, of Ohio, aided in drafting the resolutions.

At the opening session an invitation was received from the wool dealers of Chicago to lunch and it was moved that it be accepted. Whereat O. N. Stewart, of Ohio, arose and raising his voice said: "I object to that. It looks too much like free passes."

"What is wrong with it?" asked Columbus Delano.

Mr. Stewart shook his head significantly and said that apparently nothing was wrong with it. When, however, the wool-growers were endeavoring to get their bill passed in Congress somebody invited them to lunch and the bill failed.

"These are not the same men," said J. S. Stevens, of Ohio, and the invitation was accepted.

A large number of delegates arrived to-night, and it is thought that at least four hundred wool-growers will answer the roll-call at the morning session.

The committee on permanent organization reported Columbus Delano, of Ohio, for president; R. T. McCulley, of Missouri, secretary, and a list of vice-presidents from the wool-growing States. The report was approved. Delano on taking the chair, returned thanks for the honor conferred, sketched the importance of the wool industry of the United States and the necessity of united action for the protection of that interest. He said the development of wool-growing began with the passage of the wool tariff of 1867, and the result had been a reduction in the price of wool to the manufacturer. He urged the necessity of constant work until the restoration of that tariff was secured and politicians brought to terms. He alluded the existing danger of financial ruin looming over the Nation; held that a tariff for revenue was free trade, and was dangerous to the prosperity of the country.

The committee on resolutions made a report, which, after speaking of the injustice inflicted by the act of Congress of March, 1883, went on to declare:

First—That by the census returns for 1880 there were 105,000,000 sheep, and that there is no State where this industry is not pursued.

Second—That the product of wool for the year 1883 reached 350,000,000 pounds, and its value more than $100,000,000, and that the value of mutton resulting from sheep slaughtered for food was over $24,000,000.

Third—That sheep husbandry is an important factor in the prosperity of other agricultural pursuits, because of the utility of sheep in fertilizing the soil and replenishing exhausted lands, so that if abandoned or seriously diminished our entire system of agriculture would be embarrassed, our capacity for the production of meats, breadstuffs and other articles required by our civilization will be seriously diminished, and the great prosperity impaired. We cannot afford as a Nation to endanger a great agricultural pursuit which adds each year directly $150,000,000 to the Nation's wealth, having invested in real estate not less than $500,000,000 of capital, and which contributes indirectly so extensively to the Nation's prosperity.

Fourth—That the act of 1883 reducing duties on foreign wools has seriously injured, and, if continued, will in future diminish if it does not substantially destroy the production of wool and sheep in the United States, and this assertion we sustain by these facts. The report then goes on to show that the clip of 1883 caused a loss of over $16,000,000 to the wool growers, compared with that of 1882, and predicts a much greater loss for 1884, and says the climate and conditions in Australia will compel American producers to abandon sheep raising for other pursuits. It is, therefore,

Resolved, That we will organize as wool growers and sheep breeders and cooperate by means of our National Association, to be aided by State and county associations, and in this way and by all other legitimate methods will do all in our power to restore the wool tariff of 1867 or its equivalent on wools and woolens, and cause to be repealed the unjust, unwise and unequal legislation of 1883 reducing the duties on wools and woolens.

Resolved, That in doing this we will, without reference to former political affiliations, recognize our friends whenever and wherever we find them, and at the polls will sustain only such men and such party organizations as are in favor of protecting and encouraging and sustaining sheep husbandry in these United States by restoring the wool tariff of 1867, or its equivalent.

Resolved, That we favor a wise and comprehensive system of economic legislation best calculated to foster and develop all American industries that can be profitably pursued by our people, whereby employment may be given all laboring classes, not at the prices paid the laboring poor of foreign nations, but at such wages as will secure such educational, religious and social privileges and such physical comforts as the free men of this free Nation are entitled to and ought to enjoy.

Resolved, That we repudiate the doctrine of free trade as a fallacious and impracticable theory, sustained largely by the money of foreign capitalists, who desire the control of our markets for the sale and consumption of goods produced where labor is cheap and money abundant, and we regard as unworthy respectful consideration the theory of those manufacturers who claim that raw material shall be free while their fabrics are protected. We ask with emphasis why the labor required to produce wool is less worthy of protection than labor at the spindle and loom where fabrics of wool are produced?

Resolved, That the long-continued and systematic undervaluation of imported wool, resulting, as it does, in the loss of much revenue to the Government, and robbing the American wool-grower of the protection sought to be conferred by the tariff, and which the Secretary of the Treasury declares will continue under existing laws, demands and should receive the immediate attention of Congress.

The platform was adopted with the following words to the second resolution:

"And that we will not support any party or political candidate until it or he has clearly defined its or his position in favor of the restoration of said tariff."

A committee of five was appointed to draft an address to the wool-growers of the United States and the convention adjourned until 9 a. m. to-morrow.

A Woman Found Dead and Mutilated in a Rochester Lumber Yard.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 19.—At an early hour yesterday morning the dead body of a woman about forty years old was found in Foster's lumber yard on Childs Street, lying on a pile of lumber. The body was still warm and the blood was flowing from the mouth and nostrils, the hands were clinched, and everything gave evidence of a fierce struggle. Near the body was [illegible] of a cigar, some ashes and a piece of chewing tobacco, evidence that a man had been in the company of the woman. The clothing was torn and torn. The corpse was Mrs. Elizabeth Williams, wife of Albert Williams, a carpenter, residing at 37 Sykes Street. At the inquest this evening W. H. Kessell, manager of the lumber yard, testified that he saw Mrs. Williams enter the lumber yard in company with an unknown man about nine o'clock Saturday night, and after waiting half an hour for them to come out he left, thinking they had left the yard by the rear entrance. The deceased left home at eight o'clock Saturday night, telling her family she was going to attend a social meeting. At the post mortem the doctors testified to finding a clot of blood on the heart and numerous evidences of violence [illegible] husband was arrested, but even went so far as to joke with the Coroner's jury regarding the circumstances of the case. After hearing four hours of very sensational testimony regarding the actions and character of the deceased there were such suspicious circumstances attending the case that the Coroner's jury refused to [illegible] a verdict until the case had been more fully investigated by the detectives. Officers think they know who the man was who was last seen with the deceased, and he will probably be arrested. The greatest excitement prevails here over the case, as nearly everyone thinks it is a murder.

M. E. Conference Elects Officers.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—At the conference the Committee on Missions presented a report recommending the adoption of the following:

Resolved, We recommend to the favorable consideration of the General Mission Committee at the next session the subject of the establishment of evangelical agencies at such places among the Roman Catholic population of this Country as they deem expedient and the appropriation of moneys for the same. Such missions to be administered as foreign missions.

After the discussion the report was adopted.

The tellers reported that Rev. Dr. J. M. Reid and Rev. C. C. McCabe were elected Missionary Secretaries.

Rev. Kynett, of Upper Iowa, was elected Corresponding Secretary, of the Church Extension Society.

Rev. Dr. Rust was elected Secretary of the Freedman's Aid Society. Rev. Dr. Vincent was elected Secretary of the Sunday School Union. Rev. Dr. Buckley, of New York, and Rev. Dr. Crooks were nominated for editors of the Christian Advocate. Rev. Dr. Lanahan, of Baltimore, was authorized by Rev. Dr. Crooks to withdraw his name. Rev. Dr. Curry was elected editor of the Quarterly Review.

A Disastrous Fire.

NEW YORK, May 19.—The repair shops of the New York & Harlem Railroad Company at One Hundred and Seventy-second street and Fourth avenue, took fire yesterday. The building covers a large area, and contains machine shops and workrooms where all repairing of the rolling stock is done. The flames spread rapidly and were soon beyond control, as few fire companies were available. A general alarm was sent out, and with the assistance which arrived the fire was extinguished after four hours of hard work. Three passenger cars and three locomotives were destroyed. Sparks from the burning building set fire to several small dwellings. Loss, $200,000.

Base Ball.

PHILADELPHIA, May 20.—The Philadelphia nine were beaten by the Clevelands by a score of 5 to 0.

Providence—The Detroits put in their best pitcher, but was beaten by the Providence 4 to 2.

Boston—The Chicagos were again downed by the Bostons in a brilliant contest; score 4 to 2.

New York—The Buffalos were badly beaten by the New Yorks, pounding the pitching of Serad all over the field; score 17 to 8.

A Swindler Going to Prison.

CHARLESTON, W. V., May 20.—George J. Williams, who has been working as a pension agent and mail robbing in Nicholas County, this State, and who obtained in this fraudulent manner about $10,000, was yesterday found guilty in the United States District Court in session here. Williams is well educated and thoroughly posted in the pension and postal laws. There are eight other indictments against him, when all the cases against him are tried. He will probably serve the balance of his life in prison.

The Situation at Key West.

KEY WEST, May 19.—Several lively telegrams have passed between Gov. Bloxham and the State officials here concerning riotous conduct, the Governor apparently insisted that a mob held possession of the city. There is evidently a great mistake, for the town was never quieter. The revenue-cutter Dix confirms the report that Castro's Cuban band congregated near Sugar Loaf Key to the number of a dozen, and went from there in a vessel that came from Nassau.

The Wallace-McKinley Case Postponed.

WASHINGTON, May 20.—The contested election case of Wallace vs. McKinley has been postponed and Mr. Randall attempted to secure the passage of three Appropriation bills agreed to in the Committee of the Whole Friday last. To this Mr. Colling objected and the Speaker proceeded to call the States for bills.

Internal Revenue Taxes.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 19.—The movement to secure the repeal of all internal revenue taxes on tobacco, started by the officers of the New England Tobacco Growers' association, took definite shape to-day. An appeal to the tobacco industry of the whole country was adopted.

Suicide of George Studebaker.

LOGANSPORT, Ind., May 19.—George Studebaker, a well-known young man of this county, committed suicide Saturday evening, by shooting himself through the heart. Until recently he traveled for a Chicago book concern.

Monroe will celebrate its one hundred anniversary on the 4th of July next.

On the 21st day of May last year, there was nearly one inch of snow on the ground.

The Democratic State Convention has been called for Wednesday, June 18th, at Detroit.

Burton Parker, of Monroe, and A. W. Smith, of Adrian, will be the Decoration Day orators at Blissfield.

The members of Eaton Post, of Ridgeway, will be provided with dinner at the Lilley House on Decoration Day.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Brewer left Tecumseh this morning for Missouri, where they will visit James C. Murray and family a short time.

Leave your orders for Daily, Weekly and Monthly Periodicals at Keip's. Harper, Century, and Frank Leslie's Monthly for June now in stock.

Co. C. held a special election last evening and the following officers were elected to fill vacancies:

First Lieut.—Thos. Kyle.
Second " —E. A. Doke.
First Sergt.—C. H. Heck.

John Gilchrist met with a severe accident at Summit City last week, by a lever striking him on the head. He is now at home doctoring a wounded face, but expects to be able to return to his duties again next week.

The boys who are catching on the trains between Chicago street and the Lake Shore depot will get themselves into trouble if they persist in it. The depot officials here have been notified to arrest all offenders, and it will be done unless the practice is stopped.

It is announced that the novel by the late CHARLES READE now current in HARPER'S BAZAR, "A Perilous Secret," was completed by him but a little while before his death. Mr. Reade had several times within the past few years said to friends that if he undertook another long novel it would be the end of him, and his fear proves now to have been a true prophecy.

The citizens of Medina will celebrate the 50th anniversary of the settlement of the township at Oak Grove Academy in the village of Medina, on Wednesday May 28th, at 10 o'clock A. M. The committee of arrangements cordially invite the Pioneer society of Lenawee county and all the early pioneers and citizens generally to be present and participate in the exercises of the day. A picnic dinner will be served on the ground.

Morenci Observer: Forty-seven years ago Jeptha Whitman kept the only store in Morenci, and he seems to have done quite a business, and in looking over his day book we find that whiskey, rum and brandy were staple articles in those days. Whiskey was quoted at 88c per gallon; brandy $2.50 and rum $2.00. Just 47 years ago to-day we find Rollin Hill charged with 10 lb. nails, $1.25; Daniel Reed 1 lb. tea, $1; James Aldrich 1 pt. brandy, 31c; Wm. Coulson 1 pt. rum, 25c; Chesterfield Clemens rum, 6c; Wm. Lee, brandy for "bee" 56c; J. Dillingham, brandy, $1.88; Benj. Hornbeck, ½ lb. tea, and this is a fair sample of the charges through the book.

THE TECUMSEH HERALD.

TECUMSEH, MICH., MAY 22, 1884.

SPECIAL OFFER.

During the month of May the HERALD will be offered to new subscribers for eight months at one dollar, and every tenth subscription will be refunded. Old subscribers, by paying arrearages to May 1st., and one dollar in addition, will be counted in also, and every tenth dollar thus received will be refunded. Our subscription record will be open to inspection that each person may see for himself, whether he be the lucky man. This offer will remain open until the close of business hours on Saturday May 31st inst. and no longer. Pass in your dollars.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

Did you go to the show at Adrian?

Read F. W. Keip's list of new books to be found in the local notices.

Mrs. Wm. Drake, of Dundee, has been visiting friends in Tecumseh.

Cyrus H. McCormick, of reaper fame, left an estate valued at two millions.

The "Old Honesty" cigar, sold by Will Eccles is prime. Try one and see.

Henry Smith, of our village, spent Sunday last in Youngstown, Ohio, visiting a brother.

The indications all favor a grand observance of Decoration Day at Tecumseh this year.

The new editor of the Petersburgh Journal, went fishing and hauled out a big lizard. What is that an augury of?

Geo. Smith Esq., of Toledo, was in Tecumseh last Friday. It was his 62d. birthday and he came up to celebrate.

The Ladies' Social of St. Peter's church will be held on Wednesday evening next at the residence of Mrs. Corey.

The fire company was called out in a hurry about seven o'clock last Monday evening but it proved to be a false alarm.

C. V. Hicks, of Oscoda, arrived Saturday and remained until Tuesday. Mrs. Hicks will continue her visit a few days longer.

The Dundee supervisor says the assessment of that township falls short $100,000 of last year's figures on account of the failure of farm crops.

W. R. Wooden and family, of Battle Creek, were in town over Sunday. Mr. Wooden returned on Monday, but his family will remain a few weeks.

Peter Phelps of Marquette, after a two year's absence, is at home for a few days. The climate of the Lake Superior region seems to agree with him.

A short meeting of the base ball association was held on Tuesday evening and an adjournment had until next week, when a full attendance is desired.

The colored people of Calhoun Co., are arranging for an emancipation celebration at Battle Creek, August 1, and hope to have Gov. Begole and Fred Douglass with them.

L. C. Blood, of Lansing, arrived in town Tuesday by the overland route, having driven "across the country" with his horse and buggy. After two days of hand-shaking he will start for home on Friday morning.

The fence construction train on the M. & O. is now stationed at the gravel pit west of the village, and the fence builders are at work in that neighborhood this week. Next week they will be in the town of Franklin.

Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Anderson arrived home from New York on Saturday. Seaton stood the journey very well and is gaining every day. Unless he should suffer an unexpected relapse he will soon be able to attend to business again.

John J. Adam has taken the HERALD since the first number was issued on the 25th day of May 1850, and he invariably pays his subscription promptly in advance. He already has a receipt in his pocket for the coming year.

Mr. Ellsworth E. Russell has joined the army of martyrs and became a married man last week, the fortunate young lady being Miss Ella Hyde, daughter of Albert Hyde Jr. Congratulations are in order, of which we freely offer our full proportion.

The hotels at Union City are closed and Wednesday some of the citzens procured oats and sowed the main street, and a drag followed and dragged them in. "What shall the harvest be?" It is on account of the non-acceptance of the liquor bonds.

The Adrian Times announces "by authority" that John K. Boies is not a candidate for Congress this fall, and then it proceeds to administer a big mouthful of taffy to the Honorable John for his disinterestedness and patriotism. 1884 is not 1882, you know.

Mr. Hammond, who has been at work for J. B. Swan on his Florida plantation, has bought property there and will make that state his permanent residence. His family leave this week for their new home. The rooms heretofore occupied by them in Mrs. Yawger's house are to let.

Club Hop at Armory Hall, Thursday evening, May 29, 1884.

Fruit trees are fully attired in their spring garniture of flowers.

The semi-centennial celebration of Medina will be held on Wednesday next May 28th.

John Britton & Son have commenced the erection of a new store at the village of Britton.

Will Eccles makes a prime glass of lemonade. Step in and sample one and judge for yourself.

Tecumseh was a dull day last Tuesday. Everybody had gone to see Forepaugh's white elephant.

This weather is warming the base ball association into life and we can now look for an active season.

Water the currant and gooseberry bushes and be ready to doctor the first insect that makes an appearance.

The Tecumseh soldier's monument will be dedicated on Decoration Day. A full program of the exercises appears elsewhere.

Kalamazoo has secured the State fair this year. The contest lay between that city and Jackson and Jackson got left.

Next Thursday evening the skippers of the light fantastic will skip a joyful skip, for Ollie Hunt's orchestra will furnish the music.

We are requested to announce that a few seats will be reserved for the benefit of spectators at the party next Thursday evening. Grand March at 9 o'clock.

In last week's HERALD a notice appeared that Dr. Flowers would be in town on the 23d. and 24th. He was compelled afterwards to anticipate those dates and was here on the 16th. and 17th. He expects to return at some future time, of which due notice will be given.

Jas. W. Patterson and family will start for California on Monday next. May a pleasant journey await them, and may they return in safety to their old home in the fall. We dislike to believe that they will decide to sever the social ties which have bound them to Tecumseh so long.

The attendance at the Forepaugh show at Adrian, on Tuesday, was not as large as last year. Many persons on the line of the M. & O. road between Addison and Briton, took in the show at Toledo, on Monday, which decreased the attendance at Adrian from this section of the county.

A. M. Bannister of Addison was in town Monday. He is now at home for a time, having recently returned from Central America where he was formerly engaged for nearly two years on the railroad for which Col. Fitzsimmons was at work. He expects to go to California at an early day on a similar engagement.

The 12th. annual reunion of the members of the Old Fourth Michigan Vol. Infantry will occur at Hudson, Mich., on the 20th., day of June next. A cordial invitation is extended to all the comrades to be present. DeGolyer Post and the citizens of Hudson will give the old boys a warm welcome.

Charles Blanchard returned to Toledo Monday, and he was kept more than busy during the four days of his stay here. It is twenty years this summer since he stepped foot on the old sod, and he says he will never stay away so long again. We presume he was no more pleased with his visit than his friends were pleased to see him.

The Deering binder has acquired a standing among the best machines now in the market. Attention is called to the card on the eighth page setting forth the points of excellence of this machine. Williamson & Ketcham are the agents for Tecumseh and vicinity, who will push the sale of this favorite among the farmers. The Deering is in good hands.

While taking an afternoon stroll last Sunday we chanced to pass John Hicks on Union street and took occasion to "drop in" and inspect his new home. His house is now entirely finished and he has been lately putting the last touches upon the lawns and outbuildings. He will have when the grass is fully grown the finest lawn on the street. The grounds are ample to accommodate plenty of shade trees, a number of which are planted. The buildings are all constructed for convenience and use. Mr. Hicks will sell lightning rods and enjoy his new home hereafter, both of which he is competent to do.

Last Friday we were called to Monroe on business, and took supper with our old friend W. H. Sink at the Park Hotel. Mr. Sink has a splendid hotel which is becoming quite a popular summer resort. The house is large and provided with all the modern conveniences, including bath rooms which are supplied with water from the Monroe mineral springs. These waters are especially adapted to the cure of Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and kindred diseases. Fishing and hunting grounds abound in the Raisin and Lake Erie, and special inducements are offered to fishing parties to make the Park Hotel their head-quarters. Health and pleasure seekers will find the Park a good home kept by a first-class landlord.

FROM THE BAPTIST ITEMS.

Bro. John Cashman is still in Detroit.

Mr. J. Cook's family is still in poor health.

Mary Sweet is teaching school in Riga.

Bro. Willis Merritt went to Addison on Thursday, the 15th. inst.

Mrs. Luke Wood is visiting friends near Bronson, we believe.

Bro. Robert Taggart will be home in about a month or six weeks.

Bro. Chas. McNeal has been in quite poor health during the last month.

Carrie Osborne and the pastor and wife attended the Washtenaw Association.

Miss L. Gowdy has accepted the position of organist for the remainder of the year.

Bro. A. P. Coddington was seriously sick about two weeks ago. He is far from well now.

Mrs. P. B. Swick, on the 16th. inst., was suddenly called to Kalamazoo by the illness of her mother.

The pastor and wife and several others expect to attend the anniversary meeting next week.

Mettie Adams is teaching school on the Ridge Road two or three miles north of Ridgeway village.

Mrs. James Heck is in very feeble health. Her lungs seem to be affected, yet not seriously, it is hoped.

Mrs. Gainsley has gone to Schoolcraft to visit friends for a week or two. Hope she will have a pleasant time.

At the last covenant meeting Mrs. Ruth Taylor was dismissed from the church by letter, to unite with the Baptist church at Hart.

Charles Gridley started for Ohio Monday the 12th., to engage in business there. Yet he expects to call Tecumseh home for some time. Glad of it.

Mrs. Burnham, member of the Baptist church at Adrian, has been spending a few days with friends in Tecumseh. She was at church last Lord's day.

At the last covenant meeting Mr. J. H. Heck was elected to membership in the Pastoral Committee in the place of Mrs. H. Baker, whose term of office then expired.

A Baptist brother of Mr. E. B. Mooney has been visiting him for the past two or three weeks. His home is in Pennsylvania. Of course he attended meeting, as all good Baptists always do.

Henry Schofield and wife did not remove to Homer after all. They have moved upon Jas. Patterson's farm, south of town on R. R. st. We wish they would buy it and stay there. Perhaps they will.

C. A. Thatcher has just finished the largest delivery of crayon portraits ever brought to Tecumseh. Mr. John Fisher, Mrs. Peter R. Adams and many others of our church have received his work which gave great satisfaction. He will offer special inducements on his return in July.

The Lenawee Association will meet at Hudson, on Tuesday, June 4th. Our church will be entitled to eight voting delegates this year. It is hoped that many others will go also. The first session will probably commence at 10:30 A. M.; this will enable all who go from here to arrive in ample time by taking the 8 A. M. train.

The youngest child of Mr. & Mrs. J. Kennedy, of Raisin, came very near meeting with a fatal accident on Wednesday, the 14th inst. It went to the leach and drank lye. It had just eaten a hearty supper, so that the lye acted as an emetic. The doctor said this was the only thing that saved it. The next day it seemed to be all right except a very sore mouth. It was a very narrow escape.

"The church in Joliet, Ill., has voted to send its pastor, J. W. Conley, and his wife to the anniversaries and pay their expenses. We would like to hear pastor Conley preach and his wife talk, the Sunday after they return from Detroit. We almost imagine we can hear the Joliet church members thanking God that they were led to make this little investment for their own sake."—Michigan Christian Herald.

It is possible that we as well as his own church in Joliet, shall hear J. W. C. preach, as he intends to visit his cousin, the pastor of this church, on his way home.

The anniversary meetings of the American Baptist Publication Society the American Baptist Missionary Union and the American Baptist Home Missionary Society, will commence in Detroit, on Wednesday afternoon, the 21st. inst. This gathering will be composed of representatives from the Eastern, Western, Northern and Middle states. Accordingly it will of necessity be a large meeting, and will be attended by many of the great lights of the denomination. Among many others, Dr. J. E. Clough and Miss Eastman are expected to be present. It is hoped that many from Tecumseh will attend. The meetings were never held in Michigan before and in all probability will not come to us again for many years. Hence it is an opportunity of a life time and should be improved.

MEMORIAL DAY.

The arrangements have been completed for the proper observance of Decoration Day in Tecumseh and unless bad weather should interfere, the exercises will be the best ever held in this village. The exercises will be held on Friday afternoon, May 30th, and will consist of the formal dedication of the Soldier's Monument, followed by a decoration of the soldiers graves.

The following order of Beers Post and program of proceedings gives the details of the program:

Head Quarters, Beers Post, No. 140, G. A. R., Tecumseh, Mich., May 1, 1884. Special Order No. 8.

In accordance with the Pass of date order, Friday the 30th day of May will be celebrated as Memorial Day.

It is expected that all comrades of the G. A. R. will honor themselves by paying tribute to the memory of their fallen comrades.

In compliance with Gen. Order Dept. of Mich., the Commander of this Post earnestly requests that the comrades of Beers Post, No. 140 G. A. R., will meet at their post-room on the Sabbath previous to Decoration Day, (May 25th) at 3 o'clock P. M., sharp, to attend divine service in a body, that we may be more fitly prepared to decorate the graves of our departed not only with tributes beautiful and fragrant that must fade, but with Fraternity, Charity and Loyalty that shall live forever.

The churches, Sunday schools and benevolent societies are cordially invited to join with us on that day.

To this end the co-operation of the citizens of Tecumseh and surrounding country are most earnestly invited to participate in the ceremonies of the day.

The ceremonies of May 30th will be held on Military Square. First the dedication of the Soldiers Monument; after which the Procession will reform and march to the cemetery.

By Order of
S. P. HOSMER, Commander.
GEO. W. MARSDEN, Adjt.

THE PROCESSION.

At 1:30 P. M. the procession will form on Chicago street, with the right resting on R. R. street, as follows:

Manchester Band.
Co. C., M. S. T.
Drum Corps.
Eaton Post, No. 222, G. A. R.
G. A. R. Colors.
Color Guard.
Beers Post, No. 140, G. A. R.
Delegations from Macon, Clinton, Ridgeway and Raisin.

Will move east to Ottawa street, north to Military Square, where the following program will be carried out.

DEDICATORY PROGRAM.

Music—Band.
Invocation—Rev. W. H. Babbitt.
Music—Choir.
Surrendering the Monument to the G. A. R.—Hon. J. J. Adam.
Acceptance—G. A. R.
Music—Band.
Prayer—Rev. J. Phelps.
Dedication—G. A. R.
Music—Choir.
Address—Rev. Geo. W. Hudson.
Music—Band.
Benediction—Rev. C. E. Conley.

The procession will reform and march to the cemetery, the band halting at the circle and playing a dirge while the graves are being decorated.

A citizen's meeting was held at the Council Building last evening when the following committees were chosen and the final arrangements made for the celebration.

President of the Day—L. P. Tribou.
Marshall—C. A. Slayton.
Committee to Decorate Monument—L. P. Tribou, A. W. Mills, Geo. W. Marsden.
Committee on Stand—Henry W. Stevens, W. C. Jordan, E. A. Hodges.

A resolution was passed requesting the merchants to close their stores between the hours of two and four o'clock P. M.

Also extending an invitation to the Common Council to occupy seats on the platform.

FLORAL COMMITTEE.

Dr. E. Hause, Mrs. Corey, Miss Augusta Whitenack, Mrs. Hardenberg, Mrs. L. I. Bidwell, Miss Fanny Bottum, Mrs. L. P. Tribou, Miss Bertha DeWolf, Mrs. Jehiel Davison, Mrs. A. D. Lawrence, Miss Kate Anderson, Mrs. Chas. F. Smith, Mrs. D. W. Clark, Mrs. Jas. Moir, Miss Anna Powers, Miss Lida James, Mrs. H. S. Lee, Mrs. Christian Coller, Miss Jennie Root, Mrs. Geo. Tiffany, Mrs. D. A. Hammond, Miss Leila Doty, Mrs A. F. Kennedy, Mrs. D. Spaulding, Mrs. Robert Crosby, Mrs. H. E. Stout, Miss Sena Drew, Miss Maggie Smith, Miss Emma Smith, Mrs. P. V. Woodard, Mrs. D. L. Whitenack, Mrs. W. S. Bordine, Mrs. W. Comfort.

The Sunday afternoon services above mentioned, will be held at the Presbyterian church.

Thos. H. Mosher of Springville drove to Tecumseh last Monday afternoon to bring his wife down to take the afternoon train for Norwalk, Ohio. A telegram was sent Sunday night announcing the death of his wife's sister, Newberry Satterthwaite received it early Monday morning and at once forwarded it to Onsted, and the dispatch was nearly six hours traveling from Onsted to Springville. Being then too late to take the M. & O. road Mr. Mosher drove as rapidly as possible to Tecumseh, but arrived too late to catch the Lake Shore train. The telegraph operator at Onsted should be substantially rewarded for his dexterity.

C. R. Henry of AuSable, favored us with a call last Saturday. He was called home to attend his father's bedside in what proved to be his final illness, Mr. Henry having departed this life on Thursday morning. It was a sad visit home, but at the same time one willingly made. The funeral was held on Sunday.

The work on Ab Usborne's new building is progressing rapidly. It will be ready for occupancy by the first of July.

The Great Healer of all Inflamed Injuries and Disorders.

It is constantly effecting the most wonderful cures, while the unparalleled demand with which it meets, stamps it at once as the greatest medicine of the age for outward application.

The most incredulous are convinced, and the most skeptical are compelled to believe in the power of this great remedy.

WHAT IT CURES.

All Sores, Cuts, Bruises, Sprains, Burns, Sore Throat, Lameness, Rheumatism, Piles, Inflammation of Lungs and Bowels, Bronchitis, Croup, Salt Rheum, Chilblains, Affection of the Spine, Erysipelas, Nervous Irritation, and all disorders attendant with inflammation.

It never fails to restore the natural functions of the skin and equalize the circulation of the blood. By this means it controlling power is felt over the most malignant forms of disease. It penetrates to every portion of the human frame; every bone, muscle, vein, nerve and ligament is searched out and made sensible to its soothing and healing influence. Hence it cures readily with internal as well as external diseases.

Over 40 Years.

This ointment has been used by the people throughout the United States, and our confidence in its qualities is such that we may well be spare here to refer only to the numerous cures which we have from all parts of the country, we simply ask those readers of this calling who have ever used this ointment, to transmit state their experience with it to unfortunate friends. If but one in a hundred would do this we should be perfectly satisfied with the result. Full directions for use will be found on pamphlet around each bottle.

Price 25 cents and 50 cents per bottle. Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Lifted Up

A happy surprise it was to Mr. A. R. Norton, of Bristol, Conn., when ATHLOPHOROS put him on his feet, and send him cheerfully about his business. Let him tell his own story:

"About three weeks ago I was taken with a severe cramp in the back. For four days I was unable to turn in bed without help, and when I tried to stand on my feet I was numbed by acute pain, after all the usual remedies failed. In 30 minutes after taking the first dose I could turn in bed without assistance, in two days I was able to get about and attend to business. In two other cases where I have given it the results in use has been attended with the same result."

A poor man in Philadelphia had to borrow a dollar to buy a bottle of ATHLOPHOROS, otherwise he was poverty stricken and shall remain a secret. He had suffered terribly from Rheumatism. He then wrote:

"I took my first dose Tuesday afternoon, and on Wednesday after breakfast, I had a character never came back. Then I reduced the dose one half and took the remainder of the bottle. I was able to be steady at work till Saturday, when I took a severe cold and was unable to use my left hand. I purchased another bottle and by bed time I found relief. The medicine is all you claim for it."

Investigate ATHLOPHOROS all you please! Find all the fault you choose with it! and yet the fact remains, that it is doing what no other medicine ever could do for Rheumatism and Neuralgia.

If you cannot get ATHLOPHOROS of your druggist, we will send it on receipt of price, $1 per bottle. We prefer that you buy it from your druggist, but if he hasn't it, do not be persuaded to try something else, but order at once from us as directed.

SCHOOL AND CHURCH.

—Dr. Mayo says: There are in the South 4,000,000 whites under twenty-one, of whom nearly half have never attended any school.—Western Educational Journal.

—A lady residing in New York City has presented the Princeton Theological Seminary with $150,000 to provide for salaries in the new department of philosophy.—N. Y. Tribune.

—A clergyman who recently held service in Auburn Prison preached from the text: "Go home to thy friends." His hearers were all willing, but couldn't seem to arrange it.—Syracuse (N. Y.) Journal.

—Mr. Hanks, of New Brighton, L. I., finding that his son had been deprived of recess five days for violating a rule of the school, appealed from the teacher to the principal, thence to the trustees, thence to the county commissioner, thence to the State Superintendent at Albany, and in every case was notified that the teacher was right.—Brooklyn Eagle.

—Bishop Hurst of the Methodist Church, said to a number of young men recently admitted to the Methodist ministry by the Newark Conference: "Preach temperance fully and freely, but when you have created the temperance sentiment and made the truth dominant, leave the organization and secular work to others.—N. Y. Examiner.

—The city of Boston maintains one Normal, ten Latin and High, fifty-one Grammar, and 404 Primary schools. Besides these the following special schools are maintained: One for deaf mutes, two for licensed minors, an evening High school, thirteen elementary schools and five evening drawing schools.—Forum Herald.

—Noting the fact that a city councilman of Pittsburgh, Pa., was recently sent to the workhouse for sixty days for disturbing worship in one of the local churches, the Christian Advocate admonishes "those rough boys and giggling girls who in some places disturb our worship" to learn a lesson from his fate. As to dealing with such offenders, it says sternly, "Expostulate once privately, once publicly, then turn the disturbers over to the law."

—Considerable excitement has been aroused in the Jewish communities of South Russia by the appearance at Kischineff of an energetic reformer named Rabinowitch. He declares Christ to have been the real Messiah, supporting his theories by numerous citations from the Bible and the prophets. Rabinowitch is an enthusiastic and eloquent preacher, and is winning numerous proselytes. He is anathematized generally by the Jewish press.—Chicago Journal.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—"No," said a druggist, "there is not such an awful profit in a glass of soda water. You see, the wear and tear on the glass amounts to something."

—A Quaker's advice to his son on his wedding day: "When thee went a courting I told thee to keep thy eyes wide open. Now that thee is married I tell thee to keep them half shut."

—Little Nell—"Why are lightning bugs called 'blessings,' mamma?" Mamma—"'Blessings?' I never heard them called 'blessings.'" Little Nell—"But they are in this book." Mamma—"Are you sure?" Little Nell—"O, yes. Here it is: 'Blessings brighten as they take their flight.'"—Philadelphia Call.

—Mr. and Mrs. Buntlin were going out to walk. "Wait," said Mrs. B., "until I go back and get my umbrella." "It isn't going to rain, is it?" asked Mr. B. "Not that I know of. O, I always like to have something along with me when I'm walking." Mr. B. looked bothered, but didn't seek any explanations.—Chicago Journal.

—A German has succeeded in accurately photographing a flash of lightning. In order not to be behind the achievements of the effete monarchies of the Old World, an American has caught a life-like photograph of a clap of thunder, and is now experimenting on the rumble of the earthquake.—Norristown Herald.

—Astronomers tell us in their own simple intelligible way that the gradual lengthening of the days is due to the "obliquity of the ecliptic to the terrestial horizon." This ought to set at rest the foolish idea that the days are longer because the sun rises earlier and sets later.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

—Metaire, the most fashionable cemetery in New Orleans, was a race course a few years ago. It then belonged to an aristocratic club, which blackballed the president of a lottery company when he made application for membership. By way of revenge he bought the grounds and gave them to the city for a cemetery.—N. O. Times.

—"I haven't got any case," said the client, "but I have money." "How much?" asked the lawyer. "Fifty thousand dollars," was the reply. "Phew! you have got the best case I ever heard of. I'll see that you never go to prison with that sum," said the attorney, cheerfully, and the man didn't he went there "broke."—Chicago Herald.

—Young minds in America grasp great truths quickly. A New York boy who had had a misunderstanding with one of his playmates was waiting while his mother prepared a green shade for his eye. "Ma," he said, "I wish I was a rich man." "Why, my son?" "Because I'd buy a pistol and shoot Jake Bolter." "But you'd be tried for it just as much as if you were a poor man." "Yes, but I wouldn't be convicted just as much."—Brook'yn Eagle.

—A Buffalo janitor kicked a can of nitro-glycerine, and right then, for the first time in his life, became a really active man, inaugurating proceedings by turning a double somersault and knocking out a hod full of mortar and brick with the back of his head at one end of the room. He continued the performance by kicking down the stove, pulling down the chandelier and plowing up the plaster with his nose. When the nitro-glycerine let the old man sit down and take a rest he looked mournfully at the remnants of the fragment of tin that once held the chain lightning, and said to the doctor: "Wal, if that ain't the quickest-tempered stuff I ever saw."—Philadelphia Republic.

A Startling Discovery.

Physicians are often startled by remarkable discoveries. The fact that Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption and all throat and lung diseases is daily curing patients, that they have given up to die, is startling them to realize their sense of duty, and examine into the merits of this wonderful discovery, resulting in hundreds of our best physicians using it in their practice. Trial bottles free. Regular size $1.

KING OF THE BLOOD

The Most Thorough Purifier of the Blood Yet Discovered.

Cures all Humors, from a Common Eruption to the worst Scrofula.

It purifies the Blood.
It invigorates the Liver.
It regulates the Bowels.
It strengthens the Stomach.
It gives vivacity in place of lassitude; cheerfulness in place of gloom, and robust vigor in place of debility.

Dyspepsia, Biliousness, Disordered Liver, Constipation, Nervous Affections, General Debility, in short all the numerous diseases and discomforts caused by impure blood are specially conquered by this powerful corrector, the chief and sovereign of all ancient or modern medical discoveries—KING OF THE BLOOD.

Its name is its best description as it is a royal dispenser of the blessings of health and vanquishes the foes that lurk in the blood.

It banishes PIMPLES, SALT RHEUM, SCALY ERUPTIONS, ULCERS, SCALD HEAD, FEVER SORES, and all SCROFULOUS DISORDERS.

It checks CONSUMPTION in its early stages. It has frequently cured it when advanced.

It disperses TUMORS and CANCERS without the surgeon's knife.

It cures DROPSY, general or partial.

It cures FEMALE WEAKNESS and DISEASE.

It reduces inflammation and effectually drains all swellings, external or internal.

It eradicates the effects of venereal diseases and Mineral Poisons, and establishes a sound constitution.

Many certificates, much further information and full directions for using, will be found in the pamphlet, "Treatment of Diseases of the Blood," in which each bottle is enclosed.

Price $1 per bottle containing 12 ordinary, or 16 to 20 doses. Sold by dealers in medicine.

If your druggist does not happen to have it on hand, he can easily obtain a supply for you, as it will be to his interest to do so for you, rather than for you to order direct of us, and lose time.

Woman's Progress.

They were talking about the woman suffrage convention and the ex-governor of Maryland remarked: "They have been making progress no doubt of it. I think last Friday was the first time in the history of this country when a woman sat as a judge in a trial upon which a man's liberty or imprisonment depended. Marilla M. Ricker was the judge." "You probably noticed that she was appointed United States Judge some eleven years ago. She attended the convention recently along and took the pattern every day, but she didn't make any speeches. She has made enough of them in her lifetime and she didn't propose to take up the time with the poor little speeches she could make. They sent for her Friday afternoon to perform a case, and I don't know what I would do in such a case, I don't know what I would do in such a case, I don't know what I would do in such a case,

DIED.

HENRY—John Henry of Macon, May 9th, 1884, at the residence of Typhoid fever. Aged fifty-one years, three months and twelve days.

John Henry was born in the town[illegible] N. Y. Sep. 4th, 1833, where he resided until 1854, when he removed with his wife to Macon, Lenawee Co., Mich., where he resided up to the time of his death. When he first settled in the county [illegible] the land he had purchased upon the present cleared premises of the late residence, adjoining where his personal effects [illegible] Well has the [illegible] been a worthy citizen, and a [illegible] neighbor, [illegible] home [illegible] door. A consistent Christian, a true friend, a noble husband and [illegible] father, were among his many virtues. He leaves a wife and four children to mourn his loss, a loss that may be spoken of by all, but felt only and felt alone by Mother and children. No father or husband ever was more [illegible] to more for comfort and [illegible] by wife and children than he, and [illegible] wife or children more dependent on husband and father than they. He was the strong staff [illegible] and they feel now the truth of the [illegible] the true man gone. Is it needless to say we are best prepared to go that the most worthy are taken. The Lord, Lord, the ways are past finding out!

CARD OF THANKS.

To the many neighbors who assisted us especially Mr. Winting and others too numerous to mention in the loss of a kind husband and loving father, we extend our sincere thanks with [illegible] blessings, and in the Sweet Home may those who are waiting there and those who are watching here meet inside the beautiful gate and sing together The Well Done Home.

Mrs. John Henry and children.

We acknowledge the receipt of a new version of the old song, Wait for the Wagon. It is in sheet music form with elegant photograph title page, arranged for the piano and published by the celebrated [illegible] of South Bend, Ind. It is something new in the advertising line.

The well known publishing house of [illegible] Mahaffey & Co., of Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Chicago, and St. Louis, has just published a most valuable and attractive book entitled "Famous and Decisive Battles of the World," written by Captain Charles King, U. S. A., late Professor of Military Science and Tactics in the University of Wisconsin, and the author of "The Colonel's Daughter." In this brilliant work Captain King brings without doubt the greatest power of his pen upon descriptions of the most renowned military events from Marathon, 490 B. C., to the present time. The work combines the spirit of severe and impartial study with great picturesqueness of representation, and the reader consequently gets the solid meat of history served and presented in a most alluring form. The book is in fact a gallery of battle pictures, each telling its own story, and all ranged upon a connected line of history which brings them into their proper relation with each other. History thus taught sticks in the memory, and a book of battles having the scope and written in the style of this masterly work of Captain King's, becomes at once the most effectual, as well as the most delightful medium for acquainting us with the great events and features in the story of our race that could possibly be devised. The firm grants agents everywhere to introduce this new and popular work. Write for full particulars.

Delicate and Feeble Ladies.

Those languid, tiresome sensations, causing you to feel so nervous and ill at ease, that constant drain that is taking from your system all its power, exhausting your vitality, driving the bloom from your cheeks, that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain are permanently removed. None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women.

Feels Young Again.

My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and had all the symptoms of a decayed and inactive condition of the whole system, headache, nervous prostration and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicine did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over 70 years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family.—A lady, in Providence.

BRADFORD, Pa., May 8, 1875.

It has cured me of several diseases, such as nervousness, sickness at the stomach, monthly troubles, etc. I have not seen a sick day in a year, since I took Hop Bitters. All my neighbors use them.

MRS. FANNIE GREEN.

$3,000 LOST.—A tour of Europe that cost me $3000, done me less good than one bottle of Hop Bitters; they also cured my wife of fifteen years' nervous weakness, sleeplessness and dyspepsia.—R. M., Auburn, N. Y.

High Authority.

Hop Bitters is not in any sense, an alcoholic beverage or liquor, and could not be sold for use except to persons desirous of obtaining a medicinal bitters.

GREEN B. BAUM,
U. S. Com. Inter'l Rev.,
SO. BLOOMINGVILLE, O., May 1, '79.

MRS. I. have been suffering ten years and I tried your Hop Bitters and it done me more good than all the doctors. MISS S. S. BOONE.

Baby Saved.

We are so thankful to say that our nursing baby was permanently cured of a dangerous and protracted constipation and irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents, Rochester, N. Y.

ESTATE OF ROBERT W. KING.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss.

At a session of the Probate Court for the County of Lenawee, held at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, on Friday, the 9th day of May, in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-four.

Present, Norman Geddes, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of Robert W. King, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Abner Wilson, guardian of said minor, alleging that said deceased died seized of the age of fourteen years, and praying that the guardian now on file in this court may be accepted, that his account as such guardian may be allowed, that he may be ordered to pay over the estate in his hands belonging to said minor to his guardian when appointed, and for his discharge.

It is ordered, That Monday, the 26th day of June next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition, and that the next-of-kin of said minor and all other persons interested in said estate are required to appear at a session of said court then to be holden at the Probate office, in the city of Adrian, and show cause why the prayer of said petitioner should not be granted.

And it is further ordered, that said petitioner give notice to the persons interested in said estate of the pendency of said petition and the hearing thereof by causing a copy of this order to be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Annual Surprise

FOR FARMERS.

The season of 1884 will be another one of triumph for the Deering Harvesting Machinery. This time it is

The Deering Junior,

OR THEIR LIGHT 2-HORSE BINDER.

The latest and best thing out in Farm Machinery. It weighs but 1,200 pounds, and embodies in itself many new features and improvements, among which are

The newest and simplest knotter known.
A new adjustable reel.
A new raising and lowering device.
A new steel main wheel.
A new iron grain wheel.

It is full of fine points, and is bound to please. It has been thoroughly tested IN THE FIELD, and its success is assured.

THE OLD RELIABLE

FOUR POINTS

Prepared by an entirely NEW METHOD.
Composed of the PUREST MATERIALS.
WILL NOT INJURE THE FABRIC.
WILL CLEANSE WITHOUT RUBBING.

You can do a large washing without any rubbing; use the boiling process instead. You can save Time, Labor, Fuel, Soap and Clothing.

DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

Cut up fine and dissolve one half bar in half gallon of hot water. Pour half this dissolved soap into a tub with just sufficient hot water to cover a boiler full of clothes. Then put the clothes in to soak, rubbing plenty of soap in the most soiled parts. Be sure that the soaking water is hot; soak the clothes half an hour; stir them occasionally with a stick, so as to get the full benefit of the hot suds; pour the remainder of the dissolved soap into the boiler, adding a sufficient water to cover the clothes; wring them lightly out of the suds. Soap the stained spots and place loosely in the boiler; boil ½ to 1 minutes, rinse well, blue as [illegible] to dry. Do not crowd the boiler too full. The same boiling water may be used for further boiling by adding a little soap to each boiler-full of clothes. Flannels and prints should not be boiled, only a little rubbing required after soaking. This soap will cleanse clothing as thoroughly as any other without the use of the boiler. We prefer and recommend the boiling process as in itself a cleansing process, saving labor, the wear of the wash-board, and being the best disinfectant known, it is easier to boil the dirt out than to rub it out. You can cleanse perfectly the finest fabric without injury; the finest point lace and lace curtains. Soak point lace in hot suds made with this soap, press water out with the hand; boil ½ to 5 minutes in clean suds made with this soap, rinse thoroughly, press carefully between the folds of a towel, roll in a dry towel, and iron between pieces of [illegible] flannel. Soak curtains ½ to 1 hour, boil ½ to 5 minutes, rinse, stretch on frame, or pin every [illegible] to carpet over a sheet to dry; no ironing required.

Be sure and ask for ELECTRIC-LIGHT SOAP, and take no other.

Sold by leading wholesale and retail grocers everywhere. Dealers may obtain our goods upon application. ELECTRIC SOAP MANUFACTURING CO., Indianapolis, Ind., and 26-28 South Water St., Chicago, Ill.

COMMISSIONERS' NOTICE.

In the matter of the estate of Silas W. Bass, deceased.

The undersigned having been appointed by the Judge of Probate for the County of Lenawee, Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands against the estate of Silas W. Bass, late of Tecumseh, in said county, deceased, hereby give notice that we will meet for that purpose at the office of Charles Burridge, in the village of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, on the 11th day of June, 1884, and on the 28th day of October, 1884, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of each of said days, and that six months from the 28th day of April, 1884, are allowed by the said court to the creditors of said estate to present their said claims for examination and adjustment.

Cover Your Heads!

One week Ago we opened our new Hat and Cap Department, and although we felt sure of the support of the public in our new venture we were not prepared to see our sales for the week fully double our expectations. Excellent should we be celebrated $1 Hat, which is sold by other dealers at $1.50. This Hat we make our specialty. We purchase such large quantities to supply our different stores that we can well afford to sell them at $1, and still have a fair profit. Our $1.50 Stiff Hats in all the latest shapes, other dealers' price $2. Our $2 and $2.50 Hats from the best makers, and our $3, $3.50, $4 and upwards are all fine imported English Stiff and Soft Hats. Every line we sell at 50 cents less than elsewhere in the city.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

CLINTON CLIPPINGS.

Cold weather for the last May.

Geo Freese of Detroit was in town over Sunday.

Some preparations are already being made for the celebration to be held the Fourth.

Bert Roff of Jackson; spent Sunday here with his parents and friends.

Mrs. D. H. Silvers has been quite sick the past week.

Everyone seems busy and news is scarce.

E. A. Clark and one of his employees, Mr. Walker, drove over from Jacksen last Saturday and remained in town over Sunday.

Friends from Kalamazoo have been visiting Mrs. Hixon the past week.

The Congregational Church Social was held at the residence of Mrs. Belding last Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Mickley and daughter of Adrian, were guests of Mrs. E. VanDeMark last Saturday and Sunday.

People can go to Chicago next week over the Lake Shore at reduced rates on account of the National Republican Convention that opens there the 3d. of June.

The Street Commissioner has commenced work upon the streets.

We learn the Bridgewater band intends to reorganize for the coming campaign.

Farmers are planting over their corn largely. The early frosts last fall damaged the crop for seed.

Six Dollars and eighty cents will purchase a round trip ticket to Chicago next week from this station, and the ticket will be good ten days.

The new Methodist parsonage is just completed, and the pastor, Mr. Kerridge, is moving into it this week.

Wilber Short of Bridgewater, in some way fell off a load of sand last Friday, and was run over. We are glad to report, however, that he was not badly injured.

Dell Goodrich went to North Adams last Saturday and remained over Sunday with friends.

John E. McCollum will move into Mrs. Lancaster's house, which is being vacated by Mr. Kerridge.

Rev. J. W. Payne returned from Detroit last Wednesday where he has been attending the meetings of the National Baptist Societies. Mr. Payne reports the meetings of these Societies as having been very interesting and profitable.

A severe frost seen in this section, this, Thursday morning. The damage done in gardens is large and the corn that was up is probably nipped.

Miss Lucia Kimball of Chicago is announced to be here to talk temperance next Sunday. She will speak to the children in the afternoon at the Town Hall, and in the evening it is intended to hold Union services in one of the churches where she will speak. Miss Kimball is the lady advertised to be here some weeks ago, but failed to appear.

E. VanDeMark who is traveling for a paper house in Canajoharie, N. Y. has not been on the road the last few weeks on account of ill-health.

Dr. G. W. Stevens, son-in-law of Moses Bartlett, is manager of the base ball nine in Jonesville. The Jonesville club is early in the field practicing and expects to play good ball this season.

We understand the Council has decided to rebuild the side walk on Jackson street from Chicago St to the end of John Hause's lot. The walk was built by the property owners, but is to be rebuilt with the public money, for the reason that it is one of the most prominent walks in town, being used by the scholars in our schools and also by some church going people.

William Silvers started for Kansas last Friday to remain there a few weeks. Mr. Silvers went to see the country and may invest some means there.

The township Board of Review completed its duties last Tuesday. The board consisted of David Brooks and A. P. Halladay. No radical changes were made in the assessment as taken by Supervisor Marsteller.

D. Keyes, who is the census enumerator for this township, will begin his duties next Monday.

A number of citizens met at Town Hall last Tuesday evening to perfect arrangements for a celebration the 4th. The matter was talked over and a large committee appointed to raise the necessary funds. This committee will report at the Town Hall next Monday evening, and the full committee will then be appointed and the program and other matters arranged.

Alex. Easlick, of Macon, has just purchased a brand new boiler and fixtures from the Eagle Iron Works of Detroit.

BROOKLYN BALLAST.

A Soldier's Thanksgiving Service was held at the Presbyterian Church Sunday morning, and a few bouquets gathered for living heroes, who have long been half forgotten while grieving for the dead. A company numbering eighteen, very civil looking men marched after commander H. A. Williamson, from Union Hall, but an empty coat sleeve, limping steps and scars attested to uncivil receptions met with somewhere. Among them was J. Wesch of Jefferson, who spent fourteen months in Andersonville prison and no doubt there were others who had been sufficiently disciplined to be thankful for the May Day Sunshine of 1884. The love of adventure or of fight, pity for the oppressed or the desperation that impels the peace-loving to fight in self-defence, are among the many reasons that induce men to risk sacrifice of life; but all reasons melt in the crucible of Freedom, and blend into reason why we must ever honor the veteran soldier.

The week is so crowded that a few more days are needed to piece it out comfortably. Horses are arriving for the races, that do not fail to bring visitors from far and near, and ladies who are making ready for summer, or Decoration day, choose this time to coax heads of departments to leave home for a day. Of course they don't care for races any more than for Barnham's show, but if they have got to come, just after corn-planting is the time. Underneath these layers of noise and aversion to public brousing is blooming what may possibly produce a fruit called discord.

To take away dooryard fences and mingle with the world at large, is a doctrine supposed to mean, keep yourself unspotted, and gains adherents twice as fast in the new version as the old. It is almost marked as one of the much needed reforms. The beauty of lawn and garden unmarred by pickets, is mapped out with fascinating largeness, and warranted a cure-all for the cow-pasturing enormity, that afflicts by-ways, lawns, country roads, and village streets. I wish to know whether Butler or Begole is to blame for this open-communion law? St. Paul is credited with saying that many things are lawful which are not expedient, and who knows but this is one of them. I don't know how I should feel with my dooryard fence gone, but I have realized a sort of general non-conformity, when a panel got tipped over, or my gate lifted up and cabbage heads nipped off untimely. Accidents of that kind which one has had the caution to provide against, could not be lessened, by offering unlimited inducements to tax-payers, and the inconvenience it might entail on some neighbor whose wandering property never does any particular harm, would not be counted a kindness. Perhaps he helps to keep the highway in order and is entitled to some benefit in return. His children would miss their cup of milk, so he hunts an hour or two for his cow after the day's work is done, not because the road field is cheaper, but because near by farmers cannot or will not rent a pasture. There are only a few such self-sacrificing fathers in any locality, and it seems wicked to exterminate the race. A herd of cattle prowling about the gate is an intolerable plague, but the landscape is incomplete without some to eat the grass that would otherwise grow a carpet for selfishness. Would such stringent regulations be a benefit to any farming community, is a question with two sides, and surely a village is misnamed that allows grass enough to grow in the streets to allure cattle. Reasonable care to prevent intrusion is exacted of all, but forbearance to meddle with privileges that damage neither my conscience or pocketbook is going to be my crowning virtue when I get it learned. One of my chief failings is branching out, when there is nothing to hinder, and if not fenced I might forget to narrow individual interests within proper limits. An escaped pig is a menagerie of mischief I can afford to laugh at when suitable obstructions intervene. To take them away, and court mishap may be lawful, but I doubt that method of living in peace with one's neighbors, and shall not risk the spoiling of my tomato worms with any such nonsense.

TIPTON TATTLE.

Tipton is a modest village having a pleasant appearance and a population of about 25 families, who regulate and administer their own affairs without the intervention of corporate legislature. It is also the chief seat of all the commercial and mechanical enterprises of the entire township in which it is planted. In addition to this, it is most strongly braced on every side by rich farming lands but rarely equalled in general productiveness. Two creditably looking churches loom prominently in the midst of a neat cluster of comfortable residences, two prosperous stores, two blacksmith establishments, one busy wagon shop, the temperance hotel well kept for the benefit of the hungry way-farer, just facing the office where Uncle Sam distributes his piles of literature and various degrees of intelligence. The learned professions are but sparingly represented here as yet. The legal profession does not have a single agent to press its claims upon the public. The medical and the clerical have each one, both of whom seem to be well fed, judging from their physical development. The Tiptonians are entirely exempt from all the disturbances arising from the sale of intoxicating drinks as no such institution exists among them; but they are annoyed sometimes by loads of pleasure seekers hailing from Adrian and elsewhere, who touch at this point on their way to spend and profane the Sabbath at the lakes.

The ground set apart for the burial of the dead in full view of the village appears to good advantage, being neatly kept and well located on a beautiful swell of land exactly adapted to the purpose, so that it is not strange that there should be in all probability, the remains of a larger number of persons sleeping in the cemetery than there are living in the suburbs. Three untimely accessions have been made to this lovely city of the dead during the last week, viz: Pliny Stout who died on the 16th inst., of a rupture, aged 20 years; Carrie Kohler who died on the 20th inst., of scarlet fever, aged 13 months; Mary Alice Bradley who died on the 22d. inst. of consumption, aged 22 years. She had been a member of the M. E. Church about three years and adorned her profession by a patient resignation to the Divine will and at length slept in Jesus and was gathered to his people's rest.

ONSTED ODDS.

A large amount of wheat is being shipped from here. Cambridge farmers know how to appreciate having a market near home.

Mrs. Sarah French, of Hammond, Kent Co., has been visiting friends in this vicinity during the past few days.

Mrs. Desermia and daughter of Ithica, Michigan, are visiting at Mr. Butterfields.

Many farmers are anxiously enquiring how long it will be before the fences will be built along the line of the M. & O.

Miss Mary Lawton of Clayton, teacher in District number five is having excellent success. We understand that the district board have secured her services for the fall term.

The Board of Review were reviewing and revising the assessment roll last week. The road warrants are being made and in a few days every man in town will know just how much he is worth.

The Cambridge correspondent for The Union Light made a mistake last week when he said five gentlemen from the East were at Onsted looking over the locality with a view of putting a store in operation. The number should have been two.

Last Friday afternoon while Mr. Glenn was unloading some window frames for his new store a piece of scantling fell from the scaffold, striking the horses, causing them to run. They were finally captured near the place of starting after unloading their load at several places. Not much damage was done to horses or wagon.

MACON MOLECULES.

To much rain to please the farmers.

Mrs. Avery is dangerously sick, yet we hope that she may fully recover.

Frank J. Dennis died at the residence of his mother, Mrs. Pennington, last Friday. Mr. Dennis had been sick with paralysis a number of months. Funeral services were held at the Baptist church Saturday.

Rev. Mr. Dutton, a graduate of the Theological Seminary at New Brunswick, New Jersey, preached at the Reformed church Sunday evening. We understand that Mr. Dutton has been engaged by this church.

Jesse Coller came up from Milan Saturday and returned Tuesday.

Be prepared to answer about two hundred questions, for the census enumerator will begin his journey next Monday.

The patience of the saints shall be rewarded. Seneca is to have that post-office finally, a Wabash official proposing to stop the train daily to take on and throw off the mail. So they get a station as well as a post-office!

The apportionment of public school money this year in Michigan will be $1.31 per pupil.

MICHIGAN STATE PIONEER SOCIETY.

The Annual Meeting of this Society, being the tenth anniversary of its organization, will be held in Representative Hall at Lansing, commencing Wednesday, June 4, at 2 o'clock P. M. and continue through the day and evening of the 5th.

The officers are endeavoring to make this one of the most interesting and profitable meetings the Society has ever held, and earnestly request that as many members as can possibly do so, will be in attendance.

The program will consist of Music, Address of the President, Reports of the Officers and Committee, Interesting Historical Papers, interspersed with spirited five minute Reminiscences.

The following historical papers have been promised, and may be expected.

O. Poppleton, Brimingham.—History of Oakland County.

William Fox, Detroit.—Biography of Rev. Charles Fox.

Wm. R. McCornlick, Bay City.—My first visit to Saginaw Valley, fifty years ago.

John H. Forster, Williamston.—Sketches of the early settlement of the copper region of Lake Superior.

Miss Lucy M. Salmon, A. M., Ann Arbor.—The Schools of Michigan during the Territorial Period.

Miss Mabel Randall, Coldwater.—Bishop Chase in Gilead, 1823.

Judge Thomas M. Cooley, Ann Arbor.—Life of D. Darwin Hughes.

Gen. Isaac D. Toll, Petoskey.—An Outline of the March of the 15th U. S. Infantry, War with Mexico, and of some of the Ungagetted Heroes of Company E. of that Regiment.

Mrs. D. L. Case, Lansing.—History of North Lansing.

F. A. Dewey, Cambridge.—The Pottawatomie Indians over fifty years ago.

Prof. J. C. Holmes, Detroit.—Narrative concerning the Knaggs Farm and windmill in Springwells, near Detroit.

Sherman Stevens, Port Washington, N. Y.—Early days in Genesee County.

Prof. J. C. Holmes, Detroit.—History of the "Michigan Farmer."

F. W. Ball or Geo. H. White, Grand Rapids.—Memoir of Hon. John Ball.

Thomas B. Church, Grand Rapids. Early History of Grand River Valley.

THE TWILIGHT SONG.

Passing by an humble dwelling
Hidden in the foliage deep,
There I heard a mother singing
As she rocked her babe to sleep;
Soft and low the notes were blended,
By an unseen chair led:
"H-u-s-h, my d-e-a-r, l-i-e s-t-i-l-l a-n-d s-l-u-m-b-e-r,
H-o-l-y a-n-g-e-l-s g-u-a-r-d t-h-y b-e-d!"

Soft the cooing baby answered,
With the sappy kiss of love,
While above the cottage rafters
Watchers from the world above
But the mother sang unbeeding,
Like pressed to the dewy bed:
"H-u-s-h my d-e-a-r, l-i-e s-t-i-l-l a-n-d s-l-u-m-b-e-r,
H-o-l-y a-n-g-e-l-s g-u-a-r-d t-h-y b-e-d!"

When I passed again at nightfall,
Closed and dark the casement there,
And above the humble thresh hold
Hung the black bar of despair.
But in music soft the mother
Sung beside her baby dead
"H-u-s-h, my d-e-a-r, l-i-e s-t-i-l-l a-n-d s-l-u-m-b-e-r,
H-o-l-y a-n-g-e-l-s g-u-a-r-d t-h-y b-e-d!"

Soon my restless footsteps wandered
To a graveyard's tranquil space,
There, in the dark earth of sorrow,
Saw I that fair face
And the tear-choked voice was saying,
By a grave with roses spread:
"H-u-s-h my d-e-a-r, l-i-e s-t-i-l-l a-n-d s-l-u-m-b-e-r,
H-o-l-y a-n-g-e-l-s g-u-a-r-d t-h-y b-e-d!"

Yesterday I walked in sadness
By that home where grief had been,
But the mother's voice was silent,
And in death her face serene;
Far away I heard the whisper
Of a song that Heavenward sped:
"H-u-s-h, my, d-e-a-r, l-i-e s-t-i-l-l a-n-d s-l-u-m-b-e-r,
H-o-l-y a-n-g-e-l-s g-u-a-r-d t-h-y b-e-d!"

OUT OF THE FRYING-PAN INTO THE FIRE.

Neither tall nor short, neither dark nor fair, with hair between blonde and brown, and eyes that left a doubt as to whether they were gray or hazel. She was just such a little bundle of uncertainties and contradictions as led the imagination captive at the first glance, and offered a constant lure to anticipation.

Whether she spoke or remained silent, whether she walked or sat, expectation hung breathless upon her next word, her next pose. Her eyes, varying as seemed their hue, shone, none the less, with a candid ray that seemed the very light of truth, and her fresh mouth, with its milky teeth showing between the not too-smiling lips, irresistibly suggested the sweetest uses to which lips can be put.

When the heavily-moving vessel had plowed through half the great Atlantic rollers, and the few passengers had all grown heartily tired of each other, when she suddenly appeared for the first time upon deck quite alone, yet calm and self-centered as the small birds that sometimes poised themselves upon spar or bulwark to gather breath for fresh flight.

It was Julius Hilder who had first discovered her, leaning against the companion-way railing, with the air of having just come up or down, he could hardly determine which, looking absently at the tumbling waves.

Julius and his friend, Austin Drake, were sea-faders from a gay party who had made the tour of Southern Europe together. It was Julius who had instigated his companion to desert the others and take the German steamer for New Orleans direct, which then touched at Havre, instead of crossing by a Cunarder, and it had all grown out of the obstinate determination on the part of his sister to attach her party to that of Mrs. Smollett.

Mrs. Smollett was his choicest aversion, a pretentious, intriguing woman, in whom the match-making instinct had been so developed by the effort to establish her own five daughters that it could not rest satisfied with the accomplishment of that gigantic task. She seemed to have an endless supply of nieces, adopted daughters, or protegés of some sort, whom she dangled ostentatiously before the eyes of all eligible bachelors. She had improved a chance meeting with Julius to announce to him a new acquisition, a lovely young creature, whom she was taking home with her from a Swiss Pension.

"Mr. Smollett's own niece, Mr. Hilder, quite like my Fanny at her age. You remember Fanny? She was your first love, I believe," she had said, with her ogling dowager smile, and Julius had felt himself seized at once with an insurmountable aversion to the fair young niece of Mr. Smollett.

In the first heat of his indignation against his sister he had conceived this notable scheme of crossing by the Havre steamer, and though it had not in its development proved to be eminently amusing, he had never omitted to congratulate himself and his companion, night and morning, upon the good sense they had displayed in adopting it.

"No chattering girls or designing dowagers," he would say, as he yawned over his book or the dull game with which they strove to believe they were amusing themselves, "gives a man time to pull himself together and take account of stock, as it were." Still, when on one of those aimless pilgrimages below which formed the only break in the monotony of his occupation, he had nearly run over this pretty young creature leaning against the railings, a thrill of undeniable pleasure had coursed along his nerves and he had felt himself blushing with pleased surprise.

Fortunately, the sea-tan had rendered the blush indistinct, but over the light that shot into his gray eyes the sea-tan had no power, nor yet over the tongue that stammered as he tried to convey his apologies for nearly upsetting her, and his offers of service in conducting her to a seat.

"Thank you," she had answered coolly, "you did not startle me, as I saw you coming, and I am not sure that I want a seat."

There was no more to be said, and her maid appearing at the moment with a bundle of parti-colored wraps, Julius could only lift his hat again and carry out his purpose of going below. As he had no reason for going except that he was tired of staying on deck, and as the deck had now acquired a paramount attraction, he was soon back again.

In the meantime the young lady had made up her mind about the seat, and had found one for herself close against the ship's side, on the weather quarter. It was not a pleasant location, but as she had chosen it, and had wrapped a large shawl about her in an exclusive sort of way, he saw no plausible ground for interfering.

Nothing could have been more discreet and retiring than Miss Elton's behavior, but the perseverance of a man who finds himself bored by too much of his own and his alter ego's society, is an incalculable force against which no woman can successfully intrench herself, and so it was not long before Drake found himself eliminated, as a superfluous factor, from the scene of his friend's enjoyment, whenever Miss Elton appeared on deck. His success, however, was more apparent than real, for although he knew her name, and was allowed to carry her books and her shawl, and arrange her chair in the most comfortable position with reference to the wind, or the sun, he had really made no great progress in her confidence. Who she was, or why she had chosen to make the voyage in this unconventional and eccentric way, remained as great a mystery as it had been on that memorable first day. It was the close of the tenth day, dating from that of his discovery, and Julius sat beside her in that intimate fashion bred of the isolation of the sea.

He had been reading to her, but the story was finished, and a silence had ensued, she appearing to be wrapped in thought and he watching her face with half-veiled glances.

"Three more days and we shall be at home," she said, rousing herself.

"You count the days," he said. "Are you eager to be there?"

"No: neither eager nor reluctant. The voyage has been pleasant, but it will be nice to be on shore again, too."

"What, or rather who is going to make it nice? Anybody in particular?"

She put the question aside with a little wave of her hand.

"You are curious," she said, mischievously.

Julius bit his lip. He was curious, and this was not the first time she had foiled him.

"You want much to know just who and what I am," she went on. "You have made a dozen attempts to find out. Tell me why. What difference would it make to you? If I were to tell you that I am a niece of the Governor of Kentucky—mind, I don't say that I am," she cautioned, as Julius made a gesture of surprise. "I say if I were to tell you so, and add that I am mistress of an independent fortune, would that enhance my value in your eyes?"

Julius drummed upon the arm of his chair, and looked at her in silence.

"Suppose, on the contrary," she went on, impetuously, and with a certain warmth of tone that seemed to spring from injured pride, "I were to tell you that I am an orphan without fortune: that I had just money enough to carry me through the conservatory at Paris, and that I am hoping and expecting to make my living by teaching music, would that lower me in your regard?"

Julius still remained silent, perhaps a little abashed by the results of his own temerity.

"I see that I have embarrassed you," she said, laughing. "I shall not insist upon an answer. I leave you to adopt whichever hypothesis best suits you."

She gathered up her shawl and book as she spoke, and made a motion to rise, but Julius laid a detaining hand upon her arm.

"No, no, you mustn't go yet," he exclaimed, and he fancied he perceived a dewiness in her eyes, as she turned them toward him, which touched him inexpressibly. "I am embarrassed, not so much by your hypothesis as by something in myself. Since you leave me to choose between these hypotheses, I will take the latter. You are, then, an orphan without fortune, hoping and expecting to make your living by teaching music. To prove to you how little I deserve your implied reproach, I will confess what I should have concealed from the Governor's niece. Miss Elton, I adore you."

"Mr. Hilder!" she exclaimed, springing to her feet, with flashing eyes.

"Well," he said, quietly, "you challenged me."

"You are impertinent, sir," and she swept away with dignity.

She remained closely shut in her own cabin during the remainder of the afternoon and until quite late the next morning, when Julius, who had maintained an anxious and impatient watch on deck, found her in the saloon sipping a cup of tea and nibbling a piece of toast by way of breakfast.

"I hope you have forgiven me," he said, taking a seat beside her.

"But I have not," she answered, with decision.

"Which have I offended—the Governor's niece or the orphan music-teacher?" he asked, with a saucy smile.

"Both. It was a daring impertinence to the one and a piece of insolence toward the other."

"Well, I don't see what I'm to do about it. It isn't the sort of thing you can expect a man to take back."

"No," she said, looking absently into her cup, then suddenly realizing that this was not just what she should have said, she hurried to add, amid a confusion of blushes: "That is, of course, you must take it back; at least you mustn't say anything more about it."

"Never?"

"Never."

"But that's impossible."

"Mr. Hilder"

"Miss Elton."

"I think we've had enough of this. It was my fault, I am willing to admit that. It was wretched taste on my part, and I've suffered all sorts of things in consequence." She waved her hand toward her cabin as she spoke, indicating that it was thus her hours of retirement was spent. "Let me go back to the first question," she continued. "You asked me whether there was anybody to make it pleasant for me on shore. There was no reason but my own perversity why I should not have answered at once. No, nobody that I am at all sure will care to make it pleasant for me. I have a dear old uncle who has always been very good to me; but when he hears how naughty I have been I don't know what he will say to me," and she puckered up her white forehead into an expression of compunctious perplexity.

"Well," he said, after waiting some time for her to resume, "is that all?"

"That answers your question, does it not?"

"My question as originally put—yes, I believe it does; but it has been so amplified that you can hardly expect me to be satisfied with that meager answer."

"Amplified! I don't understand."

"Those two ingenious hypotheses, for instance—were they both pure fiction, or which was the true statement?"

"Both pure inventions," she returned, laughing and blushing again. "I am not that bird of rare creature, a Governor's niece, nor yet that more useful and respectable one, a teacher of music. The Governor's niece was just a piece of satire. I traveled a few weeks once in company with such a person, and the constant iteration with which she dwelt upon her title, and the amount of respect it seemed to inspire in the minds of those who heard it, gave me the impression that it was the highest rank an unmarried woman could attain in America. I think the impression must be well founded, too, as I noticed it produced quite an effect upon you."

"Not the effect you imagine. I was startled for a moment, I confess, but simply because of a slight coincidence."

"Coincidence! Do you know her?" and a hot blush and a look of consternation sat together upon the fresh, young face of Miss Elton.

"Never saw her; but there was a plot to make me cross the ocean with such a person and a lot of other women, which I defeated by running away."

"Oh! you ran away?" she breathed the words out in a startled, half-whisper.

"Yes, they went in a Cunarder, and my friend Drake and I slipped off and took the steamer at Havre."

She looked at him with widely-opened eyes for a moment, during which he decided for the fiftieth time that the eyes were brown and not deep gray, as he had decided the other fifty times.

"Why did you run away?" she asked, after a moment's amused consideration.

"Well, you see I was with my sister and two or three others; just a nice little party, all the ladies married; so a fellow didn't have to be always on parade. We had a jolly, comfortable time until we got to Paris on our way home, and there sister took it into her head to join a woman who had been roaming about the continent with a lot of girls on an extensive husband-hunt—one of those women who never look at a single man without picturing him to herself walking up the aisle with a white tie, with half a dozen groomsmen at his back, and who has always just the girl on hand who will walk up the other aisle in white satin and meet him demurely at the altar. I had no fancy for being cooped on a steamer with such an experienced old angler."

"And the Governor's niece was one of the girls?"

"Some Governor's niece, so I heard. Now, what is the naughty thing you've been doing? Come, confidence for confidence."

For sole answer, however, Miss Elton leaned back in her chair and began to laugh immoderately. Julius looked at her for some moments, then catching the infection began to laugh, too, much to the edification of the waiters, who were beginning their preparations for dinner.

"I have no doubt it's awfully funny," he added, as she wiped the tears from her cheeks, "but I could enjoy it more if I knew just the point of view from which you see it."

"Perhaps you could," she replied, demurely, checking an impulse to laugh again. "We seem to be in the way; suppose we move."

"Come on deck," he exclaimed, rising with alacrity and offering his arm.

"Thank you, no. I don't feel quite equal to the deck this morning."

She made him a ceremonious obeisance, and her cabin door had closed behind her before he had fully realized her purpose.

She did not reappear during the day. It was their last day at sea, and Julius was in despair. The jetties' light was in sight when he retired, and when he awoke in the morning the smooth gliding motion of the ship announced that they were in the river. He was in no haste to see the low shores of the Mississippi, in fact he felt at the moment that he hated them; yet he sprang up, dressed with dispatch and mounted to the deck. Everybody was there but the one he sought. He stood near the companion way, watching furtively and starting at every step. She did not come, neither was she at the breakfast table.

The hours glided by, the city rose into view, passengers came on deck with sachels and umbrellas, prepared for going ashore, but still that particular cabin-door remained closed. They were at the wharf, the staging was run out, and a dozen or more citizens rushed across with that strange eagerness so inexplicable to the voyager, whose eagerness impels him in the opposite direction. Julius still maintaining his watch at the companion way, felt himself gently put aside by a tall, gray-haired gentleman, in a brown coat, who went with a careful haste down the brass steps. He heard a little cry, and peering through a sky-light he saw Miss Elton in the arms of the gray-haired gentleman, her head pressed against the brown coat, and her eyes upturned to meet his spectacled gaze.

"Her uncle," he muttered, peevishly, "who the dickens is he anyhow?"

He moved discontentedly to the side and looked at the people hurrying ashore.

"Hello, Julius! Going to spend the night aboard?" cried Drake, coming up with a duly chalked valise in each hand.

"Oh, Mr. Hilder, exclaimed another and more musical voice. "Wait, uncle, I must introduce you: Mr. Hilder has been very kind to me."

"What, Julius! Why, my dear boy, how d'ye? My wife wrote me you were coming over with her." His hand was grasped with a hearty pressure, and he found himself gazing into the spectacled eyes of Mr. Smollett.

"Oh, stupidest of stupids!" he exclaimed, as he thrust slippers and brushes into his valise in the privacy of his cabin. "Bagged by the Smollett ogress after all, by Jupiter!" he added as he gave a last twist to his fair mustache before the misty mirror.—N. O. Times-Democrat.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a purgative, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable.

J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation; from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

How Watch Cases are Made.

Most persons have an ambition to carry a gold watch case, and yet few people know how a watch case is made, or the vast difference in the quality of them. In a SOLID GOLD WATCH CASE, aside from the necessary thickness for engraving and polishing, a large proportion of the metal is needed only to stiffen and hold the engraved portions in place, and supply strength. The surplus is not only needless, but undesirable, because gold is a soft metal and cannot furnish the stiffness, strength and elasticity necessary to make the case permanently strong and close-fitting. The perfect watch case must combine gold with some metal that will supply that in which the gold is deficient. This has been accomplished by the James Boss' Gold Watch Case TRADE MARK which saves the WASTE of needless gold, and INCREASES the SOLIDITY and STRENGTH of the case, and at the same time reduces the cost ONE HALF.

Send 3 cent stamp to Keystone Watch Case Factories, Philadelphia, Pa., for handsome Illustrated Pamphlet showing how James Boss' and Keystone Watch Cases are made.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

Regeneration for enfeebled systems, suffering from a general want of tone and its usual concomitants, dyspepsia and nervousness is seldom derivable from the use of a nourishing diet and stimuli of appetite, unaided. A medicine that will effect a removal of the specific obstacle to renewed health and vigor, that is a genuine corrective, is the real need. It is the possession of this grand requirement which makes Hostetter's Stomach Bitters so effective as an invigorant. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

DIPHTHERIA!

THE PROSTRATION which follows Diphtheria, and the persistency with which it clings to the patient, are well known to all who have had any experience with this terrible disease.

The following letter shows how the restoring and invigorating properties of Hood's Sarsaparilla overcome it, and how by vitalizing and enriching the blood it neutralizes and eradicates the poisoned matter from it, bringing to the convalescent the color, life and vigor of robust health.

LOWELL, MASS.

MESSRS. C. I. HOOD & CO.: Gentlemen—My little girl had the diphtheria last April. The disease left her very weak, blood poor, with no appetite, and she could not seem to rally from its effects. HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA was recommended by a neighbor. After she had taken it a few days we noticed a change for the better—she began to eat with a relish. It seemed to take out the poison the disease had left in her blood, the change being very noticeable in her face. She took it two months and fully regained her health, much to our delight. We now recommend HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA with a great deal of pleasure. Very truly yours,

J. R. SMITH,

General News Summary.

Interesting Home and Foreign News.

CONGRESS.

A NUMBER of petitions were presented in the Senate on the 21st protesting against Government assumption of telegraph services. Bills were passed for the erection of public buildings at Vicksburg, Chattanooga, Opelousas, La., Portland, Ore., Sacramento, Dayton, O., and Springfield, O.; also bills permitting the erection of bridges at various points. The Chair appointed Messrs. Sherman, Morrill, Allison, Bayard and Lamar members on the part of the Senate of the commission to supervise the dedication ceremonies in connection with the Washington monument. A bill was passed to authorize the issue of the Congressional Record and statutes at large to public libraries. The bill establishing a bureau of labor statistics was taken up, but without action the Senate went into executive session and soon adjourned. ....In the House the Committee on Agriculture reported adversely the resolution appropriating $[illegible],000 for the purchase of seeds for distribution among the sufferers by the overflow of the Mississippi and its tributaries; also adversely the resolution directing the committee to make investigation of the foot and mouth disease in Maine. Consideration of the English-Pelice contested election case was resumed. After considerable debate, Mr. Hart offered as a substitute for the majority resolution, the resolution of the minority confirming the right of Pelice to the seat. The substitute was agreed to—yeas 121, nays 117. Mr. Springer moved a reconsideration, and pending a vote on a motion to lay the motion to reconsider on the table, the House adjourned.

BILLS were passed in the Senate on the 23d: Amending the act creating the Northern judicial district of Texas, and providing for the holding of terms of court for the Western judicial district of Texas at El Paso; authorizing the construction of bridges across the river at St. Paul; appropriating $25,000 to compensate the officers and men of the Government steamer J. Don Cameron for losses incurred by the sinking of the steamer on the Missouri River in 1877. Consideration of the labor statistics bill was resumed, pending debate on which the Senate adjourned....The House resumed consideration of the English-Peelle contested election case, the pending question being on the motion to table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the House had agreed to the minority resolution confirming Peelle's right to his seat as a substitute for the majority resolution. The motion to table was lost by a tie—yeas 132, nays 132. A motion to recommit the case to the Committee on Elections was lost, and the motion to reconsider was agreed to—yeas 133, nays 130. The question recurring on the minority resolution it was lost—yeas 125, nays 129; and the majority resolution was adopted by a vote of 130 yeas to 127 nays. Mr. English then appeared at the bar of the House and took the oath of office. Adjourned.
